Sen. Philip Hart Plans To Speak On Trust Policy

The School of Commerce and Administration and the School of Law will present U. S. Senator Philip A. Hart at 8 p.m., Wednesday, November 15, in Lee Chapel. Sen Hart will speak on "Anti-Trust Laws."

Sen. Hart was born in Bryn Mawr, Pa., and received an A.B. from Georgetown University and a J.D. from the University of Michigan.

After graduation and admittance to the Michigan Bar, Sen. Hart practiced law in Detroit. In 1941 he joined the army as a second lieutenant. As a lieutenant colonel in the D-Day invasion, he was wounded at Utah Beach. In 1945 he received the Croix de guerre.

After his discharge from the army, he returned to practice law in Detroit. He later served as U. S. attorney for the Eastern District of Michigan and as legal adviser to the governor of Michigan.

From 1955 until his election to the U. S. Senate in 1958, Hart was the lieutenant-governor of Michigan. As Michigan's first lieutenant-governor to serve in the office full time, Hart capably outlined the state's program for distributing the polio vaccine.

Since his election to the Senate as a Democrat, Hart has served on the committees of agriculture, forestry, and the judiciary. He is also chairman of the Senate sub-committee on Anti-Trust and Monopoly.

Senator Hart is a past Michigan chairman of the American Christian-Palestine Committee. He has also been president of the Michigan State Bar Foundation, and currently, he is a member of the Detroit Committee on Foreign Relations.

In 1952 Hart received the award of the Federal Business Association as the Outstanding Federal Administrator for the year, in recognition of

Faculty Approves Exam Change; Drug Use Subjected To Penalties

In actions yesterday afternoon, the faculty made changes and clarifications in regulations concerning exams, automobile regulations, and student drug use.

The Faculty approved the following resolution that had been submitted by the Student Affairs Committee concerning drug use:

"Because of recent events occurring on college campuses, the Student Affairs Committee has given special attention to the problem of misuse of drugs by stndents.

"The Committee recognizes that there are customary procedures at Washington and Lee for the handling of matters involving student discipline on a case-by-case basis with no schedule of penalties presribed in advance. The Committee feels that this established approach to student discipline has proven effective and should be preserved. However, the Committee would like to make known its view that the misuse of drugs by students would be a serious disciplinary offense, and that in all such cases the penalty of suspension or expulsion from the University would be considered."

Dean Atwood said that the present policy of referring all cases to the Student Control Committee would be continued. In addition to possible suspension or expulsion from school, the student would be liable for prosecution under Articles 54-488 and 54-510 of the 1950 Code of Virginia:

"It shall be unlawful for any person to manufacture, possess, have under his control, sell, prescribe, administer, disperse or compound any narcotic drug except as authorized in this article.

"Penalties—Any person violating any provision of this article shall upon conviction be punished, for the first offense, by a fine of not more than one thousand dollars and be imprisoned in the penitentiary not less than three nor more than five years."

The faculty also accepted unchanged the recommendations of the Committee on Courses and Degrees concerning changes in the examination schedule:

"The Committee on Courses and Degrees recommends that the faculty adopt on a two-year trial basis the following regulations with respect to examination schedules, beginning in January 1968.

"The examination schedule at the end of the first semester and at the end of the second semester shall be governed by the following principles.

"b. The time of an examination in a course will be determined by the block hour at which it meets.

Cold Check Committee Policy Significantly Changed By EC

Last night the Executive Committee voted 7-3 to change the Cold Check Committee's process for the collecting and paying of cold checks. They also heard a report from Lane Steinger, chairman of the Student Curriculum Committee and voted 6-5 to enlarge his committee by three members.

In executive session the EC reviewed the applications for the available committee positions and requested that the following students appear before the EC next Monday, Nov. 13 at 7:30 p.m. on the third floor of Washington Hall for interviews: the University Committee on Athletics (two will be appointed); Jack Anthony, Allen Craig, Pat Costello, and Gary Silverfield; the Cold Check Committee (one freshman will be chosen) Chris Dove, Henry Harkey, Ronnie Hunt, Harry Phillips, and Jeff Davis; and the Student Library Committee (one or two will be chosen) Richard Regan and Marvin Brooke.

The Cold Check Committee will now pay any merchant the amount of any cold check under $20 and then collect the $20 plus any applicable fine from the offender. Pete Hendricks also amended the motion made by Jody Kline so that the Cold Check Committee would have the

EC Applications

The Executive Committee is accepting applications for three positions on the Curriculum Committee. Only upperclassmen may apply, and their applications should contain g.p.r., qualifications, and reasons for serving on the committee. Applications should be sent to Jody Kline, Phi Kappa Sigma by 6 p.m. on November 13.

Alumni Schedule Visits For Homecoming Festivities

Nearly three hundred alumni and guests are expected for the Homecoming festivities that are planned this weekend. Open houses and a football game against Southwestern are the highlights of the 3 days of events that annually bring W&L alumni back to see the changes and developments on the campus.

The football game is scheduled to begin at 2 p.m. on Saturday with competition for Homecoming queen being the feature of halftime activities. Each fraternity has submitted candidates for the position and the judging is to be done by members of the faculty from the pictures that the fraternities have given to the IFC.

Decorations

Many houses are planning decorations and displays to be judged for an IFC award, which is also to be presented at halftime. Last year's winners were the Lambda Chi's with an allusion to Blake's famous poem in "Tyger, tyger, burning light."

Activities are scheduled to begin on Friday afternoon with a speech featuring Walter Heller, noted economist and presidential advisor. Heller will speak on the topic "Prosperity, Inflation, and the New Economics" at 12:05 in Lee Chapel.

Alumni Receptions

The annual post-game reception and victory celebration will be held in the Alumni House, 34 University Place. The Alumni House was officially opened at last year's Homecoming Weekend after an extensive renovation period.

A reception featuring an alcoholic punch is planned for alumni and state delegation chairmen in the Dutch Inn convention headquarters. Convention officers have been working on convention plans for the past several months and it is hoped that the alumni will support the convention following their visits to the headquarters on Saturday after the football game.

Many of the fraternities are planning receptions for the alumni of their chapters after the game. The IFC and faculty committees have approved the opening of the upstairs of the fraternity houses to the wives of alumni for two hours on Saturday afternoon.

President to Entertain

Saturday morning Acting President and Mrs. W. W. Pusey will entertain at a coffee in the Lee home. The annual alumni luncheon will follow at noon in the Evans Dining Hall.

NOTICE

WLUR-FM (91.5 mc.) will cover local, state and national elections this evening at 8, giving primary coverage to the vote cast in Lexington and Rockbridge County. Coverage will continue until the contests of major local interest are decided.

W&L Debate Team Captures 3rd Place

In competition with 108 debate teams from 80 college representing every section of the nation. Tom Baremore and Chris Mills reached the semi-finals and tied for third place with Northwestern University at the Peachtree Invitational Debate Tournament at Emory University over the weekend.

The Baremore-Mills team, after eight preliminary rounds, had won seven of eight debates and was seeded in ninth place out of sixteen positions for the elimination rounds.

In the first elimination round, the Washington and Lee team defeated Dartmouth College, the defending national champions, by 2-1.

In the second round, Baremore and Mills eliminated Wayne State University, the top-seeded team in the elimination rounds and the school that Dartmouth defeated to win the national championship last April, by a score of 3-0.

In the third elimination round Washington and Lee was in turn defeated by Kansas State of Emporia. In the championship Kansas State lost to Wichita.

A second Washington and Lee team consisting of Rusty Meyer and Tim Wright won three debates, while losing five.

The Emory Tournament is considered the finest in the South and one of the half-dozen or so top national tournaments in the United States.

German Film Is Planned

The Department of German will present a filmed performance Nov. 8 and 9 of Friedrich Schiller's "Don Carlos" by the Vienna Burg-Theatre.

The story concerns Don Carlos, whose father, Philip II of Spain, marries his son's lover for political reasons. The theme deals with the personal and religious freedoms of the individual.

This will be the first of three filmed presentations of Schiller's plays. The other two will be "Mary Stuart" and "William Tell." They are part of a series of films that will be offered to the campus public this year by the German department.

"Don Carlos" will be shown tomorrow and Thursday at 8 p.m. in duPont Auditorium. A limited number of synopses in English will be available.

Heller, Kennedy Economist To Speak Friday At W&L

Walter W. Heller, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, will speak this Friday on "Prosperity, Inflation, and the New Economics," in Lee Chapel at 12:05 p.m.

He is currently a professor of economics at the University of Minnesota. He was appointed chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors by President John F. Kennedy in 1961 and served in that post until the fall of 1964. He still remains an economic advisor to President Lyndon B. Johnson.

A coffee hour will precede Heller's talk at the President's House, and all interested students may attend.

The 52-year-old economist's talk is sponsored by the School of Commerce and Administraion. Heller received his A.B. from Oberlin and his M.A. and Ph.D. from the University of Wisconsin. He was born in Buffalo and raised in Milwaukee.

Chitwood Memorial Fund Gives $312 To Library

The Student Library Committee Monday afternoon donated $312 to McCormick library to be used for the purchase of popular books.

Every fraternity and numerous individuals contributed to the fund. Books bought with this money will have a plate on the inside cover to show that they were bought in memory of Randy Chitwood, former chairman of the Library Committee, who was killed in an automobile accident last spring.

Literary Review Selects Format

"Shenandoah," W&L's literary review, is on the press now and will be on sale in a few weeks.

The magazine, containing fiction by Joyce Carol Oates and Nancy A. J. Potter, will sell for $1 a copy. Alumni subscriptions will be sold at $3 for one year or $5 for two years.

Founded in 1950, "Shenandoah" is a professional quarterly with international circulation. Fiction, poetry, literary essays, and reviews are featured. The magazine has contributions from writers in America and Eurpoe.

The magazine is a joint faculty-student enterprise. It is edited by Professor James Boatwright of the English department and is printed in the University Print Shop in Reid Hall.

Pinney Elected

Dr. Edward L. Pinney, Associate Professor of Political Science at W&L, was chosen secretary of the Southern Political Science Association at its annual convention last Friday.

The 37-year-old professor received his B.S. from Auburn and his M.A. and Ph. D. from the University of North Carolina. He has previously taught at North Carolina State, University of North Carolina, and Louisiana State University. He has written "Federalism, Bureaucracy, and Party Politics in West Germany—The Role of the Bundesrat" and edited and contributed to "Comparative Politics and Political Theory—Essays In Honor of Charles Baskerville Robson." In addition, he is a contributor to numerous professional and learned journals.

Notice

There will be a meeting of all state chairmen, or their representatives, in duPont Auditorium at 5:30 Wednesday afternoon. Attendance will be taken.

Washington and Lee students and faculty planted flower bulbs last Saturday in a Lexington campaign to improve the appearance of the town in the spring. It is reassuring to note that in the light of the weather of the past week, some people think that Spring will come.

Cox, Member of FCC, To Speak On Broadcasting Problems

Federal Communications Commission member Kenneth A. Cox will discuss "Broadcasting, Its Potential and Problems" in an appearance Monday (Nov. 13) at Washington and Lee University.

Cox's talk, at 8 p.m. in Reid Hall Auditorium, is being sponsored by W&L radio station WLUR-FM and the Department of Journalism and Communications.

Open House

An open house, during which the WLUR broadcasting facilities will be on display, will follow at 9 p.m. The public, and particularly area broadcasters, have been invited.

Commissioner Cox was nominated for his post by President Kennedy in 1963 and confirmed by the Senate for a term ending in 1970. He is a graduate of the Universities of Washington and Michigan, where he studied law and specialized in political science and economics.

A practicing lawyer, Cox was named special counsel for the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee and helped direct that committee's television inquiry of 1956-57. He conducted several additional hearings for the committee before being named to the FCC as chief of its broadcast bureau in 1961. He moved up from this post to his present position two years later.

AT MID-TERM

This is only the seventh Tuesday Ring-tum Phi of the year, and yet so much has taken place at Washington and Lee that we'd like to recap some highlights of the two months so far—in concentrated form, both for impact and because if we waited much longer a reasonably comprehensive listing would be burdensomely overlong—and because in the last analysis, we're rather fond and proud of this University.

• Most striking is the frequency and top-notch quality of the diverse speakers who have visited here. Walter Heller and Senator Hart, both brought under the Commerce School's new alumni-funded speaker series; Secretary of Transportation Boyd, who dropped in one Saturday; Sir Sidney Caine; Drs. Fletcher, Kernodle, Williams and Lehman; Anthony Howard of the London "Observer"—these all came to Washington and Lee because we are Washington and Lee, not because we are stops on a lecture tour. The lecture-tour speakers oughtn't be neglected, either; this year's speakers, including Undersecretary of State Frankel and Drs. Freidel and Kazin, are among the most noteworthy we've had on campus in a long time. "Contact," bringing Barry Goldwater and Thruston Morton, with others yet to be announced, and the Mock Convention, bringing Claude Kirk and others also yet to be announced—these all give us a good start, to say the least.

• The new student union, conceived and begun-upon under Dr. Cole's administration, will undeniably do W&L a world of good. The Troub Theatre renovations, the new and sorely needed ROTC facility, the imminence of announcement of a major development program—the University's physical well-being is being well looked after.

• Enough huzzahs can never be given the faculty for amending the exam schedule. A thousand other things deserve mention, too: WLUR's decision to broadcast football games (and its superb execution of that decision); Mrs. Munger and the Bookstore; the provocative, fruitful alumni visitation; the Glee Club in Montreal; the new curriculum committees; the new attitude toward hazing (certainly attributable only in part to the new rules); for that matter, the marvelous interest shown by everybody for everything that makes W&L what it is, and in everything that ought to make it what it ought to be.

Most places would give their eye teeth to have that for a year-long record. We have that, and more, in a half-term. Add it to the faculty and student body we also have, and we seem to come precious close to fulfilling, already this year, the outline of W&L's "basic purposes" in the Self-Study's "Statement of Institutional Philosophy": "The dedication of all our resources to the development of the capacity and desire to learn, to understand and to pass on to others." Amen.

Student Body President Praises Faculty Exam Schedule Decision

Student Body president Richard Nash praised the faculty's decision on a new exam schedule to avoid a concentration of exams. The Executive Committee this year proposed to the faculty its ideas on how to change the schedule and Nash appeared before the faculty last month to urge action.

Nash

In praising the Committee on Courses and Degrees for its proposal which will begin on a two-year trial basis this January, Nash said he still hoped that there will be "self-determining exam schedules sometime in the future."

The new "one-a-day" plan with examinations determined by the block hour at which it meets will automatically exclude the possibility of having two exams in one day or four in two days.

Nash compared this new innovation by the faculty with the implementation of the "pass-fail" courses and the relaxed cut system. Our new "one-a-day" plan is "certainly as significant as these other advances and all represent a good trend for Washington and Lee."

(The revised exam schedule was passed yesterday by the faculty in its November meeting, reportedly by a close vote.)

Litter Law Is Challenged As 'Violation Of Freedom'

Two Washington and Lee sophomores will find out next Tuesday if they have been successful in striking down Lexington City Ordinance 11-6. Mike Allderdice and David Frankstone were arrested on October 12 for passing out handbills in front of Lexington High School urging the students to join a Teen Age Republican (TAR) club. Claiming no previous warning or knowledge o fthe ordinance, they were arrested on this ordinance designed to prevent litter.

Law professors James W. H. Stewart and Charles V. Laughlin appeared in Lexington Municipal Court today to again argue the case, Commonwealth v. Allderdice and Frankstone. A decision was put off until court this week because Judge James Davidson was presiding only temporarily and said he didn't want to make such a far-reaching decision.

Professor Stewart presented the arguments for the defense and the new judge, Judge Joseph Hess, took the case under advisement until next week so that he can consider the points cited by Mr. Stewart. The judge said if he struck the ordinance down on his level, it would be because it was unconstitutional according to the Virginia and U. S. constitutions.

The points brought out by Mr. Stewart were that this ordinance is a "denial of equal protection" because it does not make clear how to obtain permission to distribute handbills. An ordinance of this type was struck down under similar circumstances in 1948 in the case of "Roberts v. City of Norfolk." This requirement-of-consent case further cites the U. S. Supreme Court on other similar cases.

Professor Stewart went further and said that this ordinance clearly violates the Virginia Constitution, Article 12, provisions for "freedom speech" and "freedom of the press." Also, he charged it violates the First Amendment to the U. S. Constitution as applied to the states by the Fourteenth Amendment. These constitutional points were introduced in addition to the fact that the students were not warned and there was no evidence of littering by them or the students who received the handbills.

Kirk Says Johnson Will Dump Humphrey

(Florida Governor Claude Kirk, who will keynote the 1968 Mock Republican Convention, was interviewed over the telephone by Tuesday Ring-tum Phi writer Larry Honig. Following is a transcript of that interview.)

Copyright © 1967 by The Tuesday Ring-tum Phi

Ring-tum Phi: Mr. Governor, do you believe Senator Smathers is going to retire next year?

Gov. Kirk: We've been given every assurance by the Senator in his constant statements that he is going to retire. I only had one misgiving, and that was when he made the statement a few months ago that he felt like his health might return to him in time to run for the governorship in 1970. It sounds to me like if he's going to feel that good in 1970, he might feel a little bit better in 1968.

R-t Phi: Whom do you see from both parties as possible contenders for the seat?

Kirk: The Democratic party has got its two so-far registered contenders, Mr. Leroy Collins, former governor of the State, and the present attorney-general of the State, Mr. Faircloth. There is some continued rumor that the chairman of the Board of Regents [Chester Ferguson], who is not supposed to be a political dean, . . . is the major candidate for Senator.

The Republican party has . . . the very attractive Congressman, [Edward J.] Gurney from Orange County, which is Orlando, [who] will probably announce some day soon that he will be a candidate and will then make the race and will be elected the United States Senator from Florida.

R-t Phi: What prospects do you see for expansion of the Republican party in the South?

Kirk: We're not concerned about the South. We're Florida, which happens to be geographically located in the South. I'm from Alabama, and quite frankly we like to think that we're members of the United States. As the Republican party expands in the nation, it also will be expanding in the various states which are also located in the South.

Somehow or other, I hear people say "South" with . . . tongue-in-cheek . . . like we're some retarded group. I object to that, and I point out that Florida, of course, is the eighth state in the nation, and well in advance of some of the other geographically located states that are in other positions, all the way down to number fifty.

R-t Phi: Do you see any possiblity of the Republican party recapturing the Negro bloc vote?

Kirk: I would hate to think there was such a thing as any kind of bloc vote. In Florida, we don't have white people or Negroes—we have six million Floridians. And I think we don't appeal to blocs down here. Now, maybe that's the order of the day in Northern districts: Mayor Daley's area, where the President seems to think it's so important that he has the Convention.

Inasmuch as the Republican party wanted to be . . . in Miami, and so voted, . . . apparently the President subscribes to your approach that there are such things as bloc votes. Therefore he put it in Chicago. We don't subscribe to that in Florida, or in the Republican party. We think Americans are Americans.

R-t Phi: People have cautioned the Republican party that if it nominates a candidate with a stronger position on Vietnam than Johnson's, the Communists will take action to ensure Johnson's re-election. In light of Khrushchev's bragging about Nixon's defeat, what do you think of this caution?

Kirk: I don't know who these people are. I think that's some wishful thinking on the part of some very ultra-liberal writer . . . who can't think of anything else to say or do. Unless you can establish the person, time and place, I doubt if anybody that wants to vouch for his name ever said that. . . . You know the easiest thing to float and the hardest thing to sink is a rumor.

R-t Phi: Senator Tower of Texas and you are recognized as possible Vice-Presidential candidates from the South. Do you see any others?

Kirk: I'm not a Vice-Presidential candidate from the South. I'm damn tired of being identified as that . . . just because I'm a Southerner. We Southerners are a little upset with this continued segregation; we're not second-class citizens down here.

And if you think a man is capable of being Vice-President—one breath from being President—then you must think he's capable of being President. We all know that there is no way a man can campaign for Vice- President. . . . The President picks his Vice-Presidential candidate. So I think that's just so much segregation . . . that we will let them be gun bearers but we won't ever let them be hunters. Quite frankly, I don't subscribe to that.

I'm not a candidate for either office, but if you're going to talk about it, let's . . . be candidates on equality with people from other areas. As an example, how many people are in Michigan? . . . There are 8½ million. Why is the governor of Michigan any better than the Senator from Texas? I have six million people here.

To pick another extreme, Mr. Goldwater was Senator from a State that has a million people. I don't think the size or location of states has . . . anything to do with it. Now you must admit, of course, that the governor of the State of New York or the governor of the State of California—the number one state in the nation, by number—is automatically catapaulted into . . . presidential consideration.

You may remember all the time that Governor Warren was governor, he was always mentioned. Pat Brown was always mentioned for some position. Those are realistic; that's all right.

R-t Phi: A supposed handicap of a Rockefeller-Kirk or Rockefeller-Reagan ticket is that all have been divorced. Do you feel this is or could become a handicap?

Kirk: I don't think that's any handicap. . . . We're talking about electing a man on his ability to administer a state or a nation, and not his ability to live with a woman. . . . On that basis, you'd never elect a bachelor, either. . . . My 18 years of marriage—I don't know about the others—resulted in four lovely children. I'll stake my four children against the President's two any day you want to, on quality of person, or bearing, or beauty, you name it.

So I'll stake any one of my marriages against anybody else's, if that's the criterion. Quite frankly, I think Americans are over that. . . . If all the Americans and their families who've been touched by divorce were to all get behind the divorced candidate, . . . you'd probably have a sweeping victory for him.

[Americans are] over the fact that you can't vote for a Jew because he's a Jew, you can't vote for a Catholic because he's a Catholic, you can't vote for a Negro because he's a Negro, you can't vote for a divorced man because he's divorced. They look at the man as a man and not anything other than what job he's supposed to do.

R-t Phi: When and why do you think the American public came over this?

Kirk: Because we're Americans. This is the most dynamic country in the world. This is a country where there's a constant revolution; democracy is a constant revolution. We are the only country in the world that is in constant revolution, trying to upgrade every person within our boundaries.

Obviously, by our record, we're trying to upgrade and help up every willing person in the world. We've done it in Japan, we've done it in Germany, we're trying to do it in Vietnam, we've done it in Korea, we're willing to do it in Africa, we're trying our best to do it in South America.

R-t Phi: In your opinion, who is the front-runner for the Republican Presidential nomination?

Kirk: I don't know who that would be now. There are so many fine candidates that truly the Republican Convention will be the only democratic convention conducted this year.

R-t Phi: Whom do you favor, may we ask, for the Presidential nomination?

Kirk: I just think any one of them is going to make a great President. Fortunately, any one of the Republican candidates . . . would make far and away a greater President than the existing President of the United States. So we can't help but win, if we go to work.

Now I think, as I've stated last week, that we have an uphill fight, because Mr. Politics—which is President Johnson—is not going to sit around and just not do something after that very exciting Republican convention. . . . He's got to do something, and . . . he probably will ask Mr. Humphrey to step aside and become Secretary of State or Secretary of Defense, and will seemingly open up the convention to some measure of excitement.

But actually I think what he will do is try to get the doves back in the Democratic coop by naming a military dove as Vice-Presidential candidate with him, which would of course be General James Gavin. I made this statement in Detroit, and I think a lot of people agree with me.

I mean, who's the past master of grabbing the headlines? Who's the boy that throws the long ball in the eleventh hour? Who is the very suckling child of politics? It's Mr. Politics, the President of the United States. You can fault him in anything you want to fault him in, but you can't fault him as Mr. Politics.

Last summer the militant SNCC chairman H. Rap Brown came to Jacksonville and as he urged his audience to "get yourself some guns," Gov. Kirk overwhelmed him with a cheerful "Welcome to Florida!" Brown was so aghast and the audience so enthralled that the situation quickly calmed down. Kirk left after an energetic round of handshaking and Brown left muttering something about rude Southern "honkies."

Kirk: I'm just looking forward to being with you. I think it's an outstanding example of real Americanism. . . . Get my team going!

Blue Dumped By Tigers: Bloom's Passing Totals 224

Last Saturday, in a game which could have clinched the CAC title for Washington and Lee, the University of the South at Sewanee rolled over the Generals 43-0.

The usually strong Blue defense was unable to contain the overwhelming rushing attack of Sewanee led by halfback Bubba Owens and by Jim Beene (last year's all CAC defensive back).

Scoring for the Purple Tigers started early in the first quarter when back, Charles Gignilliat ended a strong rushing attack with a two yard scamper into paydirt.

The second quarter was almost completely dominated by the Tiger offense. Touchdowns were scored by King on a 29 yard pass play, Owens on a 58 yard run, and finally by Blount on a two yard run.

The Generals tried hard to overcome their 28 point deficit in the second half but failed to move the ball consecutively. Sewanee added another 6 points to their score but Underwood failed to gain the extra point.

Once again, in the fourth quarter, the Generals could only muster a mediocre offensive drive and allowed Beene to sneak through on a one yard run. In the closing minutes of the game, Poff blocked a W&L punt and a safety was scored.

Sewanee, with 334 yards rushing, outgained the Generals 478 to 288 in total offense. Probably the most outstanding performance by the blue team was Andy Bloom. Completing 19 out of 33 passes he totaled 244 yards.

The loss was the Generals' third this year against four victories. Sewanee is also 4-3.

It is interesting to note that for the last five years of Homecoming games with Sewanee, W&L has lost only before the Sewanee homecoming crowd, and Sewanee has lost only before the Generals' home crowd.

I-M Football Nears Climax

By GEORGE McFARLAND

This week I-M football will move to a climatic finish with playoffs beginning next week. In league "A" it seems to be all over. Phi Gam is the surprise class of this league. The Phi Kaps seem to have lost "the knack" this year. If you do not believe Phi Gam is all that great, just ask a Sigma Nu.

"B" league will witness a collison of the behemoths Wednesday at 2 p.m. The Phi Delts will clash with Lambda Chi for the league trophy, which should be a lovely piece of hardware.

"C" league has been busily seeking to defeat the Phi Psi varsity team to no avail. Kappa Sig will be seeking to put a cramp in the Phi Psi bid for glory, but it looks like a tough assignment.

"D" league has to be the surprise of the season with N.F.U. perched on top of an embarrassed heap. They played ZBT today. A ZBT win would develop a three way tie between N.F.U., S.P.E. and Z.B.T.

Who knows the story on minor sports? As long as the fraternities sink all their atheletic funds in football scholarships there will be little University interest in the "lesser" sports. Remember now, cut your labs next week and hike over to the practice field for the orgiastic climax of I-M football. It should be worth the effort. Meanwhile, this reporter will be seeking information leading to a Sunday supplement on the true story of what really goes on in an I-M wrestling match.

BERARD

With all the recent excitement about our football team and the great promise of other intercollegiate sports here on campus, it has suddenly become apparent to me that all of us have been ignoring or else unaware of the emergence of a new giant within the W&L community. Naturally, I am referring to the FU intramural program.

For following a perusal of current I-M standings, the old fraternity bones in me had a convulsive start when I spied the FU record of 9-8. With a certain masochistic design, I pursued this unfortunate turn of events to the local I-M fields where I witnessed another FU gridiron triumph over the "beep-beep" fraternity.

No longer able to control my nose for news, I shuffled up to a departing victor and ever so casually queried my man. As I recall, it went something like this:

"Well, ya'll really must have had another lucky day, today, huh?"

"What do you mean 'lucky,' buddy? Those bums were 'lucky' to escape with their lives. We should have scored twice as many points!"

"Gee, but I thought the 'beep-beeps' had a good team this year?"

"Well, maybe. They did try hard. And they were the best the fraternities have been able to throw against us so far. But still, it was a slaughter."

"But isn't it true that this is the first year that the FUs, oops—sorry—I mean Independents, have been able to win even one football game?"

"Yeah, but we're changing with the school. You know, the better the school gets, the stronger we will become. It's just great. Whether for participation points or a winning game, fellas are cutting labs, seminars and ROTC just to be a part of this change. Oh, by the way, you can call us FUs. It's a source of pride now."

"You realize that not many fraternity men would agree with you?"

"That's okay. We know we're right and we have time on our side. Besides, we've got more people to draw on than any fraternity on campus. Right now, all we have to do is marshal all our forces and we can be right at the top of this I-M heap come next June. After all, we came in ninth last year. And, in terms of this season our best sports are just coming up."

"Hmmm. Surely, you must have some weaknesses? I mean, you can't destrory the fraternities' leadership in one year, can you?"

"You're right, we do have a weakness: we can't get freshmen FUs to participate. We have a real communication problem; there's no doubt about it. But we're going to have some meeting this week in order to get things moving. Until now, we have had only a couple of freshmen helping, but one of them scored in the top ten in the turkey trot. Still, you're right, we do have that one weakness. Otherwise, watch out!"

"Gee, a lot of fraternities need the I-M rankings for rush week; it all seems kind of vengeful and unfair. Are you sure this is what you want to do?"

Then, in a fit of laughter, my interviewee grabbed a basketball and went upstairs to the FU scrimmage.

Exactly what will become of this new spirit, talent and participation by the motley aggregate known as the "FUs" is unclear. However, through the efforts of last year's athletic director, Neil Jespersen, and the current organizer, Ray Bradford, many talented non-fraternity men are now not only having fun in I-M, but also winning games. It really presents a delightful problem of great magnitude for the motely establishment.

WU Takes Tourney: Blue Finishes Second

The College Athletic Conference held its fourth annual cross country meet on Saturday, and for the fourth time, Washington University has run away with first place honors.

Running over Washington and Lee's 4.1 mile course, the Battling Bears from St. Louis completely dominated the race, taking first, second, third, fifth, seventh, eighth, and ninth. Since only the first five runners from each team count in the scoring, W.U., had a score of 18, only three more than the possible minimum. The host Generals were second with 57, followed by Southwestern, 91, Centre, 99, and Sewanee, 113.

For the second year in a row, Dave Romano of Washington was the individual champion, covering the course in a time of 23:45.3. He was followed by teammates Ben Slavich, and Ron Stewart. Hopes for the other four teams are pretty bleak, as Washington will have all seven of its top runners back next year.

Harry Zeliff in fourth place was the first W&L finisher in 24:42. Other General finishers were, co-captain Corbet Bryant, 11th, Dave Haydu, 12th, Sean O'Connor, 14th, Paul Wilber, 16th, Bill Arvin, 8th, and Ralph Pearcy, a disappointing 24th after 10th last year. Bryant was in third place with only a mile to go when he tripped trying to pass a Washington runner. The other General co-captain, Bob Stack was unable to run as a result of a strained hamstring muscle that has sidelined him for most of the season.

Changes Made In Cold Check Regulations

power to charge interest to anyone who was delinquent in paying them.

Kline, Vellines, Halford, Crenshaw, Leonard, Tompkins, and Hendricks voted for the change. Faulk, Matthews, and Sandler voted against the motion. Several of those who voted against the motion apparently felt that the additional work that the Cold Check Committee would be required to do would not be of any significant value.

Crenshaw moved to have 3 additional upperclassmen appointed to the Curriculum Committee at the request of Lane Steinger. This motion passed 6-5 with Nash casting the tie-breaking vote. For the motion were Nash, Faulk, Matthews, Halford, Crenshaw, and Leonard. Against the motion were Kline, Vellines, Sandler, Tompkins, and Hendicks. Butch West was absent. Many of those that voted against the motion felt that at least one of the three should be from the freshman class.

Lane Steinger outlined the initial action of his committee. It has been divided into two sub-committees. The first sub-committee is to determine the type and scope of the course review; the second is to concern itself with the changes in the curriculum.

The Curriculum Committee would attempt to face the following questions over the year, Steinger stated: the status of the independent major, creation of more inter-departmental majors, the status and prerequisites of seminars, a tutorial plan, general theses and comprehensives, possible changes in the graduation requirements, and a survey of the free college system. The free college system is where students will get together and run a course or seminar for themselves on their own.

Herb Crenshaw then reported on his study on the problem of the tests at mid-semester. The EC reached a consensus that they had a three point program which they could act on. First, letters should be sent to all parents explaining the exact scope and meaning of the mid-semester reports. Second, scheduling of mid-semester tests on a system similar to that of the new final exam system. This would prevent more than one mid-term exam on any one day. Third, the use of a pass or fail criterion instead of an administrative grade.

The EC postponed action on the mid-semester proposals until all the members had time to think over Crenshaw's report.

NOTICE

Turner Writes On Railroad

Dr. Charles W. Turner, professor of history, has written an article appearing in the current (October) number of "The Railway and Locomotive Historical Society Bulletin," published by the Baker Library of Harvard University's business school.

Dr. Turner's article is entitled "The 'Great Short Line' In Reconstruction, 1865-1876," and concerns the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, which has "the distinction of being one of the earliest to be chartered and built in the United States with capital subscribed by both the state and private interests."

New Circuit Court Judge Schedules A Speech For Law School

The Student Bar Association will present United States Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals Judge John D. Butzner, Jr. Tuesday, November 14, at 8:00 p.m. in Tucker Hall.

Judge Butzner, a native of Scranton, Pa., received his B.A. from the University of Scranton and his LL.B. from the University of Virginia.

Appointments

After he was admitted to the Virginia Bar in 1941, Butzner set up a private legal practice in Fredericksburg. He remained in Fredericksburg until 1958. From 1958 to 1962 he served a judge in the 15th and 39th Judicial Circuits of Virginia.

In 1962 Butzner was appointed to the federal judiciary as U. S. Judge in Richmond for the Eastern District of Virginia. Butzner served in that capacity until last August, when he was appointed to the 4th Circuit Court of Appeals in Richmond.

UFOCC Initiates Drive For Clothing from Campus

The University Federation of Christian Concern, in collaboration with the Circle K, will start its clothing drive tomorrow. The clothes are being collected for the needy of Lexington and Rockbridge County.

Boxes will be placed in convenient locations around campus and in the fraternity houses. The campus locameet on Saturday, and for the fourth dormitories and in Tucker Hall.

The distributor for the majority of the clothing collected will be the Rockbridge County Welfare Department. The superintendant, Mrs. William Buchanan, wife of the political science professor, expressed great enthusiasm for the drive. All clothing that can be collected would find use right here in Rockbridge County.

Contributions by college students would be especially valuable since men's clothing is always hard for welfare groups to acquire. "Pajamas and sweaters would be especially useful," said Mrs. Buchanan.

However, Mrs. Buchanan was quick to point out that only clothing which was reasonably clean and wearable would be of any help. "Torn rags cannot keep anyone warm."

Faculty Changes Exam Schedule

The examinations for the class hours A through J shall be given in the morning periods, one each morning except when it is necessary for the examination period to begin on Saturday. In this latter case, the first examination will be on Saturday afternoon. Examinations for classes which do not meet at the A through J hours will be held during the examination period at a mutually convenient time.

"c. The sequence of the examination shall be A, C, E, G, I, B, D, F, H, J. They shall be rotated so that the examinations shall move one day later in the schedule at the end of each succeeding semester. The examinations which come on the last day of the schedule at the end of one semester shall be on the first day of the schedule at the next semester.

"Examinations begin on Monday, Jan. 22. One examination will take place each morning through Thursday, Feb. 1, in the following order: H, J, A, C, E, G, I, B, D, F. (Note that this eliminates one day in the MWF sequence.)"

In other action, the faculty approved a revision in the Motor Vehicle Regulations to allow students on academic probation to operate cars in Lexington. The change simplifies enforcement of the regulations by placing students on academic probation in the same category with freshmen and students receiving financial aid.

Professor Writes Article

The inner recessed area of the public stage in Renaissance Spain is the subject of an article by Professor L. L. Barrett published recently in "Renaissance Drama 1967."

While there is some doubt that the English Renaissance stage had such a recessed area, there is evidence of its existence in Spanish stages at the time, Dr. Barrett notes. His article, which grew out of discussion of a paper he presented two years ago in Chicago at a Conference on Research Opportunities in Renaissance Drama, examines this evidence.
