The Calyx staff dedicates this yearbook to Dr. William Webb Pusey, III, a man who has left an indelible mark on Washington and Lee University.

Dr. Pusey retired last year after serving as professor of German, dean and acting president during his 42 years at the University.

At more than one time in his career, he held several titles at the same time. When he was acting president for six months in 1967 during the interim between Dr. Fred Cole and Robert E.R. Huntley, he was also professor, dean and chairman of the courses and degrees committee.

As dean of the college from 1960-71, he was responsible for attracting superior faculty members, expanding research opportunities, doubling the arts and sciences curriculum and creating the six-week spring term.

Yet, after those 11 years as dean of the arts and sciences division, Dr. Pusey stepped down to return to the enjoyment of full-time teaching. He is a firm believer in the undergraduate education philosophy at W&L and refused throughout his career to give up teaching an introductory course in German.

"I suppose the main reason is that I enjoy teaching beginning German; I've done it almost every year since I've been at Washington and Lee — I enjoy teaching students who are, by and large, enthusiastic about a new subject."

Dr. Pusey is respected outside of the W&L community as a distinguished scholar. He has written a book, The Interrupted Dream. The Educational Program at Washington College (Washington and Lee University) 1850-1880, and a number of articles and monographs on the German language and its literature.

Currently he is researching the letters from Germany of Junius M. Fishburn who was a professor of Latin at Washington College from 1852-1858.

Moreover, Dr. Pusey always has taken an avid interest in the Lexington community. He was a member of the Lexington and Rockbridge County school boards, director of the local Boys' Club and founder and lifetime trailmaster of the Foxstick Hiking Club.

Dr. Pusey once called Washington and Lee "Utopia U." Certainly if the University is close to achieving this ideal, Dr. William Webb Pusey, III, had a very large hand in getting it there.

To the class of 1982:

Each year since I became president of our University, the editors of the Calyx have invited me to convey a message to the graduating seniors through the pages of the yearbook. Always a pleasant task, the opportunity finds me beset this year with many of the feelings of nostalgia and bittersweet sadness that most of you experience as commencement approaches. For, like you, I am closing out a most important period in my life.

All of the graduating classes I have known are special to me for various reasons. It's likely that yours will command some extra measure of my affection. We have shared much together.

As freshmen, you helped "move it"—that truly extraordinary day in 1979 when all of us pitched in to move our library into its new building. There are few, if any, days in Washington and Lee's long history when such a genuine sense of accomplishment has been experienced by so many members of the University family.

For some months we continued to endure the disruption and inconvenience of other construction projects, but as juniors and seniors you began to realize the fulfillment of so many plans that were only dreams and architects' schemes when I began my time as president. Yours is the first class to have essentially full use of all the facilities we set out to provide more than a decade ago.

You have also had the opportunity to study with a truly dedicated faculty of excellent teachers. As gratifying as our new facilities may be, I find even greater satisfaction in the certain knowledge that the quality and promise of both our faculty and students have never been higher.

I shall use this book, as I am certain you will, as a frequent visual reminder of a remarkable senior year, a final year, in which so many of our hopes and dreams were fulfilled, when so many good things fell happily into place, enabling us all to face our futures with confidence in ourselves and pride in our University.

With gratitude and admiration,

WINTER
The Founders' Day ceremonies were marked by two important events this year. President Robert E.R. Huntley announced the completion of the 10-year, $67-million development program.

The program is the largest successful project by a college or university of this size.

The ceremonies also acknowledged the 90th birthday of Rupert N. Latture, a faculty member for 42 years and special assistant to the president.

As a senior in 1914, Dr. Latture founded the Omicron Delta Kappa leadership society at W&L. This year 19 undergraduate and law students were “tapped” into the society.

The Washington and Lee football team enjoyed its best season in almost two decades finishing with an 8-2 record and capturing the Old Dominion Athletic Conference championship for the first time.

After an opening loss to Gettysburg College and a four-game mark of 2-2, the Generals went on a six-game winning streak, including a two-point victory over 1980 ODAC champion Maryville College.

Fourth-year head coach Gary Fallon, who was the unanimous choice for ODAC coach of the Year, saw one of his first recruits, senior nose tackle Mike Pressler, become W&L’s second Kodak All-American. Pressler served as one of the tri-captains and led the team with 65 solo tackles and 20 assists.

Junior tailback Chris Cavalline was named ODAC Player of the Year and was one of eight players selected for the All-ODAC first team. Also selected were sophomore quarterback Al Paradise, who passed for over 1,000 yards this season; senior tight end Mike Fogarty, who led the conference with 31 catches for 418 yards and four touchdowns; junior offensive lineman Andy Foley; sophomore offensive Glenn Kirschner; junior place-kicker Bill Devine; junior defensive back Barry Thompson; and Pressler.

Although the Washington and Lee soccer team began its season with high expectations, injuries at key positions and a few bad breaks left the booters with a 4-10-1 record.

The Generals opened the season with an impressive 3-1-1 mark before hitting a seven-game losing streak. They finally broke the streak with a win over Virginia Wesleyan College.

Despite the disappointing season, several of the players received recognition at the conference and state level.

Junior co-captain Tad Renner and sophomore forward Roland Simon were named to the all-Old Dominion Athletic Conference first team. Each received or shared four team Player-of-the-Game awards during the course of the season.

Sophomore forward Mark Sullivan was selected for the second team All-ODAC.

The most successful team on campus this fall was certainly the water polo team. Led by several All-Americans, Coach Page Remillard's squad became a formidable group in early matches and matured into a dominating force on the East Coast.

As the team continued to win, it gained accolade after accolade. The Generals won the state title and then the Southern League. These victories sent the Generals to the Eastern Championships to compete against the best teams on the East Coast. Slippery Rock State College, the only team to give the Generals any real problems all season, was able to get by Washington and Lee in the first round, but only after a long, close game.

The 1981 water polo team will long be remembered for its accomplishments. The team's record of 31-5 set a mark for the most wins by any team in W&L history. The team's performance is also a record for the most wins by any team on the East Coast.

One of the team's greatest strengths was its superb conditioning, which allowed it to simply outswim its opponents. The team's stamina and power, combined with the leadership of Co-captains Tim Rock and Erik Peterson and the skills of many fine players, have made the Generals a force to be reckoned with.

Led by sophomore Angus McBryde and freshman Frank Pittman, the W&L cross country team had another fine season, finishing with an 8-3 dual meet record and giving coach Dick Miller his 21st winning campaign in 29 seasons.

McBryde and Pittman finished first and second for the team in most of the meets and both placed in the Division III top 10 at the Southeastern Regionals.

But they had a lot of help from returning lettermen and several capable freshman runners. Senior captain Greg Branan, junior Jon Kelafant, sophomore Paul Chapman and freshmen Steve Whetzle and Chris Smith provided a strong top five all season.

The young harriers are looking forward to continued success for the next several years.

Senior guard Ken Jaffe, junior Jay Fechtel, and sophomore Henry Bond provided key reserve play for the team, which opened its season by losing its first three games by a total of four points. The team then won 19 of its next 22 to tie for the Old Dominion Athletic Conference Championship.

Canfield, admittedly hard to please, said, "I am basically satisfied with the season as a whole. To be nationally ranked and tied for the conference championship is a pretty good achievement. I'm excited about the possibilities next year, especially if we can start where we left off."

This was supposed to be a transition year for Washington and Lee's basketball team. After all, the players were both young and inexperienced.

But the Generals posted a 21-7 record, tied for the regular season conference championship, and ranked nationally. With only two returning starters, head coach Verne Canfield fashioned a squad that relied on team defense and offensive patience.

Sophomore John Lee Graves, who led the team in both scoring and rebounding, and junior Brian Hanson, second in both categories, combined with junior center Frank Eppe's to provide the Generals' inside scoring punch.

Senior guard George Spears, the only graduating starter, provided the clutch play such as the 18-foot jumper that gave the team possibly its biggest win of the year, a 62-61 victory over arch-rival Roanoke.

A young W&L wrestling team, which featured 11 freshmen on a 15-member squad, won its final six matches to boost the season record to 8-6, and left high expectations for the next season.

After winning its first match at Lynchburg College, the team dropped six of the next seven.

However, the wrestlers began to turn things around at the W&L College Invitational, Jan. 23, in which eight of the 10 team members finished in the top four of their weight class.

Sophomore captain Tim Valliere and freshman Joe O'Neill took top honors in the 138 and 190-pound classes respectively. Freshman Jeff Dixon was second at 177 pounds and sophomore heavyweight Carlton Peebles showed.

The team continued to improve with two close victories over Hampden-Sydney and an impressive win over Richmond which earlier in the season had humiliated the Generals at the W&L Invitational.

Coach Gary Franke is enthusiastic about the prospects for next season and is looking for continued improvement from his young team.

The 1981-82 W&L swimming team, under the direction of Coach Page Remillard, finished the season with a 6-5 record.

Although the Generals are only a Division III team, they played a difficult schedule that included Division I and Division II teams. Despite this disadvantage, the Generals notched victories over such larger schools as William and Mary, Virginia Commonwealth, and Georgetown.

Almost all the W&L swimmers had good seasons individually, but several performed particularly well. Senior Mike Bernot and sophomore Tim Rock, both of whom earned Division III All-American honors the previous year, turned in dominating performances this year. In addition, junior Rob Crawford and sophomore Rand McClain performed well enough to earn spots in the NCAA Division III Championships, held at W&L March 18-20.

Overall, nine W&L swimmers qualified to compete in the Division III Championships. Bernot, Rock, Crawford, and McClain participated in individual events while the members of the 400-yard medley, 400-yard freestyle, and 800-yard freestyle relays also qualified.

THE YEAR IN REVIEW

Washington and Lee students who returned for the fall term of the 1981-1982 year found that some changes had been made to the school's social heart—the fraternity system. A change in the Virginia Alcoholic Board's laws on purchasing, coupled with a rather mediocre effort on the part of the Interfraternity Council to promote rush, made this fall one of the most confusing and enigmatic ever. The Lexington Police Department had promised faithfully to uphold the new laws, which banned the consumption of beer by 18-year-olds, by making Entebbe-style raids on fraternities. Keep the drinking in order, the police asked, and the raids will be canceled. Anyway, the police department's demands were only bluffs, and the focus of attention shifted to the way rush was handled by the IFC. Complaints originated from both freshmen and frat cats, who argued that the technique of rushing was not properly explained and the no-contact rules had been abused. Enough complaints were received to warrant a study by the IFC. Headed by Senator Justice Jack Wells, the IFC promised to study the merits of possibly delaying rush either several weeks or until the winter term.

While fraternity members were arguing on the success of their rush, the Executive Committee was busy trying to make improvements on the student body constitution. Realizing that past amendment crusades had been defeated by voter apathy, E.C. President Eric Myers turned the referendum into his own personal battle, campaigning to the freshmen dormitories and along the Colonnade for a good turnout. The E.C. got its turnout, but not the results it hoped for. Only three of the eight amendments were passed by the student body, leaving them to wonder if all eight will ever be approved. Outside of the amendments campaign, the E.C. undertook several other efforts to improve student life. Law Representative Morgan Griffith proposed that the E.C. look into a way of allowing students to avoid the hassle of leaving a deposit at Centel. Under Griffith's plan, the E.C. would guarantee all student phone bills, thus eliminating the $50 deposit. The E.C. lost its good-guy status when budget hearings came around by deciding to shotgun the hearings, keeping blear-eyed committee chairmen up until 3 a.m. explaining their budgets. The best news came from the athletic fields of W&L. Both the football team and the water polo team enjoyed possibly their finest years ever. On the gridiron, the Generals lost their opening game and then proceeded to win eight of their last nine contests. Chris Cavalline was the offensive standout while Mike Presler was the defensive star. The Generals even won their Homecoming game in which Katie Orr of Hollins College and Sigma Chi was named queen. In the water, the Generals were also tough. The W&L water polo team rolled up 31 wins, including victories over Eastern powers Richmond and Harvard.

As is the case almost every year, one fraternity dominated the news at W&L. This year's winner was Sigma Nu, which was on the verge of shutting down, was saved by its national chapter and then died again. The SNUs were plagued by poor financial records (over $7,000 in debts), a bad reputation on the hill and some embarrassing media events, including a beer bottle throwing incident with neighboring Phi Kappa Sigma and a fire in November. The national chapter withdrew its money, forcing the house to shut down. As of March, ambitious Red Square minds were planning hanging gardens or restaurant facilities for the ex-fraternity.

The school continued to have its love-hate relationship with the Student Activities Board and its choices of entertainment. Tuesdays in the Pit, a program developed by John Martin and Bobby Schmidt, was received with large turnouts and enthusiasm. The choice for Homecoming, Fiddler on the Roof, was met with anger by hard-rockers and slackers alike. Students also preferred to vent their hostility on two other beleaguered institutions, Contact and the Ring-tum Phi. In Contact's case, students were disappointed by the lack of speakers fall term. So ends the 1982 Calyx.

There is very little to say after the long hours of working on this yearbook except that I have enjoyed it very much and I hope that this yearbook captures some of your memories of 1981-82 at Washington & Lee.

The 1982 Calyx is a culmination of many people's efforts. Such a large percentage of the W & L community has contributed to this book that it would be very difficult to name everyone, but I would like to give special thanks to: Drayton Smith '74 for his artwork throughout the book, Ken Ries, Patrick Himely, Pat Larew, Rom Weatherman, Bill Whalen, John Cleghorn, Bruce Young, Ned Abbe, Jet Taylor, Steve Warren, everyone at Andre's Studios, Charlie Garrison and everyone at Hunter Publishing Company, and finally the Calyx staff for devoting so much time to the yearbook.
