Washington and Lee University

Catherine Swan, Executive Editor

From Freshman Orientation week to the days leading up to graduation, Washington and Lee University provided a college experience like none other. Combine a world class faculty with a beautiful campus, an award-winning athletic program, a thriving greek system, a challenging core curriculum, and a group of diverse, driven students, and it is obvious why thousands of people across the nation are proud to call themselves alumni of Washington and Lee. W&L had much to celebrate in 2007. The opening of John and Anne Wilson Hall provided a center for the arts that became a haven for many students on
The University also launched a new strategic plan. Donors showed their faith in the mission of the university with two large donations: one of $33 million, and another $100 million dollar donation. Kenneth Ruscio was inaugurated over homecoming weekend as the University's 26th president. The University also saw its first open trial in over ten years, proving that the honor system is alive and well. As the Class of 2007 embarks on life outside Lexington, it is certain that they have had a college experience they will forever cherish.

Dedication

By nomination and vote of the graduating members of the Class of 2007, this book is hereby dedicated to:

Zachary Alan Parmenter
Class of 2007
1984-2004
President's Message

To the Class of 2007:

It is a pleasure for me to offer this brief introduction to this year's Calyx. Congratulations to the members of the Class of 2007 on your graduation from Washington and Lee! This is a wonderful achievement and I am very happy for you and your families.

You arrived four years ago and spent your first few days meeting each other in various settings: move-in day, the freshman barbecue, the Honor System presentation, ice-breaker events on dorm, on teams, and in the classroom. Friendships formed in those early days are strong now and it is important that they remain strong for many, many years to come. One of the reasons Washington and Lee is such a special place is its people. At the end of the day it is people and their shared relationships that make the difference in our lives. It is through these personal interactions that we define ourselves and our experiences.

The photos in this retrospective capture those friendships and relationships. As you turn the pages of this book in the months and years ahead you will see images of students, faculty, and staff, all of whom you can call your friends. I encourage you to make every effort to maintain these important friendships in the years ahead.

One way you can do that is to remain active in the life of the University. You now have joined an active alumni body of more than 23,000 men and women throughout the world. The personal quality of your W & L education is all too uncommon these days. Please join your friends and fellow alumni in staying engaged in the affairs of the University so that together we can continue to move W & L forward while preserving its distinctive features.

Kim joins me in wishing the best for each and every member of the Class of 2007, and we would like to extend a standing invitation for you to come by and visit us at the Lee House whenever you are able to return to campus.

Campus Life

Campus Life: this section is about all of the activities and events that almost no other college could even comprehend of doing. There's the infamous Orientation Week, when freshmen learn what "the Polehouses" and "County Seat" are and that sorority rules put a big damper in freshmen girls plans. Homecoming and Parents' Weekend are just an excuse for alums old and new (and parents who wish that they were alums) to come back and party with the current undergraduates for a weekend. Students grab a date and ride down Christmas trees in December, and then come back from break in January ready to dance up a storm in S.A.R.A.H's annual Lip Sync contest. This year marked the 100th anniversary of the first Fancy Dress Ball, and after months of preparation by the Fancy Dress Steering Committee, students, faculty, and alums donned black and white only to boogie in the Warner Center gyms. Spring Term is the favorite time of year for W&L students, which also includes Alumni Weekend and when students arrive back from their winter study abroad programs. But this section really encompasses what it means to be a Washington and Lee student. It makes W&L a unique university, one that seniors wish they were never leaving and one that alumni wish they had never left in the first place.

Orientation Week

On September 2, 2006, Washington and Lee University welcomed the Class of 2010 onto campus, and Orientation Week officially began. While the freshmen were kept busy with placement tests, hall discussions, and activities involving the entire class, the upperclassmen enjoyed their last few days of freedom before classes started. Sophomores and juniors alike met up with friends they hadn’t seen all summer, while the seniors enjoyed their last Orientation Week as W&L students. Highlights of the week included LIFE’s presentation of Pieces of the Puzzle, led by Burr Datz, the overload on Traveller as students headed out to the country to experience W&L’s nightlife, and former President Huntley’s return for Convocation. The Activities Fair also showed students what opportunities were available to them, from student publications to volunteer organizations to religious groups. The Academic Fair enlightened freshmen of the different majors and courses available. Amidst the uncertainty and excitement of Orientation Week, lifelong friendships were formed and the year got off to a fantastic start.

Homecoming
Generals Rally to the Call of Tradition!

"Being nominated for Homecoming Queen was something I never expected to happen to me in college, and sharing that experience with one of my best friends made it so much more special." -Junior Amy Karwan

On Saturday, October 21, 2006, alumnus Kenneth P. Ruscio attended the most ultimate of homecomings. This '76 graduate, former professor, and Dean was inaugurated as the 26th President of our University. And as we celebrated a new president, we also looked to honor additional generals. As always, all five-star generals were honored, and this year the classes of '46, '41 and '36 enjoyed reunions. They were joined by the young alumni classes of '03 through '06. Following tradition, fraternities hosted cocktail and band parties that filled the evenings, giving both young and old generals a chance to celebrate.

After the game, the annual wine tasting was held for seniors and alumni at the Liberty Hall Ruins.

Homecoming 15
Halloween

A little rain couldn't stop the trick-or-treating. Just as storm clouds came through Windfall Hill, so too did hordes of W&L students outfitted for the holiday. Pledge class armies of UPS men, firemen, construction workers, conversation hearts, and magnetic poetry stormed the country. The white tent was packed with superheroes, elves, playing cards, and ladybugs - all dancing along to the coverband.

Students spent the days before scouting fabrics at Wal-Mart and accessorizing at Totally Party and Goodwill. Groups of friends and pledge classes worked together to come up with the most creative and clever costume designs available. Hair, makeup, and accessories added the finishing touches to the chosen costumes. From upperclassmen to freshmen, guys and girls alike - all prepared for their night in disguise. A day of serious costuming ended with hundreds of dressed-up students dancing in the rain under a white tent.

Parents' Weekend

"My parents never miss this weekend! Maybe that’s because they live five minutes away and don’t have to worry about getting a hotel room. Their favorite part about my sophomore sister, Colleen, transferring here is that they get two more years of it."

-Senior Kelly Evans

Families came to Lexington from far and wide to partake in Washington and Lee’s 52nd annual Parents’ Weekend, November 3rd through 5th. Never a disappointment, parents were occupied around the clock by going to classes and meeting their child’s professors and coaches. But, as always, these weekend visitors take the town by storm at night. Friday, freshmen girls and their families had the chance to take tours of sorority row. And as usual, the weekend was filled with impressive musical performances from the Choral Concert on Friday to A cappella groups on Saturday. Southern Comfort, an all male group at the school, entertained the packed Lee Chapel audience with their hilarious rendition of "Men in Tights," costumes and all.

Perhaps one of the most memorable moments was Saturday’s football game against Emory & Henry. With Wilson Field packed to capacity, the Generals claimed their first ODAC football championship since 1985, defeating the Wasps 24-6. They also received the conference’s automatic bid to the NCAA Division III playoffs for the first time in school history and played Wilkes University in Pennsylvania a couple weeks later. Sadly the weekend came to an end, but parents and students alike anticipate the excitement of Parents’ Weekend 2007.

Washington and Lee's Christmas Weekend was the students' last hurrah before the terrors of Fall Term final exam week. Always a fun date weekend, it was kicked off by the Sigma Chi fraternity and their annual Christmas in the Country party. Hot chocolate, apple cider, and egg nog were the drinks of choice for the night and in the background, students could hear Mariah Carey's "All I Want for Christmas is You" on repeat. As usual, students felled to Wal-Mart and Goodwill in order to find an appropriate outfit for the night. Students purchased reindeer headbands, Santa hats, and ugly red-and-green Christmas sweaters to wear with glee.

After Christmas in the Country, the students dressed it up a little. Girls traveled into town to purchase cocktail dresses and boys made sure that they had at least one Christmas-colored tie for the fraternity parties. Some dates traveled to Charlottesville, some stayed in Lexington, and some rode a Christmas tree down the steps of Kappa Sig's Hobes. Santa, his elves, and Mrs. Claus made appearances at multiple fraternity houses throughout the weekend in order to deliver the much anticipated roasts and poems. At the end of fun-filled the weekend, W&L students buckled down to start on their final exams.

there'll be snow, but have a holly, jolly Christmas, this year!"
Since 1987, Lip Sync has entertained, inspired, and embarrassed members of the Washington and Lee community. Students Against Rockbridge Area Hunger (SARAH) hosts the event each year as a fun and creative way to give back to their home away from home. On average, Lip Sync raises enough money to supply twenty tons of food, but this year’s increased fees and attendance have significantly added to the revenues.

Student organizations sponsored twenty-five acts this year. Although the night got off to a rough start, with lots of acts receiving the dreaded “gong”, the talents of W&L’s youngest members became apparent as the night went on. In the end, judges’ panel, a mix of students and faculty, awarded the Multicultural Students Association (MSA) first place after an explosive performance. Freshmen members of Kappa Alpha Theta placed second, and a Chi Omega freshmen group captured third place.

While there was certainly a selection of contemporary music, many contestants chose to return to their nineties roots and received a warm response from the audience. Spandex and neon workout clothes filled the stage of many female acts, while the males tended to dress in drag, providing an entertaining atmosphere. Typically most fraternities and sororities let their freshmen pledges represent their respective houses every year, giving the newest members of Washington and Lee a chance to strut their stuff. And they do it well every year!

This year W&L celebrated many anniversaries, but the Centennial Fancy Dress held on March 10, 2007 was certainly the favorite. Co-Chairs Niki Tsiknakis and Lily de Grazia did a fantastic job coordinating "The Party of the Century," a black-and-white masquerade ball. Alumni, both young and old, came back to W&L for the weekend to boogie with The Pat Patrick Band, a 1-4 piece show band from Nashville, Tennessee that wowed the crowd with Motown and Classic Rock oldies. It even changed up "Sweet Home Alabama" to "Sweet Home Virginia" to please the W&L crowd.

Students looked forward to two surprises: fireworks from the Law School field and a confetti drop at midnight. Even though there was a rumor that Tom Petty (sounds like confetti) was playing at midnight, the guests were thrilled with both displays. And after the dance was over, Evans Dining Hall hosted a midnight breakfast for all of the hungry dancers.

Mary Stuart Couch, the Decorations Co-Chairman, was really impressed with how well the dance went. "The chairs were all creative and we were all willing to work hard enough to put a good party together on a pretty tight budget. Being a part of such a great tradition will always be one of my best memories of W&L."

Spring Term

When someone mentions Spring Term around a W&L student, the first thing that comes to mind is, "Ahhh...those are the days." Students take advantage of the last six weeks of school to do things they'll never be able to get away with once they graduate. And since students only have to take two classes (well, for seniors, probably just one), they've got time on their hands. Day-long tubing trips down the Maury River, hanging out at the Buffalo Creek Music Festival for 48 straight hours, and competing in Sigma Chi's Derby Days are just a few of the incredible things that Spring Term has to offer. W&L also kicked off the 2008 Democratic Mock Convention by inviting General Wesley Clark to speak at Lee Chapel, followed by a cookout and band parties in the Red Square fraternities. But even with all of these fun-filled events, the students still found time to support their successful sports teams this spring, including the women's tennis team, who won their first national championship ever.

Spring Term is always a good way to end the year, especially for the seniors. They reminisce about their four years here and finally realize how hard it is to say good-bye to W&L. At least Alumni Weekend takes place during Spring Term!

Alumni Weekend

"Old friends are best." - John Selden

From May 3rd to May 6th, Washington & Lee welcomed back members of the Undergraduate and Law classes of 52, 57, 62, 67, 72, 77, 82, 87, 92, 97, and 02 for a weekend they will surely never forget. Excitement permeated throughout the campus, as strollers filled the Commons and Five-Star Generals returned to their alma mater. Alumni could be seen pointing out their composites in their respective houses and explaining to their families how much W&L had changed and how much it had stayed the same since their days as students. The Alumni Association, headed by Waller T. Dudley ’74, ’79L, hosted a variety of activities ranging from receptions to department open houses to campus tours. Highlights included the Generals Assembly, Annual Alumni Association Meeting and Awards Ceremony. A book signing and keynote address by Douglas W. Bostick, author of Memorializing Robert E. Lee: The Story of Lee Chapel, proved to be a treat, as it enriched understanding of one of W&L’s most precious structures.

University architect, Tom Contos, and Vice President for Administration, Joe Grasso, also presented the Campus Master Plan Overview: A 25-Year Vision to all interested in the future of the university. Alumni were also provided the chance to relive their party years with Late Night at Zollman Pavilion. Overall, Alumni Weekend celebrated W&L’s past, present, and future with interactions between past and current students, master plans, and recruitment of the university’s next generation of students.

This year, several Washington and Lee students took the opportunity to study abroad in countries all across the globe. Students spent time in places like Italy, France, England, Spain, Greece, Austria, the Czech Republic, Hungary, Denmark, the Netherlands, Ireland, India, and China just to name a few. During their time overseas, students embraced new cultures, languages, rituals, and studies. Students not only spent time in their respective universities studying, but they also spent weekend and vacations traveling to the far corners of the world, thus reaping the benefits of a worldly education. Junior Kelly Boss stated of her experience in Rome, "It was the highlight of my college years. Spending time abroad away from the small W&L community really broadened my horizons." Juniors Anne Russell Calvert and Jeanne Smith both remarked on the significance of their homestay with French families, stating that it was the defining characteristic of their abroad experience. With the aid of the International Studies Program, more and more students each year embark on a life changing journey.

Baccalaureate
W&L celebrates its 220th Commencement

Students and faculty wore their respective adornments at the Baccalaureate service the day before graduation in order to commence the official graduation festivities. While some people scorn this ceremony as unnecessary and an out-of-date tradition, it gives the students a realization about the momentous event in their life that will occur in just over 24 hours. This day is also a great day for parents - yet another time to take pictures of their children with their caps and gowns on, a moment they’ve been waiting for for four years.

President Ruscio introduced the service and told the students to reflect upon these past four years today, while the noise of an unintended helicopter flying above interrupted his speech. "These are happy days, though strange in some ways, such as the packing of rooms and apartments, one more tubing trip down Goshen, one last Coke at Café 77, the final climb to the third floor of Newcomb Hall," he said.

Members of the University Choruses sang "Shenandoah" for the graduates-to-be and the audience, a song that traveled with the seniors since freshmen year. Dr. Alexandra Brown, the Jessie Ball duPont Professor of Religion, was the guest speaker. She defended Baccalaureate’s existence by relating the ceremony to W&L’s history and tradition. After the ceremony ended, students and their families headed to Cannan Green for a luncheon, sponsored by the Alumni Association.

Graduation

On June 7, the Class of 2007 woke up earlier than usual, took a shower, put on a sundress or slacks, and then slipped into the traditional black polyester caps and gowns. Following another tradition, the students yet again graduated on a Thursday, a custom that students don’t mind much but is always a nightmare for parents’ scheduling plans. But that’s what W&L is all about...tradition.

Students lined up on Washington Street at 9:30 (and some slipped in right before the procession began) and attempted to find their place in line. It was hot out, but anyone who had been to the 2006 graduation could not complain. Students processed through the colonnade and down the Lee Chapel walkway to their seats and listened to Burr Datz, Executive Committee President Rob Rain, and University President Ken Ruscio speak about the school and the achievements of the graduating class. But perhaps the most noteworthy comment was that an alumnus of W&L had donated $100 million to the University to bolster existing need-based scholarship funds and to create a leadership program at the school. This gift to the University made students realize how generous W&L alums can be, and how much this school means to so many people. Graduation is a time to step away from W&L as a student, but W&L stays with graduates forever.

Freshmen year is always a blast. From freshmen Pre-Orientaion trips, which are designed to aid in the development of strong ties and a sense of community early on, to Orientation Week, which is the beginning of not only a year at Washington and Lee but essentially the official beginning of a four-year stay, a lot happens in those hot, summer days. Fall Term serves as one of the best teaching experiences for the freshmen, for it is here that they first encounter the academia and rigor that is Washington and Lee. But that's not to say that all learning happens within the classroom, because Fall Term is also the time when they learn and experience W&L's social scene. Thoughts of home are often the last thing on their minds until Thanksgiving and Christmas roll around, and there is a sudden dash and the campus becomes empty. These few short weeks are concluded with the infamous Winter Term. In this term, there is more to dread than the cold because this is, in the words of an old adage, when the rubber hits the road. Freshmen, with the knowledge of how things work at Washington and Lee, are put to the test of juggling their lives, so Fancy Dress and February Break come at the most opportune times. With the warming of the weather comes the one thing that upperclassmen have been promising and the freshmen have been awaiting since O-Week: Spring Term. With only one or two classes and possibly a P.E., freshmen are rewarded for their hard work as they usher in the summer. And with the end of this mini-vacation comes the variety of the summer and the end of the once in a lifetime experience, which is freshmen year.

Sophomores

Sophomores returned to familiar territory and old friends for what many refer to as the sophomore slump, or their second year. Despite the name, sophomore year turned out to be quite an experience. Sophomores no longer had to live in the freshmen dorms, and instead chose to live in Greek housing, Woodscreek apartments, or Gaines. Whether playing a sport, participating in an organization on campus, or volunteering with one of the many organizations in the community, sophomores continued to take advantage of all the opportunities that W&L has to offer. For those who choose to participate in Greek life, this is the year when students finally get to experience the other side of rush. Academically, sophomore year is a time to continue fulfilling requirements while thinking more seriously about possible majors. Although sophomores must declare their major at the end of the year, many continue to switch majors while trying to find the right area of study. Students made the most out of their second year, having fun while balancing academics and other obligations before having to think too seriously about their futures.

Sophomores
Junior year was a time for W&L students to enjoy college life to the fullest. Having completed most of their general education requirements in their freshmen and sophomore years, juniors found themselves well into coursework for their major and enjoying the opportunity to study things that were of interest to them. Many juniors also took time to get away from Lexington and study abroad in numerous locations across the globe. The new option to take a spring term away from Lexington made study abroad options even more enticing, and also made internships possible. These opportunities to study off campus provided valuable experiences that could not be found within Lexington. Juniors enjoyed studying subjects they enjoyed, yet not having to worry about the real world pressures faced by seniors, such as the job search or graduate school application process. Aside from academics, juniors enjoyed the opportunity to live off campus for the first time in their college career. Leases were signed, furniture was bought, and numerous trips to Walmart were made as students worked to make their off-campus houses and apartments feel like homes. Friendships were strengthened and new friends were made, and the juniors eagerly looked forward to when they would finally be seniors.

It's the last hurrah, unfortunately. The class of 2007 finished Orientation Week and realized that they had less than a year left at Washington and Lee, and took advantage of those last days. They finished their majors and took classes that inspired them. They perfected their resumes and interview etiquette for future jobs and graduate schools. They smiled during fraternity and sorority rush week just one last time. They ate pizza and drank beer and wine at the 100 Days party in Evans Dining Hall. And they laughed, danced, sang, and cried with their closest friends from these past four years. The seniors even legitimized most of their actions by saying, "Whatever, it's the last time I'll be able to do it!"

So, on a sunny day in early June, they said goodbye to their best friends, their favorite professors, the beloved Honor System, and beautiful Lexington. The members of the class of 2007 are proud to say that they are alumni of Washington and Lee University, a place of honor and tradition. And a place where people have one helluva time.

I was thinking about what would leave the greatest impact on me from my time here at W&L, so I started looking through old yearbooks to gain insight into past seniors' psyches. Or as much insight as you can gain from a two paragraph blurb (which is more than you would think). Everyone talks about how nice the buildings are. R.E. Lee, the quality professors, their hilarious lectures, their kickin' fraternity/sorority, the Honor Code, and yes. And I agree, these are all well and good. Especially the trees. Gotta love those changing leaves.

But for me, far and away, I'll always cherish the fact that no one stole any of my stuff. Maybe they thought they'd get pelted, maybe I just have a lot of crap, but no one stealing anything was pretty awesome. I don't like to carry things farther than I have to, so if I can leave my books in the library, my backpack in the Commons, and my computer in the C-School for three years at a time, no less then that is a place I can be happy. Thanks to my friends for being friends with me, thanks to my professors for educating me, and thanks to everyone else for not eating from me. Great.

Phil Broderick
When I applied to colleges, Washington and Lee was not my first choice. It was probably not even my second choice, but looking back on the past four years, I am glad that I came here. When I first arrived in Lexington, I remember experiencing a sort of culture shock. The place and the people seemed so different from anything I had encountered. In the end, that has been the most valuable part of my experience here. Students and professors have challenged my views, supported me, and helped me grow into the person that I am now. Over four years, there have been good times and bad times. Both have been important to me. I cannot believe that I am leaving this town and this beautiful campus. Wherever I go from here, I know that I will take it all with me the people, the places, and the experiences.

One of the things I'll miss most are the big weekends at W&L--Homecoming, Parents' Weekend, Christmas Weekend, FD, and Alumni Weekend. No matter how busy the campus was with work, it would always grind to a halt to celebrate. During those times would reflect on how special the W&L experience--going to sorority houses at intermission during football games, seeing parents celebrating more than their kids, watching Santa Clauses run wild, being nixed at the transformation of Doremus at FD, and watching the alumni return in droves. And they would turn in droves not only for Alumni Weekend but for big weekends. And it was then especially that I could realize that W&L is a truly unique four years of our life and think how happy I am that I haven't graduated. That's what I'll miss most--being able to drink, thank God I'm still a student.

Corbin Blackford
Some of the first things that come to mind when I reflect on my four years at Washington and Lee are the beautiful campus and surrounding areas that offer so much to do, from hiking to feeding camels to tubing the Maury. The second realization is that in addition to all the great times that I remember having here, there are probably just as many that I don’t remember. That is one of the things that makes W&L so special to me. Where else can you study in an atmosphere that is built on so much history, tradition, and academic rigor while simultaneously engaging in all manners of Pole House debauchery? I am sincerely grateful not only to all the great friends that I have made here, but also the many professors with whom I have forged strong relationships with throughout my four years. The Washington and Lee community has given me so much and prepared me to make the transition into the real world, but that is partly why it is so hard to say good-bye. To be honest, I believe that the ancient Japanese art of haiku is the only true way to express my feelings about this hallowed place.

For the past two years, our regular spot for weekend dinners has been none other than the legendary Don Tequila. After an exhausting rugby practice or ultra-intense intramural football game, nothing hits the spot like a Jumbo Texas or chips with the mysterious white sauce that Davis likes so much (weird). In fact, we enjoy our time at Donny Ts so much that we even contemplated dropping the three hundred dollars to get our names put on the cups right next to the add for the masseuse/ventriloquist/public speaking/clowning business. When I stopped to consider what I love so much about going to Donny Ts, I realized that it is not the #5 Combo. What makes going to Don Tequilas worthwhile is the chance to catch up with friends. Reflecting on the past four years, I think that we should all consider ourselves fortunate to have made such outstanding friends during our time here in Lexington. I want to thank you all, especially the senior brothers of Phi Gamma delta, for making my choice to come to W&L the best decision I have ever made.

Steve Lamb
In recalling the past four years I have spent here at school, time seems to have passed too quickly. That first week of orientation really does set the pace for the rest of school: a never ending schedule of work and fun. The parties and the sunny afternoons hanging out with friends are obvious things that will be missed. Most all college students experience these things. But W&L is a unique place: the bubble we are graduating from is a singular experience in this world. It’s the closeness of the entire student body, in which even the most competitive students get along with the nonstop partiers. It’s the Honor System, which we saw really does work this year (for the first time in over a decade). It’s the overwhelming sense of history and tradition we encounter on a daily basis. And heck, it’s even the occasional invitations to dinner or drinks at The Palms with a professor.

We will have memories that cannot even be imagined by other college grads. I think this is what has gotten me over my initial apprehension about graduating. Like all the alums before us, we will always belong to and have a home in the W & L community because we will always be tied to it through the relationships and traditions we experienced while here.

Out of all the things that W&L is known for, having top-notch faculty ranks near the top of the list. Not only are W&L faculty known for being dedicated researchers and leaders in their field, they are also distinguished teachers. From the freshman advising dinners to after-graduation lunches, faculty members were known for developing meaningful relationships with students that helped nurture both their academic and personal growth. It is not uncommon for cell phone numbers to appear on syllabi, or for professors to invite students over to dinner. These personal connections showed the commitment of faculty to the success of their students. It is due to the faculty’s dedication that student leave W&L as critical thinkers, prepared to enter the 21st century workforce.

Campus Activities
Organizations provided yet another dimension to Campus Life this year. Most W&L students were involved with at least one, if not several, organizations on campus. With over 100 organization to choose from, students were sure to find something that fit their interests.

Service organizations allowed students to experience the greater Lexington community and use their skills to help others. Volunteers with Nabors Service League, Habitat for Humanity, and APO, among others, coordinated various projects throughout the year. Students could be found reading to children at Waddell, serving dinner to the elderly at the Mayflower, or building homes for the less fortunate through Habitat for Humanity. Cultural organizations helped promote diversity on campus. Political organizations were active as well, as preparations for Mock Con 2008 were well underway.

Organizations allowed W&L students to meet new people and be exposed to new viewpoints. They allowed students to escape the drudgery of coursework while still participating in something meaningful, thus greatly enriching the W&L experience.

2006-2007 marked a landmark year for the arts on campus: the opening of John and Anne Wilson Hall. The new facility was built to house all music and art classes and events. The building connects to the existing Lenfest Center, thus providing a place for music, theater, and the arts to flourish on campus. A large upgrade from the previous facility in duPont. Wilson Hall provides students and faculty with a new concert hall, art gallery, classrooms, art studios, offices, and practice rooms all in one convenient location. Artists reveled in their new studios with beautiful views of Woods Creek, while musicians enjoyed the acoustics of the new concert hall as well as the numerous soundproof practice rooms.

Musical groups on campus continued to tour as ambassadors of the university. All three a cappella groups toured across the United States, providing entertainment to alumni chapters everywhere. The University Chorus used their tour year to bring a program of German and American music to Germany. The theater and music departments joined together to produce the second annual Robert O. and Elizabeth M. Bentley musical, Kiss Me Kate, which provided an exciting end to an exciting year for the arts on campus.

Before the theater department's season started in the fall of 2006, a group of 17 W&L students who called themselves "The General's Players" premiered Neil Labute's Tits and Blood at the world-famous Edinburgh Festival Fringe during the summer. They performed the play to W&L audiences in Johnson Theater in the Lenfest Center upon their return. In October, the theater department held the third annual Student Showcase where students selected their own performance of choreographed dance and various songs and scenes from musicals and plays. Then in November, W&L held the Flournoy Playwright Festival 2006, which featured two plays performed by students: Paula Vogel's How I Learned to Drive and The Long Christmas Ride Home. Next, a new look at The Odd Couple, Oscar and Felix came to the Keller Theater stage in Lenfest. The end of winter term produced the annual and popular One Acts, a result of the theater department's directing class. This year the four acts that were performed were The G Word, Heights, After You, and Mafia On Prozac. To wrap up spring term, students performed Cole Porter's Kiss Me Kate in Keller Theater in late May.

Athletes at Washington and Lee had nothing short of a successful year. Team records and ODAC Championships were amazingly common, and the Generals proved that their competitiveness brings them success on the playing field. W&L even gained national attention as the women's tennis team scored a national championship in May, bringing a unique honor to the school and athletic program. Aside from varsity sports, many generals also participated in intramural or club sports, adding yet another aspect to student life. Victories were earned and friendships were formed over long hours of practice and competition. Many students cherished the opportunity to be part of an amazing athletic program while still being at a school known for its academic vigor. No matter how many games are won or lost, it is certain that the W&L athletics program will continue to make the university proud in years to come.

Over the last decade or so, the W&L baseball program has regularly produced winning seasons, made post-season appearances, put together extensive winning streaks and seen individuals garner post-season accolades and the 2007 campaign was no different.

The Generals posted an 18-14 record, including a nine-game winning streak, made their fifth-consecutive trip to the ODAC Tournament and had five players earn all-conference honors. W&L opened its season with a trip to Peoria, Ariz., where it took part in the Desert Classic hosted at the spring training home of the San Diego Padres and the Seattle Mariners. The Generals played five contests in three days and returned to Lexington with a 2-3 record, but well prepared for the season to come.

Upon their return to the East Coast, the Generals quickly settled into a routine as they won their next nine contests, including sweeping ODAC double-headers with Emory & Henry and Eastern Mennonite and a non-conference double-dip with Mount Aloysius. W&L also knocked off national power Mary Washington, before dropping a double-header to Virginia Wesleyan and a single game to Bridgewater. Another double-header sweep of Roanoke had the Generals entering the finals break with a 16-7 overall record and a 9-3 mark in the ODAC. The schedule would not be so kind to W&L following the break as the Generals dropped five of their final six regular season games to enter the ODAC Tournament as the fifth seed.

W&L opened the tournament with a 7-3 loss to H-SC, but responded with a 12-5 win over Randolph-Macon to keep their season alive. However, a 14-2 loss to Lynchburg concluded the Generals season with an 18-14 record.

Senior second baseman David Miller (Oak Hill, Va.) led the way for the Generals with regards to post-season honors, as he was tabbed the ODAC Baseball Scholar-Athlete of the Year, earned Second Team All-ODAC honors and was named to the CoSIDA/ESPN The Magazine College Division Academic All-District III Baseball team.

Miller left an indelible mark on the Generals season and the program record books. He started all 32 games, totaling a .362 batting average and leading the team in at-bats (141), hits (51), doubles (13) and RBIs (30). He ended his career second all-time at W&L in career hits (185), career at-bats (566) and career batting average (.366) and tied for third all-time with 95 RBIs. Joining Miller as an all-conference selection was senior designated hitter Richard Garland (Fort Worth, Texas), who represented the Generals on the first team. Senior right-hander Clayton Edwards (Atlanta, Ga.) and junior leftfielder Ty Livingston (Los Angeles, Calif.) also earned Second Team All-ODAC laurels, while senior shortstop Ray Sweeney (Kennebunk, Maine) received honorable mention honors. Additionally, junior rightfielder James Madden (Dallas, Texas) joined Miller on the Academic All-District Team.

Despite losing six seniors, including Miller, Edwards, Sweeney and Garland, the Generals return enough in 2008 to continue their decade-long streak of consistent and stellar showings.

The best team to be a part of. Great coaches, great competition, great players. I've never had so much fun.

David Miller, '07

Playing baseball at W&L was one of the greatest privileges of my life and I am very grateful to Coach Stickley for the opportunity. One of the hardest things about graduating will be leaving my teammates, especially the seniors who I have shared too many great memories with while continuing and furthering the success of the program.

Johnson Brownlow, '07

While I didn't play too much this year because of an injury, I would definitely say that this was one of my favorite years of all my 4 here on the baseball team. I would say of all the teams that I've been on, there is no question that this years team had the best chemistry based on the fact that we not only came together on the baseball field, but off the field as well.
What made this year special was the complete notion of team. Everyone was on the same page, and everyone knew that we had one ultimate goal: to win.

Men's Basketball

Washington and Lee Head Basketball Coach Adam Hutchinson noted during pre-season that past results are not always an indication of future performance. This team was true to his word throughout the entire 2006-07 season.

The Generals had won just six games combined the previous two seasons and team was picked to finish ninth in the 10-team league according to the reference coaches pre-season poll. Though expectations were low around the glue, the players and coaches had a different sense entering the season. A ter with three seniors and a lot more experience than in previous seasons was first indication that things might be different.

Fortunately, the Generals did perform better than most expected as they finished the year with an 11-14 overall record and advanced to the ODAC season Tournament for the first time since the 2002-03 campaign. The 11 victories were the most by a W&L team in 16 seasons and nearly doubled the all number of victories from the last two seasons combined.

The season got off to a great start as W&L hosted its own tip-off tournament opening weekend and defeated Denison (62-71) in the first game of the year. The Generals fell to Averett (79-56) in the championship game, but getting that win out of the way was exactly what the team was looking for.

Wins over Dickinson (78-65) and Oberlin (65-53) followed to give W&L a 3-record heading into its first ODAC contests of the season. The Generals fell at Randolph-Macon (63-58) and Virginia Wesleyan (74-50) to drop to 3-3 overall 1-0 in the league, but they quickly recovered to defeat Eastern Mennonite (47-77) and enter the holiday break with a 4-3 overall record and a 1-2 mark in the ODAC.

Teams can lose momentum over the holidays, but W&L gained strength from the break and came back to claim the championship of the W&L tournament. The Generals defeated Kings Point in the opening game (75-53) then knocked off Emory (69-57) for the title. W&L rode the strength of those wins to post four victories in its next six games in improving to 10-5 overall and 4-0 in the ODAC.

But, just as Hutchinson had predicted early on, those successes did not mean future performance. W&L did continue to play good basketball, but just a win in the final nine contests threatened to cast a shadow on the most successful season in recent history.

A season-ending 82-48 loss to 2006 National Champion and 2007 Final Four participant Virginia Wesleyan capped the season, but a closer look at the way things ended should have W&L fans excited for the 2007-08 season.

Of the nine losses in the final month of the season, five were by six points or less. There was a six-point loss to Randolph (70-64), a one-point loss to NCAA Elite Eight participant Guilford (62-61), a one-point loss to Randolph-Macon (64-63), a five-point loss to Emory & Henry (100-95) in which the team shot a school-record 72.9 percent from the floor, and a two-point loss to Bridgewater (48-36) in the regular-season finale. A break here or there and a winning season was within reach.

Adding to the excitement is that W&L returns five of its top six scorers for the 2007-08 season, including junior forward Greg Bienemann (Chatham, N.J.), who led the team in scoring (17.8 ppg) and rebounding (6.8 rpg).

Bienemann was named First Team All-ODAC after totaling double figures in 22 of the team’s 25 games. He had eight games of 20 or more points, including a pair of 30-point scoring efforts. Along the way, Bienemann became just the 21st player in program history to score 1,000 career points and will enter his senior season with 1,014 points.

Also returning will be junior forward Femi Kusim (Charleston, W.Va.). Kusima averaged 10.8 points and 5.3 rebounds per game, and he shot a team-best 61.8 percent from the floor.

Sophomores Kirk Jones (Maple Glen, Pa.), Chris McHugh (Chatham, N.J.) and Isaiah Goodman (Richfield, Minn.) also return. Jones averaged 6.9 points per game, McHugh contributed 6.6 points per outing and Goodman averaged 5.9 points per game.

Not to be overlooked were the contributions of the team’s three seniors that helped the Generals improve from a 2-23 record in 2004-05 to their 11 victories this winter.

Guards Chris Halkitis and Chris Davis, along with forward Alex White, provided W&L with stability and leadership throughout the season.

Halkitis finished his career with 926 points and ranks second all-time at W&L with 167 career three-point field goals. White had the best season of his career, averaging 4.8 points and 3.7 rebounds per outing, while Davis played in 17 games and shot nearly 56 percent from the floor.

Losing all three will leave some holes to fill, but with a talented group returning, Hutchinson can hope that his 2007-08 team does not heed his words and continues to improve based upon the experiences of the 2006-07 season.

There’s always next season is often a popular Rally cry in sports, giving those who were left hoping and optimistic when the season ends. However, for the 2006-07 Washington and Lee women’s basketball team, next season is going to have a lot to live up to, since this season was such a success.

The Generals set program precedent across the board during their 2006-07 campaign – from their 16 wins (16-11) to a seven-game winning streak. The squad made its fourth-straight appearance in the ODAC Women’s Basketball Tournament, competing in just its second all-time tournament semifinal, claimed its first-ever tournament title since the 1997-98 season and upset a ranked opponent for the first time in program history.

Fourth-year Head Coach Mandy King’s team opened the season by winning the Swarthmore Tip-Off Classic and placing two Generals on the all-tournament team. Junior forward Kristin Krouchick (Holland, Pa.) began the season by earning MVP honors at the classic and was joined by teammate sophomore guard Brittany Ridenhour (Westwood, N.J.) on the all-tournament team. The Generals hit a stumbling block in December and January, dropping eight of nine contests and playing the leagues top three teams over a five-day stretch. Still, the Blue and White rebounded from that skid to post a thrilling 76-68 overtime victory at Lynchburg on January 12. W&L hit its stride following that contest, posting wins in eight of its next nine outings and setting a new program record for consecutive victories with seven-straight triumphs. During that streak, the Generals posted a 65-50 win over No. 24 Bridgewater for the program’s first-ever win over a nationally-ranked foe. Success continued for the Blue and White as the regular-season dwindled and it ended the conference schedule with two home wins to solidify the sixth seed for the ODAC Tournament.

Despite losing both games to Eastern Mennonite during the regular season, the post-season matchup with the third-seeded Royals would have a much different outcome. The Generals won the defensive battle, 53-43, to earn their second appearance in the ODAC semifinals since 1999.

While the Generals fell to second-seeded Virginia Wesleyan (73-62) in the semifinals, their team accomplishments have truly set a paradigm for years to come. Individually, the Generals also racked up honors and exceptional performances.

Senior center Jessica Hunsinger (Mayer, Ariz.) and Krouchick teamed to lead the Generals in scoring and rebounding in 24 of W&L’s 27 contests. Krouchick posted a team-best 13.2 points per game and a second-best 6.8 rebounds per game en route to Second Team All-ODAC honors. Hunsinger was second in points (12.5 pp) and first rebounding (9.9 pp) and earned Second Team All-ODAC accolades for the third-straight year.

Hunsinger edited the W&L and ODAC record books several times during her final season, completing her career as one of the most prolific post players in school history. She became the W&L and ODAC all-time leading rebounder (1346) and also broke her own program record for blocks in season (100), set the new standard for career blocks (263) and charged her own game-record for blocks with nine on two occasions. She also flirted with a triple-double on two outings, registering 18 points, 15 boards, nine blocks in a 65-54 win over Mary Baldwin and 12 points, seven rebounds, and nine blocks in an 87-74 win at Hollins. Krouchick also revised the record books, most notably by becoming the seventh player in school history to score 1,000 points. She also registered three 20-point games, including scoring 22 points and grabbing 10 rebounds in the upset of Bridgewater.

Also contributing to the team impressive accomplishments this season were Ridenhour, junior forwards Hayley James (Mt. Sidney, Va.) and Amanda Kane (Fairfax Station, Va), junior guard Emily Woff (Allison Park, Pa.), sophomore forward Kara Nadeau (Oak Hill, Va.) and freshman center Kaitlyn Kamp (Bloomington, Ind.).

Ridenhour came off the bench to add 9.0 points per game while Kane contributed 8.2 points per game and 4.4 rebounds per game. James came on late in the season, after being injured in the early going, and averaged 13.2 pp and 9.8 rb per game in the final five games of the season. She also shot a blistering 622 (23-37) from the floor and 577 (15-26) from long-range over that same stretch. Woff set career highs this season in points (10 vs. Emory & Henry), rebounds (10 vs. Virginia Wesleyan) and assists (7 vs. Emory & Henry), while Nadeau had started 22-straight games and had averaged 6.0 points per contest before a knee injury ended her season. Kamp saw 12 minutes in all 27 contests, averaging 2.5 points and 4.0 boards per game in a reserve role for Hunsinger.

Filling Hunsinger’s shoes will be nearly impossible, but with nine returnees and some exciting new blood, next season looks very promising for the Washington and Lee women’s basketball team to continue its quest to remain among the ODAC elite and vie for a conference title.

This season was the best ever at Washington and Lee in a number of ways. Not only did we break many records but we had a great time doing it. I have had a fabulous time playing for the Generals and I will miss being a part of the team in the future. I wish them the best of luck and know that they will only continue to get better from year to year. - Jessica Hunsinger, Senior

1. The team celebrates a victory over Swarthmore.

2. Freshman Kaitlyn Kamp focuses on her shot.

3. Junior Amanda Kane launches a three pointer.

4. Junior Kristen Krouchick takes an outside shot.

Hayley James, '08

This was by far the most cohesive team I've been on while at W&L. We just had fun together, whether on the court or off. That was really the key to our success this season.

Casidhe Horan, '09

My favorite two games were the win over then ranked No. 24 Bridgewater and the ODAC quarterfinal win against EMU, but I thought we really learned what we were made of in the month between those two games. The toughness of the way we rose above intense practices, some close losses, and especially the sting of serious injuries, to pull off one of the most successful four-week periods in W&L women's basketball history made me proud to be a part of the program.

Sarah Otey, '07

The hallmark of our success this year is attributable to our team being both the most cohesive and hardestworking in any of my four years.

Women's Basketball  207
Three ODAC titles in three years has left all of us very pleased. I for one eagerly look forward to defending our title next year.
- Andrew Friski, Junior

1. Junior Michael Keenan catches up to an opponent.

2. A group of the guys pause for a photo opportunity during the ODAC races.

5. Junior Tom Brower and sophomore Vance Berry embrace each other and get psyched for the next race.
The Generals were faced with replacing their top two runners off a squad that had won the ODAC title the season before. Two-time ODAC Runner of the Year Nathan Johnson had graduated and sophomore Alex Maloney, who had finished second at the ODAC meet, decided to transfer.

However, all doubt about W&L’s team strength were answered early on when the Generals won the season-opening W&L invitational. Things only got better from there as sophomores Michael Welsh (Tallahassee, Tenn.) and Vance Berry (Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla.) emerged as a forceful pace-setting combination for W&L. The two were joined by juniors Andrew Friski (Lexington, Va.) and Tom Brower (Syracuse, N.Y.), who returned from injury that forced him to miss his sophomore campaign, to provide a solid foursome each week.

The Gettysburg Invitational on Oct. 14 provided the Generals with their last meet before the ODAC Championships where the top four were among the Top 50 competitors (208 total). Freshman James Woff (Louisville, Ky.) also began to emerge as a strong number five runner, finishing 91st overall (28:36.06).

At the ODAC Championships on Oct. 28, the Generals dominated with all five runners finishing among the Top 14 to earn All-ODAC honors. The team championship was also the third-straight for the men. Welsh led the way with a third-place finish (28:29.30) and he was joined on the First Team All-ODAC squad by Berry (28:47.80/5th) and Brower (29:10.20/7th). Friski earned Second Team All-ODAC laurels after placing 12th with a time of 29:51.70 and was joined on the team by Woff, who crossed the line in 15th place (30:05.80).

Two weeks later, the Generals completed their stellar season with a seventh place finish at the NCAA South/Southeast Regional. Berry led the way with an 18th place finish (26:51.3), followed by Welsh in 21st place (26:58.3) and Brower in 33rd place (27:19.8). All three received all-region recognition for their efforts.

Women's Cross Country

W&L entered the 2006 season coming off of two-straight ODAC Championships, but boasted a roster that included just one senior, three juniors, five sophomores and eight freshmen. Any doubts about the team were silenced at the first meet of the season, where the Generals claimed the W&L Invitational title and placed four runners in the Top 10, with the oldest runner being sophomore Becca Taylor (Hamilton, Ohio), who won the race with a time of 20:54.

The youth movement continued all season and the next week would be no different as sophomore Jackie Burns (Burke, Va.) spurred the Generals to a fifth place finish at the NYU Invitational by placing third overall (19:33.0). She was followed by a quartet of freshmen led by Dorothy Todd (Watkinsville, Ga.), who finished 24th (21:04.4).

W&L began setting its sights on a third straight ODAC title on Oct. 7 by winning the Division III State Championship on the same course that would host the ODAC Championship just three weeks later. Burns finished fourth (25:41.79), while freshman Kat Telfeyan (Chesapeake, Va.) crossed the tape in 11th place (23:37.54).

At the Gettysburg Invitational, Burns won the race in 24:36.60 en route to garnering ODAC Runner of the Year honors for the second-consecutive year. Telfeyan crossed the tape in second place (25:17.20) and was named the ODAC Rookie of the Year. Taylor finished eighth (26:58.70), while Todd was 10th (26:55.20). Senior Jenny Ratzel (26:37.99/11th) and freshmen Mary Frances Weatherly (Tuscaloosa, Ala.) and Liz Krausnick (Memphis, Tenn.) joined Taylor and Todd on the Second Team All-ODAC squad as the Generals claimed seven of the Top 14 finishers.

The Generals fell just short of qualifying in the NCAA South/Southeast Regional (3rd of 26 teams), but Burns and Telfeyan both qualified as individuals after finishing fifth (23:33.0) and ninth (23:40.7), respectively. Taylor joined them on the all-region team after finishing 22nd overall (24:32.2).

The two then went on to the National Championships in Ohio, where Burns placed 163rd out of 279 runners (25:34), followed by Telfeyan in 245th place (26:39).

This XC season, we really took it to another level. With a strong, dedicated group of freshmen and an enthusiastic, fun, and talented returning group, we dominated the ODAC. We have big goals for next season and no doubt that we will reach and even surpass them! - Regina Mills, Sophomore

Rebecca Taylor, '09
I believe our success as a team stems from our unbreakable unity and spirit. We do not run as individuals, but as a team, together through the rain, mud, hills, wind, and any other elements that nature tries to throw at us.

Jenny Ratzel, '07
We had more fun than ever this year. From ice cream at Sweet Things to making a mess of Coach's office, I don't think we've ever had a closer bunch of girls. We're always up to something!
Out of the four years that I've played this has definitely been my favorite year. We did better than anyone thought we would and the team dynamics were incredible and that's something you can't coach. I'm so glad that I was a part of such a special team.

Field Hockey

The Washington and Lee field hockey team had another strong season in 2006. The Generals finished with an overall record of 14-6, an impressive 7-1 mark in the ODAC, and a fifth-straight appearance in the semifinals of the conference tournament.

The Generals had the strongest start in program history with three consecutive wins, including a 6-2 victory over Randolph-Macon, with junior midfielder Kendall Korte (Virginia Beach, Va.) leading the team with three goals. The Generals dropped a game to McDaniel (1-0) only to come back and defeat nationally-ranked no. 16 Catholic, 2-0, with scores from freshman forward Sallie Armstrong (Houston, Texas) and senior forward Amy Volkman (Norfolk, Va.). This marked W&L's first win over CUA in program history as well as their first defeat of a nationally-ranked opponent.

In its next four games, W&L lost to Johns Hopkins (6-1) had two victories over ODAC opponents Sweet Briar (9-0) and Bridgewater (2-1) and another loss to 14th-ranked Juniper College (3-0). But the Generals recovered and posted a seven-game winning streak, which included four consecutive shutouts. In a 6-0 win over Randolph-Macon Women's College, Korte had three assists, tying the program record for single-game assists. W&L outscored their opponents 37-3 during the winning streak.

The Generals ended the regular season with a pair of losses to Christopher Newport (3-0) and Lynchburg (3-2), which went into double-overtime and was their first loss to a conference team.

W&L earned the second seed going into the ODAC Tournament and easily defeated Roanoke in the semifinals with a 6-0 victory. Armstrong had two assists in the contest, which tipped her season total to 11, a program record for assists in a season. The Generals then fell 5-4 to Eastern Mennonite in their fifth-straight appearance in the semifinals.

Armstrong finished first on the team with 25 points on seven goals and 11 assists. She also led the team with four game-winning goals and 48 shots.

Sophomore forward Christina Merchant (Midlothian, Va.) was second on the team in points with 29 and led the team with nine goals and had six assists.

Goalkeeper Tara Rubenstein (Baltimore, Md.) finished her junior season with several program records; she finished with a 1.33 goals-against-average, a 1.19 career goals-against average, five shutouts and 91 saves for the season.

Korte and Armstrong earned first team all-conference honors, while seniors Kim Babbitt (Hudson, Ohio), Rebecca Hatchett (Newport News, Va.) and Volkman were named to the second team. Rubenstein received an honorable mention nod. Additionally, Korte was selected as the ODAC Player of the Year and first team all-region, while Babbitt was selected second team all-region.

With only three seniors graduating, next season's squad will have the depth, experience and potential for continued success.

Washington and Lee Head Football Coach Frank Mirillo knew that he would have a solid team entering the 2006 season. He remarked in the preseason that the Generals had a chance to win their first ODAC title since 1985 if the team stayed healthy and could catch a few breaks. In the end, neither would matter as W&L claimed the league title and first-ever NCAA Division III Playoff berth.

The Generals finished the season with a 7-4 overall record and went 5-3 in conference play in claiming the program's first outright title in 25 years.

The season began in an ominous note, falling in the opener to Franklin & Marshall by a score of 24-7. Undeterred, the Generals remained focused on their goals and went on to win their next six games for the best start in 35 years. Through the week, the W&L defense emerged as a force, allowing just 1.5 points per game over the six-game winning streak, including a 24-0 shutout over at Catholic. The Generals also defeated Hampden-Sydney 28-0, allowing the Tigers their fewest points scored during the Marty Favet coaching era (2000-2006).

In the early stages of the winning streak, Mirillo's worst fears were realized as senior starting quarterback Hunter Dawkins (Charlotte, N.C.) went down with a season-ending injury midway through the Randolph-Macon game in week four. The Generals were forced to turn to freshmen signal-caller E.J. Varner (Birmingham, Ala.), who stepped in to lead W&L to a 35-10 blowout victory over the Yellow Jackets. Varner then went on to lead W&L to three more victories leading into a match up with Bridgewater, the team who had won the previous five ODAC titles.

Injuries again took their toll as sophomore tailback Stuart Siers (Atlanta, Ga.) went down with an ankle injury against Hampden-Sydney and the Generals fell to Bridgewater by a 28-26 count. However, losses by the Eagles the previous two weeks meant that W&L needed only to beat Emory & Henry the following week to wrap up the unbreakable conference crown.

A packed weekend crowd estimated at better than 1,000 turned out as the Generals strung together one more dominating performance with a 24-0 victory over the Wasps. Siers returned to form for his career and W&L defense picked off three passes and limited E&H to just 35 yards rushing.

The regular season ended just as it had begun, however, with a disappointing performance in a 27-9 loss at Case Western Reserve. Injuries had begun to take their toll and W&L limped into its first postseason game since the 1981 Game Bond.

A 42-6 loss to Wilkes University greeted the Generals in their first-ever Division III playoff game, but the season had already shown to be the most successful in better than 20 years.

Stepping in at quarterback, Varner went on to complete over 60 percent of his passes for 1,041 yards and eight touchdowns en route to being named the ODAC Rookie of the Year. Mirillo was named the ODAC Coach of the Year for the fourth time in his 12 seasons and is now just 17 victories away from becoming W&L's all-time winning coach.

Coming off of one of the best offensive seasons in school history in 2005, the 2006 team was paced by the defense, which ended up allowing just 213.7 yards and 15.7 points per game. Junior cornerback Mark Snoddy (Atlanta, Ga.) emerged as one of the defensive leaders en route to garnering First Team All-ODAC honors for the second-straight season. Snoddy picked off nine passes to rank among the national leaders and set a new W&L career interception record (17). He was joined on the First Team All-ODAC squad by junior defensive end Bryan Fulk (Oceanside, Calif.), senior wide receiver Colton Ward (Charlotte, N.C.), senior offensive lineman Hunter Whiteman (Tuscaloosa, Ala.) and senior placekicker Ben Long (Frankfort, Ky.).

Ward finished his career with a W&L record 106 receptions and is ranked third all-time in all-purpose yards (3,740 yds.). Long also set records during the season, finishing his career with a school record 32 career field goals in 55 attempts.

Plenty returns for W&L in 2007 as the Generals attempt to win back-to-back ODAC Championships.

I'd say rallying after losing our QB, Dirty Dawkins, early in the season and winning the first ODAC Championship in years. Having Horse on the team was also a jaw dropping experience that taught me to never say never... - Ryan Neff, Senior

Colton Ward, '07
I think what got us as far as the playoffs has been a direct result from our hard work, Billy Murray, great coaching, and team chemistry.

Ben Long, '07
If someone told me my freshman year (with a 3-7 record) we would be ODAC champs, I would have committed. The team this year is the closest team out of my four years.

Mark Snoddy, '08
We had a great season. The team really came together this year. All of our hard work paid off by winning the ODAC, which has been a goal of the program for a long time.

1. Members of the defensive line take a knee and listen to their coach's instructions for the upcoming play.

2. Senior outside linebacker Robert Foster leads through the air, and junior inside linebacker Kyle Harvey dives for the legs of the opposing quarterback.

3. Senior quarterback Hunter Dawkins successfully releases a pass over the heads of the defenders.

4. Freshman quarterback RJ Warner waits for the snap, while junior offensive lineman Dan Felezzola prepares to block.
Playing golf here at W&L has been a tremendous experience. The chance to tee it up with a great group of guys each day has been phenomenal. I have loved the travel and competition involved with playing golf here at W&L. We have been fortunate enough to go all over the country to compete in tournaments and during several breaks, we get the chance to visit with alumni and play world renowned golf courses.

- Ted Williams, Senior

1. Junior Nathaniel James aims for the hole.

2. Junior Steven Spivey works on his putting.

3. Sophomore Beau Allen shows his great form.

4. Sophomore Andrew Green is intent on getting the ball in the hole.

5. Freshman Joe Gibson works on getting closer to the putting green.
Men's Golf

The 2006-07 Washington and Lee golf season provided its share of highlights as the Generals once again completed a successful season that culminated in a player earning All-America honors.

As a team, W&L got off to an outstanding start by claiming the team title at the Randolph-Macon Ted Keller Invitational with a 296-291-599. Individually, junior Nathaniel James (Keller, Texas) picked right up where he left off the season before by winning the event with a 70-71-141. Sophomore Beau Allen (Atlanta, Ga.) fired a 76-71-147 to tie for sixth.

A fourth-place finish (290-292-582) a few weeks later at the Greensboro Invitational gave the Generals a glimpse into their depth as freshman Joe Gibson (Atlanta, Ga.) claimed the individual title with a 70-69-139. James tied for sixth with a 72-71-143 and then claimed victory again a couple of weeks later as he carded a 79-71-159 to win the Transylvania Invitational. The Generals again showed well as a team, finishing third (328-304-932).

The following week, W&L carded a 321-312-318-951 to finish as the top Division III team and fifth team overall at the Poplar Hill Invitational hosted by Longwood College. The Generals depth continued to show through as senior Matt Leisman (Sudbury, Mass.) tied for sixth with a 79-74-76-229.

The spring season geared up in early March with the Barton College Intercollegiate and the Generals never skipped a beat over the winter months, finishing fourth overall with a 312-315-627. Leisman continued his fine play, placing second overall with a 74-73-147.

The Generals tied for 11th out of 24 teams at the Jekyll Island Invitational (308-311-303-922) just a few weeks later, with James tying for 10th overall with a 70-76-74-220.

W&L continued its fine play at the Marine Corps Invitational at Camp Lejeune by placing 12th out of 32 teams with a score of 278-296-305-879. James won the event by shooting a 65-69-72-206.

The regular season ended with the Generals claiming the W&L Buck Leslie Invitational at the Lexington Golf & Country Club in mid-April. W&L fired a 27-hole score of 313-146-459 and was led by Gibbons 77-37-114 that was good for third place overall.

As usual, the Generals postseason fate would be determined by the ODAC Championship held at Poplar Grove Golf Course on April 21-23. Despite a valiant effort, W&L finished second to national championship contender Guilford for the fourth-straight season. The Generals fired a 297-287-305-890, but still finished 17 strokes behind the Quakers. James tied for third with a 73-71-72-216, while Allen finished tied for seventh (75-70-79-224). Senior Anthony Zappin (Huntington, W.Va.) placed 10th (73-78-76-227), while Leisman finished 11th overall (76-73-79-228). James was named First Team All-ODAC and ODAC Scholar-Athlete of the Year. Leisman garnered Second Team All-ODAC laurels and Zappin received Honorable Mention All-ODAC recognition.

As was the case in recent years, the Generals were among the last teams left out of the NCAA field, but James was selected as an individual and became the first W&L golfer in 29 years to earn First Team All-America honors with his 19th-place tie at the National Championships (75-75-78-79-307).

With the majority of the roster returning in 2007-08, the Generals just might be able to get over the NCAA hump.

Men's Lacrosse

New Head Coach Gene McCabe promised during the preseason that change was on the horizon. He promised that his team would feature an attitude adjustment that included a return to the days when winning games was expected.

With a roster that included 13 seniors and 20 returning, McCabe had plenty of experience and leadership to work with in completing his task.

The season began with a disappointing 6-5 loss to Cabrini in the opener and losses to Gettysburg (14-5) and Washington College (10-8). The first four games had W&L sitting at 1-3 overall on March 10. Resolve in his mission to return to the Generals to the nations elite programs. McCabe helped his team recover from the sluggish start with six-straight victories that had W&L sitting at 7-3 overall and back in the national rankings.

Included during the stretch was a convincing 10-3 victory over Franklin & Marshall at St. Paul's School in Baltimore, Md., a thrilling 14-13 road victory over 18th-ranked Roanoke, a 9-7 win over fourth-ranked Middlebury and an 8-4 win over Division I VMI in the Lee-Jackson Lacrosse Classic. The momentum was stalled slightly with a 6-5 loss at Hampden-Sydney coming out of finals, but wins over Guilford and Randolph-Macon pushed the Generals record to 9-4 overall and 4-1 in the ODAC heading into a showdown with Lynchburg on April 28 — a game that would determine whether W&L would be the top seed for the ODAC Tournament. Things did not go as planned as the Hornets walked away with a 12-3 win and the Generals ended up as the fourth seed for the conference tournament.

W&L gave the top-seeded Maroons, eventual NCAA Quarterfinalists, all they could handle for the second time, but came up just short in falling 13-12. Roanoke scored the final four goals of the game, including the game-winner with 25 seconds remaining.

Though the 9-6 record did not seem impressive at the surface, a deeper look reveals McCabes first season to be a success. All six losses occurred to teams ranked in the Top 20 and four occurred by two goals loss.

W&L was competitive in nearly every contest due to a stellar defense that allowed an average of just 7.0 goals per game. Seniors Peter Goodwin (Darren, Conn.) and Charlie McCombs (Bethesda, Md.) both earned All-ODAC honors, with Goodwin also garnering Honorable Mention All-America laurels. Opponents attackers were able to beat an experienced defense, they then were challenged by senior goalkeeper Chris Lalli (Crampus, N.J.), who had the best season of his career en route to posting First Team All-ODAC Honorable Mention All-America accolades. Lalli ranked fifth nationally in save percentage (.655) and finished his career ranked fifth all-time at W&L with 486 career saves.

Offensively, sophomores Tim Skeen (Baltimore, Md.) and Harry St. John (Essex Fells, N.J.) finished among the top five in scoring with 32 and 28 points, respectively, and each earned Second Team All-ODAC honors. Sophomore Seldon Clarke (Sharon Hills, N.J.) was named Honorable Mention All-ODA after winning over 60 percent of his faceoffs during the season.

With a number of talented players returning, especially on offense, W&L might just take that next step under McCabes leadership and return to the NCAA's.

While our record wasn't the greatest, the year was a success as the team pulled together and became one of the closest knit teams in recent W&L history. Everyone rallied behind Coach McCabe in his first year, working together towards various team goals. - Charlie McCombs, Senior

Lacrosse has been my life these past four years. I thrived on the competition, shared in the wins, and hated the losses. I was lucky enough to play for four years with an incredible group of girls and under the most amazing coach this school will ever see. Though I'm done with competitive sports, a coach once told me: 'Once a laxer, always a laxer.' It's a great day to be a General!'

— Mallory Lobisser, Senior
The sheer number of storylines associated with the 2007 Washington and Lee women's lacrosse team may be one of the biggest signs of its successful season. From their appearance in the NCAA quarterfinals -- to the coaching finale of Head Coach Jan Hathorn -- to the stifling defense that led the NCAA in scoring defense -- the tale is not a simple narrative.

The saga began in late February as the Generals opened the season with four-straight wins, including their first-ever win over then-ranked #13 St. Mary's (11-10). Despite a tight 11-9 loss to eventual-National Champion Franklin & Marshall, W&L closed out the regular season by winning nine of its next 10 contests and entered the ODAC Tournament with an unblemished 8-0 mark in league play. The Generals then used their homefield advantage to post a 21-4 rout of Lynchburg in the semifinals and a 10-4 win over Roanoke in the finals to capture their fifth-straight ODAC title.

After its commanding performance in the ODAC Tournament, W&L hosted a first-round game with the College of Wooster, where the story was all about the Evans sisters. Senior attacker Kelly Evans (Lexington, Va.) tallied two goals and three assists, while sophomore midfielder Colleen Evans (Lexington, Va.) added four goals in a 14-4 victory. The win gave the Generals the chance to take on Salisbury, who they had not defeated since 1993. In the second round, the Blue and White gave the Sea Gulls one of its best challenges of the season. Each team led by as many as two goals before a three-goal run by Salisbury broke a 6-6 tie and sealed the win for the Gulls, concluding the season for W&L with a 15-4 overall record. Junior Megan Slosson (Cockeysville, Md.) led W&L with two goals and two assists, while junior goalkeeper Sarah Tilbor (Old Greenwich, Conn.) made 13 saves on the day.

While the loss to Salisbury signaled the end for the seven seniors, it also spelled the end of Jan Hathorn tenure as a coach at Washington and Lee. Hathorn, who will be athletic director beginning in July, served as women's lacrosse coach for nearly two decades. She was named ODAC Coach of the Year for the ninth time and won her ninth ODAC title during the 2007 season.

Several individuals also gained league, region and national recognition, led by junior defender Kat Michaels (Virginia Beach, Va.), who earned First Team All-ODAC, First Team All-Region and Third Team All-America status. Michaels spearheaded the W&L defense that gave up a pathetic and NCAA All-Division-1 low 4.86 goals per game. Kelly Evans and senior Maggie Maguar (Cold Spring Harbor, N.Y.) each earned First Team All-ODAC and All-Region honors, while sophomore Kelsi Robinson (West Chester, Pa.) was tabbed First Team All-ODAC and Second Team All-Region.

Rounding out the Generals award-winners were Slosson and Tilbor, who were both named second team all-conference and second team all-region.

While the departure of impact players and the head coach can not be overlooked, plenty returns for another run in 2008. Michaels, Slosson and Tilbor will look to add just as much drama, intrigue and star-studded performances next season.

The 2006-07 Washington and Lee riding team was a team in transition after winning the program's first ODAC Championship a season ago. The Generals lost both of their All-ODAC riders to graduation (four-time IESA National Qualifier Caitlin Lane and Katie Goodrich) and faced the tragedy of losing their coach to a battle with cancer the previous summer.

The early portion of the schedule was as much about finding a team identity as anything, but several riders stepped up early, including junior Ashley Billman (New York, N.Y.), who won the open flat in the first meet of the year. Junior Kathryn George (Haden, Ala.) placed first in the walk-trot in the next meet three weeks later at Hollins University and later qualified for the regional championships with her performance at the Sweet Briar Invitational. Sophomore Sarah Bujtas (Mount Tabor, N.J.) also qualified for regionals in the intermediate fences at Sweet Briar, while junior Lilly Haywood (Raleigh, N.C.) and senior Brittany Bansak (Redding, Conn.) qualified for the regional competition just a week later at the Bridgewater Invitational. Haywood won the intermediate flat, while Bansak was fifth in the novice fences. Senior Brynne Archer (Richmond, Va.) posted the Generals' final win of the season when she took first in the novice fences at the University of Virginia Invitational in late March.

Three riders ended up participating in the region championships on March 30 at Hollins, led by George, who was the reserve champion in the walk-trot. Archer placed third in the novice flat, while Bansak placed sixth in the novice fences.

With their performances at regionals, George and Bansak both qualified for the zone competition held April 1 at Virginia Tech. George finished sixth in the walk-trot and Archer placed sixth in the novice flat.

The season ended with a fifth-place finish at ODACs held April 6 at Sweet Briar College. Bridgewater took home the hardware in a close meet, followed by RMWC, Hollins, Lynchburg, W&L, and Sweet Briar.

Individually, Billman, senior Kiltie Tompkins (Ellicott City, Md.) and freshman Brooks Varda (Larchmont, N.Y.) were named First Team All-ODAC for their performances at the conference championship meet.

This has been the best season of my three years on the team. We had a lot of changes to deal with, but everyone stuck together and we got it done. A lot of new people, including a new coach, made the season all that more fun! - Kiltie Tompkins, Senior

Lilly Haywood, '08

This season was initially a little but rocky for us because we lost some of our strongest riders and got a new coach, but we ended up finishing strong. No matter how we finish though, we always have a great time.

Alice Shih, '08

Where else can you decide to pick up a varsity sport your freshman year and be successful? I have loved the Riding Team because it has pushed me farther in riding than I thought possible. I first tried out for the team to fulfill a childhood dream of being a cowgirl, but three years have come and gone and Riding has become one of the best highlights of my time at Wellesley.

Amy Conant, '10

I had always participated in riding as a solo sport; it was great to experience it as part of a team. There was so much more support and encouragement than I was used to.
As a team, we set five program records and had the best start in the history of the program as we went undefeated our first nine games. Defensively, we recorded more shutouts than any team in W&L men's soccer history and offensively set the record for most goals in a game. More importantly, though, was the atmosphere surrounding the team. Every single player on the team contributed to our success and made this one of the most memorable seasons I've ever experienced. Without the efforts of all 29 players, we wouldn't have enjoyed being part of such a great team.

-J.D. McDermott, Senior

1. Senior J.D. McDermott blows by his defender in an effort to get closer to the goal.

2. Junior goalie Ted Sheedy looks for open men to throw the ball to.

3. Sophomore John Lindsay muscles his way to beat another player.

4. Senior Alex Phillips looks up field to see who is open ahead of him.

5. Junior Josh Dodds keeps his eyes on prize while in pursuit of the goal.
The Washington and Lee men's soccer team began the 2006 season with a program-best 10-game unbeaten streak en route to a 12-3-2 overall (6-2-1) finish. With that record, it was the first 12-win season and best overall record since the 2000 squad that went 19-2 and advanced to the second round of the NCAA Tournament. It was also the first time W&L had posted six conference wins since 1997.

The Generals demonstrated they were a team to be reckoned with on both the conference and regional level. Not only did the W&L men's team notch six conference wins and one draw in 2006, but it also played Division I and neighboring Virginia Military Institute to a scoreless double overtime tie and knocked off then-unndefeated and nationally-ranked Mary Washington, 1-0. The win over Mary Washington was the first time the Generals had defeated a ranked opponent since 2001.

This year's squad was led by a quartet of upperclassmen, including seniors J.D. McDermott (Colorado Springs, Colo.), Alex Phillips (Williamsburg, Va.), Scott PIttmann (Charlotte, N.C.) and Rhett McCraw (Greenville, S.C.) and junior Josh Dodds (Marion, Iowa), who started all of the Generals contests in 2006. To captains McDermott, Phillips and PIttmann were the linchpins in the W&L defense that posted a school-record 0.52 goals-against average.

Pittmann earned First Team All-ODAC and All-Region honors this season, while McDermott earned honorable mention conference honors. Garcia and McCraw received Second Team All-ODAC honors and Dodds was a first team conference honoree and also received second-team all-region accolades.

Along with the senior leadership on defense, the back-third was also orchestrated by First Team All-ODAC and Second Team All-Region junior goalkeeper Ted Scheck (Pittsburgh, Pa.). Scheck manned the net for the Generals in 15 contests this season, allowing a school-record 11.39 goals per game and registered a school-record-tying eight shutouts. His career goals-against average (0.714) is also a program-best.

The Generals defense was not the only aspect of the 2006 campaign that found its way into the spotlight. Leading the W&L offense as junior forward Jack Palmer (Williamsburg, Va.), Dodds, sophomore Whitt Larkin (Alexandria, Va.) and freshman Dew Crockwell (Weston, Mass.), all four players reached double-digit points, led by Palmer who scored a team-high eight goals and also added an assist. Palmer is currently tied for 10th in program history with career goals (23) and third in career game-winning goals (10).

Dodds found the back of the net five times and contributed three assists for 13 points and also had a team-best four game-winning goals. While Larkin (4g, 3a) and Crockwell (4g, 3a) both had 11 points on the season.

Despite losing some of its seniority, the Generals hope to use their record-setting season in 2006 to provide momentum for another run at an ODAC Championship next season.

Women's Soccer

There is a reason the NCAA Elite Eight bears that name. To be a participant, a team must truly be on top among the best, must have performed in the regular season, must own a portfolio of quality wins and must have won, in most cases, three-straight games in the NCAA Tournament.

This season the Washington and Lee women's soccer team accomplished every aspect of the above phrase as they advanced to the NCAA Elite Eight for the first time in program history.

Despite tying ODAC foe Virginia Wesleyan and failing to advance on penalty kicks in the Elite Eight, there is not a thing about the Generals' 2006 campaign that was not the epitome of elite -- and just because the storybook ending didn't result in a trip to Disney World (home of the final four) doesn't mean the season didn't have the makings of a fairytale.

The Generals opened the season with a school-record 15 shutouts and an 18-game unbeaten streak. W&L ended the season with a school-record 19 wins (19-4-1) and also set new program records for shutouts in a season (27), goals allowed (3) and goals scored (55). As the season ended, General had produced the lowest goalagainst average of any NCAA Division II or III team (.127) and had the best shutout percentage (.85) in Division III. This finished the season ranked 10th in the final Division III poll.

Throughout the season, the W&L offensive and defensive fronts were challenged by formidable opponents -- especially conference foes. Four participants Virginia Wesleyan, who they met three times, once in the regular-season, once in the ODAC Semifinals and once in the Elite Eight. The Generals tied the Marlins in the regular season and ended up the second-best in the 2006 ODAC Tournament after knocking off ODAC Rivals Eastern Mennonite, Lynchburg and Roanoke.

However, W&L made an early exit in the ODAC Tournament after suffering a loss to VWC in the semifinals (1-0) that could have ended the Blue and White Cinderella season. An 11-0 win so the big dance salvaged the Generals hopes of extending their season, and they made a splash in their first round game, over Meredith, 3-0. They followed that up with wins over Maryville (1-0) and Washington University (2-1) to find their way to the second final for the first time in program history.

Individually, several Generals etched their names into the record books, including First Team All ODAC and All Region selection sophomore forward Anne Van Devender (Jackson, Miss.) and Second Team All ODAC and All Region pick sophomore goalkeeper Kiki Moreo (Westport, Conn.).

Van Devender ranked up a school-record 37 points (2g, 11a), breaking the record of 31 that had stood since 1997. On the other hand, the field, Moreo and the W&L defense was equally successful, putting up mid-rounded numbers by only allowing three goals all season. Moreo was credited for 15 shutouts during the season and owned a school-record GAA of 0.13. Throughout the season, Moreo ranked among the national leaders in several categories, including GAA and save percentage (0.929).

Furthermore, Van Devender and Moreo were joined by a host of teammates on the All-ODAC squad, including freshman defender Maggie Sutherland (Pittsburgh, Pa.), who was named to ODAC Rookie of the Year. Sutherland became just the second W&L player to earn the distinction and the first General to garner the honor since Gina Van Sternberg '96 was selected as ODAC Rookie of the Year in 2002.

Van Devender was joined on the first team by senior midfielder Maggie Megear (Cold Spring Harbor, N.Y.) and junior defender Haley Bunt (Houston, Texas). Megear earned All-ODAC honors for the third time after being a first team selection in 2004 and a second team selection in 2005. Bunting was named to the first team for the second straight season after starting all 23 games and leading the Generals-record-breaking defensive unit.

Sutherland was a Second Team All-ODAC selection, as was senior forward Anne Wiltshire (Richmond, Va.), senior midfielder Jamie Devore (Cockeysville, Md.), sophomore defender Mariya Van Brunt (Bayonne, N.J.) and Moreo. Freshman midfielder Kay Klein (Denver, Colo.) was honorable mention selection.

Sixth-year head coach Neil Cunningham also received his share of honors at the helm of the Generals' epic season. He was selected as the ODAC Coach of the Year for the second time and was named the South Region Coach of the Year for the second time.

It will be a feat to echo the elite accomplishments of the 2006 women's soccer team in seasons to come. However, the Generals return them starting defense and nearly 70 percent of their goal scoring as they look to continue the fairy tale in 2007.

The eight members of the senior class have created a special relationship between ourselves, our coaches, and our teammates that have made playing soccer at W&L an experience I will cherish. I will miss the jokes, the personalities, the hard work, the practices, games, and the atmosphere created everyday by this team. - Emily Binns, Senior

Anne Wiltshire, '07
This season our team had incredible chemistry. Our team will remember our success forever with an undefeated regular season record, great success in the NCAA, and as a team who always played with heart and for each other.

Kiki Moreno, '09
This was a fairytale season. From the beginning we all seemed to be driven towards one goal and working to get there. We had a record-breaking season, and I don't think any of us could have had a better time achieving it.

Maggie Meager, '07
This season we had record lows of three goals scored against, earned a bid into the NCAA's, made history through our advancement to the Elite Eight. Our team proved that persistence & effort produces real achievement. It was an amazing year & I'll miss every individual next year.

Participating in the Washington and Lee Swim Team over the past four years has been my most enjoyable sports experience. The team unity, coaching, leadership and overall attitude has extended beyond the sport itself to all aspects of my W&L experience. The friendships and bonds I developed through the team have made me realize why I began competitive sports in the first place. I want to thank everyone on the team for making my time here the most fun four years of my life.

- Kevin Hayes, Senior

1. Senior Ben Accinelli dives off the blocks to start the 200 IM.

2. Junior Danielle Cardone tests her endurance in the 1000 Freestyle.

3. Freshman Josh Gonzalez is explosive in the 100 Butterfly.

4. Sophomore Susan Mahoney pulls ahead of the competition in the Backstroke leg of the 200 IM.

5. Senior Abbie Sauter powers through the 200 Breaststroke. "Our record this year does not illustrate how fantastic the women's team was this year. I have never been a part of a team that is as dedicated, loyal and amazing as this team was. I know for a fact that this team will be a great success next year and will win back the ODAC crown. High five!"

The Washington and Lee swimming programs have proven themselves to consistently rank among the top programs in their conferences and the 2006-07 season was no different. The W&L men's team went 3-1 overall against top-notch competition. The Generals were 5-1 in the ODAC but fell just shy of claiming their 14th-straight ODAC Championship. The Generals' team dominated the Bluegrass Mountain Championship and fourth-year Head Coach Joe Shifrinot was named the Bluegrass Coach of the Year in the fourth-straight season and 11 Generals were tabbed to All-Bluegrass Mountain Championship for their performances in the BMC Championship meet among those garnering first-team all-conference honors were seniors Dave Crochshore (Glen Allen, Va.), Mike Ginder (Jacksonville, Fla.) and Kevin Hayes (Mercer Island, Wash.) juniors Tim McGiaston, (Kansas City, Mo.) and Alex Sweet (Louisville, Ky.) sophomores Paul Cook (Nashville, Tenn.) and Brett Tatman (Manhasset, N.Y.) and freshmen Dustin Austin (Ferrara, Italy) Brandon Barnett (Mount Pleasant Hills, N.J.) Jonathan Giesen (Flower, Ala.) and Winter Stagg (Midlothian, Va.).

An all-conference honor was not the only honors for the men's team as seven women's named All-America accolades for their performances at NCAA. Sweet led the way with seven citations, including first-team honors in the 100 free, 200 free relay, 800 free relay and 800 free style. Ginder also racked up six commendations, earning First Team All-America status in the 200 free, 200 free relay, 400 free relay and 600 free style.

At NCAA's, Sweet broke his own school record with his sixth-place finish in the 200 free (1:45.24), finished 18th in the 50 free (22.04) and placed 14th in the 200 free relay (1:41.04). He teamed with Ginder, Crochshore and Ginder and also took second in the 200 free relay with a school-record time of 1:34.24. Ginder took fourth in the 200 free (1:39.47) and ninth in the 200 back (1:50.42) and with Sweet, Cook and Tatman took the bronze in the 400 free relay in a school-record time of 3:44.57. McGiaston placed 12th in the 50 free (21.88), while Hayes clocked in at a 4:06.53 in the 400 IM, which was good enough to set a new school record and finish 24th overall in the event.

The women's team came tantalizingly close to claiming the ODAC crown, as they placed just six points behind Randolph-Macon at the ODAC/Atlantic States meet. The Yellow Jackets posted 609 points and were named to the ODAC All-ODAC swimming team. Among them were junior Amy Roberson (Nacogdoches, Texas), sophomores Susan Mahoney (Richmond, Va.), Julianna Mita (Halla, N.Y.), Jessica Shaw (Dallas, Texas) and Lindsey Strachan (Midlothian, Va.) and freshmen Sarah Simpson (Charlotte, N.C.) South Mecklenburg) and Anna Worsham (Hamming, Ga.).

The men's team opened the season with victories over Transylvania (155-100) and Centre (117-81). During their first home meet, a 172-65 victory over Mary Washington, McGiaston placed the Generals with a 59-55 win and school record and record in the 500 free (.51.90). McGiaston was joined by Ginder, Crochshore and Sweet to win the 200 free relay in an NCAA B cut time of 1:43.90. McGiaston then notched three more victories over Franklin & Marshall (207-53), Carnegie Mellon (139-113) and Rowan (135-104).

The Nike Cup hosted by Kenyon College, Ginder, Crochshore and Tatman placed second in the 400 free relay with an NCAA A cut-time of 3:06.96-67--they finished second only to Division I University of Virginia. The team of Sweet, McGiaston, Crochshore and Ginder set a pool-record time of 3:50.14 in the 400 free relay, which was also an NCAA B cut. Individually, Ginder posted an NCAA A cut time after swimming the 200 free (1:43.43) and placed ninth in the 400 free relay in a NCAA A cut-time of 3:44.90. All-Credit in the 100 free while with Sweet, Crochshore and Ginder took second in the 400 free relay with an NCAA A cut-time of 3:52.78. In individual competition, Ginder finished first in the 200 back with a meet-record and NCAA A cut-time of 1:42.90 and Sweet placed second in the 100 free with their NCAA A cut-time of 45.40. Cook posted a school record of his first-place finishes in the 100 free (33.15) and 50 free (18.38), respectively. Ginder, Sweet, and Hayes took second in the 400 free relay with a school-record time of 3:09.15.

Their streak was snapped with losses from John Hopkins and Virginia Tech; however, they ended the regular season with a 56-48 victory over VMI before moving on to the conference championships.

The relay teams found much success at the BMC Championships as McGiaston, Ginder, Crochshore and Sweet won the 200 free relay in an NCAA A cut-time of 1:33.94 and then teamed up to take first in the 400 free relay in a meet-record time of 3:35.64. Ginder, Sweet, and Hayes took second in the 400 free relay with a school-record time of 3:09.15.

Strachan led the Generals with wins in the 50 free (24.10 and 100 free (1:04.79), while Worsham placed first in the 100 back (1:01.22). Freshmen Fankharr (Alexandria, Va.) and Simpson (Jacksonville, Fla.) joined Strachan and Worsham to win the 200 medley relay (2:21.82). Fankharr and Simpson suffered a narrow loss to Randolph-Macon (1:53.25) and Worsham was able to place seventh in the 100 free in a NCAA B cut time of 20.92. Worsham placed first in the 200 IM (2:17.17) and Strachan continued to swim well with a win in the 200 back (2:11.92).

The Generals then placed fourth out of 11 teams at the F&L Invite and were led by Mahoney who finished third in the 200 IM (2:13.55) and fifth in the 100 IM (1:52.13). Simpson, Mahoney and Worsham won the only 200 free relay (18.13.55). The women's split their next two meets with less to Winbike and a victory over Marymount (199-96). Mahoney placed first in the 100 free (3:32.00) and Worsham placed third in the 200 free in a NCAA B cut time of 2:01.19.

Strachan set a 150-90 loss to John Hopkins, the Blue and White capped off the season with victories over Hollins (100-66) and Randolph-Macon Women's College (158-86) before heading into the ODAC Championships. During the championships, the quartet of Simpson, Mahoney and Worsham placed third in the 200 free relay team (1:41.09). Roberson was joined by Strachan, Mahoney and Worsham (1:30.20) to win the 200 medley relay (1:53.38) while Worsham and Strachan took first in the 100 free relay (1:43.20). Shaw won the 200 IM (4:33.78), while Strachan took first place in the 200 back (2:10.19).

The 2007 Washington and Lee men's tennis season was a bit surprising — not from a standpoint of destination — but rather of the journey to get there.

Expectations were mixed as the season approached due to the graduation of several top players. However, Head Coach David Detwiler remarked early on that he thought there was a special chemistry on this team. It was that intangible component that helped a young roster achieve the normal expectations, which included the program's 12th-straight ODAC title and seventh-straight NCAA Tournament berth. What was not expected was that the Generals set a new school record for wins in a season, going 20-3 overall and breaking the former mark of 19 wins set in 1975.

The season began with a 9-0 victory over Emory & Henry on Feb. 18 and a 7-0 loss at Division I Furman on Feb. 21. That loss was the last time W&L would taste defeat for 30 days. The win streak began with a 6-3 victory over regional-power Sewanee, included wins over six ODAC opponents and a non-conference win over 17th-ranked Denison (5-4). It came to an end with a narrow 5-4 loss to ninth-ranked Mary Washington on Mar. 24.

The Generals didn't take long to regroup, downing Rhodes (6-3), Christopher Newport (9-0) and Swarthmore (5-4) the next weekend en route to an eight-match win streak that saw the Generals breeze through the ODAC Tournament for their 12th-straight ODAC title.

As the NCAA Tournament field was announced, W&L was rewarded for its outstanding season with first-round byes. The second round featured a match with 13th-ranked Johns Hopkins, who ended the Generals season with a 5-1 win.

Disappointing as the loss to Hopkins was, a look back at the team's accomplishments proved that it was a special season.

Detwiler was named the ODAC Coach of the Ye for the third time in his seven seasons as head coach. He was also named the ITA Atlantic South Region Coach of the Year and eclipsed the 100-win plateau during the course of the season (106-41, 721).

Senior Jon Malooly (Baltimore, Md.), junior Tim Ross (Malvern, Pa.), Nat Estes (Charleston, S.C.), Seth Feibelman (Richmond, Va.) and Nelson Bunn (Raleigh, N.C.), and sophomore Jamie McCardell (Carnegie Mellon, Pa.) all earned First Team All-ODAC honors in singles, while Ross and Estes garnered First Team All-ODAC laurels in doubles. The tandem of Malooly and McCardell were named Second Team All-ODAC.

Senior Jon Malooly went 17-2 at No. 3, Estes went 15-6 at No. 2, Ross posted a 13-6 mark at No. 5 and Bunn posted a 13-6 mark at No. 6 singles. Ross and Estes registered an 11-6 mark in doubles, while Malooly and McCardell went 15-5 overall.

With just Malooly graduating next season, expectations should remain high for the Washington and Lee men's tennis program as it continues to strive for excellence on the national level.

I think the highlights of the season came from beating all of the teams we lost to last year, namely, Denison, Swarthmore, and Washington College (Md.). Obviously, this year was special because we set the record for most wins in a season, which is something to be proud of and losing only 2 seniors is an advantage going into next year.

Jonathan Malooy, '07

The tennis team had another great season by once again reaching the second round of nationals and breaking the record for most wins in a season. After putting in a lot of hard work, the team really came together and posted some good wins. There is a lot of promise for next season with seven of the top eight players returning to the team.

Andrew Ellison, '07

Being able to play a sport in college has provided me a place outside the classroom or fraternity house where I can both compete on the court and develop a new layer of friends whom I otherwise may not have known. The opportunity to represent Washington & Lee by doing something you truly enjoy is a privilege in itself.
By being a part of the W&L women’s tennis team, I’ve gained lifelong friendships with my teammates, the experience of being on a national championship team, and the opportunity to continue a sport that has been such a large part of my life. After several years of just falling short of a national title, I now know that great things come to those who wait (and practice, practice, practice). I cannot imagine a better way to leave W&L than on top, as a part of the 2007 NCAA National Championship Team!

Women's Tennis

If you are familiar with the history of the Washington and Lee women's tennis team, looking back at the 2006-07 season might prompt you to remark that the fifth title is the charm.

After finishing as the NCAA runner-up in 1996, 2003, 2005 and 2006, the Generals captured their first-ever women's tennis championship in their fifth appearance in the title match.

W&L captured the school's first team title since the men's tennis team won the crown in 1988. W&L took the title with a 5-2 win over Amherst and ended the season with a 25-1 record. The Generals took a 2-1 lead following the doubles competition after the duo of sophomore Katie Tabb (Minneapolis, Minn.) and senior Tiny Worham (Richmond, Va.) and the pair of freshman Lauren Care (Nashville, Tenn.) and junior Leah Weston (Colorado Springs, Colo.) won at No. 2 and No. 3 singles, respectively. Junior Kelly Will (Holly Springs, N.C.) won No. 1 singles, 6-0, 6-2, and senior Emily Applegate (Charlotte, S.C.) took the No. 1 singles match, 6-2, 6-2, to give W&L a 4-1 advantage. Tabb then closed out No. 3 singles, 7-6 (8-6), 6-2, to give the Generals the win.

Leading up to the title, the Generals opened the post-season with a 5-0 win over Swarthmore and Mary Washington in the early rounds of the tournament and then swept through two other NESCAC schools (Middlebury and Williams) to find themselves in the championship match. The 5-0 win over Williams in the NCAA semifinals avenged the Generals only defeat of the season, a 5-4 loss back in late March at the Fab Five Invitational hosted by Trinity (Texas).

Additionally, W&L swept the ODAC, capturing its 17th conference title, defeating 11 ranked opponents en route to the winning the NCAA crown. As a result of winning their fifth-straight ODAC Championship, several players earned All-ODAC honors. Applegate was named ODAC Player of the Year after winning No. 1 singles and No. 1 Doubles, while Worham (2S, 2D), Tabb (3S, 2D), McClung (4S, 1D), Will (5S), Care (6S), Weston (3D) and junior Rebecca Timmis (Peightree, Ga.) (3D) all earned First-Team All-ODAC honors. Senior Katie Kingsbury (Jenkintown, Pa.) was also tabbed as ODAC Women's Scholar-Athlete of the Year.

The ODAC honors that the women's tennis team received were just the top of the iceberg in terms of recognition bestowed upon the players and Head Coach Rick Rankin. Rankin was named the 2007 Wilson/Intercollegiate Tennis Association (ITA) National Women's Division III Coach of the Year. In her 19 years at the helm of the Generals, Rankin has also been tabbed as Coach of the Year in 1995, 1996 and 2005 and has recorded a 384-57 (67%) career record.

Joining Rankin among the national award-winners were Applegate, McClung and Kingsbury. Applegate and McClung earned All-America honors for being seeded players in the NCAA doubles tournament, while Applegate was also an All-American for her singles performance. The 2006 NCAA Singles Champion, Applegate finished as the runner-up in 2007, falling in a dramatic three-set match (2-6, 6-4, 6-7 (7-3)) to DePaul's Liz Bondi. Kingsbury was the female recipient of the NCAA's Arthur Ashe Scholarship, the association's top academic honor, after maintaining a grade-point average in excess of 3.9 while majoring in psychology.

The women's tennis team also highlighted regional and school-wide awards. Worham was the winner of the ODAC's Marjorie Berkley Scholar-Athlete Award, which is the conferences highest honor for a female athlete. Additionally, she was named the regional winner of the Arthur Ashe Sportmanship Award. Applegate and Kingsbury received two of the major W&L awards, by being named Senior Female Athlete of the Year and Scholar-Athlete of the Year, respectively.

While it will be impossible to replace the loss of an outstanding senior class that played in three title matches, the experience gained by the underclassman this soon should carry over as the Generals attempt to defend their title in 2008. If so, maybe comments will extend to sixth time is the charm.

Over the past several years, both the Washington and Lee men's and women's indoor track teams have steadily improved their times, their performances and their finish at the ODAC Indoor Track Championships. This season was no different for the both squads as the Generals continued to up the expected standard for track at Washington and Lee.

One of the major season highlights was the appearance of the women's team in the national rankings for the first time in program history. The Generals ranked 25th in the Division III national poll and were also ranked second in NCAA South/Southeast Region. The women capped their stellar season with a second-place finish at the 2007 ODAC Track Championship, while the men finished fourth out of six teams. The W&L women accumulated 161 points, three more points than the highest-ever winning total in ODAC Championship history but 13 points fewer than the total scored by Roanoke College (174 pts.).

At ODACs, the Generals had five conference champions, received 13 all-conference citations, set seven school records and set two conference championship meet records.

Leading the way for the women was sophomore Stacy Doornbos (Roselle, Ga.), who placed first in the triple jump (10.57 m), second in the long jump (5.20 m) and the high jump (1.62 m), fourth in the 400-meters (59.99) and sixth in the 200 meters (26.93).

Freshman Maggie Sutherland (Sewickley, Pa.) won the high jump (1.62 m) and placed third in the triple jump (10.25 m). Sophomore Becca Taylor (Hamilton, Ohio) won the mile run with a school-record and meet-record time of 5:17.42.

The W&L men were led by freshman Billy Billington (Nashville, Tenn.), who finished second in the shot put (13.67 m) and fifth in the weight throw (14.78 m). Freshman Ben Goetsch (Tiffin, Ohio) placed second in the high jump (1.88 m), while sophomore Drew Martin (Muncie, Ark.) finished third in the pole vault (4.35 m).

Additionally, the Generals 4x400 meter relay team of sophomores Chipp McCoy (Litchfield, Conn.), junior Marshall French (Richmond, Va.), freshman Brian Bondurant (Richmond, Va.) and junior Matt Harrison (Sherrills Ford, N.C.) placed third overall (3:31.93), while the Distance Medley Relay squad of sophomore Alex Jackson (Centreville, Va.), Harrison, freshman Rob Sallier (Grand Rapids, Mich.) and sophomore Michael Welsh (Tullahoma, Tenn.) placed fourth with a time of 11:40.79.

Following the ODAC championship meet, selected members of the women's team competed at the Virginia Tech Challenge. The team of Taylor, Doornbos and sophomores Jackie Burns (Burke, Va.) and Elizabeth Webb (Middlebury, Vt./Wakefield) set a new conference and school record at the meet in the distance medley relay, finishing third overall and first among Division III competitors with a time of 12:28.91.

Both teams got the season started on a high note by competing at Liberty. The women were responsible for editing two school records as sophomore Tara Hildinbrand (Castroville, Texas) set a program mark, the 60 meter dash with a time of 8.63 seconds, and freshman Grace Andrews (Dyersburg, Tenn.) placed fifth in the weight throw with a school-record toss of 9.54 meters. Additionally, the W&L men were led by Martin, who finished second among Division III competitors in the pole vault (15.99) and Billington, who placed second in the shot put with a heave of 12.25 meters.

Following the hiatus for exams and the holidays, the Generals returned to action at full speed with competitions on four-straight weekends, beginning with the Marietta Open where they created three new school records, registered six first places and added 13 top-five finishes. At Marietta, the women were led by Doornbos, who placed first overall in the 300 with a time of 43.32 and first among Division III runners in the 500 with a time of 1:21.88. Freshman Kat Telfey (Chesapeake, Va.) took first overall in the mile with a school-record time of 5:26.02, while Webb was the first Division III runner to cross the finish line in the 800 (2:29.56). Webb also competed on the first-place finishing distance medley relay that set a school-record time of 13:11.24.

The Generals geared up for ODACs by competing at the Liberty Open, the VMI Winter Relays and the Bucknell Invitational.

At the Liberty Open, the men were paced by Martin and Billington, who each placed second among Division III athletes in an event. Martin registered a 143 performance in the pole vault, while Billington recorded 1:21.10 in the shot put. The women were led by Telfey, who took first among Division III competitors in the 3000 meters with a time of 10:51.58, and Taylor, who placed first among Division II opponents in the mile (5:34.13). Junior Liz Brandler (Camp Hill, Pa.) was the top Division II competitor in the pole vault (2.90 m).

The Generals continued their strong season at the VMI Winter Relays. The women were paced by Doornbos, who took first among Division III competitors in the triple jump (10.23 m). Freshman Ryan Castle (Libertyville, Ill.) and Joseph Roane (Mechanicsville, Va.) both finished first among Division III athletes in their respective events. Castle notched a 1.58-meters mark in the high jump, while Roane had 11.88-meters performance in the triple jump.

The Bucknell Invitational featured strong performances by Webb, Sutherland and Doornbos. Webb placed first overall in the 800-meters with a time of 2:26.26, while Sutherland finished first overall in the high jump, breaking her own school record with a leap of 5.50. Doornbos finished first overall in the long jump by breaking her own school record with a jump of 7.00.

With the success of the winter season on their resumes, both the men's and women's squad have a number of outstanding experiences and performances to transfer to the spring season.
Track is special because progress can be measured in time, distance, or height. In few other activities can individual or team improvement be so readily visible. - Matthew Harrison, Junior

1. Sophomore Stacy Doornbos clears with plenty of room to spare.

2. Junior Matt Harrison is ready to race.

3. Senior Huntley Rodes is intent on reaching the finish line first.

4. Sophomore Drew Martin shows his strength in the pole vault.

Running track has been one of my favorite things about going to school here. Watching the team grow and develop into a nationally ranked group has been a phenomenal experience.

Stacy Doornbos, '09
This year was a blast! The team really bonded this year. We had a great season and an awesome time.

Steve Rivoir, '08
What I enjoy most about track is working hard everyday at practice with the guys and then seeing that work pay off in the meets. Not just for myself but also enjoying the success of all my teammates.

Men's Track & Field

Coming off a strong indoor season, the Washington and Lee outdoor track and field team was poised to compete with the upper echelon of the ODAC. The women's season was highlighted by a second-place finish at the ODAC Championship meet, several broken school records and an NCAA Qualifier, while the men's campaign also featured a host of strong performances and two snipped program marks. Additionally, both teams expanded their range of events, adding the steeplechase and the heptathlon. Sophomore Becca Taylor (Hamilton, Ohio) set a school record by being the first W&L female athlete to ever compete in the steeplechase (12:25.75) at the Coastal Carolina Invitational. Sophomores Stacy Doornbos (Roswell, Ga.) and Tara Hillenbrand (Castroville, Texas) and freshmen Maggie Sutherland (Sewickley, Pa.) and Sallie Armstrong (Houston, Texas) all participated in the heptathlon and junior Michael Keenan (Chicago, Ill.) competed in the decathlon for the first time at the Combined Event Challenge, hosted by the Generals.

At the ODAC Outdoors, the women again came in second to Roanoke, but boasted the Most Valuable Performer of the Meet in sophomore Elizabeth Webb (Middleburg, Va.). Webb placed first and earned First Team All-ODAC honors in winning the 200 meters (22.71), the 1500 meters (4:53.85) and the 5000 meters (19:13.96), becoming the first athlete in ODAC and W&L program history to notch wins in all three events at the championship meet. Webb was also named ODAC Women's Track Scholar-Athlete of the Year.

Joining Webb to earn First Team All-ODAC honors was sophomore Alysen Kuck (Staten Island, N.Y.), who placed first in both the high jump (5.20) and the javelin with a winning toss of 109.11. Junior Liz Brandler (Camp Hill, Pa.) and Taylor and Doornbos each nabbed Second Team All-ODAC accolades for their individual performances. Brandler came in second in the pole vault, while Taylor was second in the 1500 meters with a time of 4:53.55.

The men had three Second-Team All-ODAC honorees as they finished fourth overall. Senior Andrew Fischer (Middletown, N.J.) and freshmen Billy Billington (Nashville, Tenn.) and Ben Goetsch (Timonium, Md.) each posted a second-place finish en route to garnering their all-conference citations. Fischer took second in the javelin with a school-record toss of 165.90. Billington finished second in the discus (132.00) and Goetsch was the second-place finisher in the high jump (6.30). Additional top performers for the W&L men were sophomore Chip McCoy (Litchfield, Conn.), who finished third in the 400 meter hurdles (58.89) and Wilson, who was fourth in the shot put (43.425).

While the ODAC Outdoor Championships often signals the end of the season, the Generals were still active as Doornbos was preparing for the NCAAs in the heptathlon. She made history by being the first General to compete at the championship meet since 1996.

At the NCAAs, Doornbos placed 14th in the heptathlon with the second-highest point total of her career (4029). During the competition, she broke her own school-record in the 200 meter dash with a time of 25.61 and also managed a personal-best in the 100 meter hurdles with a time of 15.77.

Doornbos set a new standard for the track program with her performance at NCAAs, and with the majority of the both squads returning in 2007-08, the Generals will continue to vie for the top spots in the league.

As our track program continued to grow this year, it not only gained a talented crew of athletes but a team attitude that inspired and motivated each and every member to perform at his or her absolute peak. The dedication that our coaches showed to the program really made an impact on the team, and resulted in some amazing performances including but not limited to National qualifiers, ODAC champions, and scholar athletes.

We really had a great season this year, especially indoors, and were nationally ranked for the first time in school history. It was exciting to be a part of something like that, and I'm looking forward to next season when we will have almost our entire roster back to compete for the ODAC championship.
Our season was unexpectedly successful. With the loss of 6 seniors, other teams in the ODAC thought that this would be the time to beat us, but we rose to the challenge and proved many people wrong, including ourselves, by going farther than any W&L team in the history of the volleyball program.

5. The team shows some unity before running back onto the court.
W&L posted a 29-8 overall record and continued its dominance of the Old Dominion Athletic Conference, posting an unblemished conference record (10-0) for the sixth-straight season. Additionally, the Generals won their sixth-consecutive conference tournament championship and went to the NCAA Tournament for the sixth season in a row. All of these accomplishments were nothing new to a program that has posted a 166-38 (.800) overall record over that six-season stretch. What was impressive is that the youthful Generals advanced deeper in the NCAA Tournament than ever before.

Snyders uneasy feeling about his team's leadership and experience was swiftly quelled when the Generals won the season-opening W&L Invitational with a 4-0 record. A trio of ODAC wins sandwiched around a loss to perennial NCAA Tournament participant Christopher Newport had W&L sporting a 7-1 record entering the Emory University Invitational on Sept. 22-23.

The wins kept W&L in the drivers seat for the ODAC title and pushed the regular season ODAC winning streak to 16-straight matches.

A win over Randolph-Macon also sparked another winning streak for W&L, which won its next eight contests to improve to 17-4 overall and 7-0 in the conference heading into another tough tournament at Southwestern University on Oct. 13-14.

W&L began the ODAC tournament with a 3-0 win over Randolph-Macon Women's and continued to roll with 3-0 wins over Virginia Wesleyan (semi-finals) and Randolph-Macon (final) to advance to the NCAA Tournament.

The momentum from the ODAC Tournament carried over to the NCAA Tournament where the Generals made a statement that the program was now a force to be reckoned with. W&L had won NCAA Tournament matches in the past, but had never advanced past the second round. That all changed in 2006 as the Generals began the journey with a 3-1 victory over Vassar in the first round. That set up a match with top-seeded and fourth-ranked NYU in the second round. W&L played the Violets to a heart-pounding five-game match, eventually winning by scores of 25-30, 30-28, 30-19, 29-31, 15-13 and advancing to the Sweet 16. W&L ran into a tough Stevens Tech squad playing in their own arena for the regional championship and fell one game short of making the national championships held in Salem, Va.

Senior Lauren Edmonson (Crystal Lake, Ill.) provided the Generals with the leadership they needed all season and finished the year with a school record 662 digs. A First Team All-ODAC and Honorable Mention All-America pick, Edmonson finished her career ranked third all-time at W&L in digs (1,532) and service aces (224).

Edmonson was joined on the First Team All-ODAC squad by sophomore outside hitter Laura Maurer (Sparta, N.J.), who led the team with 395 kills.

Sophomore right-side Jessica Ulrich (Greensburg, Pa.) was named Second Team All-ODAC and ODAC Tournament MVP, while senior outside hitter Ashley Hurt (Alhambra Springs, Fla.) also received Second Team All-ODAC accolades.

The Washington and Lee wrestling team continued its upward swing, going from a winless campaign just four years ago to post the most wins (18) in a season since the 1986-1987 campaign (20-15) and the most-ever Centennial Conference wins (5-12) since joining the conference in 1997.

As a result of the Generals’ standout season, the Centennial coaches awarded W&L Head Coach Gary Franklin with the Centennial Coach of the Year Award. Franklin, who completed his 34th season as the helm of the W&L wrestling program, is the longest-tenured active coach at Washington and Lee. He is also the Generals’ all-time leader in victories, with 354 (181-183-34) career wins.

The Generals began their season by competing in several tournaments. The first outing for the Blue and White was at Route 60 Invitational Southern Virginia Knights Open. W&L posted an individual championship in their opening competition. Senior Max Courtney-Jeffersonville, Pa., junior Kirk Adamson (Richmond, Va.), Anthony Boniello (Kanawha, N.Y.), David Shubick (Round Brook, N.J.), and Erick Gagne (Philadelphia, Pa), and sophomore Rob Terrin (Baltimore, Md.) each placed first in their weight classes to open the season on a high note.

W&L continued to perform well at tournaments as it had two competitors finish in the top four at the Full Blast hosted by Central States. Sataloff placed fourth in the 174-pound weight class, while sophomore John Christopher (Port Ludlow, Wis.) took fourth in the 285-pound weight class.

The following weekend, W&L competed in the Messiah-Petroleum Tournament. The event was a bit of a disappointment because the Generals finished 14th out of 14 teams and only one wrestler placed, as Boniello took seventh at 165 pounds.

However, disappointing their performance was the Messiah-Petroleum Tournament, the Generals rebounded and showed their persistence by winning two of three matches at the Gettysburg Quadrangular, including a 27-19 win over the host Bulldogs for their first conference win of the season. Shubick competed at 135 pounds and placed W&L at that event, posting a 3-0 record on the day.

Following the Gettysburg Quadrangular, the Blue and White continued to show its fast improvement from recent seasons by placing third at its own invitational on the strength of two sources: Brusca (235 lbs), Boniello (155 lbs) and junior Trevor Sataloff (Baltimore, Md.) (174 lbs) who each claimed individual titles at the invitational.

Success continued for the Generals as they downed Centennial rivals McDonnell, 26-15, and Stevens Tech, 30-11, but lost to the host Mariners, 25-16 at the Kings Point Quad on Jan. 30. Junior Peter Lawrence (Greenwich, Conn.), and Terrin each notched two victories for the Blue and White.

Up next for W&L was a tough CC match with Johns Hopkins, which the Generals narrowly lost. W&L led 17-15 going into the final bout of the day, but JHU’s Tyler Schmidt defeated Adamson, 9-0, in the 197-pound weight class to give the Blue Jays the one-point win.

Kirk Adamson, Anthony Boniello, Jon Brown, Sammy Brusca, John Christopher, Zak Cangeloso, Max Courtney, Nick Fox, Erick Gagne, Jamie Goodin, Adam Hockensmith, Britt Jamison, Richard Knack, Peter Lawrence, Stroik Moree, Jesup Sataloff, David Shubick, Greg Struges, Rob Terrin, Russ Weems, Brusca, Lawrence and Boniello all recorded wins in the meet.

Following the tight loss, W&L rebounded by shaking up the Centennial standings and knocking off the top two teams in the conference. Ursinus and Muhlenberg. The Generals snapped Ursinus' 27-match conference unbeaten streak with a 14-11 win over previously unbeaten and #3-ranked Bears and also posted a 18-14 triumph over Muhlenberg. Both contests were not decided until the heavyweight bout, as the Generals trailed the Mules, 15-16, and tied 18-18 with the Bears, entering that match-up. Christopher posted two bonus wins to give the Blue and White both of its victories. Adding to the Generals’ pair, the upset wins were Lawrence, Sataloff, and Boniello, who each also went 2-0 on the day.

On the heels of these upsets, the Generals defeated Apprentice School at home, 21-15, in its final dual meet of the season. Shubick, Sataloff and Brusca all registered wins in that meet.

The match-up with Apprentice was also the last home outing for Courtney. A four-year letter-winner, Courtney completed his career with a four-year record of 49-43-3 (55%) with 14 pins.

With the win over Apprentice, W&L was in the midst of a three-match winning streak entering the Centennial Conference Championships, which were hosted by Gettysburg College over Labor Day Weekend.

Despite being in second place after the first round at the conference championships, the squad ended up finishing fifth. However, the finish was still W&L’s best since ending up fourth place in 1999-2000. Blue and White had one runner-up finish, three third-place finishes, and one fourth-place finish at the championships. Boniello finished the runner-up at 165 pounds to highlight the individual performances on the day, while Sataloff, Adamson and Christopher all placed in the top eight with Shubick taking fourth place to round out the top finishers for the Generals.

On the season, the Generals top 10 wrestlers registered 145 wins (145-107-375) and several wrestlers owned winning percentages better than 60.0 percent. Boniello led W&L with 30 vs (26-5-18) while also tying for team-best with five pins and posting 22 takedowns.

Other W&L grapplers with solid season marks included Sataloff who posted a record of 12-7-7 (60%), Brusca (11-6-7) and Shubick (17-16-10, 643). Sataloff also posted 26 takedowns to go along with five pins, while Brusca owned two pins and posted team-best in three technicals, three (18-10, 643). Sataloff also posted 16 takedowns to go along with pins, while Lawrence owned two pins and posted team-best in three (17-9-1, 643, 12) near falls with 20 takedowns in 2007. Shubick held a team-best 64 takedowns and also registered five pins in his conference action. Lawrence went the Generals with a 6-1-1 mark in the Centennial, while Sataloff and Shubick both posted 5-2 CC records during their junior campaign.

With all but Courtney returning to the mat in 2007-08, the future looks promising for the program. The nine juniors, three sophomores and eight freshmen provide a strong foundation for the continued rejuvenation of Washington and Lee wrestling.

Coach Franke really pulled us together as a team this year and it showed. The program had its best season in 20 years and Coach Franke was named Co-Coach of the year in the Centennial Conference. - David Shubick, Junior

Max Courtney, '07
2006-2007 was a breakthrough season for our program. We had our best record in 22 years, knocked off two nationally ranked opponents, and finished 2nd in our conference dual meet season. What's special about our squad is the team's dedication and passion for wrestling. Everyone works hard and puts in so much time both on and off the mat to help improve the program. As a senior, I cannot thank Coach Franke enough for all he has done for the last 4 years.

Britt Jamison, '08
It was really great being a part of the team this year, especially being able to beat Ursinus.

Jesup Sataloff, '08
We had a great year, and we ended our dual meet season knocking off two nationally ranked teams. They were the most exciting matches I've ever been a part of. I'm very proud of the way our team wrestled this year, but I'm expecting even better results next season.

The highlight of the season was beating Ursinus and Muhlenberg and finishing second in the conference. Ursinus had not lost in 28 conference matches and this was a great win for the team. - Erick Gagne, Junior

The highlight of this season was when we beat Ursinus and Muhlenberg. - Peter Lawrence, Junior

This year has been a great year where we really matured as a team. Coming from years of being considered a "young team" we pulled together and beat such rivals as Muhlenberg and Ursinus for the first time. Despite losing our captain Max Courtney, I am extremely optimistic and excited to see what next year brings. - Anthony Bonello, Junior

We had an incredible dual season and showed many coaches and teams throughout the Centennial Conference. Our program has come a long way in the past three years. We didn't live up to their expectations that we had earned during the regular season in the conference tournament, but next year, we are looking to have another great regular season and ride that momentum into the Centennial Conference tournament. - Tim Mascia, Junior
Rugby Season Recap:

You know you are old when an underclassman on the team, like that Iowan southern-cowboy-annabean Sean Alpha McKinley, identifies the seniors as the classic team.

And old as I may be, the classic team is indeed classic for a very different reason - every one of us has seen us in action knows we are the apex of the rugby teams existence, the one glimmering light that makes this team a household name in state of Virginia, and beyond.

Former president Tina Toivo leads the way with his rugby IQ and mesmerizing moves, with his very large friend Dan Ward, an equally able and fearless tackler in his own right, by his side holding the fort.

Flanker Steve Lamb is a tackling machine who recently lost his manhood, by that I mean literally and symbolically fell out of him when the lovely Ms. Fell came along and stole little old Steve heart. His club achievements should remain untarnished, but the same cannot be said about flyhalf Pat McGlone.

With a lethal combination of blistering speed and great ball-handling skills, Pattie Boys presence in the backline has been tremendous. What set him apart from Steve is his ludicrous fiscal to pay dues and stop whining about being a confused SAE in this post modern world.

The backline would not be the same without winger Dave Colman, who has been pacing W&L rugby with his supreme athleticism. Colman was the game-changer that kept us in the contention any times this past year. If only we had inside centre Tucker Laffitte for the fall season, we could have beaten VMl.

As he was living the good life in South Africa, Tucker also learnt all kinds of fancy tricks that could have translated into instant success for the Minks. But the aspiring gynecologist was too busy putting his medical expertise into practice aboard while his forgotten comrades battled their own fate in Dixie Land.

Your author is also staring into the abyss that is graduation, a.k.a. the end of fun. As I am the fastest and slowest on the team, which is completely against evolutionary science as presumably I could be constantly running away from immigration. I have no illusions to be remembered as a legend.

It has been a ride writing for the team during the past four years. It has been a pleasure getting to know each and every one in the club, even Ian Handerhan and those oh-so-fratty Phi Dells. As reigning Fugly-Ugly titleholder, it is my honour to be part of this club and to stand up for my friends on the field.

For the coaches, Tom Good and Nick Caldwell have been wonderful helping the team mature since 2005. And W&L rugby is not W&L rugby without Tom Lovell 91. It is plain to see that there is a direct correlation between the clubs success and his involvement. His incredible impact on the club since 2001 is only going to make us miss his presence that much more. We have much thank for coach Lovells their total devotion over the years.

Out of all the things that make Washington and Lee a unique and special institution, the presence of a vibrant and active Greek community ranks near the top of the list. From the very beginning of orientation week freshmen are introduced to the system that will typically dominate a significant amount of their time at W&L. Men and women alike are quickly swept up in the activity of fall informal recruitment as friendships are formed and freshmen begin to wonder which house they will call home come January. As undergraduates return from Christmas break, the start of winter term classes takes a backseat in priority to formal recruitment, and fraternities and sororities end the week with wonderful new pledge classes to celebrate with.

Aside from the barrage of activity associated with formal and informal recruitment, Greeks on campus found many other ways to stay involved and busy. Aside from social events, all Greek houses worked tirelessly for various philanthropies that benefited W&L and the surrounding community. All these activities helped make Greek life a vital aspect of the W&L experience.

The Zeta Iota Chapter of Kappa Alpha Theta had yet another great year. President Kelly Price completed her term, passing the title on to Elizabeth Williams, who will lead the chapter through 2007. As the new officers take over, we are all very excited about the upcoming year. With a great new pledge class and new goals, Thetas future looks very bright!

Along with hosting many philanthropic events for our national philanthropy CASA (Court Appointed Special Advocates), such as the 5K run with Sigma Chi and the Pancake breakfast with Phi Psi. Thetas are also very involved around campus. The sorority has many team captains, heads of volunteer organizations, and members of student activities boards. Programs such as the Freshman Orientation Committee, Nabors Service League, Peer Counselors, and Fancy Dress Committee also include Theta leadership.

Thetas enjoyed many social festivities this year as well. With events like Twin Stars, the Super Hero party, 90s themed party, and many more. Thetas enjoyed being together and having fun. With the addition of the 2007 pledge class, and many exciting events to look forward to, it looks to be an exhilarating year for the sorority. The class of 06 has been such an important part in our sororitys growth and success, and they will all be greatly missed. Good luck class of 06, you will be remembered by all!
The sisters of the Zeta Tau Chapter of Kappa Delta had a fantastic year under the leadership of past President Megan Walker and current President Laura Holman. We had an amazing recruitment thanks to the hard work of Rush Chair Louise Denny. Our new baby delts are all that we could have hoped for and more! Throughout the year Kappa Deltas were visible as leaders in all areas of campus life: Executive Committee, Dorm Counselors, Peer Counselors, RUF, University Chorus, Panhellenic Committee, Nabors Service League, Jubilee, General Admission, the Calyx staff, WISC and much, much more. Kappa Deltas not only led the way in campus life, but also on the field. KDs represent the Generals on many varsity athletic teams including cross country, track, volleyball, swimming, soccer, tennis, lacrosse, field hockey, and riding. If that wasn't enough to keep the ladies of Kappa Delta busy, they were able to devote even more time to our various philanthropies, such as the Fall Carnival co-sponsored with Phi Delta and the Shamrock Event. When KDs weren't busy in different organizations, sports or philanthropies, they were living it up on the social scene thanks to past social chairs Allie Kelly and Blair Fletcher, and current social chairs Brigid Forrester and Catherine Gerhardt. We had a great time at Pretty in Pink, Famous Lovers and Tacky Prom! And nothing beats coming home to sweet home Kappa Delta, where Mama Sara is always here for us. This has been one fun and busy year and we can't wait to be back next fall. The graduating seniors will definitely be missed and KD won't be the same without them!
The sisters of the Zeta Tau chapter of Kappa Kappa Gamma are involved in many aspects of life at Washington and Lee. Athletic Kappas participate on the soccer, field hockey, sailing, swimming, riding, track and many other sports teams, as well as the W&L dance program. We also have Tour Guides, writers for the Trident and Phi, members of the Fancy Dress Committee, members of the Panhellenic Committee, Rho Gammas, Jubilee singers, and Mock Convention Chairs. Our volunteer ventures include Habitat for Humanity, Campus Kitchens Project, Race for Charlie, Project Horizon, and many more.

As busy as this year has been, the leadership of past president Camille Allen '07 and current president Lilla Theus '08 kept us together. We'd like to say congrats and welcome to our awesome new pledge class! We're so excited to have y'all as sisters. Thanks to Boo, Sue, Bonnie, and Ms. Claire for taking such special care of us. Seniors, good luck next year in the real world! We love you and will miss you!

Virginia Theta - Est. 1992

The Lodge entered its 29th year with sights firmly set on social domination. A swing and a miss opened our wide-ranging yet short-lived foray into the big band era, but the Lodge pressed on. With the return of the owls, Margaritaville went quite swimmingly, almost forcing DCL to build his ark. With excellent picks the Lodge made it 6 for 7 on Homecoming and reiterated its position as the arts and crafts fraternity count it.

Christmas weekend brought St. Nick as the Hawk-led senior return began to wane except for a certain mermaid and his neverending story of love. P. Ginnea reconciled with the ninja while Chewcocka shot the new gap. Drunky got hitched, proving the apocalypse is near. The wedding saw Spellcheck looking for one last dance, an exchange of boots with the Librarian, and Rollertard getting lassoed into a relationship. Meanwhile, Pip, M.C. and I'm engaged reinvigorated the highhumvirate and Snarl had a mono y mono flashback from the toxic avenger.

The rush rollercoaster arrived full of ten great guys, the likes of Dirka Dirka, Shorter Bus, and Bukkakus. Tear night proved to be an infectious affair making up for the early innings of administrative baseball. Hershel was straight ballin' but failed to deliver the Cowboy offense as promised. The Wonwies Pwedge then taught us that two can be as bad as won while Lurch avoided duffing to find his boot. M&T saw the return of TNK while FD gave us enough awkwardness for a hit single by Handicap Parking. Spring term was a string of ridiculousness as CR got his balls back and SILF’s memorial gas tank propelled us to new highs.

The Lodge bids farewell to Papa Ginnea, Chewcocka, Unorthodox Dues. Rollertard, SILF, the Son of Clair Huxtable, DCL, and Spellcheck, as well as Brick Top and the Little Mermaidagain. Clear skies await fair Chi Psi next year with the return of Captain Underpants and recovery from the wounds of pa-hah-nicks’ deep wedge.

When the Class of 2007 entered the freshman dorms in the fall of 2003, it was impossible to predict all that their four years would hold. From hours studying in Leyburn, to riding down the streets of Lexington in a float for Mock Convention, to dancing the night away at the 100th Faney Dress, their college years were filled with experiences that could only be found at Washington and Lee. Whether members of the class were children of alumni who applied early decision or students who decided to attend W&L on a whim, all found security in a community bound by honor and tradition. The following pages serve as a tribute to the class of 2007, celebrating their past four years, as well as the childhood life that led them to Lexington. Enjoy.

Dave, go forward as you have lived the past.
You have fondly become Washington and Lee's "Cupcake": the kid either heading to the KA house, the baseball field, or "the Hill."
Embrace the future as you head to new places.
Your passion for life has inspired us all. Now, amaze yourself.

Peace, love, happiness always.

I wanna stand up, I wanna let go
You know, you know - no you don't, you don't
I wanna shine on in the hearts of men
I want a meaning from the back of my broken hand.....

Every step of the way, you are such a special joy and blessing in our lives! We are so proud of your accomplishments and the strong character and faith you have developed. As you embark on this new chapter of your life, we pray for you this prayer from Francis of Assisi: "Keep a clear eye toward life's end. Do not forget your purpose and destiny as God's Creature. What you are in His sight is what you are and nothing more. Remember that when you leave this earth, you can take nothing you have received, but only what you have given; a full heart enriched by honest service, love, sacrifice and courage." In the shadows of white columns,
We step to hear the chimes.
Worn steps on which we linger
Slowly yield to time.
But when we doubt our future's course,
Our honor sees us free.
A timeless trust in our Alma Mater,
Washington and Lee.
As the bells ring out the hour
and echo through the halls,
we sense in this brief moment
the strength within these walls.
But when we doubt our future's course,
Our honor sees us free.
A timeless trust in our Alma Mater,
Washington and Lee.

Washington and Lee University Hymn
"Who can say what has gone into the creation of this place that makes us love it compounded in the beauty of the Colonnade under snow on a moonlit night, of sunsets behind House Mountain, of the Honor system, of great teachers and their courses, of long hours in the library boning up for exams, of Fancy Dress, of victories on Wilson Field, of going down the road, and pride in our academic vigor."

James Leyburn
Colophon:
The 2007 Calyx, volume 110, was produced by the student members of the Calyx Staff at Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia. Created using Jostens Yearbook Avenue Online on a Dell Optiplex PC, it was printed by Jostens Publishing at their Winston-Salem, North Carolina, plant. A total of 340 pages, 54 of which are full process color, the book contains approximately 3000 photos, both print and digital. Seventeen hundred copies of the book were produced. Executive Editor Swan and Assistant Executive Editors Kane and Lecky designed the theme "A Touch of Class" in the fall of 2006, and Executive Editors Swan and Assistant Executive Editor Lecky designed the cover during the fall of 2006. The cover is high gloss litho with process color and foil application. The endsheets are Snow White. Body and caption font is Times. Portrait photos were taken by Vantine Images.

Thank Yous:
The 340 page book you hold in your hands is the result of months of thankless planning, hard work, and dedication. The Calyx Staff would like to thank the following people for their contributions to this year's book:

All the students who took the time to submit their photos to us.

Jay Hollis, Jana Poplar, and all the folks at Jostens for consistently being helpful and a pleasure to work with.

Brian Laubscher in Sports Information for providing us with wonderful photos and write-ups for the sports section.

Kevin Remington and Patrick Hinely for their professional photography.

The Business Office, for helping to keep our account straight.

April Washburn for help with administrative details.

Susan Wager for her help in providing materials for the Performing Arts section.
