Review of the December Collegian.

The members of the faithful few in college who are subscribers to the Collegian (and the other readers which is quite a larger class) must have been impressed with the rare merit of the December number. There is a literary odor about it that is pleasing to the palate of the hungry reader. The editor greets us on the first page with a delightful mingling of fun and sage philosophy. A "Winter in Old Virginia" is a pretty little etching in prose and was worthy of the author's name, which we are sorry was omitted. "A Review of the Gaffly" is pretty much in the nature of a review that does not review, but it is well written and good English covers a multitude of sins. "Eventide" is decidedly the best of the poems and stands out by itself like a drop of dew in the sunlight.

Of course we all enjoyed Professor Joynes' recollections of "General Lee as a College President," and I hope to hear from him again on the same subject. Such an article as this makes a college magazine worth reading and they can always be gotten when the necessary energy is put forth. A "Review on Collegiate Life" is poor—very poor. The author evidently is indifferent as to the importance of metrical composition and the muses have certainly been indifferent in bestowing their graces upon him, and his verses have suffered by this combination of misfortunes. Pearson's jokes would have perhaps been bearable had we not heard many of them in our childhood. "The Science of Athletics" by Fredric W. Foster almost took our breath away when we were informed just after his name that he was (local secretary in the Connecticut State Baseball league during the season of 1899.) It reminded us of the man who went into a drug store and sat down on a fly paper. When he left the fly paper kept him close company, proclaiming to an admiring world in very generous style: "This fly paper will catch anything and advertises itself." However the article is good and possesses merit. A "Review of Football" bears very much the evidence of having been written primarily to fill space, and is open to criticism as to its accuracy. But as the author was not present at five of the eight games played we will be generous enough to attribute the lack of facts to an ignorance of the subject rather than to any disposition to prevent justice. He says too that football players do not toil and sweat for a selfish purpose. As this is a broad and general statement I suppose he is entitled to it; but he is mistaken. Football players and all other athletes are selfish and a place on the respective teams is always the predominant motive of the toil and sweat. We would gather from the article that the team was a crowd of invalids suffering from various water complaints. As a matter of fact the "physical condition" of the team was excellent in every game except one. The team outwinded every team they played and used fewer substitutes. In fact wind was the long suit of the players, management and coach.

"The Housebreakers" is good and well sustains the growing reputation of the author, which is becoming national in extent. Its sustained interest and exquisitely comical situations as well as its raciness of narrations were the distinguishing features. "Literary Notes" by the same author is good and places the epicure in fiction in touch with all that's new and fresh in the literary circle.

A sense of weariness pervades our system after having labored through "The Immortality of the Soul." But by a liberal indulgence in cocoa cola nervous prostration was warded off and we proceeded thankfully to look up Pope on the use of words. He says:

Words are like leaves; and when they most abound,
Much fault of sense beneath, is rarely found.

And again:

A vile conceit in pompous words expressed
Is like a clown in royal purple dressed.

Yes, that is certainly true, and when a faint conception of the subject had filtered through our mind and was contrasted with the outward luminous glow of the author we were reminded of the lecture of the microbe on the anatomical construction of the elephant.

But the number taken as a whole is good. JESTER.

Farrar-Harris.

At Coveseville, Va., on December 28th, Mr. Thos. J. Farrar, for many years a prominent student of W. & L. U., was married to Miss Margaret L. Harris, daughter of Mr. W. H. Harris.

This affair has been "in the wind" for some time, but the announcement of its culmination was quite a surprise to Lexington. The bride is a niece of Mrs. W. T. Pogue of this city, and will be remembered by many who had the pleasure of meeting her on her visits here. Mr. Farrar is at present associate principal of the "Donald Frazier" school near Atlanta, Ga.

After an elegant wedding breakfast, served at the home of the bride elect's father, the party adjourned to the church where the marriage ceremony was solemnized by the Rev. Daniel Blain, D. D. The gentlemen who officiated as ushers were Messrs. Hyatt (V. M. I.), Watson (formerly of W. & L. U.), Armistead (Lexington), and Pinkerton (U. of Va.), all fraternity mates of the groom.

Many friends were present to congratulate the happy pair, and the usual showers of rice and good wishes followed them as they rolled away on the train bound for Atlanta.

Mr. Farrar's numerous friends, both in the University and in the town, rejoice with him in his matrimonial success and extend their heartiest congratulations and best wishes for a happy future.

Our Neighborly Neighbors.

Our neighborly neighbors across the way,
Received a Round Robin on New Year's day.

Ah yes, 'tis well to shun things that are steep,
But never, no never, do things that are cheap.

—JESTER.

Society.

SOCIAL DOINGS OF THE PAST TWO WEEKS.

Lexington has been unusually quiet for the lovers of society during the holidays, several card parties, two or three informal gatherings and a dance or two constituting the sole diversions.

On Thursday of last week the Misses Wilson entertained their friends informally. Games were the order of the evening and were most heartily enjoyed by the participants.

Christmas night a hop was given by those of the students who were in town. Newcomb Hall was taxed by the crowd which assembled, for in point of numbers as well as in other respects it was a "record-breaker." Among those present were Misses Brockenbrough, Annie Jordan, Bettie Wilson, Mary Preston and Margaret Graham, Mary Wilson, Eliza and Frances Dillon, Polk, Fannie Jordan, Harman, Tucker, and Haskins. Messrs. Barclay, Tucker, Hiter, Powell of the U. Va., John Dillon, Arnold, Bagley, Hartman, Waddell, Booker, Jordan, Dr. Hartman, Capt. Watts, Capt. Stogdell, and others.

On Monday evening the Misses Dillon entertained at a "chaffing-dish" party. The "rarebits," under the skilled manipulation of Mr. Bob Owen and other no less experienced artists, were all that could be desired, and the evening was enlivened by Miss Frances Dillon's delightful coon songs and the classical selections of Mr. Sam McPheeters.

On Tuesday evening the Misses Graham entertained the card club. Euchre was played and the evening was in every respect a most enjoyable one. The prizes were won by Miss Dillon and Captain Marshall, while Miss Jordan easily carried off the "booby."

The Cadets of the V. M. I. gave a hop in the gymnasium last Saturday. The dance was a very successful and pleasant one in spite of the bus (t).

The pleasures and gaieties of the holidays are a thing of the past; once more books and professors' reign predominate. But, however gloomy this may seem, at least there is a certain satisfaction arising from the fact that examinations, that bugbear of student life, are over. Some have come through the ordeal with flying colors and are happy in the thought of distinctions. These we congratulate. Others sorely wounded and overcome by the heat and the turmoil of the battle, have fallen. To these we extend our sympathy.

We hope we may be pardoned if, assuming the role of mentor, we make a suggestion to each of these classes. This is a season of the year when everyone is making good resolutions for the future, when every one is resolving to better his life in some respect.

Let the first of these classes resolve to continue the good work which they have so ably begun and to do even better. Let the others resolve to wipe out the stain of defeat with a glorious triumph at the next examinations. To both classes we would say, never be satisfied, for success was never yet obtained by complacent admiration of one's own prowess. Form a high ideal of excellence and strive to reach it. You will probably fail but will be much better off for the effort.

Several new men have matriculated since the beginning of the term and more are expected.

Baseball.

All lovers of athletics will be pleased to know that the outlook for the coming season is very bright. There will be many applicants for the team, a number of whom come from teams of high standing. A fair per cent. of last year's material is on hand and out of the whole Captain Andrews will doubtless be able to make up a very strong team. His purpose is to give paramount predominance to batting practice, where we have been weakest in past years. He will also pay special attention to the development of a second team strong enough to afford the 'Varsity good and regular practice. This task will be rendered easier by the large number of applicants, and is also an important point that we have been much neglecting. A good captain is the life of a team, and in this respect we are abundantly blessed in the shape of Mr. Andrews, who, besides being an excellent pitcher, is thoroughly conversant with every phase of the game and has the requisite amount of enthusiasm and conscientiousness to make an ideal captain. The practice will begin as soon as the weather permits.

The worst feature of the outlook is the finances which have been reduced by the payment of back debts, and a loan to the football team, which is covered, however, by a guarantee list. There are a great many men in college who have done their full financial duty toward athletics, and there are some who have done more than this. But the distribution of the burden has been far from equal, and there are some who have done very little, and it is to those that we think baseball should look for the support which it must have to be successful.

Mr. S. C. Lind has been elected manager of the team and is at work trying to get the finances on as good a basis as possible and to arrange a suitable schedule. His purpose is to schedule as many home games as possible, and to make no dates for out-of-town games except on a guarantee. This latter policy is one made necessary by the narrow financial margin on which the season is to be begun, and the advantages of the former will be apparent to every one. But home games will call for the home support which we have mentioned above, and we hope that the men who have not done their part will now do so fully.

Lister Witherspoon.

It is with the deepest pain that we announce the death of Lister Witherspoon in Chicago, Ill., to which place he had gone only a few weeks previously to accept a position and where he intended to locate permanently.

His death was due to an attack of typhoid fever which he had evidently contracted before going to Chicago. The attack at first seemed to be a mild one and for a time yielded to the skillful treatment administered. He was apparently convalescing when a relapse suddenly set in and after lingering in delirium for several days he passed quietly away on December 16th.

The body was removed to his home in Versailles, Ky., whence it was carried to Lexington, Ky., and found a resting place in the beautiful cemetery of that city.

Lister Witherspoon was a student at W. & L. U. during the years '95-'99 and while here, was one of the most popular men in the University. By his pleasant disposition, his absolute integrity and his sterling qualities as a man, endeared himself to every one, and his untimely death, happening just as he was entering his life work cast a gloom over the whole college. Most of his friends here deeply lament such a sudden termination to a career fraught with so much bright promise.

Nearly all of the boys who could possibly get away spent the holidays at home, while many of those who lived too far away took advantage of the opportunity to visit the neighboring cities. A number of the boys visited Washington, Baltimore and Richmond, and the town and college wore a most deserted appearance.

He asked a man, what is a kiss grammatically defined?
"It's a conjunction, sir," said she, "and hence can't be declined."

Personal Notes.

Prof. Crow spent his vacation in Norfolk and adjoining cities.

Miss Rosa Tucker left last week for Louisville to visit relatives.

Miss Annie R. White spent her vacation in Baltimore.

Miss Polk of Texas, is the guest of the Misses Dillon.

Mr. Robert Jordan of Baltimore, a former student of the University, spent Christmas in Lexington.

Dr. J. A. Quarles returned on Wednesday from Louisville where he was the guest of relatives.

Dr. and Mrs. H. A. White spent Christmas in Richmond as the guests of Judge Wellford.

A. F. Toole, A. B. '97, was in town for a few days during the holidays. He is studying medicine at the University of Virginia where he expects to graduate this year.

R. J. McBryde, Jr., and E. A. Quarles, two well known young journalists of Louisville, were in town for a few days during the holidays.

Mr. Sullivan of the law class, left on Wednesday for his home in Chicago. We hope Dame Fortune may smile upon him in all his undertakings.

President Wm. L. Wilson expects to leave shortly for Hot Springs, Arizona, where he will spend some months. In his absence Prof. H. St. G. Tucker, dean of the law department, will act as president.

Among the old Washington and Lee boys who came home for the holiday festivities were R. G. Campbell, who is teaching at the Episcopal High School at Alexandria; H. W. Pratt, who is studying for the ministry in Richmond; C. C. Tutwiler, who is located in Philadelphia; L. W. Smith, Preston Allan and G. B. Shields, who are engaged in instructing the youth of the land.

For about ten days the weather has been very cold, the thermometer scarcely going above the freezing point, even in the warmest part of the day. About eight inches of ice on the river gives the devotees of skating ample opportunity to indulge their passion and every day the river is crowded from East Lexington to the power house. If the cold weather continues college will have to suspend for lack of students!

The Law Department.

With the opening of the second term the two new instructors in the law school assume their duties, Mr. Frank T. Glasgow of Lexington, Va., and Mr. John N. Pomeroy of San Francisco. The law school is to be congratulated on the wise discretion of the dean, the Hon. H. St. George Tucker, in securing the aid of two such able men to carry on the work of the coming term.

Mr. Frank T. Glasgow was born in Fincastle, Va., November 16th, 1854. In the fall of 1871 he entered Washington and Lee University in the academic department and remained a member of the University for three years, taking the degree of Bachelor of Arts in June '74. Mr. Glasgow was then engaged for three years in teaching in the Hopkinsville school, in Hopkinsville, Ky. In 1877 he entered the law department at the University of Virginia, and during that year took a very active part in the Jefferson Literary Society and won the Orator's medal. He finished the law course in one year and entered his profession in 1878 at Fincastle, where he was engaged in active practice until 1885, when he came to Lexington and has been a leading member of the bar in the successful continuation of his practice.

Mr. John Norton Pomeroy of San Francisco, was born in South Orange, N. J., May 7, 1866. He is the son of the late John Norton Pomeroy, LL. D., who was author of "Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence" and other legal works. Mr. Pomeroy graduated from Yale in 1887, and received the degree of A. M. in 1899. He was the editor of the "Yale Literary Magazine," and a member of the Psi Upsilon and the Phi Beta Kappa fraternities. Mr. Pomeroy later studied law at Columbia University and at the University of California. In 1895-'96 he was instructor in the law department of Leland Stanford, Jr., University.

Mr. Pomeroy is the editor of "Pomeroy's Equity Jurisprudence," "Pomeroy's Code Remedies" and "Pomeroy's Specific Performance of Contracts."

Dr. Currell's Trip.

During the last examination period Dr. Currell delivered seven lectures. Two were delivered at Red Springs Seminary, the largest female seminary in eastern North Carolina; two at Asheville, N. C., one before the literary clubs of that city and the other before the boys at Bingham School; and three at Ward Seminary, Nashville, Tenn.

The Charlotte (N. C.) Observer comments as follows on his lecture at Red Springs:

"Dr. W. S. Currell, professor of English at Washington and Lee University, lectured to a large audience of students and citizens who were delighted, as Dr. Currell's audiences always are, with both the man and lecture. His subject was 'Principal of Suggestiveness in Literature and in Life.'

"Some lectures simply amuse; they are often mainly thin. Some only instruct; they are apt to be dry. Dr. Currell has a body to his work that carries with it the very best and most solid instruction, but he has also the happy faculty, while interesting an audience, to be more than interesting—to be helpful—to a body of students. To use Dr. Currell's own term, he was eminently 'suggestive.'

"Dr. Currell is always welcome in North Carolina and never more so than on the present trip. He goes from Red Springs to lecture in Asheville, and we predict that there will be other delighted Carolinians."

Donations to the Library.

Through the good offices of Dr. Jas. Lewis Howe our library has recently received a gift of $500 from Mr. Wm. C. Todd of Atkinson, N. H. Mr. Todd has been a very liberal contributor to various libraries of the country, being the donor of $50,000 to the Boston Public library for a newspaper reading room, which is the most complete in the world, keeping on file the papers of every city in the world. He has also given $10,000 to the library of Newburyport, Mass., besides numerous other contributions.

Of the sum presented to Washington and Lee, one-half will be appropriated to the Chemical library and the remainder is to be expended for the general library at the discretion of President Wilson.
