Dr. Howe's Address.

After the passing of resolutions expressing gratification for President Wilson's rapid improvement in health, Dean Tucker announced Dr. Howe as the speaker for the morning, who had chosen for his subject the Puritan migration to this country.

Dr. Howe prefaced his address by saying that when he was a school boy geography was studied by commencing with the solar system, then narrowing the field to the world, and by finally considering that small section of the terrestrial ball on which the schoolroom was situated. By the most improved methods of today the system is reversed. The study of history commenced at home and gradually extends itself so as to include the events of the entire world. Should this system of studying geography or history be adopted in Rockbridge county we would be inclined to think that the average schoolboy would come to believe that there was a Scotch-Irish center of the solar system and Scotch-Irish achievements would comprise the history of the world.

From sentences, however, proceeding from the public platform in this place, the Doctor said he had gradually been convinced that there were other movements in history approaching in importance the Scotch-Irish migration; that we could not but wonder at the prominent part played by the Scotch-Irish yet we should not lose sight of other exiled races which have been instrumental in shaping the laws and institutions of our country. Of these the Puritans played a prominent part and of them he wished to speak.

He said the subject had been suggested to him by the recent discovery of the log of the Mayflower, in the palace of the Lord Mayor of London, and its return to this country by Mr. Bayard, who presented it to the legislature of Massachusetts, on which occasion orations were delivered by Senator Hoar and other prominent men. The log and speeches, together with a history of Plymouth plantation by Governor Bradford, were published in book form by the state of Massachusetts, which made an interesting account of the early sufferings and wanderings of the Puritans.

On account of their opposition to the established church the Puritans were compelled to flee from England in the reign of Queen Mary. After much suffering they reached Amsterdam and from thence settled in Leyden, where they remained eleven or twelve years. Finally for various reasons they decided to move. The country at that time was weak in resources and they feared another Spanish conquest; again, they could not carry out their religious belief and could not expect many converts in their new home; finally they were filled with the missionary spirit and thought they had a duty to perform to the rest of the world.

Under the impulse of these motives they determined to find a home in the wilderness of North America, and after many privations and hardships finally landed at Plymouth in the northern part of Virginia at that time. Their first winter's experience was most discouraging, as almost one-half of their number died and for a long time the permanent existence of the colony was doubtful.

• From 1829-'40, however, to escape the persecution of England, large numbers came to this country and settled Massachusetts Bay colony. Small bands of these colonists settled the remainder of the New England states and played a prominent part in moulding the subsequent history of the country. Thomas Hooker, one of these colonists, was the author of the first written constitution for the purpose of founding a government—the constitution of Connecticut.

Dr. Howe closed his address by reading an extract from Senator Hoar's speech summarizing the sufferings of the Puritans and their influence upon American history.

Mr. Hartman received painful injuries by falling on the ice last Saturday afternoon.

An Interesting Address.

Notwithstanding the rain and gloom of last Sunday afternoon, the few students who were present at the regular Y. M. C. A. meeting were given a most delightful talk by Mr. Charles Boppell of Philadelphia, Pa.

Mr. Boppell took his A. B. at W. & L. U. in '95, and for this reason he was only the more attentively listened to; for not even years will sever the sympathy that exists between the students, new or old, of W. & L. U.

Mr. Boppell's theme of the evening was Africa, where he went two or three years ago as a missionary under the Northern Presbyterian board, but was compelled to return to America last fall on account of ill health.

Starting with his voyage from New York Mr. Boppell rapidly but graphically told us of the noteworthy incidents of his trip and landing on that far-off coast of "darkest" Africa.

Landing eight miles north of the equator on the western coast of the continent he found quite to his surprise and wonderment, that the temperature of the climate very seldom ever went above 90° or below 70°; thus, however, rendering fever very prevalent and constant.

Mr. Boppell had with him some relics made by the natives at that point. Among them was a dress, the style of which is worn by both male and female—much, we would say, like a Lexington boarding house bed quilt, made of variegated calico pieces. That is fastened around the body without pins or buttons, being securely fastened by a peculiar tucking-in of the corners. He also had some iron arrow and spear heads, besides a long two-edged knife of the same metal which, he said, were made by the natives from the ore, the smelting of which they had discovered themselves. And then he showed us a specimen of their currency, very crude and bulky indeed, but significant of their intelligence which is wonderful in view of the many obstacles which heathenism rears up before intellect.

Mr. Boppell then reviewed in a most interesting way the mental, moral and social condition of these poverty-stricken, desolate, but naturally acute, creatures of God far across the sea.

As student with student we heartily sympathize with our friend, Mr. Boppell, in all of his tribulations and admire his noble and high motives which impel him to face sufferings and death for the sake of his fellowman—the African.

Mr. Boppell hopes to return to Africa as soon as he regains his health. S.

Resolutions.

The following resolutions proposed by Mr. Dillard, president of the Senior Law class, were unanimously adopted by the student body in Chapel Wednesday morning:

Whereas, our honored president, Wm. L. Wilson, has been compelled by ill-health to be absent for a time from his accustomed duties and to seek recovery in a distant territory, and

Whereas, we are in receipt of intelligence of his rapid and steady recovery, be it

Resolved, by the students of Washington and Lee University, assembled in Wednesday morning chapel, that it is with extreme gratification we receive this welcome news, and further that we desire to express our sincere and confident hope that our president may be early restored to us in the full enjoyment of health.

The most attractive form in which the life of the student body is portrayed is that of the College Annual. It is a permanent feature of most institutions, for the reason that they find it an indispensable means of making public their advantages. Therefore since the character of the Calyx is dependent in a great measure upon the student body, nothing should be left untried to increase its attractiveness.

Thus far an apathy has been shown by the students which is alarming. Under the efficient board of editors the literary success of the annual is assured. It therefore remains for the student body, by a liberal support of the business manager, to make its financial success as equally certain. In this they have been extremely dilatory, for out of the entire number of students not one-half have subscribed for a copy. This should not be the case, and we are convinced that the matter has been overlooked by the greater number of the students.

The character of the Calyx will depend upon the support given the business manager, and it should be a matter of common pride to make it as attractive as possible. Especially should this be the case in regard to the senior law and academic classes, to whom its success is most important. Do not, therefore, wait for the matter to be called to your attention a second time but attend to it at once.

The Card Club.

On Wednesday evening the card club was entertained by Miss Louise Brockenbrough, and in spite of the inclement weather a large number of guests assembled to enjoy the occasion. Everything seemed to be just right for a good time and the games progressed merrily amid the rustling of the cards, the hum of conversation and the muttered curse of some unhappy "shark," who had been eured at an inopportune time. In the course of the evening a delicious supper was served and all too soon amid the realization of the fact that all good things must have an end, broke in upon the minds of those present. Miss Brockenbrough is an ideal hostess and no better evidence of this fact is needed than the eulogies of her entertainment, which were heard on all sides. Miss Anna Anderson and Mr. Owen won the first prize, while Mrs. Pomeroy, after an exciting contest, carried off the booby. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. S. B. Walker, Professor and Mrs. Pomeroy, Mr. and Mrs. M. B. Corse, Colonel and Mrs. N. B. Tucker, Mrs. Logan, Misses M. P. and N. Graham, Annie Jordan, Anna Anderson, Eliza Dillon, Eliza Patton, Lizzie Jordan, Lizzie Graham; Messrs. J. W. Garrow, D. M. Barclay, E. M. Moore, Heth, J. R. Tucker, Owen, Vaughan, Professor Crow, Captains Marshall and Stoddell of the V. M. I.

All-Southern Football Team.

The sporting correspondent of the South for the "Outing," Dr. W. O. Lambeth, in a recent issue has published his choice of an all-Southern football team. The line-up is as follows: Long, of Georgetown, centre; Choice, of V. P. I., left guard; Crutchfield, of Vanderbilt, right guard; Loyd, of U. Va., left tackle; Hamilton, of Georgia, right tackle; Koehlu, of North Carolina, left end; Sims, of Sewanee, right end; Wilson, of Sewanee, quarter; Gerstle, of U. Va., left half; Feagin, of Auburn, right half; Coleman, of U. Va., full back.

An address will be delivered before the students of Massanutten Academy at Woodstock, Va., on the 16th inst by Dr. Quarles. His subject will be "There is One in Every Family and Yet You Never Saw It."

Communicated.

Editor Ring-lum Phi:

In reply to the lawyer's article on the calathump, the writer of the "poster" wishes to state that he was not complaining because the lawyers were not present in our festivities, far from it; it was merely an expression of self-gratulation that the academics were not in such a lamentable condition as to be always compelled to consume the midnight oil.

The only difference between his sentiments and the lawyer's was a less elegant way of expressing a well known truth. The one contended that "Ping, Plug, Plug," was the cause of the lawyers' non-attendance, and the other replied "that they were studying their profession." Six is one and half a dozen is the other, Mr. Editor, and some one has suggested that as far as "the petty bickerings" are concerned, that was sour grapes, the erstwhile academics being out in full force, since they had learned how to "afford the time." Z.

"Goats"

The session is rapidly passing away, and realizing the fact that the different fraternities have about finished their selections of new additions to their chapters, we give below the names of the goats for the year with the flocks to which they belong:

Phi Delta Theta.—Witherspoon, Heath, McLeod, Guon, Feamster, J. Marshall.

Kappa Alpha.—F. W. Kellinger, R. H. Allen, W. J. Turner, S. C. Bagley.

Sigma Nu.—Webb.
Phi Kappa Sigma.—W. V. Collins, John Moore, Charles Spencer, W. W. Glass, A. K. Fletcher, R. H. Wooters.

Sigma Chi.—Conrad.
Mu Pi Lambda.—B. B. Shively, R. C. Biggs, B. Mercer Hartman, H. T. Eals, J. R. Hartman.

Delta Tau Delta.—B. D. Causey, Beale, Turner, Wm. Pendleton.

Phi Gamma Delta.—Hall, S. Glasgow, McCrum, C. McPheeters.

The Kappa Sigma and Alpha Tau Omega fraternities which were so prominent last year are practically dormant this year and the noise incident to a goating by the Theta Nu Epsilon has its first time to be heard this session.

Reception.

It has been a long time since Lexington society has been so delightfully entertained as it was on last Thursday evening at the reception given by Dr. and Mrs. Henry Alexander White in honor of the students in the department of history. The anticipated pleasures of those who have been so fortunate as to attend Dr. and Mrs. White's receptions in the past were more than realized. The enviable reputation of the host and hostess was fully sustained and if it were at all possible, this reception surpassed in enjoyment all previous functions. Everything was most tastefully arranged, the reception rooms and stair-case being very prettily decorated with potted flowers.

That stiffness which is usually absent in this case and everywhere made to feel entirely at home.

Amid the sweet strains of the orchestra in the hall-way and the delightful conversation of Lexington's fairest young ladies, the evening passed too quickly away, and the hour for departure stole upon the company unawares.

In spite of the above mentioned attractions no one forgot the other attractions served in the dining room and full justice was done the delicious refreshments by all present.

All of that charming coterie which constitutes the society of the town were out in full force, besides several visiting young ladies, among whom were Miss Welford of Richmond, Miss Scott of North Carolina, Miss Denny of West Virginia, and the following Lexington young ladies: Misses Allan, Misses Moore, Misses Ross, Misses Wilson, Misses Arnold, Catlett, Glasgow, Effinger, White, Smith, Jordan, Poague, Patton, Dillon, Duval, Anderson, Waddell, Pratt, Houston, Hamilton, Booker, Misses Barclay and Mrs. Throckmorton.

Among the gentlemen were Major Morgan of the V. M. I., Messrs. Armistead, Biggs, Allan, Booker, Cooke, Crawford, Blain, Johnson, Britton, Senft, Glasgow, Watson, Ellet, Andrews, Glass, Elgin, Fletcher, Lemley, Garrow, Hiter, Lawson, Tucker, McNeil, Shively, Preston, Arnold, Hairston, Harrison, Gish, Throckmorton, several Cadets, and many others, students and citizens.

The Societies.

The play at the opera house last Saturday night caused an appreciable decrease in the attendance of Graham-Lee; nevertheless the meeting was of more than ordinary interest.

This was the night for the inauguration of new officers, Mr. Hickman having been elected president, Mr. J. E. Gish, vice-president, and Mr. McNeil, treasurer, at the last meeting.

Mr. Hickman before taking the chair delivered a well written inaugural address in which he reviewed the constitution of the society and the duties it imposed upon the member. He then announced that he had appointed Mr. W. C. Young secretary, Mr. Frierson, critic, and Mr. Pendleton, censor, for the ensuing term.

The question for debate was the constitutionality of Brigham Roberts' seat in congress, and after a lively discussion the question was decided in the affirmative, thereby declaring that Roberts should be seated.

The meetings of Graham-Lee have been constantly growing in interest since the holidays. Let every Grahamite turn out tonight and help the good work along.

On account of the lack of a quorum the "Wash" held no meeting last week.

Mr. John L. Campbell went to Charleston, W. Va., Monday to attend the funeral of a friend.

Mr. Frederick Goshorn at a joint session of the literary societies was elected secretary and treasurer of the State Oratorical contest to be held here next spring.

Mr. George A. Derbyshire, formerly first captain at the V. M. I., who was seriously injured in a football game in Missouri last fall, has recovered sufficiently to be brought home.

William T. Leavell, a prominent alumnus of the University died at Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 4th. Mr. Leavell was a student at the University during the sessions of 73-4 and 74-8, during which he received the degrees of A. B., M. A. and B. L. He also received the honorary scholarship in 1873 and the Robinson Prize Medal in 1877. Of late years he has been a prominent coal operator in West Virginia.

The Freshman's Decalogue.

The class of '02 speak these words unto the freshmen saying, we are thy superiors in years, experience and understanding, appointed to render thee humble in thy state of bondage, to regulate thy goings in and thy comings out and to administer divers forms of punishment in times of thy disobedience.

I. Thou shalt have no ideas of thine own.

II. Thou shalt order for thyself no class cap, neither shall the figures of thy sect be worn upon thy body; for the anger of '02 is a relentless anger, visiting the stiff-necked freshman with bed-slats and oaken staves and shewing mercy unto none that are rebellious against its laws.

III. Thou shalt be seen and not heard, and the less thou art seen the better for thy welfare.

IV. Thy days and thy nights shall be spent in diligent study, lest in thy idleness the Evil One tempt thee to enter into mischief.

V. Thou shalt not wear fine raiment, neither Stetson hats nor patent leather shoes nor socks in three colors, lest they be torn from thy person and offered unto Siamese as a gift.

VI. Thou shalt not boast of thy wealth lest thou be delivered over unto H. O. Dold, the students' friend, who will roll thee even to thy uttermost farthing.

VII. If thou play at pool with an upper-classman thou shalt spot him even as many as eight balls and at billiards thou shalt turn him even a full score, and if by chance thou beat him, yet shalt thou render unto the keeper of the house the price of thy sport.

VIII. It is meet and right that thou render unto thy superior a tithe of thy income in cigarettes and coca-colas; for in this way is the heart of man made glad and the gates of divers fraternities and ribbon societies shall be opened unto thee.

IX. Thou shalt above all things be moderate in thy boasting, either in regard to what thou thyself hast done, or what thou hast heard to have been done; for in the day of reckoning it shall not be forgiven thee, even though thou hast lived long in the land of Texas.

X. If at any time thou dost violate these laws thou shalt be bathed in thine own tears mingled with much cold water and thou shalt be scourged with many well-seasoned paddles, and thy body shall be brought into violent contact with trees and the corners of sundry brick buildings, moreover, thou shalt be carried to the highest pinnacle of the temple of learning and delivered over to the "Father of his Country" who will chastise thee with his sword and cast thee down that thou mayest be broken both in body and in spirit.
