Aerial Navigation.

AN ADDRESS BY PROF. STEVENS

Professor Stevens gave us a brief review of the recent progress in navigation of the air. This being a subject of intense interest to every one; for everybody must hope that it will soon be brought to a state of perfection.

The first really successful attempt was made in France about 127 years ago, and was the result of an erroneous conception of the work of Benjamin Franklin. This great philosopher had found by experiment that lightning drawn from the clouds was the same as the electric spark. A Frenchman, taking up his idea, thought to cause a bag to rise by electrifying a cloud within it.

But instead of an electrified cloud he filled a bag with hot air by burning straw and wood. It rose and in twenty minutes went one and one-fourth miles. It soon became known in Paris and a young physicist, named Charl, knowing what caused the bag to rise, made one of silk which he operated successfully.

The next attempt in the streets of Paris, an attempt to inflate with hydrogen, was at first a failure, but it afterwards arose, went a distance of fifteen miles, when it was destroyed by the superstitious inhabitants.

Soon after this time a much larger balloon was sent up. This attempt was witnessed by Benjamin Franklin, and arose to a height of 9,770 feet.

From this time on the world went crazy over balloons. No open air entertainment was complete without a balloon ascension.

The most intensely interesting part of the lecture was a description of the ascent of Professor Glacier, Sept. 5, 1862. He and one companion arose to the height of about 37,000 feet, or nearly seven miles. It was only by use of his teeth that the attendant pulled the string that turned off the gas and allowed them to descend.

Since that time many attempts have been made to control the movements of the instrument so that they can be made to descend at some desired place. This has been successful more or less and balloons have been of much service in times of war.

Improvement will go on, no doubt, until aerial navigation will be brought to the most perfect state of perfection and in great measure displace the ordinary ways of locomotion.

Football.

It would probably be well for the management to state just why there has been so few games this season. When the season began there were nine games scheduled; six to be played in Lexington and three on foreign gridirons. Unforeseen events compelled the cancellation by us of two of these games. Then too, some were cancelled by other colleges. It has been rather unfortunate, but Fate has so decreed.

We have scheduled at present four games: On Monday we play St. Albans; Nov. 17th the V.M.I.; Nov. 24th the V. P. I. in Blacksburg; Nov. 29th, Thanksgiving, Central University of Kentucky, in Charleston, W. Va.

Practice during the past week has been very encouraging. The second team under the direction of Mr. Foster who has been unable to play on account of his injured hand, has been improved so greatly that the first team has had all it could do to hold the supremacy. On Thursday afternoon the second team defeated the first by a score of 6 to 0. A few games will probably be arranged for the second team before the end of the season.

It is the general opinion that the first team is superior to that of last year. We think there is no doubt of this, and it is to be hoped that we may yet secure more games in order to show the team at its best advantage.

The Thanksgiving game between Blacksburg and the V. M. I. will be played in Roanoke instead of Norfolk. Blacksburg refused to play in Norfolk.

A Fitting Memorial.

"After his retirement from office and political life, the late William L. Wilson accepted the presidency of Washington and Lee University, one of the oldest and most distinguished institutions of learning in this country. Since his demise a widespread sentiment in favor of erecting a suitable memorial to perpetuate in honor the name of the statesman, soldier and scholar, has found spontaneous expression among his personal and political friends, and alumni of the University. It is now proposed that this memorial shall take the form of a special endowment fund for Washington and Lee to be known as the Wilson endowment. The promoters of this plan hope to establish a fund of not less than $100,000, and this modest limit should surely be reached without difficulty or delay. It is the purpose of those who have the matter in hand to devote the income of the fund to the permanent support of a chair in the University which Mr. Wilson himself maintained from his own purse and by the aid of personal friends. If he could properly have expressed a wish on such a subject it would undoubtedly have been that the work in which he was especially interested at Washington and Lee might be perpetuated, and not allowed to die with his death. Let the good he did live after him, constituting an everlasting monument to his memory."

The above is the expression of the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph, a Republican paper of especially high tariff proclivities. At first it was thought that the movement had been started by Mr. Herbert Welch but this opinion has been abandoned and it is not known definitely with whom the idea of a Wilson Fund originated or whether it is merely the expression of a popular sentiment. Whatever may be the case it is hoped that the movement will assume a tangible form and be productive of material results. There could be no more "fitting memorial to an honored and beloved president. Why could not the fund be so enlarged as to make possible the erection of a Wilson Memorial Hall to be used for the Economics, Philosophy and History departments?

Ye Colonels.

Eleven Colonels gathered Friday night at Mr. Forrester's to discuss the affairs of their native state. Politics was the chief subject under consideration but as it was mostly considered there were no serious results.

The subject of honorary members was next taken up. Many names of Kentucky's most prominent sons were mentioned and the contest waxed warm. The committee on elections finally decided that the following had received the necessary three-fourths: Senator-elect J. C. S. Blackburn, Hon. Henry Watterson, Col. Bennett H. Young, Hons. Helm Bruce and Emmett Logan.

As the dancing class meets on Friday the meeting was changed to Wednesday evening.

On Mr. Tabb's invitation the club adjourned to meet at his room Wednesday, Nov. 7th, when politics will be more intelligently discussed.

Wash. Society.

The following new officers were elected at the last meeting of the Wash. society:

President, T. D. Sloan, Jr.; vice-president, A. H. Hamilton; treasurer, J. McC. Seig; secretary, Ed. Sydenstricker; censor, J. M. Anderson, Sr.; reporter, T. C. Turner; critic, E. W. G. H. Boogher.

Under these efficient officers the continued success of the Wash. is assured.

College Topics in commenting on the game with the V. M. I. is not blinded to the faults of the Virginia team and is liberal in its praises of the Cadets' playing. In the comments preceding the account of the game, Topics says: "In comparing the two teams we can only say that V. M. I. outplayed Virginia at every point of the game."

The attention of the student body has been directed several times to the necessity of electing at once an editor and business manager for the Calyx. This matter will admit of no further delay and should be attended to immediately. The more time given to those entrusted with getting out the Calyx the better annual will we have. The business manager will have more opportunities for securing advertisements and making a financial success out of the enterprise, while the editor will be enabled to make it a more creditable production from a literary stand point. A mass-meeting should be called at once and the officers elected.

The first attempt at painting old George does not give evidence of any distinctive artistic ability in the freshman class. Those who executed the work seem to have been totally lacking in that fine blending of colors which is characteristic of the true artist. Their stencil work on the side of the cupola also does not give forth much hope that any of their members will star as sign-painters. Their work did not add much to the natural beauty of the landscape, but the class spirit which prompted the deed is to be commended. It may be well, however, to state for their information that the tradition of painting old George is seldom interpreted as to include the daubing of paint over the college gate, thus making it a public nuisance.

Tennis-playing is very popular among the students, and the attention of the faculty is called to the fact that the large number of students in this sport find considerable difficulty in accommodating themselves to the serviceable nets at their command. It is probably too late to secure more nets before the weather will render tennis playing impossible, but four more nets should be obtained before spring.

One of Many.

Editor Ring-tum Phi:

A former student of W. & L. U. who is now teaching in Alabama, writes me as follows:

"I was greatly shocked and grieved to hear of the loss which the University and each one of us individually suffered in the death of our beloved president. He and I began our relations with Washington and Lee at the same time and I had hoped to receive a diploma from the hand of him whom I admired so much; but that small act was not one of the offices which he was to perform in this life; and so his spirit has gone to its resting place while the memory of his nobleness remains for my example."

In Mr. Wilson's letter of acceptance written to our board of trustee there are five words into which he compressed two of the most essential factors of success in life: "PATIENT LABOR AND EARNEST PURPOSE."

ADDISON HOGUE.

The Glee Club.

Last Saturday night the most enthusiastic musical members of the institution met for the purpose of organizing a guitar and mandolin club. After the doors were closed it was found that of the new men present, Pancake, Robinson and McRae are able reinforcements for the mandolin department, while Dennis and Tucker handle the guitar with great ease. Of the old men, Crawford, Feamster and Cooke are back. Most of the students having had good fortune to hear these last year it is hardly necessary to discuss in detail their respective merits. The organization is purely a voluntary one and can more correctly be called a serenading club, as that is the chief mode of exhibition indulged in by the members. The prospects are probably better than they were last year. Music has been ordered and the club will be heard from shortly.

Resolutions of the Student Body

Inasmuch as God has seen fit to call unto Himself our beloved President, William Lyue Wilson, the students of Washington and Lee University desire to put on record somewhat of the great life and influence which has gone out from us. Mindful that no words of ours can add lustre to the great name of the departed, yet we would add our simple "Well done" to the full chorus which arises from all this land. Great as statesman and legislator, great as conseller and leader in the cabinet of our Chief Executive, great as presiding genius and moulding influence in the policy of the University, he held his title clear and unimpeached to stand in the front file of the nation's great ones. If the nation has lost a patriot and a statesman, if the University has lost a Chief Executive of rare ability, the student body has sustained a deep personal loss. Loved, honored, respected by all, he was the beloved friend and elder brother of every student in this institution. In the hour of their sorrow and deep affliction the student body extends its heartfelt sympathy to the members of his family.

And be it resolved, That a copy of this resolution be given to his family and be also copied in the college publications.

Harry Lees Meets.

On last Wednesday at 4 p.m. the first meeting of the Harry Lee Boat Club was held in Dr. Denny's lecture room.

W. T. Ellis, C. S. McNulty and William Allen were elected as a committee for the purpose of selecting the crew for the coming year. J. M. Marshall was elected secretary.

The names of several persons who wish to apply for the crew were taken. It was an enthusiastic meeting throughout, a fit beginning of what must be success.

Resolutions of the Washington Society.

At the regular meeting of the Washington Literary Society Saturday night, Oct. 20th, a committee was appointed to draft resolutions expressing the deep grief felt by the society on being informed of the death of the Hon. William Lyne Wilson, an honorary member of that body. The following resolutions were put on record:

"Whereas, it has pleased an all wise Providence to remove from our midst our beloved associate member, friend and patron, the Hon. William Lyne Wilson, be it

"Resolved, that in his death the Washington Literary Society has sustained an irreparable loss, and that we the members of this society feeling deeply our loss, desire to extend our heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved family.

"Resolved, that we shall ever keep in grateful remembrance his untiring labors in our behalf, and that we have and shall always receive inspiration from him as the great friend, advocate and exemplar of oratory.

"Resolved, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved family and be published in the columns of the RING-TUM PHI and Southern Collegian.

E. D. ORT,
T. D. SLOAN,
N. G. WOODSON,
Committee."

Graham-Lee.

The program last Saturday was disturbed to some extent by the presence in town of the tent tragedians. The orators were duly fined for their non-appearance and the declaimers were absent or transferred to debate.

Question for debate was, "Resolved, That the right of suffrage should be excluded from the Negro in the South." Mr. Wall opened for the affirmative and payed his respects to the Ethiop with more enthusiasm than argument. Mr. Jenkins spoke on the negative side, and made a most effective talk. He was followed by the voluntary efforts of several. Good points were brought out by Mr. Lord and Mr. White.

The critic did not complain as candidly as usual, but then Daniels was late in arriving. After the program was completed the treasurer made his report and made a most vigorous kick about the neglect of members to pay up. The president called attention of all members to the provision by which membership is forfeited if dues are not paid within four weeks after becoming a member.

Albert Sidneys Elect Officers

On last Tuesday afternoon the Albert Sidneys, victors in last year's regatta, met in Dr. Quarles' lecture room for the purpose of organizing for the year. Mr. Moise, a member of the winning crew, took the chair and called the meeting to order, and the Club at once proceeded to the election of officers.

Mr. A. G. Jenkins was unanimously elected president, and Mr. J. W. S. Tucker secretary and treasurer. The president was authorized to appoint the committee for selecting the members of the crew.

From the large attendance at the meeting it is manifest that none of the old Albert Sidney spirit is dying out, and that many new men have already linked their fortunes with the Blue. Only two of last year's oarsmen are in college, but from the material on hand there can be no doubt that a crew will be placed on the river which will give an improved rendition of last year's victory.

J. W. Garrow, who has been sick for several weeks, is well on the way to recovery and soon expects to start for Texas.

Fraternity Supper.

The members of the local chapter of the Sigma Chi fraternity were handsomely entertained at a supper by one of their number, Mr. J. Randolph Tucker, on last Monday evening at his home, "Col Alto," the occasion being the 21st birthday of the host. The diningroom was tastefully decorated in the yellow and blue colors of the fraternity, crysanthemums being especially in evidence. It is needless to state that all did ample justice to the bountiful supper and were properly envious of the age of their host. Those present were Messrs. Graves, Robertson, Conrad, Shields, Price, Dennis, Burks and Baker.

Bradford Debating Society.

The regular debate was held on Thursday and was one of the most interesting of the year. The case under discussion was that of Knowlton vs. Congress Sprs. Co., in which the plaintiff brings suit to recover money paid on an illegal contract.

The gentlemen selected to argue the case were all members of the Junior class—Messrs. Daniels and Glass representing the appellant, and Messrs. Swartz and Newman the appellee.

Mr. Daniels opened the debate, reading a full report of the case and arguing from the facts that as the contract was illegal, the parties should be allowed to stand on the same footing as before it was entered into. Said further that there was a locus poluiten tentiae, which their client had a right to avail himself of and withdraw from the contract.

Mr. Swartz in replying, held that the parties in this case were equally in fault and that the contract was partially executed, both of which reasons were sufficient to prevent recovery by the plaintiff.

Mr. Glass denied the equal guilt of the parties and argued that his client had entered into the contract without knowledge of its illegality, and on discovery of it, he should certainly be allowed to withdraw and recover what had been paid.

Mr. Newman in closing for the appellee, criticised several cases cited by his opponents showing their inapplicability to the case in point, and introducing some strong arguments to show that the plaintiff was dishonest and not entitled to the protection of the law.

Chief Justice Tipton of the Supreme Court delivered an opinion in favor of the plaintiff, which was concurred in by Justices Goshorn and Foster. Justices Weinberg and Sale delivered dissenting opinions. The opinion of the majority of the court was reversed by the court of appeals by a vote of 16 to 18.

The closeness of the case was evidenced by a difference of opinion in regard to it by the members of the law faculty, Professor Burks deciding for the plaintiff, while Professor Vance took the opposite view of the question. Dean Tucker could not be prevailed upon to speak but concurred with the former.
