The Cynic

O man, O man, why dost thou claim
That thou wast once a monkey.
For after all this length of time
Thou art now but a donkey.

When the average man gets of something absolutely original it isn't worth hearing.

I searched the earth from pole to pole
To find my heart's desire,
And after weary years I found
A woman and—a liar.

If you would have a professor blind to your faults bat his eye out.

A sage sat down to think a thought
Then wrote it down and read,
"A freshman will oft times butt in Where seniors fear to tread."

It is right and proper to flunk if your fountain pen is two full for utterance.

Glee Club Organized

A Glee Club has at last been started in the University. Some six or seven men met last Tuesday in the Y. M. C. A. hall and organized, electing M. P. Anders, director, A. Steves, Jr., pianist, and G. C. Moseley manager.

The musical talent in college was discussed and it was decided to ask other men to join in order that a larger club might be formed consisting of some twelve or fifteen voices. It was also agreed that the time of meeting should be 5 o'clock on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday afternoon. On Thursday afternoon the Glee Club met for the second time, eleven men being present. Several selections were tried to test the men's voices with exceedingly encouraging results, and it is hoped and confidently believed that a creditable Glee Club can be maintained which will honor the institution and commend itself to the public at large.

The club deserves the hearty cooperation and approval of both students and faculty as a large factor in its formation was the fact that there ought to be one here, and not simply the idea that it would be a source of pleasure to those connected with it.

The management hopes to arrange several trips to neighboring towns next spring, as well as to offer the services of the club in dramatic and other entertainments at Washington & Lee this winter.

The following are the members and the part they have been assigned: First tenor, R. A. Lapsley, M. J. Anders, C. S. Nichols; Second tenor, H. C. Tillman, L. Thompson; First bass, J. E. Johnson, Mercer Hartman, G. C. Moseley; Second bass, H. S. Osburn, G. W. Keller, R. B. Stephenson.

Football Reception

The football men in college were very agreeably surprised to receive an invitation to a reception at President Denney's on Wednesday evening. Their feelings were those of genuine delight when they entered the parlor, tastefully decorated with palms and chrysanthemums. The guests were received by Mrs. Denney until the "scrubs" ran an end play with such a strong interference that the hostess requested some of the fairer sex to aid her.

After a repast was served "Riley" Wilson entertained with songs and a phonograph of an original type, both being enjoyed very much.

Although the men regret very much having to close the season so prematurely yet they were very glad to remember such a pleasant evening as was given them by their charming hostess.

Those of the fair sex daring to face the warriors of the gridiron were: Miss Strickler, of Richmond, the guest of Mrs. Denney; Miss White, of Charlottesville; Miss Booker, Miss Haskins; the Misses Barclay, Miss Rogers, Miss Payne and Miss Dunlap, of Lexington.

The gentlemen present were a goodly number of both 'Varsity and "scrubs" and Dr. Latane.

Through respect to the memory of the late Percy S. White the Washington and Graham-Lee Literary societies held no meetings last Saturday night.

Bradford Law Debate

The Bradford Law Debating Society was called to order Thursday evening at 8 p. m., by President Long. After the reading of the minutes of last meeting, there being no new business before the house, the regular business of the meeting, the debate, was proceeded with.

The question for discussion was the case of Offield vs. Dav's, 100 Va., 250, which raised a question as to the validity of a common law marriage, in the face of the statute of Virginia prescribing a certain method in which marriages are to be celebrated.

It seems that in the year 1865, James D. Offield and a certain woman agreed to live together as man and wife, and cohabited as such until 1879, when a license was obtained and the parties were married in a legal manner.

Shortly afterwards Offield died his widow was attempting to assert her dower right against certain real property owned by Offield between the years 1865 and 1879, against which property certain creditors' liens had in the meantime attached. The dower right of Offield's widow hinged upon the validity of the alleged common law marriage for if the marriage was valid, the widow would be secure in her dower right, otherwise the creditors would prevail.

The case was exhaustively argued by Messrs. Henderson and Cave for the plaintiff in error, and by Messrs. Burks and Bryan for the defendant in error. Voluntary arguments were made by Messrs. Williamson and Hawkins, of the junior class.

The court consisted of Messrs. Harman, Chief Justice, and Hardy, McCorkle, Hutton and Bradham. The decision of the court was in favor of the defendant in error.

Notwithstanding the unanimous opinion of the court, Prof. Long felt constrained to dissent, and in doing so delivered a clear and comprehensive statement of the law applicable to the case.

Communicated

Editor Ring-tum Phi:

There is a question that is asked quite often here at Washington and Lee, "what is the cause of the lack of interest in student enterprises among the students."

The fact that the men do not take the interest that they ought to in college affairs has been noticeable for years, and in the six short weeks of this session, this same lack of interest has been very apparent. With 300 men in college not a single enterprise should be allowed to languish, but this year as heretofore we find only a few working hard to make athletics, literary societies, publications, the cotillion club, and the Y. M. C. A. successes. It is the same, small, faithful group that has worked for years and outside of this group absolutely no interest is taken in these things by which our University is judged in the outside world.

There is something radically wrong in our system, and we believe that the fault is in the men themselves and the class of men who are induced to come here. Too many of the men in college are "sharks," nothing more. They came here to learn what can be taught out of books and not for the broader education by true University life and spirit. Their sole aim is marks, marks, marks. They never become enthused because they are not the kind of men to become enthused. They do nothing here but shark, and when they go out into the world they care nothing about the University except for the degree it has conferred upon them. This fact was forcibly called to the writers attention in an instance where five hundred personal letters were sent to Alumni asking for support of a college enterprise. Out of the five hundred only forty answers were received, and every one of the forty were from men who were not "book sharks" in their college days.

If the faculty would work as hard to get the right kind of men, and then fill them with enthusiasm as they do to get the men who "shark" and do not take part in our college activities, we would have a much better University not only here, but in the outside world.

EDITORIAL

Last Saturday morning Percy Simms White, of Texas, a student at Washington & Lee University died of typhoid fever, after an illness of two weeks. Although the deceased had been in our midst but a few weeks he had made many friends and his death caused a pall of gloom to fall over the University. Although many did not know him, the study body felt that one of their number had been snatched away, and one who promised to be a most worthy member. The death was especially sad, inasmuch as none of the kinspeople of the young man were here at the time he passed away.

The typhoid fever scare has about abated, no new cases having broken out during the past week, while all the sick are convalescing. The usual routine of work is being carried on at the University, and all who remained to pursue their studies are congratulating themselves for doing so. No doubt they feel much better than those whose faintheartedness and false telegrams did so much to produce the scare and to injure the town and the schools. For a great many of these falsifiers there is no excuse whatever to be offered and nothing save condemnation can be heaped upon them, while the only excuse that can be offered for others is youthfulness, lack of judgment or a complete ignorance of the truth. And in this connection we wish to suggest that before foreign newspapers publish derogatory reports concerning towns and institutions of learning, they should make a careful investigation of the existing state of affairs, and for such facts it would be better to look to their correspondents than to have the matter made up in the office or counting room of the paper.

It is a source of deep regret that it was felt necessary to disband our football team. This is especially true since our prospects this year, with our excellent material and splendid coaches were brighter than ever before. We hope that it will not be a blow to the enthusiasm which was so strongly manifested by the student body, and that every man who has true interests of his Alma Mater at heart will try to see that it was the best thing to do under the circumstances, that we must now make a stronger effort than ever before to put our team on the basis it should be next year. It does seem, however, that it would have been wiser to have run our season to a close in spite of the seemingly hard financial circumstances in which we were placed by the furlough granted the cadets of V. M. I.

"Scrubs" Win

A very interesting game of baseball was played yesterday between the 'Varsity, captained by Baker, and the "Scrubs," captained by Wilson. The Scrubs won by the score of 9 to 6.

This should gladden the heart of every man in college, as it goes to show that we will have a good team in the spring by putting the two together. By the way of the 18 men who showed up yesterday there is not one sure of his job. Besides there are a good many ball players in college who have not gone out yet.

Oral Debates—Nov. 2

Question, Resolved, That a high protective tariff results in high wages to the United States laborer.

Affirmative Negative
C. H. Tupper. L. Thompson
P. L. Irons. M. Hartman.

BRIEF FOR AFFIRMATIVE

I. Theoretically high protective duties make higher wages possible; (a) Lucrative profits make lucrative wages, by (1) increasing purchasing power of laborers, (2) and stimulating other industries; (b) Protection means economy, (1) more saving to producer, (2) and to the laborer; (c) Diversifies industry, (1) increasing wants, (2) and placing premium on skill; (d) Increases efficiency of labor, (1) higher wages, (2) and more time for self-improvement.

II. Practically high protective duties make high wages: (a) Prosperity waning in free trade countries, (1) England's low wages; (b) Protective duties account for U. S. high wages; (1) statistics, (2) real wages, (c) United States peculiarly adapted to protection, (1) statements of manufacturers.

BRIEF FOR NEGATIVE

I. Definition of wages. (a) Real, not money, wages understood.

II. Real wages as high in unprotected as in protected industries.

III. Wages are injured by a high tariff, because, (a) Foreign trade is decreased, (b) Hence markets are impaired, (c) Hence smaller demand for goods, (d) Hence less demand for labor.

IV. Real wages are lowered by high tariff, because, (a) There will be retaliatory tariffs, (b) The cost of production is higher, (c) There is no increase in the price of farm products.

V. Statistics show that wages are relatively higher under a low tariff in the United States. (a) This is manifest from the price of products and wages under the tariffs from 1816-1890. (b) Also shown by wages in textile industries.

VI. Wages in certain protected industries in U. S. are no lower than the wages in the same industries in England. (a) Where the opposite is true it was true before high protection existed.

VII. Conclusion: There is no connection between tariff and wages.

The students who have had typhoid are rapidly recovering.

V. M. C. A.

The topic for last Sunday afternoon was Missions, and Professor Hogue made a talk on that subject. He first called attention to the fact that the church was so long in waking up to any realization of its duty in this great matter, and he then discussed the question of the possible evangelization of the world in this generation. The task does not seem to be a feasible one, if all men are to be converted to Christianity before the second coming of Christ. If, however, the Premillenarians are correct in their view that Christ is to return before the Millenium, then the church has the keenest stimulus to earnest and increased effort, on the basis of what Christ Himself says in Matt. 24, 14, "his gospel of the Kingdom shall be preached in the whole world for a testimony unto all the nations; and then shall the end come." It does seem practicable for the Christian nations in one generation to give their testimony in the whole world and unto all nations, even though the great body of individuals were to reject the testimony.

IN MEMORIAM.

PERCY SIMS WHITE.

Percy Sims White was born March 24, 1885, at Honey Grove, Fannin county, Texas. At the age twelve he became a member of the Methodist church. In 1894 his father, P. H. White, moved to Bonham, in that state, and in 1901 the son graduated from the Bonham High School. From there he attended the Texas State University one session, entering in September, 1902. From this school he came to Washington and Lee at the beginning of the present session. He had scarcely begun his year's work when he fell sick on October 13. He died on the 24th.

On Sunday, Oct. 25, his father reached Lexington, and on Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock the funeral service was held in the University Chapel. Students, faculty and town people completely filled the large room.

A choir of students sang softly, "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and the 90th Psalm was read by Dr. Whaling, after which Mrs. Logan gave as a solo, "The Day is Gently Sinking to a Close." Rev. Mr. Light then read 1st Corinthians, xv., and offered prayer. As the choir sang "Beyond the Sun,iling and the Weeping," six men of young White's fraternity conveyed his body from the building. Then both faculty and students walked in slow procession to the depot and stood with bared heads as the earthly remains of Percy Sims White were carried from their midst.

To heap up praise of the dead is at best but idle, but to laud such as our fellow-student so recently gone before us it is, indeed, to gild refined gold. In the class-room, able and eminent; in his life among his fellows, strong and lovable. Such was Percy Sims White. To all who came within the circle of his influence, he was the upright, sincere man, the genial, true-hearted friend. That he should be stricken down in his prime is one of those unaccountable things in the experience of men; His ways are past finding out, and we must submit, though we grieve.

J. S. Grasty has gone to Baltimore to enter Johns Hopkins, where he will stay till Christmas, when he will return to W. & L.

Trans-Mississippi Club

Last Tuesday afternoon the Trans-Mississippi Club was organized. More men are in college from "Across the River" this year than have ever been here before and much enthusiasm is shown by the members. They hope to raise the club to the highest notch in the line of State clubs.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: W. V. Collins, president; Worthen, vice-president; Wolff, secretary and treasurer.

A committee was appointed to draw up resolutions on the death of Mr. P. S. White.

It was decided that the club have a constitution and Messrs. Anders and Steves were appointed to draw up suitable resolutions to govern the club. Monthly meetings will be held.

Dr. Quarles was elected to honorary membership.

It is said that a certain landlord in town is contemplating taking out an insurance policy to compensate himself so far as possible in case there is another vicious attack by one of his student boarders.
