University Assembly

The devotional exercises of last Wednesday's assembly were conducted by Rev. Dr. Morrison, he offering prayer after the scripture reading, Matthew vi.

In the absence of President Denny, Prof. A. L. Nelson introduced as the speaker of the morning, Prof. Walter LeConte Stevens.

The so-called Metric Bill now pending the action of Congress, which provides for the substitution of the metric system for the British system of weights and measures, is a phase of a much agitated question. The present system of weights and measures in use in England and the United States—except in the laboratories, where the metric system has been employed for many years, is hopelessly complex. There are in common use in these two countries two measures or weights of the ounce, the pound, the quart, the bushel, the ton, while there is interaction and confusion among the linear, the square and the cubic measures. The general lack of uniformity in systems of weights and measures is appalling, a dictionary of these some years ago giving as many as 5,227.

The metric system, on the other hand, is fast becoming the sole standard of Europe, its convenience as based upon the decimal notation having brought about its adoption by substantially all the countries of Europe except England, Russia having it under contemplation at the present time. The metric system had its origin in a continental conference held at the time of the French Revolution, in which conference were represented nearly all the European nations except England. The first attempts to introduce the system of the conference's choice were unsuccessful, for the reason that a system of weights and measures is a natural product of the people themselves, and can ill be introduced otherwise; but the manifest excellence of the system finally secured it so wide in adoption that it is used today in countries aggregating a population of 500,000,000.

Since the legalizing of the use of the metric system in the United States in 1866, there has been a growing demand for its adoption, a movement to which some impetus was given by the adoption in 1894 of electric measurement.

Washington Literary Society

Last Saturday night the officers for the new term took their places, President-elect McPheeters making a strong inaugural address, and Retiring President Hartman summarizing the work of the past term.

The program for the evening was taken up, and Messrs. Stevenson, Hartman, Hawkins and Thompson, L., made excellent declamations. The debate of the question, "Resolved, That the purely protective tariff is injurious to industry," was sustained for the negative by Messrs. Opie and Hawkins, the latter a volunteer, and supported on the affirmative by voluntary speeches from Messrs. King and Hartman. The decision of the judges, Messrs. Stevenson, Tillman and Hudson, was unanimous for the negative.

Messrs. Kelly, Thackston and Ritenour were appointed a committee on questions.

Graham-Lee Society

The Graham-Lee held its first regular meeting of the New Year last Saturday night. After the roll-call and reading of the minutes, Mr. Martin was elected a member of the society. The appointed orator for the evening was absent. Mr. M. T. McClure delivered an inspiring voluntary oration. Messrs. Van Devanter and Schaefer declaimed. The question, "Resolved, That the Policy adopted by the President and his Cabinet in the Panama Trouble, be Condemned," was argued by three regular debaters and some voluntary speakers. The decision favored the negative, the vote being 10 to 9. There being no business, the society heard the report of the critic, and adjourned.

Boat Clubs Meet

On Thursday afternoon both the Albert Sidney and the Harry Lee Boat clubs held meetings.

The "Blues" elected the following officers: President, T. G. Stone; vice-president, W. V. Collins; secretary and treasurer, J. W. Conover; crew-committee, T. G. Stone, R. A. Douglas and R. D. Thompson.

Annual elections were also held by the "Reds" with the following results: President, C. S. McNulty; vice-president, A. D. Trundle; secretary and treasurer, Carle Paine; crew committee, McNulty, Trundle and Paine.

A joint meeting of the clubs was held later to take some action towards the purchase of two new sets of oars for the coming season. A letter from the manufacturer was read, after which the following men were appointed to raise the money and to purchase the oars: W. V. Collins, J. B. Akers, M. T. McClure, Carle Paine, W. H. Dunlap, F. H. Iden. Subscription papers were immediately circulated and from the 80 men present $45 of the $75 was pledged.

During the joint meeting a short talk was made by a member of the Faculty Committee on Athletics, Dr. Latane. He reviewed the enormous expenditures of the past season and spoke most hopefully of the coming one. Once he alluded to the kindness of Miss White in liquidating the debt on the "Annie Joe II," to be greeted by loud applause. At this time it was passed that a vote of thanks be extended to Miss White, the Dramatic Club, and the Glee Club for their timely assistance, and that Dr. Latane and Messrs. Kelley and Barnes notify them of the gratitude of the Clubs.

Just before adjournment the question of inviting the Virginia Boat Club to row on North river was referred to the joint committee named above.

At a meeting the Athletic Executive Committee, held Jan. 9th, R. W. Withers was elected manager of the baseball team for the ensuing season.

Bible Study Rally and Bible Institute.

Tomorrow at 4 o'clock Dr. W. M. Forrest, the John B. Carey Bible lecturer at the University of Virginia, will address the students on a very interesting subject, "The Bible and the American College." It is desired that every student in the University turn out to hear Dr. Forrest.

The Young Men's Christian Associations of the University and of the Virginia Military Institute held today in the Lee Memorial Chapel a Bible Institute. Two sessions were held, at which addresses and conferences were the main features. The object of this institute is twofold: (1) To promote efficient methods of Bible study; (2) To arouse a greater interest and larger membership. It is good to see the Cadets and students acting together in association work.

Gen. Lee's Birthday

Next Tuesday is a holiday, it being the birthday of Gen. Lee. As customary the Graham-Lee Literary Society will hold its Intermediate celebration. Further than this no attention has been paid in the past by the Faculty or the Students to the public commemoration of the life of this noble man, our greatest president too. Of course it is too late to arrange for a fitting memorial service on Tuesday, but it is not too late to lay plans for next year. With all due respect for the Graham-Lee, it must be said that they make no pretense of having any sort of a memorial meeting at all. Is it not time for Washington and Lee to pay some higher tribute to the memory of that great Southerner than the mere setting aside of January 19th as "Lee Memorial Day."

"If it not the thing for the student body to do, it is 'up to' the University to bring the Virginia Boat Club up here." Such were the words of a prominent crew man at the meeting on Thursday. He was right, too. Three times our crews have gone to Richmond at the expense of the Virginia Boat Club and have been most hospitably entertained. Twice they won and once they lost. It seems only honorable and in keeping with the spirit of Washington and Lee to invite the Richmond crew to Lexington. It is hoped that the joint committee, which is considering the matter, will look at it thus.

Next Tuesday is the birthday of General Lee, and on that night the Graham Lee Literary Society will hold its annual celebration. It is needless to say that the young men who are on the program that night will do the best they can, and it is to be hoped that they will be given the attention they deserve in shown the courtesy which any cultured and refined audience should show. There have been times when the audiences at the chapel have been exceedingly rude and thoughtless.

Columbia Notes in New York Evening Post: "A special gymnasium class has been formed for the officers of the university. President Butler and a number of professors and instructors attend the class regularly three times a week."

Some one has suggested that the same custom be started here, adding that there might then be some move taken toward fitting up decent baths at the gymnasium. At any rate, it is hoped that one of the professors may take a notion to inspect the bath room any evening about 6 o'clock. Then they would surely be enlarged and refitted.

Senior Law Class Election.

Yesterday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, President M. M. Brown of the Senior Law Class, called it together for the purpose of electing a class orator, a historian and two CALYX editors. Inasmuch as it was a senior law class election it is needless to say that there was "something doing" all the time. There was confusion; innumerable, and often meaningless, and at times apparently endless talks; there were scraps and love feasts, aspersions and compliments, wire-pulling and challenging. But it ended with all parties friendly and nothing more than a contested election for the future to determine.

It would require a volume to give all details of this memorable contest; to reproduce the speeches; to enumerate the challenges of votes; to record the motions carried and those laid on the table; in short, to tell all that happened. And while it would be interesting to the world at large to learn political methods from this august body, our space unfortunately is so limited as to preclude our giving the details.

Upon a call for nominations Mr. Cromer placed in nomination Mr. Hardy of Virginia, whose nomination was seconded by Mr. Sells. Mr. Hartman then nominated Mr. McKay of Florida, and Mr. Howell seconded the nomination. After a long wrangle as to who should vote the chair, under protest from Mr. McKay's adherents decided, and upon a vote being taken it was found that Mr. Hardy had won by 12 to 11. Mr. McNulty served notice upon the victors that inasmuch as there was serious doubt as to the right of several of the members to vote, the election would be contested and carried before the faculty. Mr. Bouchelle defeated Mr. Sells for historian, while Messrs. Hartman and Harman were elected CALYX editors by acclamation. An orator from each side then assured his opponents that he and his colleagues loved them better than they loved themselves, and that this fight was but an additional link in their chain of friendship, after which the meeting adjourned while Howell was singing one of his classics.

Look out for the baseball schedule. It will be published next week.
