BRADFORD DEBATING SOCIETY

The third meeting of the Bradford Debating Society was held Thursday night with a large number in attendance. Professor Long presided.

The case up for discussion was a case in common carriers, Midland National Bank vs. Pacific Central Railway Co., 43 N. E. Rep. 521, and was argued for the appellants by Messrs. Pong and J. H. Howell, and for the appellees by Messrs. E. S. Shields and Hunter.

The facts were about as follows: The Courier Commission company consigned a load of grain to themselves as consignees to be carried over the Pacific Central to Kansas City. Three bills of lading were made out, one original and two duplicates. When the grain reached Kansas City they shipped it on to another point, the railroad company not cancelling the original bill of lading which the company afterwards transferred to the Midland National Bank. When the bank made demand of the railroad for its goods it was discovered that they had been delivered to the original consignee and suit was brought against the railroad. The attorneys for the railroad claimed that the bank was negligent in not ascertaining the value of the bill and that it acquired no better title than the assignor. The attorneys for the bank contended that the railway because of its negligence was estopped to make defense; that when one of two innocent parties must suffer that the one whose act resulted in the injury must bear the loss.

As volunteer speakers Messrs. Williamson and Crabill held that the bank could not recover, while Mr. MacCorkle made a very able argument contra.

After this, and after time had been taken out to permit the court to decide which parties were appellants and which appellees, Chief Justice Burks and Justices B. B. Shields and Cave sustained the lower court, holding the railroad liable, Justices Sheate and Switzer dissenting. Mr. Long concurred with the majority of the court.

A rather unique feature of the annual class rush at Butler University was the presence in the crowd of two women of the University who were so carried away by enthusiasm that they jumped from places of safety into the middle of the fray. Several students were badly scratched and bruised, among them the doughty women.—Ex.

Graham Lee Society

After a week's hard work the members of both the literary societies and many visitors from the student body found it invigorating and refreshing on Saturday night to throw aside the duties of the class-room and hear the issues of the day discussed in the political harangue, which constituted the program of the Graham Lee Society.

The Republicans, Prohibitionists, Populists and Democrats each put forward a candidate to proclaim the principles for which they stand and to represent them in Congress. Mr. Anders was the Republican chairman and introduced the Hon. Leo Weinberg, who violently attacked the Democrats and their policy, and represented Mr. Roosevelt as the friend of all classes as well as an able and efficient leader. Mr. Addison then introduced Hon. J. Howard Larrick of the Prohibition party. Mr. Larrick said that his party's platform was supported by four ropes, intended for four strands in the halter that should hang the rumseller, and he hailed the day when woman should become a factor in our politics. Hon. D. A. Bradham, the Populist was then presented by Mr. Phillips, and announced that he was the champion of that great throng of honest voters that followed William J. Bryan to defeat in 1896 and 1900. Mr. Bradham delivered an able and entertaining speech with the true campaign ring to it. The Democratic candidate, Hon. C. A. Engle, was then introduced by Mr. Browning. He pointed out the errors of the other parties, and promised that there should be no recurrence of the Booker T. Washington episode if Alton B. Parker should be elected. After the speakers had presented their causes the election was held and Bradham was selected by a large majority to represent the 10th district in congress.

Washington Society

The meeting of the Washington Society last Friday night was taken up entirely with the election of officers. The following officers were elected:

President: Mr. W. N. Grubb.
Vice President: Mr. R. A. Lapsley.
Secretary: Mr. R. J. Palmer.
Treasurer: Mr. P. H. Wisman.
Critic: Mr. E. M. Millen.
Reporter RING-TUM PHI Mr. W. F. Semple.
Censor: Mr. C. P. Light.
New members taken in were:

Messrs. Manley, McCutcheon, Rodgers, and Page, R. L.

The society having received an invitation from the Graham-Lee to be present at a political harangue, the meeting adjourned, and the members attended in a body the sister society.

Tonight the political issues will be discussed by the Hons. W. F. Semple, and H. C. Tillman, of the Democratic and Republican parties respectively. Every body come.

Tennessee Club

Tennessee must take its place, well to the front, in the line of states at Washington & Lee. This was the decree of the men who hail from the Volunteer state when they met in Millen's room last Tuesday night. Accordingly a motion was made and carried to the effect that the Tennessee Club be organized.

Officers were elected as follows: Mr. Millen, President.

Mr. Colville, Vice President.
Mr. Poindexter, Secretary and Treasurer.

Other business was brought up in the way of object, time of meetings, and expenses of the club. Light edibles were passed and after a most pleasant evening the first meeting of the Tennessee Club adjourned.

Those present were: Messrs. Bagly, C. F., Colville, Smith, Poindexter, McCutcheon, King, Walker, Millen.

Engineers Organize

The students in the school of engineering met Monday afternoon and decided to sever their connection with the school of arts and so in the future, all men working for the B. S. degree will belong to one of four engineering classes.

The School of Engineering was organized as a whole with the following officers:

R. W. McCrum, President.
F. T. Dotson, Vice-President.
E. A. Griffith, Secretary and Treasurer.
A. H. Payne, Calyx Representative.

Each class will meet and elect officers at an early date.

Notice University Assembly

The next meeting of the University Assembly will be held Wednesday, Nov. 9, at 8:45 a. m.

Professor H. Parker Wills will complete his address on "Conditions in the Philippines."

GEORGE H. DENNY,
President.

Y. M. C. A.

Dr. Manly delivered a very practical and interesting address Sunday afternoon, based on Ecc. 7:16, "Be not Righteous Overmuch." This passage, he said, is hard to be understood and is not to be taken too literally. Some suppose that there is irony here, as in many other passages in Ecclesiastes. We comprehend its real meaning by comparing with what immediately follows. "Neither make thy self over wise." Just as there is such a thing as being too smart, so there is such a thing as being too righteous. That is to say there is an exaggerated, strained sort of piety which makes itself objectionable, and it is against this that the precept is directed.

One form of this exaggerated piety is doctrinal fastidiousness. While system is necessary, over-exactness in doctrinal truth becomes burdensome. Some persons in their zeal for inspiration of the Bible e. g. carry it to such an extreme that all they see is the letter. They refine the substance out.

Again this strained piety sometimes shows itself in morbid self-inspection. No man can be healthful in body who constantly keeps his hand on his pulse. Neither can a man be healthful spiritually who spends all his time in morbid self introspection.

This extreme piety may also take the form of exacting consciousness. We should not quibble about matters of expediency as if they were matters of eternal right and wrong, ultra-scrupulousness, exasperating distinctions. Phariseism leads to the neglect of the weightier matters of the law, justice, mercy and truth.

Still another way of being righteous overmuch is to cultivate special persons or particular excellences or virtues to the neglect of others. We should then rather take Paul's advice to the Philippians: " whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue and if there be any praise, think on these things." Our aim should be to study and imitate the life of only perfect men. Jesus Christ was unconventional and the friend of all classes of people.

Hon. H. St. Geo. Tucker is doing some effective stump speaking in this campaign.

RECOLLECTIONS AND LETTERS OF GENERAL ROBERT E. LEE. By E. Lee, Jr. Doubleday, Page & Co. Price, net $2.50.

A very interesting volume detailing the private life and giving recollections, and containing numerous letters of General Lee has just been published. The book is written by General Lee's son, who was in a position to know the great Southerner as well or better than any one else. The book is not a history of General Lee's life but gives the inner side rather, his home life and his general character, beginning with his services in the U. S. army and ending with his death. It is a very valuable volume for any library.

Communication

We think that every one who feels an interest in literary work cannot help being gratified with the spirit that is manifesting itself in that line this session. The men seem to be waking up to the fact that there is nothing in college life that a student can derive more benefit from in proportion to the work and time required for doing than literary work. Both societies are receiving into their halls on every Saturday night a goodly number of men who are beginning their college career in the proper spirit. And we rejoice to see this because we sincerely believe that they will never regret the step they are taking. It matters not what line they may intend to follow in after life we are confident that they will be able to put into practice what they have learned upon the floors of the society halls. We believe that the faculty will bear us out in the statement that if a student does efficient work in one of the literary societies, he will derive as much good from it as any one study he may take in college. And while many of the men are joining us in this worthy line of college work, there are yet some who are putting it off to a later period. To these we would like to extend a hearty welcome and also urge that they come and be with us in this important branch of college work. We feel confident no one will ever have occasion to regret such a step.

Editor Ring-tun-Phi:

Sir: Although the Calyx of last year was an exceptionally good issue, when compared to others that have been gotten out, its appearance was partially marred by the poor arrangement of the groups in many of the various photographs. It is unnecessary to say that this fault cannot be charged to any negligence on the part of the Calyx editors, but was due entirely to the lack of care and system on the part of those men composing the groups.

Would it not be well this year for the clubs and other societies to go prepared to arrange their groups in some systematic and symmetrical way when the time arrives for them to have photographs taken? A uniform dress also presents an excellent appearance, especially in small groups.

Such a course, if followed this year, will undoubtedly greatly improve the general make-up of the Calyx and will also result in a greater degree of satisfaction to the men who purchase the pictures.

The Cotillion Club meets Monday night.
The Washington Literary Society has an attractive program tonight.

Several of the old men are going home to vote next Tuesday. The West Virginians are especially loyal along this line.

The old physical "Lab." is undergoing a complete change. It will be used in connection with the Departments of Chemistry and Geology hereafter.

Halloween Entertainment

The entertainment given by the Daughters of the Confederacy last Monday evening at the Ann Smith Academy was a success, both socially and financially. Everybody went and had a good time. The townspeople turned out in full force and a good part of the student population was there. The entertainment was characterized by its exceedingly low prices.

The special features were the quadrilles, music and beautiful little fairies.

Glee Club Meeting

The Glee Club held their first meeting Thursday evening in the Chapel. The following men were present, Anders, LeGore, Wisman, Lapsley, Stephenson, Hynson, Rader and Sheaf, The Club is rather late organizing, so will get down to hard work at once. Their first appearance will be at the Thanksgiving inter-society debate. Manager LeGore wants a few more men, especially first tenors.

Hunting

The hunting season opened up Tuesday. Those who care for this kind of sport have been traveling over the adjoining county, with varying degrees of success. The fruits of the chase embrace anything from a ten year old rabbit to a five dollar trespass fine.

For several years it has been uncomfortably dry for quite a number of the good citizens of Lexington, and certain sojourners there in but now it is no doubt too dry for all.

PRESIDENT DENNY AT NEW ORLEANS

President Denny has been absent this week in New Orleans where he is attending the meeting of the Association of Colleges and Preparatory Schools of the Southern States at Tulane University.

Dr. Deuny, as President of the Association, delivered the annual address at the first meeting, Nov. 2, at 8 p. m., choosing for his theme the subject of "Academic Commercialism." Among the other distinguished educators upon the list of speakers were Presidents Houston of the Texas A. & M.; Hartzog, University of Arkansas; Chas. E. Coates, Louisiana State University; W. S. Sutton, University of Texas, and other very eminent educational leaders.

The Association includes in its list of members representative institutions from Maryland to Texas, and has for its object the promotion of interests common to colleges and preparatory schools. All schools that prepare students for college are vitally interested in the work of the institution.

The Collegian

The Collegian for October has been out some time now, but this is the first opportunity we have had of reviewing it.

The first poem, "Trusting," is very good and expresses a very beautiful sentiment.

"The Mind in its Own Place," an essay, is well written and shows deep thought.

"The Last Afternoon" is another poem which is fairly good.

"A Lover's Courage" is one of the best written and most interesting articles in the Collegian.

"Morning, Noon and Night" is a catchy little poem.

"The Rubanjat and the Man" is quite good. It shows a deep study of the subject.

"God in Man" is good.
"The Major" is fairly good as a sketch.

"The Early History of Marriage" is an essay of great merit.

As a whole our criticism would be that there is not enough fiction in the number.

The departments are all very good.

With the Alumni

Cary Blain is teaching at the Fishburne Military school.

George Keller has accepted a position in a drug store at Lewisburg, W. Va.

The Marvellous Michigan Team.

Everybody is talking this year about the great team Michigan has. Many believe it is the best team in the country. Columbia has cancelled her game with them, giving as an excuse that her games with the Eastern colleges makes her schedule heavy enough. The Michigan men do not hesitate to say that Columbia is afraid of them. These Western wonders did the work for West Virginia, and this is what the latter's paper, the Athenaeum, has to say about it:

Like travellers returning from a country of which none of the neighbors know anything, the West Virginia University football team has been telling most marvelous tales of their journey to Michigan. The tales told vary only in the amount of the marvelous inserted. This much, however is common to all: Michigan is a land of giants and swift movements. Here again reports differ, some contending that the smallest man weighed only 300 pounds, while others place him at at least a ton. Here is the story of the game as told by one of the players:

"West Virginia lined up along the side lines and drew lots to see who would venture out in the field to kick off. The unlucky fellow crept warily out to the centre of the field, drew back his shuddering leg, gave the oval a gentle boost and then scudded for the side lines and safety. A good sized Woolverine of 250 pounds caught the ball and while he was going down for a touchdown the other ten came up at full speed for the hapless West Virginian. They jumped on him and left him on the field for dead. Then the West Virginia lads lined up behind the goal posts and tried to keep the Michigan full back from making two touchdowns. He was two fast, however, and slipped in before they could see him. We knew nothing more till the game was over. They said that Michigan beat us, and I think they did."

The following information has been obtained. None of the Michigan players were on horseback. The Michigan papers said West Virginia played a good game. The quarterback did not score twice on the same play. None of the Woolverines were hurt. Only fourteen of Michigan's seventy plays were tried. Michigan lined up with the reserves after the game for a little practice. Big men can run fast if they are on Yost's team. It is not true that the Michigan center eats a whole cow every day; as a matter of fact it takes him nearly three days.—Ex.

Yale had 65 candidates for the football team this year averaging in weight 170 pounds.
