WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY, SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1905

NO. 13

DR. HOWE AT LYNCHBURG.

The following will no doubt be of interest to the student body as a whole and especially to the chemical students. The account is partially taken from the Lexington Gazette :

The long delayed conference between the representatives of the city of Lynchburg and those of the West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company relative to the alleged contamination of the waters of James river, was held in Lynchburg last Saturday. Present at the conference on the part of the city were City Attorney Manson, Professor Jas. Lewis Howe of Washington and Lee University, and several members of the city council. Representing the Paper Company were Judge Moore of New York, chief attorney for the concern ; Professor Mallett of the University of Virginia, and Mr. Thomas Luke, one of the officials of the company at Covington, Va.

Professors Howe and Mallett discussed at great length the question of the pollution of the water in the river, and they did not agree on many of the questions at issue. When the conference was at an end it was stated that the meeting had resolved itself down to the effect of the large amount of non-nitrogenous matter emptied into the river by the mills on the banks of the James river.

It is admitted that this vegetable matter is in the water, and that its presence is chargeable to the pulp mills, though the owners of these plants claim the cause of the great discoloration during the past summer and fall months was due to the drought and the small amount of water that was in the river. The low water, it is claimed, did not dilute the effluent of the mills as would have been the case with the usual amount of the river. It is also claimed that the discoloration from the tanneries located along the stream is more harmful than that from the pulp mills, but the discoloration from the tanneries disappears from the stream much more quickly than that caused by the discharge from the pulp mills.

As to whether or not the pulp mills are injurious to the health of Lynchburg is doubtful. Dr. Mallett insisted at the conference that the matter was harmless as far as the health of the city is concerned, but

Dr. Denny Addresses the Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. has begun the new year under very favorable auspices. Dr. Denny addressed a large body of students at the first meeting of the year, held last Sunday.

The theme of the address was the contrast in the character of Onesimus, the slave of Philemon, before conversion, and his character after he came under Paul's influence and was converted. At first he was a bond-bought, unprofitable slave, and probably had deserted his master after having robbed him. His character was in direct contradiction to his name, Onesimus, which means profitable. Parallel instances of such contradictory character may be found in the conduct of many who bear the name of Christian yet live as though they do not. There is a very practicable application of this for college men. Some are not faithful students. As such they are unprofitable and are robbing those who are making denial to send them to college. This species of dishonesty manifests itself in several ways, such as wasting time, wasting money, or heedlessly destroying college property not their own.

The higher side in the picture is seen after the conversion of Onesimus in Rome under Paul's influence. The genuineness of the change in his character is attested by his confession of his guilt, his resolution to make restitution to his master, and his faithfulness to Paul. Much can be learned from the attitude of Paul to the once unprofitable slave now become profitable and worthy of his name Onesimus. Paul makes no reference in his letter to Philemon on behalf of Onesimus of the former past bad conduct of the slave, but wants to make it easy for him to get back. He calls him his son, a brother beloved. He speaks of what the man is, emphasizing his changed life and character ; and more than this he shows absolute unselfishness when he expresses his willingness to pay Philemon any past obligations which might be charged up against Onesimus.

We see in this character study a striking instance of the overruling providence of God. This should encourage us in our solicitude for our friends out of Christ. We learn too that we must use the means at our disposal for doing this. God honors honest effort.

CHAPEL

Dr. Quarles Addresses the Students. Subject: Agosticism

Wednesday morning, Jan. 11, was the first regular assembly morning of the year 1905. On account of the inclemency of the weather the exercises were late beginning. At this time of year it is very hard for the students to get breakfast, even when punctual, and get out on time. But to the credit of most of the men there was not a marked lateness in arrival. All were gathering within the chapel at about the same time, 8:46 or 8:47.

The speaker of the morning was Dr. James A. Quarles, D. D., of the chair of Philosophy. He took for his subject, Anosticism. A subject that, besides falling under his department, has had the earnest and whole soul study of the Dr., as a theologian and a philosopher. A subject that would draw the attention of the thinking and serious hearers, not only of itself, but because of the calm thought and earnest life of the speaker.

Dr. Quarles discussed the subject with a view to bringing out the agnostic's idea and tenets and showing that these could not hold good. What is agnosticism? What does it mean? Here he gave the definition of agnostics. We cannot know God, therefore God is ignorable. We can not know God, that is we can not comprehend him, come in touch with him. And why not? says Dr. Quarles. Because a God that we can feel and see and comprehend is no God. Is a God that we could put our arms around, that we can embrace, that we can encircle in full comprehension, a God that you want or I want?

In conclusion Dr. Quarles gave this beautiful instance of faith. A little child (how many know it) was lonely in a new home to which it had been taken. It knew only one inmate of that home. Yet the little one was heard to sing one day, "I can live anywhere that Jesus does." Then said the Dr. "I would not give the faith of that little one for all the tenets of agnostics, or the creeds of all the doubters, no not for anything. Would you?"

What is the matter with Dramatic Club? It is "high time" they were getting together as it is one of the most enjoyable of College enterprises.

Large Body of Students Hear Mr. Weatherford

No more popular speaker has visited the University this session than Mr. W. D. Weatherford of Vanderbilt University, the International Secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Movement for the South.

His address Thursday night on "The Measure of a man," was as interesting as it was inspiring. He treated the prevailing college evils, dishonesty, impurity and prejudices with such eminent fairness that by far the large part of those present were persuaded that his point of view on these matters was the only correct one.

Tonight he speaks again in the Engineering Hall at 7:30, on "The Students Source of Power." Every Student should avail himself of the opportunity of hearing these splendid addresses.

Miss Stuart Entertains

Last Tuesday evening Miss Hope Stuart was hostess to a "Pollman Party," complimentary to her guests, Miss Logan of Shelbyville, Ky. After an extensive tour of the county the call to the Dining Car was welcomed. Those present were: Misses Ross, Glasgow, Elizabeth Turnbull, Margaret McCrum, Mary C. Moore, Blanche McCrum, Martha Moore, Messrs. Rader, P. E. Collins, Lexox Turnbull, F. G. Jones, English, Desha, R. W. McCrum, Landis, D. H. Brown and Captain Poague.

Moving Pictures

Last night the American Kinetoscope Co. gave a performance in the Chapel. The moving pictures, although short, were fairly good as were the stereopticon views for the illustrated songs but the voice of the singer cannot be complimented. The proceeds went to athletics and the students are to be complimented on the way they turned out considering the inclemency of the weather.

The annual celebration of the Graham-Lee Literary Society will be place next Thursday night, the 19th. The speakers of the evening are Messrs. Herzog and Weinberg, orators, Messrs. Tiffany, Brittingham, Walton and Preist, debaters. The program bids fair to be a most excellent one, and it is hoped and expected that the student body will give the best of attendance and order.

EDITORIAL

If you have not already been solicited to contribute to the final ball it will not be long you are, and it is to be hoped that each one will do his duty and contribute as liberally as he is able. The final ball is a social function of which the students may well be proud, for it has always been conducted in such a manner as to reflect credit upon the University. It is pre-eminently a University affair, is given by the students and for the students and their friends. Every student in college is invited and urged to attend the dance and the supper.

The ball is a very expensive affair if given in the manner it should be and consequently a goodly sum must be raised for it. So when you are approached for your subscription do not say that you are opposed to dancing, or that you do not dance or that you will not be here, but remember that it is part your dance and contribute what you are able.

We now have a dormitory of which we may justly feel proud, both because of its quaint and ornate appearance and the comfort and convenience it gives the students. There have been many complaints heard, however, as to the condition of the walks from the building to the street and to the University. In bad weather these are hardly fit to walk on. It is true that an embryo cinder walk has been started but the ashes are so thinly spread on as to afford but little relief. For the comfort of those rooming in the dormitory this matter should be attended to.

The Graham-Lee Literary society holds its annual intermediate celebration next Thursday night in the Lee Memorial Chapel. This is a very worthy and commendable way in which the society has chosen to do honor to the memory of one of the South's noblest sons and one of nature's noble men, one who in truth wore the "white flower of a blameless life." And those who attend should remember what the night commemorates as well as bearing in mind that the young men are doing their best to reflect credit on themselves, their society and the University. If the auditors will bear this in mind they will give the attention which such an event demands and not in their light-headed manner make sport of that which they cannot comprehend.

At this time of year it is quite an undertaking for the staff of the RING-TUM-PHI to get up matter for the issues. This is not the fault of those who have this matter in hand, but the fault of those who are supposed to get in certain material. This is especially directed to those whose duty is to report certain meetings and events. We would call special attention to the reporters of the Literary Societies to the fact that the members of the Societies always wish to see an account of their meetings. The reporters are elected for this purpose. The spirit of the societies cannot be kept up without such reports. These reports should be not verbum, but a full and complete statement of the doings of each meeting of the societies, and should be handed in to the printer or one of the editors early in the week. They can be gotten in by the middle of the week as well as the last. Now let all men who know of college news turn it in.

Law Notes

The moot court has been organized and held its first session this afternoon. The object of this court is to give the students a practical idea of the law and to admit of their applying the law, which they have learned. All the formalities of a regular court are observed, which tends to familiarize a young lawyer with the pleading and practice which he is bound to know sooner or later. The court is held once a week and any senior who is absent is subject to fine. Prof. Burks is the presiding judge and Martin P. Burks, Jr., clerk.

One member of the faculty casually remarked this morning that if all Gaul is divided into three parts the McCurdie boys had two of those parts last night.

Dr. James A. Quarles of Washington and Lee University read a paper on "Dualism" before the Southern Society of Philosophy and Psychology, which was organized Tuesday, December 27, 1904, at Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. The president of the association is Dr. Baldwin of Johns Hopkins and Professor Buchen of the University of Alabama, is secretary.

Bowling Party

On Thursday evening a crowd of young people met at LaRowe's Bowling allies and enjoyed several hours of pleasant recreation. Sides were chosen and some of the men were put to shame by the ladies by the scores made. It was wonderful how well the ladies bowled, particularly Miss Annie White who frequently "decorated" her boxes. Among the men "Cousin Sam" of course did the best work. Among those present were: Mrs. Rust, Mrs. Cox, Mrs. Tucker, Miss Annie White, Miss Dunlap, Miss Paxton, Miss Haskins, Miss White, Miss Graham, Miss Rust and Messrs. Burks, Withers, Steves, Thomas, Vertner, Alexander, Hamilton, Bagley and Dr. Latane. After bowling was over a delightful spread was served at Mrs. Grahams.

North Carolina Debate

The preliminary debate in which the two debaters were chosen to represent us against the University of North Carolina was held under the auspices of Dr. Willis' Debating class on Tuesday night.

The question, "Resolved, That the time has come when the fact of the Solid South is detrimental to the best interests of the South." The affirmative of the question was debated by Messrs. Semple and Kelly, while the negative was upheld by Messrs. Stephenson and Sloan. E. M. Millen was the only other contestant. This closed the debate and the judges, Drs. Quarles, Currell and Willis, retired and chose Semple and Sloan as the debaters.

The men had had very little opportunity to prepare for the preliminary, but several good points were brought out on both sides. There should have been, however, a larger number of contestants for these places. The question is one which opens a wide field for original thinking, but there is not a great deal of literature which bears on the subject. It was proposed by North Carolina, so we had choice of sides. The negative was chosen by the debating team.

The debate will be held at Chapel Hill, N. C., about April 5th.

Doubtless the Tarheels will give our boys a lively tussle, but with the men chosen victory should be ours.

The S. A. E. fraternity had their pictures taken this evening at the Miley Art Studio.

Some of the Junior lawyers say they would rather study mother-in-law than constitutional law. Crabbill promptly noted an exception.

J. W. Bagley, who entered college last week to take some post-graduate work has taken an assistant professorship in math for the rest of the year. The Junior math class is now divided into three sections. Dr. Kern teaches one and Messrs. White and Bagley one each.

Dr. Howe in Lynchburg

Dr. Howe insisted that its presence in the river made the water suspicious, if nothing more, and that no one could safely undertake to say whether it rendered the water actually unwholesome or not.

Dr. Mallet insisted that the fact that fish were killed, though he did not admit such to be the fact, by the discharge from the pulp mills was due to the fact that the effluent of the pulp mills deprived the water of its oxygen, and thereby causes the fish to die for the lack of oxygen, which they take from the water by means of their gills. He claimed the killing of fish was no evidence that the effluent was unwholesome. Dr. Howe was not satisfied that the death of the fish was due to their being deprived of oxygen, but claimed that the fact of the condition of the water being sufficient to kill fish, placed it under grave suspicion of being injurious to human beings.
