W. & L. Downs Hampden-Sidney

FAST GAME ON WILSON FIELD

Largest Score in Many Years

In a game replete with brilliant plays the stubborn little Hampden-Sidney football team went down in defeat before W. & L. to the tune of 33 to 5.

That the score was not 50 to 5 was the surprise of all. In the first minute and a-half of play, Captain Streit after two downs, rushed the ball over the goal for the first touchdown; Brown failed to kick goal, and a short time after play had been resumed and the ball had been carried to within striking distance of the North goal, Brown made an attempt at a field goal, but the ball went wide of the mark. A few minutes later "Dutch" Alderson bucked the line for the second and last touchdown of the first half. Brown kicked goal, making the score 11 to 0.

After Alderson had scored the second touchdown, near the middle of the first half, Washington and Lee suffered penalties to the extent of 75 yards, and that this figured largely in keeping down the score in this half, is evidenced by the score in the second half. For a while the 400 rooters on the side-lines appeared disgruntled, as it seemed that W. & L.'s customary hard luck was working against a large score, but this first whirl only proved to be a curtain raiser to what was coming. During the intermission Captain Streit determined to show the Lexingtonians a few stunts in football, and this he did.

A few minutes after the second half had opened Hampden-Sidney made their only score on a delayed pass. From this time there was little doing for Hampden-Sidney, for W. & L. then began to put up one of the finest exhibitions of football ever seen on Wilson Field. The ball was carried with such rapidity from goal to goal that the yells of the rooters would scarcely die away before some end or line buck would again stir them into a frenzy of excitement. Captain Streit far eclipsed any of his former work on Wilson Field. Everytime the ball was given to him he took off from 10 to 25 yards, and finally climaxed his brilliant day's work by setting the crowd wild with a 50 yard run from kickoff. All the "old heads" who have watched the work of our gridiron heroes for many years past were unanimous in saying that Streit played the best game ever seen on Wilson Field. Hiram Dow, W. & L.'s game little end, who has, for quite a season, enjoyed a warm place in the hearts of rooters, starred but little less than did Streit. His work on the defensive was exceptionally fine. Every play around his end was made without interference for he always got his man before they had scarcely moved. Dow handled the forward passes in fancy style; on one pass especially, when by an extended effort he got a wild heave from Henley. Nor were these the only stars in the bright constellation, for the pride of Buchanan, the all-around star of the "all-star" team, contributed his portion to the 'Varsity's spectacular exhibition. He was put in the second half in Steel's place and made one of the four touchdowns in the second half. Dutch Alderson played rougher with the boys from Hampden-Sidney than any of the rest of the 'Varsity. Every time he hit the line he carried the whole opposing team with him for 5 and 10 yards. Henley, who was sent in as substitute for Wilson, played a surprisingly good game. And as Pat Krebs would say, "Every man in the line stood his ground like an all American." If we play this kind of ball all the time we will certainly "roll the old foot-ball" over them all the rest of the season.

The line-up was as follows:

Sophomore Dance

One of the leading social events of the season thus far was the Sophomore Ball given in the University gymnasium on Friday night, and on which occasion the second year men became hosts to the Juniors.

An unusually large number of young ladies were present and this event, in connection with the Hallowe'en party of the night before succeeded in bringing in a large number of girls from Lynchburg, Roanoke, Staunton and Lynchburg.

At 8 o'clock sharp the V. M. I. orchestra struck up the first number on the programme and for four solid hours the old "Gym" was the scene of such festivity as is seldom seen here, except at Finals.

The spacious hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion. College pennants and Japanese lanterns, in abundance, were strung from one side of the room to the other, while in one end of the hall was an embankment of golden autumn leaves. The predominating color scheme was old gold and black—the colors of the Sophomore class—and large masses of bunting, also in class colors, were draped around the walls and pillars. A conspicuous feature of the decoration was a large electric circle, placed in the north wall, and in the centre of which shone the class numerals—1910.

The affair was formal and the members of the Sophomore class were easily distinguishable because of a band of the class colors worn across the shirt front.

The feature of the evening was the Sophomore German which was danced between the fourth and fifth programme numbers. This figure, which was comprised exclusively of Sophomores, was one of the prettiest ever danced here. The opening of the figure was beautifully arranged and at the conclusion each couple displayed the class colors, alternately in broad strips of bunting, thus making a beautiful canopy of gold and black under which each couple passed and then danced off. The figure was danced to the music of "College Life" and the grand finale was most impressively carried out.

The german was led by Mr. John Izard, president of Sophomore class, who, with Miss Preston of Richmond, Va., led a beautiful and even figure. Following the President came the

The Halloween Party

To Miss Annie's efforts and originality the student body is indebted for one of the most successful Halloween parties ever gotten up at W. & L.

The party was given in the dining room of Castle Hill alias "The Boom," the participants being transferred from town in tallyhoes, which in no small measure added to the pleasure of the occasion.

The ladies and their escorts were masked and wrapped in sheets. The ballroom too was done up in halloween style, with pumpkin skulls over the electric globes, and the windows and corners decorated with corn, mysterious outlines pasted around on the walks, making the appearance of the whole thing, to say the least, be-"witching."

Before the masques were removed two beautiful figures were led by Mr. Pipes and Miss Brockenbrough.

The chief amusements of the evening were dancing, a potato race, and biting apples out of a tub of water. In the last Miss Gadsden joined the Baptist.

Among those present were Miss A. Gadsden with Mr. A. D. Somerville, Miss Rust with Mr. LeRoy Hodges, Miss E. Gadsden with Mr. R. F. Burnett, Miss Catlett with Mr. W. F. Pipes, Miss Archer with Mr. Caperton, Miss Brockenbrough with Mr. D. W. Pipes, Miss Moore with Mr. H. J. Phlegar, Miss Mills with Mr. Roscoe Sepsenson, Miss Dennis with Mr. H. C. Alexander, Miss Staples with Mr. J. T. McCrum, Miss Izard with Mr. C. B. Bagley, Miss Paxton with Mr. J. L. Campbell, Jr., Miss Walker with Mr. Martin Wsther, Miss Haskins with Mr. R. Powell, Miss Heald with Mr. J. Caskie, Miss Smart with Mr. Brown, Miss Paxton with Mr. P. Holland, Miss Cross with Mr. P. Bryant, Miss Gassman with Mr. Knight and Miss Chillias with Mr. S. L. Dorsey. Most every dancing man in College, not mentioned above, was there as a stag.

The patronesses were Miss Annie White, Mesdames Kern, Howe, Waddel, Humphreys, Pendleton, Krug, Watts and Miss Graham.

The refreshments were ginger snaps and cider.

Rumors come from Sweden that John Swanburg, the sprinter of Marathon fame, is smashing all records on the track.

Communication

During the past three weeks there has been much discussion of the action of the Literary Societies, in joint session, in passing a motion to the effect that those members of the societies who desire to do so, will turn over the remainder of their contingent fees to the societies. It seems, however, that it is only fair, to the societies that their action be explained to the student body, and the writer also wishes to employ this medium to give the literary societies an idea as to the financial condition of the General Athletic Association.

For the last three years Washington & Lee has met in debate several of the most progressive institutions of learning in the South, among them the University of North Carolina, the University of Georgia and the University of Tennessee. It may be well to add that she lost only one of the debates and that the men on our teams were members of the literary societies. Last year the debates were held here, and this year we must in turn meet our opponents on their own platforms. These two trips, namely, to Georgia and to Tennessee, will, of course, be expensive and the money must in some manner be raised to meet the expenses of the men who make the trips. It was for this purpose that on Oct. 5th the Washington & Graham-Lee societies held a joint meeting, and by a majority vote, decided to solicit the members of the two societies for the remainder of their contingent fees. The money so raised was to be applied to meet the above mentioned expenses, which it was calculated, would amount to about $125, and the balance was to be turned over to athletics. The societies hold in support of this move that the debating teams have equal rights with the athletic teams, and that if their members see fit they can turn over the remainder of their contingent fees to the societies, instead of to athletics.

It may be well to say in this connection, however, that one of the speakers in advocating this action, left the impression, unintentionally no doubt, that there was a good balance due the Association after paying last year's expenses. This was, of course, erroneous, as I shall presently show, and it probably contributed in large part to the action of the societies.

The financial condition of the athletic association had become such that in 1904 it was recognized that some move to better these conditions must be at once put into effect. The student-body was therefore solicited for that portion of their contingent fees remaining after contingent expenses had been paid. The idea of the originators of this plan was to start an athletic fund, with the intention of gradually increasing it until an appreciable residue should be left each year, the money thus gotten from contingent fees being the foundation. It will readily be seen that the plan is an excellent one, and those conversant with the conditions which prevailed before its inauguration, will tell you that, greatly due to its instrumentality, athletics at Washington & Lee are on a much firmer basis than ever before. Yet, the withdrawal of even a small portion of the funds, the athletic association feels is due it, will materially derange the financial plans, as a brief outline will show.

This year's apportionment to athletics is made on a basis of $3,000—40 per cent football; 40 per cent. to baseball; and 6 2-3 per cent. to basketball, track athletics and boat clubs, respectively. There have been 364 cards pledging $5.00 to athletic association signed, and 186 have paid, or $930. The amount available from last year's contingent fee fund is $1,100, (the preceding year's fund always being used for the expenses of the current year,) making a total on hand of $2,030. This leaves $970 to be raised before the bare $3,000 can be realized. There should be an amount in excess of this $3,000, or in other words an "Athletic Contingent Fund," as it cost $500 more than the apportionment to run the baseball team last year leaving this deficit for the association to meet this year. Since football and basketball are only apportioned $1,200 respectively, either, or both, may cost more than that amount, and there is need of an amount to meet this possible average. From what source is it to come? There is only $890 coming from the unpaid athletic fees, making a total of $70 less than the absolutely needed $3,000. The association this year derives nothing from the current contingent fees. Past experience has proven that not all of the pledges for $5.00 are paid. Yet, the coaching for football and baseball costs in the neighborhood of $1,200; guarantees must be met; athletic goods purchased; and various other expenses met. Again I ask you, from what source is this to come?

Of course, it is pre-eminently every man's right to do with his own money as he chooses, but when he is going to give the remainder of his contingent fee to any one college enterprise, let him carefully consider what is most in need of it.

As the University grows in strength and continues to become more and more an important factor in education, so must her standard of athletics be put on a higher plane. To both of these functions the students are large contributors. Along educational lines their influence is felt through representative men they put before the word. A great many of these we find, while collegians, on the debating teams of the University, and the literary societies are, therefore, great educational factors. In the department of athletics it costs time, it costs grit and it costs money to turn out good teams. The coaches and the men on the teams cannot do it all. The rest of us must co-operate with them. So does the work of the literary societies demand our assistance. It also costs time and grit and money to train out good debating teams.

Hence, we see two departments of colleges needing our help; athletics and the literary societies. The two should work harmoniously and neither should break into the plans of the other. I would, therefore, suggest that the societies rescind their action in regard to contingent fees, and I believe the students will willingly contribute the amount they need. The athletic association cannot well solicit money other than the $5.00 fee. The societies can, and if they will get around among the the students they will raise what they want. Granting that they rescind their action, I do not believe a man in college would fail to support them in consideration of what they have given up to athletics

Graham-Lee

The exercises of last Saturday night showed that the interest of the members for public speaking is increasing, for, not only was the attendance good, but the speakers demonstrated that they had entered upon their work with a vim and earnestness foretelling success.

Mr. G. H. Anderson declaimed one of the famous speeches of the renowned Epaminondas to his soldiers. Mr. Beverly delivered an oration on Charlotte Corday, the heroine of French history. Mr. C. C. Davis, a law student, in an original and carefully composed speech on the question: "Should Individual Wealth be Limited by Law?" presented some striking facts and observations on one of the political questions of today.

The debate was concerned with an attack upon and a defense of imperialism. Mr. Milling and Mr. Long speaking against that policy, won the debate over Mr. Scott and Mr. Tucker. The most valuable talk, perhaps, was Mr. Mahler's criticism of the speakers.

WHY AN EXTRA YEAR

Did you ever hear of the American student at the University of Edinburg who decided to take a second year of post work, because he wanted to win a friend over to his faith? He went there with the intention of taking but one year of post work. He became friends with an agnostic. At the end of the first year this agnostic friend was not changed in his religion. The American student said: "He is worth another year's work; I'll stay and win him to Jesus." He won him, too!

The above story was the introduction to Dr. Turnbull's talk at Y. M. C. A. Wednesday evening, his theme being, "Personal Influence for the Salvation of Individual Students." The success of Y. M. C. A. depends not upon the number of men who attend the services, nor upon the enrollment of Bible class, but upon personal salvation of individual students. The speaker very modestly and forcibly pressed his theme home by saying that he himself was a trophy to a student who handed him Newman Hall's pamphlet, "Come to Jesus."

It was posted on bulletin board that Doctor Farror would make the talk, but his letter, saying he would be unable to do so, was delayed, hence the announcement. It is to be regretted Dr. Farror could not be with us, but by no means were we "bored" to hear Dr. Turnbull again.
