

ALMOST 100 PER CENT BOARDING "VIRGINIA CREEPER" THIS MORNING FOR 23RD ANNUAL LYNCHBURG INVASION

YELLS TO BEGIN WITH "HI GENTLEMEN"

Unique Start Signal Approved
By Student Body At
V. P. I. Rally.

W. E. Tilson, president of the student body, opened the "Get V. P. I." rally held at Doremus gymnasium Thursday night, with a few announcements, then called for a vote for the manner in which the cheerleaders should start the yells. The vote was in favor of retaining the present form of "Hi Gentlemen." Captain "Kay" Thomas was then introduced and asked the students to refrain from excessive drinking, especially since the V. P. I. corps will be absent from the game and all misconduct will be blamed on Washington and Lee. Cheerleader Felsenthal announced that the parade will be formed at the depot in Lynchburg and the line of march will be to the Virginian Hotel, where the president of the Lynchburg Alumni association will welcome the students.

The complimentary dance which will be given by the alumni and Sports Corporation of Lynchburg, will not be under the "Gentlemen's Agreement," but those students who are under the influence of liquor will be required to leave the floor.

The band made its initial appearance and very favorably rendered several selections, showing decided improvement over last year's organization. The band will make the trip to Charleston for the West Virginia game on funds furnished by the Charleston alumni and will also have free seats at the game. The alumni association of that city is anxious that a large number of students will make the trip next Saturday.

Rauber, Palmer, Van Horn, and Tips were introduced by President Tilson and all expressed confidence of success in the game Saturday. The rally was then closed with the singing of the "Swing" accompanied by the band.

"YOU'D NEVER KNOW IT WAS THE SAME TEAM," SAYS SCOUT

Extracts taken from the reports issued by the athletic department of the University of West Virginia are as follows: When Graham saw Washington and Lee play Pitt he felt sure that West Virginia would have little trouble in downing the Generals. He missed the Furman game, but was in the stands when Coach DeHart's men held Princeton 15 to 6. After watching the Generals trounce Kentucky last Saturday he is convinced that his alma mater is going to have a tough time when Washington and Lee is met at Charleston next Saturday.

"Their line-up is the same as it was for the opening game at Pittsburgh, but you'd never know it if you didn't look at the program," was the comment made by Assistant Coach Graham of the West Virginia Mountaineers' football squad after watching the Fighting Generals hold Princeton to a 15 to 6 score in Palmer stadium. Graham was captain of the Mountaineer eleven last year and is back at his alma mater this season helping head Coach Rodgers whip his team into shape for their hard schedule of games.

According to Graham the Generals have come along faster than any team he has ever seen and he looks for it to be at its best in Charleston. Except in 1923 when they were

Y.M.C.A. Campaign Yields $2,250.00

A report of the progress of the Y. M. C. A. campaign given Thursday night by George E. Burks, student treasurer shows that $2,250.00 has been subscribed by students and faculty. This amount will probably be raised to $3,000 as all of the faculty members have not yet been solicited. A better spirit and willingness than formerly was shown this year by both the solicitors and the students as a whole. Over $800.00 in cash was taken in the first night.

CAST SELECTED FOR TROUB SHOW

The Troubadours after several try-out practices have now secured almost a complete cast for their Thanksgiving play, "The Whole Town's Talking." Practices are now under way and after rehearsals every day this week, the first act has already been well rounded out.

This play was chosen from a number of others, after considering the great run and large applause it received on Broadway. Due to the fact that one character in the cast is still under the consideration of the executive committee, the list of those making the different parts has been withheld until the next issue of the Ring-tum Phi.

BAND WILL LEAD MARCH TO HOTEL

Plans have been completed for the Generals' invasion of Lynchburg today so that there will be no confusion or delay in the march from the train to the Virginian Hotel.

The march will be led by the Washington and Lee band with the sponsors of the Generals following in cars. The student body will follow, marching four abreast in column formation. The march will be led to the Virginian Hotel, where the assembly will be addressed by the president of the Washington and Lee alumni association of Lynchburg and there the student body will receive the keys of the city from the mayor.

The student body will assemble on the football field at 2:45 o'clock in the bleacher sections reserved for them. Only the freshmen will participate in the snake dance to be held between halves unless the number is

STUDENT AND FACULTY FREE MASONS

The Washington and Lee Square of Square and Compass will hold an open meeting Tuesday night, October 27, to which all Free Masons in the student body or faculty are invited. The meeting is set for eight o'clock, and will be held in Mountain City Lodge room at the corner of Nelson and Jefferson Streets. President Yarbrough has promised an interesting program and refreshments will be served.

SPEAK ON CHINA

Mr. J. E. Wayland, '14, will speak on "China From Three Angles," "Student Strikes," "Civil Commotions," and "Religious Reactions," at 8 o'clock Sunday night in the Presbyterian Church. This meeting will be especially for students.

Mr. Wayland has been in China for five and one-half years, and has a thorough knowledge of the conditions as they exist in China today.

LITTLE GENERALS AND V. P. I. FROSH BATTLE FOR TITLE

Two Teams, Classed As Ranking
Outfits In State, Play
For Champ Title.

When the local freshman eleven meets the strong team representing the freshman class of V. P. I. on October 30, the championship of the state in the Yearling division will probably be at stake. The record of the two teams thus far brands them as the ranking outfits in Virginia, and for this reason the game promises to be the premier attraction of the season in the way of Freshman battles. Wilson Field will be the scene of the game, and, with all the publicity that has been given in papers throughout the state regarding the opposing squads, a good attendance seems assured.

While the record of the locals in scoring seventy-three points to their opponents' none in the past three games is well known here, the achievements of the Goblets for the season are not so widely heralded on the campus. The most striking victory which the Blacksburg eleven has won is that over the University of Virginia Frosh. In this tilt the Little Cavaliers never threatened the goal line of their rivals, while the "Pony Express" backfield of the cadets ran up a total of thirty-nine points before the final whistle sounded.

The Goblets are coached by Henry B. "Puss" Redd, a pupil of Knute Rockne and his successful Notre Dame style of play. Like his famous mentor, Redd relies for his victories on a medium defense and a smashing, tearing offense that will crush the opposing players. He has developed in his "Pony Express" what has been called one of the fastest and smooth-

TENNIS PRACTICE NEXT SPRING

It is highly probably that the next official practice of the tennis team will be held in the spring. Due to the rain, the courts have been rendered unfit for playing. This has also wiped out any prospect of a fall tennis match, despite the fact that many men were out for the few practices held. Captain Cassell said practically nothing had been done this fall.

Dance Tonight After V. P. I. Game

Following the game with V. P. I. the Sports Corporation of Lynchburg will give a dance in the City Auditorium on Main Street near 11th Street. A jazz orchestra has been secured to furnish the music for the occasion. The Washington and Lee students will have ample time to attend the dance as it begins at 9 o'clock and the train for Lexington does not leave until 12 o'clock.

VA. TECH SCORED ON CHAMP TEAM

The Roanoke Times of December 5, 1914, carried the following extract concerning "Cy" Young, at that time left halfback on the Washington and Lee eleven that had a clear right to the championship of the South Atlantic division:

"Washington and Lee's top notch scorer this season was Harry K. 'Cy' Young, left halfback of the unbeaten Generals, who have a clear right to the title of champions of the South Atlantic eleven. 'Cy' was responsible for 67 of the points scored by Coach Elcocks' rapid moving and powerful machine, registering seven touchdowns, kicking twenty-two goals after touchdowns and making one goal from the field."

Only two teams scored on Washington and Lee, these being V. P. I. and West Virginia. Each made one touchdown and each failed to kick goal. Morris Harvey was beaten by a margin of 103 points, Wake Forest by 72, Roanoke by 50, Marshall by 34, Georgetown by 13, Swarthmore by 10, North Carolina A. and M. by 7, West Virginia by 2 and V. P. I. by 1.

"Cy" Young was one of the greatest athletes that ever represented Washington and Lee in athletic competition. He was captain of four Washington and Lee teams and earned 16 monograms during his stay at the institution.

Eyes of W. Va. Are on Grid Classic Today

With plans for the trip to V. P. I. to witness the game with the Gobblers completed, the attention of the student body is beginning to be focused on the battle with West Virginia next Saturday. This annual classic will again be played at Laidley Field at Charleston, neutral territory for both teams, and will be by far the premier gridiron attraction in West Virginia this season.

A special train will probably be chartered to bring Mountaineer supporters from Morgantown to the game, and this together with the fact that the West Virginians have come to consider this battle one of the biggest in point of interest on their schedule, practically assures a large cheering section for the Blue and Gold. A good student band has been organized at Morgantown, and an effort is being made by the W. V. U. athletic heads to get the entire student body to make the trip to Charleston.

Realizing that a good cheering section has much to do with the showing of any team on the field, the Charleston and other West Virginia alumni of Washington and Lee are exerting all efforts to secure a large representation of local students at the game. A crowd of alumni is assured,

HAWKINS AND SANDERS BOTH READY TO PLAY

Generals Will Try To Avenge Scoreless Tie of Last Year's Contest.

"All aboard" shouts the genial conductor and the "Virginia Creeper" special train carrying the Fighting Generals and the entire Washington and Lee student body steams slowly out of the so-called Lexington depot, en route to Lynchburg where the Virginia Tech Gobblers will be met in the annual General-Gobbler gridiron classic this afternoon.

Almost every member of the student body is expected to be on the special when it pulls out for the Hilly City and an extra car will carry the Generals with their staff of managers, coaches and trainers. Upon arrival the team will make its headquarters at the Virginian hotel, dressing there and driving to the Fair Grounds, the scene of the hostilities, in busses.

"Red" Hawkins and "Curley" Sanders, the only two casualties on the squad, will be ready for action this afternoon if called upon, their injuries received in the opening clash with Pitt having been healed during their lay-off covering several weeks. Both have been regular attendants at the practice sessions the past week and have shown that their early season misfortunes will not keep them from being candidates for regular positions for today's game.

Hawkins or Van Horn will get into action this afternoon at the pivot position, the question not being decided until the last minute. Budnick and Stemmons will probably be seen at the guard positions, having first call due to their brilliant work in the Kentucky game and their past performances against our strong opponents. Tilson and Holt will be stationed at the tackles, having displayed their effectiveness in previous contests. On the wings will probably be seen Captain Thomas and Daves, both of whom have had much experience in past games with the Gobblers. The quartet of backfield stars to carry the offensive work for the Generals in this crucial game will be picked from Wilson, Palmer, Rauber, Tipps, and McVay. Wilson will call signals as usual from the halfback position with Tipps probably at the quarterback post. Rauber will do the punting, his effective toe being a valuable asset to the playing of the Fighting Generals.

Winning in 1923 by the score of 12 to 0, the Generals are out to administer another lashing defeat to the Gobblers after having been forced to be satisfied with a scoreless tie last year. The full strength of the Generals will be thrown against the Cubbage forces with excellent material on the sidelines awaiting the call of action.

The past few days have been spent in tapering off the rough edges in the offensive and defensive workings of the squad and with a final signal drill yesterday the Fighting Generals are "setting pretty" for their hard tussle this afternoon.

The officials for the game today will be Magoffin of Michigan, referee; Gass of Lehigh, umpire, and Gooch of Virginia, head linesman. These men have officiated at the Washington and Lee-Virginia Tech games for the past few years and have always handled the contests in a very efficient manner. The V. P. I. corp will not be present, as it goes to Richmond this year.

Concerning the Charleston Trip.

Now that the trip to Lynchburg for the student body to witness the Washington and Lee-V. P. I. gridiron battle has become a reality, it behooves us to consider next Saturday's game with the University of West Virginia at Charleston.

In the last issue of the Ring-tum Phi were printed two articles on this game as well as an editorial urging the necessity for a large attendance. One of these was sent to the Ring-tum Phi from Charleston telling of the great preparations now being made there for the students attending the game. These with the additional news which has been received should be sufficient information for the student body concerning the success of the trip. With the placing of the card for names of those going on the main bulletin board Wednesday, the actual arrangements for the trip were begun.

It is now our duty and pleasure to urge upon every true follower of the fortunes of the Blue and White the great necessity of his attendance at Charleston's annual gridiron classic. The round trip rate of $9.05 offered by the C. and O. to Charleston in case 125 men sign up for the trip, puts it within the range of almost every student's pocketbook. The privilege of seeing the game with the Mountaineers will more than offset the price of the trip. Many think that the Generals have a good chance to beat the Rodgers' men and it will be a contest well worth seeing. In addition the majority of the students will have the opportunity of seeing the Generals in action only four times this year. By going to Charleston this number will be increased to five and the standing of the school in the capital city of West Virginia brought up materially.

The entire cadet corps of our neighbor, V. M. I., is planning to attend the V. M. I.-Kentucky clash in Charleston next month. They have as far to go as we do, so why should the loyal student body of Washington and Lee be outdone by the cadets in following their team? The Generals-Mountaineer game will be as good a battle as the Wildcat-Keydet one, so why should not at least two or three hundred Washington and Lee supporters be there?

The book loving student may bring up the objection caused by the fact that the faculty is not giving a holiday for Oct. 31, so he cannot go to the game because of the excessive pressure of his lessons. Why consider this so seriously? Under the new faculty rule regarding absences each student is allowed six permitted cuts from his classes. The trip to Charleston will only take one day's classes and for the most energetic student these do not amount to more than five. He then has one to spare. Therefore he can take the trip. The requisite number of cuts will come eventually, so why not take them now and follow the Generals? Seeing the Big Blue team tie up with the Mountaineers is worth far more to the student than his classes Saturday. Let's go then!

The Fighting Generals will need your support Saturday. West Virginia University is sending down the greater part of her student body to back the Mountaineers. The city of Charleston is eager for the opportu-ity to entertain a large number of Washington and Lee backers. The Charleston alumni want to see a big per cent of the student body there. The band is going with its expenses paid by the alumni.

Will at least 125 out of our eight hundred be on Laidley Field next Saturday? Charleston and Washington and Lee are expecting as much or a third of the student body to be there. We will not fail them.

Sign up now on the main bulletin board for the trip.

The Generals expect every man to do his duty. On to Charleston!

Carte du Jour

Now, Phideas Krinkle, early in his college course, would have no frills, either as regards scholarship and studies, or equipment. Hence, we found him (that is, some one did) buying a pen for $1.37—today only—and putting the difference between that and the price of a Parker Duofold in books—good books, too, let it be understood. And passing charitably over some profane lapses, he got along with it till graduation, and then some. We're liberal—it would make a mark when you pressed it, frequently. But Krinkle, with this penny-grasping trait, went bankrupt three years after graduation. And he never did amount to much after.

Jack Free, on the other hand, had an eye to quality, beauty, and—oh yes—quality. His second week in college found him with a Parker Duofold. Makes no difference if he did steal it—he knew what sort to steal, and the victim bought another Parker, anyway. Well, to coin a phrase, that was just like Jack, and he graduated and signed his first check with a flourish and a Parker. And, due, it must be admitted in fairness by all, to his belief and insistence on quality at all costs, he went stony broke in two years.

So there really was little advantage in the Parker Duofold over the orphan-pen, except having something decent to write with during the period mentioned.

DON'T CALL THIS MAN "MISTER"

Graduate Manager R. A. Smith Would Rather Be Called By Nickname, He Says.

Captain "Dick" Smith, leader of the Generals' baseball team in the spring of 1911, is the same now listed in the catalog of officials of the university as "Graduate Manager R. A. Smith." But is there anybody who has been a student at Washington and Lee for any time at all who, when speaking of the man in charge of the contracts and business end of the various branches of athletics, does not say "Captain Dick?"

True it is that the present graduated manager of athletics and head coach of varsity baseball is so well known to all old men and to a great many of the freshmen that he would consider it almost a personal insult to be referred to as "Mr. Smith." All told, eight years of Captain Dick's life have been spent either as a player representing the University, or as manager in charge of its participation in intercollegiate sports.

School competition in athletics started for Captain Dick when he was a cadet attending Fishburne Military School at Waynesboro, Virginia. Trying out for the baseball team for the first time in his junior year at the prep school, he cavorted around the shortstop position, and held it without trouble through his remaining two years at the Waynesboro institution.

Upon his completion of the work at Fishburne, the Rocky Mount, N. C., club offered him a contract to play ball during the summer. An injury to his shoulder, sustained while playing football at Fishburne, incapacitated him for baseball that summer, however, and he never reported to the North Carolina club, thereby doing away with any chance of later being refused permission to represent the school of his choice—Washington and Lee—on the diamond.

Entering this University in the fall of 1909, Captain Dick went out for football, and won a regular berth as end, playing in the first five games of the season. A kick on the spine, which made it impossible for him to walk for six weeks, forced him to remain idle the balance of the gridiron season, however, and the following fall the recurrence of the old shoulder trouble showed itself, resulting in his permanent disbarment from football by the squad physician. This injury also changed his prospects for baseball greatly, although, in an attempt to make the team in spite of this misfortune, he transferred to second base.

Apparently the move from the shortfield position to that of guardian of the midway bag was just what was needed to pave his way into the local baseball hall of fame, for Captain Dick made a name for himself as a second baseman in the spring of 1910, and, in recognition of his fine showing, was elected to the captaincy of the nine for 1911. The shorter throw from the second base position made it possible for him to become a mainstay regardless of his weak throwing arm, and he had no trouble beating out all competitors for his place the following year, which was his last as a student at Washington and Lee.

Time was to take Captain Dick back to both of his old loves in one capacity or another, and in the fall of 1913 he was back at Fishburne coaching all the athletic teams of that school, as well as teaching some classes. He remained at this work until the opening of school in September, 1921, when he was called here to take the job of "graduate manager of athletics," a new position created in the reorganization plans of the Generals' athletic and sporting department. Since that time the work of purchasing supplies, seeing to the adequate equipping of various teams, the outlining of schedules, and various other matters have come under his supervision.

One of the biggest accomplishments that has resulted from his untiring efforts is the present Wilson Field. Several years ago the local athletic teams were forced to play on a field that was a remnant of past days, and that had no stands capable of accommodating the increasing crowds that were coming here to witness games with other institutions. Captain Dick Smith had charge of the filling in, cutting down, and levelling off of the present football and baseball playing fields, as well as the building of the permanent stands on the south side of the field—the first unit in the establishment of a permanent stadium to serve as a home of the Generals' sports.

So, when desiring any information about the financial condition of athletics at Washington and Lee, or about the probable schedule for a certain sport next year, or about almost anything connected with sports here, see "Captain Dick" Smith, the man behind the scenes at all the Generals' games and contests.

est working backfield combinations ever seen at Blacksburg. Their work against Bristol High School in the game to be played at Blacksburg today will be watched by local fans with interest, now that the ability of Redd's crew is known here, and with their battle with the local yearlings but a week off.

The four mainstays of the lightning machine that hopes to carry the locals to their first defeat this season are Tomko, McArthur, Peake and McEver. This is the first year that Tomko has ever played football, but his ability in stopping short and changing direction when an opposing tackler makes an effort to stop him has created widespread favorable comment.

McArthur, the fleet and heady quarter of the Goblets, prepped at A. M. A., and has shown remarkable judgment in choosing the plays at his command in early season games.

McEver, from Bristol High School, is the powerful, smashing type of fullback, and registered two of the touchdowns against the Virginia freshmen.

Peake, who came to the Cadets from Hampton High, carries the brunt of the Goblets' passing, end running, and punting. In the Virginia game his kicks averaged fifty yards, while his drop kicking ability is also rated high. Already he is heralded as a promising prospect for future Gobbler varsity.

Redd varies his attack after Rockne's style of starting his second string men in some games. With a wealth of material on hand, he is expected to use these tactics against Bristol Saturday, and is counting on such backs as Looney and Rice, both of whom saw duty in the Virginia game, to run up a safe score for his charges.

reports state, and great plans are being made for the entertainment of the Generals and those of their followers who make the trip. A formal invitation has been extended to the student body by W. D. Payne, president of the Charleston alumni, and a check for $150 toward defraying the expenses of the band on the trip is in the hands of President W. E. Tilson.

The record of the Mountaineers under Head Coach Rodgers is impressive. The only defeat thus far received this year was that by the Pitt Panther two weeks ago at the new Pitt stadium. The showing of the West Virginians in this game was surprising to their followers, who expected the Pitt machine to have an easier victory. As it was, the breaks of the game are said to have gone far in determining the final outcome, and, with the easy one-sided victory over the strong Grove City "Crimson Tornado" last Saturday, the strength of the Morgantown gridders can not be too highly considered. Starting his regular first string eleven, Coach Rodgers saw the points pile up for his charges, and toward the end of the game ran in all his substitutes and a large number of second team men, until the score stood 54 to 3 at the end of the game.

The games played by the Generals and Mountaineers tomorrow will go a long way toward determining the ranking which each will be given in the pre-game prophesies. The V. P. I. Gobblers will test the full strength of the Big Blue team, while the unusually heavy West Virginia Wesleyan eleven will probably extend Rodgers' crew to the utmost.

More than fifty men have signed up for the Charleston trip.

swamped 63 to 0 the Generals have always been troublesome and the approaching contest is not likely to be an exception.

Rodgers, serving his first year as head coach at West Virginia has high regard for the Generals. The fact that Graham has already seen the Blue and White three times and is slated to watch them again this week is convincing proof that Rodgers is anxious to have his men well informed.

Charleston, official battleground of the West Virginia-Washington and Lee gridiron skirmishes is well represented on the Mountaineer team, Farley, Davis, and Dilcher being prominent members of the team. Farley's phenomenal passing has figured in nearly all of West Virginia's victories since the start of the 1923 season while Davis and Dilcher rank with the best linemen in the east.

BASEBALL DROPPED

Pittsburgh, Oct. 21.—Baseball has been dropped from the athletic curriculum of the University of Pittsburgh, according to announcement made by Graduate Manager of Athletics K. E. Davis. Inability to complete a schedule and the fact that the weather is usually unfavorable in Pittsburgh during the period in which the games must be played, was given as the reason for dropping the sport.

GRID PLAYER RUNS 200
YARDS FOR A TOUCHDOWN

New York, Oct. 20.—"Snooks" Dowd, Jersey City International League infielder, ran 200 yards for a touchdown back in the palmy days when he was playing quarterback on the Lehigh teams. Inches from his opponents' goal line, he became confused on the plunge and started running the wrong way. He ran the entire length of the field in the wrong direction, then regaining his sense of direction, circling his own goal post, he retraced his steps down the field through eleven opposing players for a touchdown, the longest run in the history of intercollegiate football.

so few as to make it impossible to form the figure; in that case the entire student body will be called upon to participate in the figure.

Misses Jean Williams and Hilda Sholtz of Memphis and Chattanooga, Tennessee, respectively, have been chosen as the Washington and Lee sponsors for the game.

"Everything's jake"
when you
smoke P. A.

TRUBLE'S a bubble, just as the song says. And you can stick it with the stem of your old jimmy-pipe, filled to the brim with good old Prince Albert. A remedy? It's a specific! Ask any jimmy-piper who ever butted into trouble.

Cool as the zone-of-kelvination you read about in the refrigerator ads. Sweet as the kiss of spring on a winter-weary brow. Fragrant as locust blossoms. Soothing as a cradle-song. And—P. A. can't bite your tongue or parch your throat. The Prince Albert process fixes that!

Get on the sunny side of life with a jimmy-pipe and P. A. Tie a tidy red tin to trouble. Smoke the one tobacco that's got everything you ever wished for—Prince Albert. Quicker you get going, the sooner your worries will be over. Men who thought they never could smoke a pipe are now P. A. fans. You'll be a cheerleader too!

P. A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

Look at the U. S. revenue stamp—there are TWO full ounces in every tin.

PRINCE ALBERT

—no other tobacco is like it!
