Strong Teams Will Be Met During Week

Tossers Play W.-M., Maryland, Navy Within Four Days

GAME TOMORROW TO DECIDE SERIES

Victory at V. P. I. Gives Generals Seven Wins in Nine Starts

With the V. P. I. game yesterday boosting the baseball team's record to seven out of nine, the Generals continue the hardest week of baseball campaigning that they have to face until the Northern trip, with a home game on Wednesday against William and Mary and a two-day jaunt into Maryland Friday and Saturday to face the University of Maryland and Navy.

The Generals opened their 1932 season at Norfolk against William and Mary with a 11-5 win featured by the steady hitting and pitching of Jack Jarrett. In the second game at Williamsburg, Lefty Methvin had forkfisted the Indians into submission 3-2 until the ninth when Christenson got a homer with Demerest on base. Jarrett and an exceptionally good Washington and Lee nine behind him took a 6-5 edge over the Tricolor last year.

Pitcher Not Chosen

Lefty White, who has always been hard for the locals to solve will probably open on the mound for the invaders. Jarrett, Sauerbrun or Methvin will be Coach Smith's choice with Jack Cook, Cy Painter and Don Grey being held in reserve.

On Friday at College Park, the Generals will attempt to repeat their 6-3 win of last week over the Terrapins. An article in the Washington Post Sunday quoted Coach Shipley as being very surprised at the loss. The Generals intend to continue their surprise party where they left off on Wilson Field. It is probable that McIlwee or Physioc will hurl against the locals.

Navy Lost Last Year

Saturday the Generals will try to repeat last year's 9-7 win over Navy at Annapolis. The Middies have a better team this year than for several years past. Midshipman Hodgkins, captain and second baseman is also the lead-off man for the Tars. He is a dependable hitter and a flashy fielder. Steve Dainis at first base is a newcomer who has practically cinched the job. Chung-Hoon, Hawaiian who stared in football, Don White and Paul McEachern are all in the running for the short-field post. McEachern, because of his greater experience, seems to have a slight edge.

In the outer gardens there is a super abundance of good material. Masterton in left, Kane in center and Spahr in right round out the first string combine that Coach Mohler has been using much of the time.

Davenport and Coombs, both veterans, are the first string pitchers with Coombs slated to work against the Generals. Tom Hurley, football star and Veasey Iratt make up the catching staff.

Grudge Debate Put On Program of Next Graham-Lee Meeting

Meeting in their meeting room, the Graham-Lee Literary Society held a regular program last Friday night with prepared speeches by Messrs. Ford, Watkins and Burdette, and impromptu speeches by Messrs. Ford, Watkins and brell and Ford.

Mr. Ford spoke on the "dog stars" of Hollywood, giving their salaries, hours of work a day, and the amount of training it is necessary to give them in order to equip them with the knowledge for doing various tricks. Mr. Watkins gave an interesting reading of "Cremating of Joe Magee," which was rendered in a truly theatrical style.

The program for next week will consist primarily of a grudge debate between Ford and Burdette, on the affirmative, against Hoyt and Werble on the negative. The question is "Resolved that the U. S. should adopt measures similar to those of France in regard to disarmament." This debate, being a grudge affair promises to be most lively, though the society will be able to seat conveniently the extra visitors who will be present for this occasion.

Speakers for Washington and Lee Business Conference

JOHN M. MILLER, JR. " NORMAN LOMBARD " MALCOLM C. RORTY " DR. HAROLD G. MOULTON

(University News Bureau)—Four of the speakers are shown above for the second annual conference on business affairs Thursday (April 21) at Washington and Lee University Lexington, Va. Mr. Miller is a Richmond banker, and a committeeman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. Mr. Lombard is a New York business executive and a former official of the Stable Money Association. Formerly a telephone and telegraph industry executive, Mr. Rorty is a New York business consultant. Dr. Moulton is president of the Brookings Institution, Washington, D. C.

Three others will also be at the gathering of commerce students and business men—Robert B. Warren, New York City, Carl Snyder, New York City, and Fred M. Felker, Washington, D. C.

New Speaker Adds Interest To Conference

All Commerce Students Will Be Excused to Attend Meetings

Dr. Robert H. Tucker, professor of Economics and Business Administration, announced today that as a special feature of the Business Conference which will be held here on Thursday, Carl Snyder, economist for the New York Federal Reserve Bank, will lecture on Friday morning in the Lee chapel. The subject of Mr. Snyder's lecture will be "Economic Measurements" and it is given particularly for the Commerce students, though all those interested are invited to attend.

Mr. Snyder will include in his lecture an exhibit of charts with the view to determine the various phases of the business cycle. Mr. Snyder is a distinguished authority on the subject and has written a book on statistics and economics.

Dr. Tucker said that action had been taken by the faculty which permitted students registered in the Commerce School to be excused from classes on Thursday and the morning of Friday provided they attend all three meetings of the Business Conference on Thursday and the lecture by Mr. Snyder on Friday morning.

Virginia business men who will lead the discussions which follow each session of the second annual Washington and Lee university conference on business affairs here Thursday were named today by Dean Robert H. Tucker.

The list, to which others may be added, follows:

Robert H. Angell, president of Shenandoah Life Insurance Company, Roanoke; E. S. Shields, president of Planters Bank and Trust Company, Farmville; John C. Carpenter, president of First National Bank, Clifton Forge; B. E. Vaughan, president of First National Bank, Lexington; G. F. Holsinger, president of Virginia Farm Bureau Federation; James F. Ryland, vice-president and general manager of Standard Manufacturing company, Richmond; and W. J. D. Bell, president of Quinn-Marshall company, Lynchburg.

Acceptances have begun to come in this week from many business men in Virginia and West Virginia in response to a general invitation issued by the administration and the commerce school which jointly sponsor the conference.

"In addition to the value which this current view of business affairs has for our commerce students," Dean Tucker said, "we are interested in providing a place where business and professional men in the surrounding territory may meet for personal contacts and for the discussion of questions of mutual interest; and to make some contribution to the solution of pressing economic problems."

The Frosh are playing an extra date game with the University of Virginia freshmen today on Wilson Field, and meet John Marshall and Covington on Friday and Saturday respectively here.

Political Interest Increases For Campus Elections Friday

Campus political interest increased today as several new men placed their names on the list of office seekers as the deadline for aspirants for positions for next year closed last night. Voting will be held this Friday.

Added to the list of names are Billy Methvin running for president of Finals, W. M. Burdette running for secretary-treasurer of the student body, and L. Russell Chase seeking the head cheerleader post.

The only withdrawal was made by John Battle, who announced his intention of running for cheerleader, but since he has decided not to run.

For the second consecutive year the post of president of the student body has attracted only one candidate. Harry L. Fitzgerald, regular first baseman on the varsity nine, president of the Troubadours, and business manager of the 1932 Fancy Dress ball, is the lone candidate for this position. He is a member of the Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Vickers and Curtis Run

Two men are running for vice president of the student body.

Carl B. Vickers was chairman of the freshman council his sophomore year and the same year was president of the sophomore class. Last year he served on the Fancy Dress ball committee and at present is vice president of Finals. He is a member of Lambda Chi Alpha and is a freshman lawyer.

Vickers will be opposed by T. M. Curtis, a Junior in the Commerce School and a member of the Phi Delta Theta fraternity. He represents the Publication Board on the Executive Committee, and was this year Business Manager of the Ring-tum Phi. Last year he was a high jumper on the varsity track team.

Attracting the largest number of candidates is the post of Secretary-Treasurer of the Student Body. The Four Horsemen of the Non-Fraternity World: Norbert Gladden, Bill Brooks, W. E. Cathey, and W. M. Burdette, Jr., have posted their names. Brooks, a Senior in the Commerce School, will return next year to enter the Law School. W. E. Cathey, graduating from the Academic School this year, will return to take a Master's degree in Chemistry. Continued on page four.

Crews Start Race Practice

New Boat House Complete as Men Train For Meet In June

With the new boat house completed, both the Harry Lee and Albert Sydney crews plunged their shells into the chilly waters of old North River today to begin their annual training for the race this June. Training has been delayed somewhat this spring due to inclement weather and the delay in preparing the dock and reconditioning the shells.

At present the Harry Lee outfit seems to be the most promising with eight experienced men among their twenty-five candidates. The Harry Lee oarsmen are under the tutelage of Albert Burkes, coxswain of last year's champions. He is assisted by Walter Cline. Little is known of the Albert Sydney crew as the team will have to be built from the hull up due to the loss of last year's crew. The crew will be under the direction of Captain Rucker Ryland and he hopes to put a crew on the river this year to take the honors away from the defending champions.

Since the athletic association dropped the crews from the budget this year it will be necessary to obtain some means of financial assistance and the crew leaders are mapping out some system which they hope will prove satisfactory.

Crew practice is to be held every afternoon and all interested are urged to get in touch with one of the captains as soon as possible.

A literary critic has made the statement that there is too much love in fiction. The reverse might apply to a whole lot of real cases. —Auburn Plainsman.

Two Pitchers Spoil V. P. I.'s Two Nine Plan

Jarrett and Sauerbrun Hold Blacksburg Cadets to Three Hits

FITZGERALD MAKES HOMER IN NINTH

Jarrett, Hurling Only Three Innings, Gets Credit For Victory

Raking the offerings of Hobart Porter, V. P. I. right hander, for three hits in the opening inning to score three times, the Washington and Lee baseball team took a lead never overcome and won easily from the Gobblers at Blacksburg yesterday 8-1.

Coach Kircher's new experiment in right and left hand teams proved to be somewhat of a boom-crang as Jack Jarrett was moved to right field and Kippy Sauerbrun sent in to hurl after the third inning. Between them the two twirling aces of the local staff allowed only three hits, one of these being gotten by Sutton off Jarrett in the first inning in which the Techmen scored their lone run.

Cross and Fitzgerald lead the long range gunners, Gus getting a triple for his only hit while Fitzgerald saved one of his Ruthian smashes for the ninth with Miller on base. Cremin, with two hits in four official trips to the plate, regained his batting eye.

Jarrett, although only pitching three innings, received official credit as the winner. This makes the Dunbar lad's fourth straight victory. He has beaten Drexel, William and Mary, Maryland and now V. P. I. Sauerbrun has won two and lost one. He lost his first game to the University of Richmond, then came back to pitch a no-hit, one-run game against Elon College and followed this in his next appearance on the mound with a win over the University of Virginia. Methvin has won one, against Bridgewater and lost one to William and Mary after holding the Indians in check for eight innings. The pitching staff appears to be rounding into even better shape with the coming of the warm weather and supported by their hard hitting mates are ready to give any college ball club a good argument.

Richmond Wins By One Point

Swanson, of Richmond, Defeats Howell in Singles Play

George Swanson, undefeated in singles play this year, defeated Billy Howell and led the University of Richmond to a close 9 1/2 to 8 1/2 victory over Washington and Lee last Saturday at Richmond.

Howell was defeated 4 and 3, but in the afternoon Howell and Guggenheim paired to defeat Swanson and Wright 2 and 1. The Spiders won three singles matches but were hard pressed to hold their margin, emerging with only one point to spare. Swanson and Wright saved the day when they halved the second nine holes of their match with Howell and Guggenheim, although they did not win the match.

The Generals needed a win on the eighteenth hole to deadlock the match. Howell tried brilliantly, but was unable to beat Wright's par five. Swanson nearly made a "hole-in-one" on the 140-yard fourteenth. The ball rolled up against the pin but did not go in. This was perhaps the most exciting shot of the day.

Summary:
Singles: Swanson (R) defeated Howell 4 and 3; Wright (R) defeated Schroeder 4 and 2; Meredith (R) defeated Cohen 4 and 2; Donham (W. and L.) defeated Copage 3 and 2.

Doubles: Howell and Guggenheim (W. and L.) defeated Swanson and Wright 2 and 1; Cohen and Donham (W. and L.) defeated Meredith and Copage one up.

It was discovered at Hamilton College 23 students have athlete's foot as compared to 51 who do not suffer from this ailment. Beer and rye are the favorite drinks at that school and 75 students are wet.—Brown and White.

Bowers, Keynote Man At Houston In 1928, To Open Convention

Interest in Mock Democratic Meeting to Be Held Here Next Tuesday and Wednesday Increases as Shouse, National Chairman, Ritchie, and Roosevelt Co-operate

Claude G. Bowers will open the Mock Democratic Convention on April 26-27 with a talk at the first session on April 26, according to an announcement received from Graham Morison, president of the student body. With the sixth Mock Democratic Convention only a week away, interest in this political parody is increasing daily.

Mr. Bowers has for many years been intimately connected with the Democratic party, and he is one of the party's best speakers. In 1928 Bowers was the keynote speaker at the Indiana State Democratic Convention. He served as a delegate to the state convention in 1908. At the last Democratic National convention in 1928, Bowers was the keynote speaker.

Mr. Bowers is an author and journalist of note. For many years he served as an editorial writer for the New York World. He is now connected with the New York Evening Journal. He is the author of several books on the Democratic principles. His latest book, "The Tragic Era," deals with the reconstruction period in the South.

Bowers will remain as an "official observer" of the Democratic National committee after his speech on Tuesday morning. Jouett Shouse has forwarded the "commendation" of the national committee, of which he is chairman, and has cooperated on several points. Leading presidential candidates have also cooperated on sending information. Morison has received communications from Jouett Shouse, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt, of New York, and Governor Albert Ritchie, of Maryland. The New York chief executive explains his stand and concludes his long letter: "Will you please express to your fellow students my good wishes for a successful convention? I thoroughly approve of this method of 'learning by doing,' and whoever may be the successful nominee in your meeting, I am sure you will all profit by the discussion and study." Governor Ritchie sent his appreciation of the student interest in his candidacy, and writings which explain his position.

State delegation lists were published Friday, and the various campus "state chairmen," named before, have been keeping in close touch with the voting indications in the states which they represent. More than 800 students will take part in the convention, permitting a better than 2-3 ratio to the actual apportionment. Cadets from the Virginia Military Institute may aid in filling out the delegations.

Such organizations as the Young Democratic Clubs of America will be represented on the campus, and Morison said that many interested citizens will be especially invited. The press representatives and editors through the country have also been invited to attend. Among other students, C. B. Taylor is working on arrangements, and W. C. Edwards heads a committee on stunts.

Drive Is Made to Sell Helderman's Book Here

In order that students of the University might have the opportunity of owning a first edition copy of Dr. L. C. Helderman's recently published book "Washington, Patriot of Learning," officials of the University have picked Herbert Dollahite as the student representative for the sale of the book, and have made a special price for students.

Dollahite reports that he has met with great success and has sold a great number of the books. Twelve fraternities have so far been visited. The remaining eight will be visited sometime during the next week. The book is dedicated to the students of Washington and Lee, the fifth chapter being devoted exclusively to the University and its history.

Doctor Gaines has sent letters to alumni telling them about the book. It is interesting to note that in the morning's mail last Friday thirty-two different orders were received from Alumni. There are still about 200 copies of the original edition left.

CAMPUS POLITICS

Decrease of strong cliques should make the elections for campus offices this Friday more interesting than in recent years. For the past three or four seasons men going to the polls were almost certain of the number of votes that they would poll because previous to the election the fraternity caucuses had definitely mapped out the respective programs of the men they supported, and the groups had pledged a certain number of votes to their men.

In the midst of the political campaigning right now, the situation seems most interesting. Attempts have been made to line up certain votes and gain the support of solid houses, but the announcement that certain men intend to oppose candidates for vital offices in the student body have threatened the shattering cliques. Now the ambitious campus politicians who are in the habit of letting it be known that they control fifty or a hundred votes have lost their power and the polls Friday promise to be more of a man to man fight.

Students who have been here more than a year like to consider politics at Washington and Lee in a state that is more crooked than an underworld election. They liken the political season here to a national election period when every political leader is a source of promise. But a study of the situation here is not as bad as it might appear. Every fraternity on this campus wants as much power as it can gain. Some go too far and then the rest of the clubs band together to stop the reign of a group of few men. Every fraternity votes solid either for a man or against a man when the outcome will have a decided bearing on the standing of the particular fraternity. It is only natural that an organized group will support a candidate that promises to help them if he is elected. All the missionary speeches in the world trying to tell a man that he should vote for a man just because he has worked the most for the job will accomplish nothing. The present political situation is here to stay and the best should be made out of it. Many colleges have tried sponsoring the two party system, a take off on the national organizations, but reports from these schools show that "mud slinging" and promises never to be carried out are as prevalent as before.

While many of the candidates for office are unopposed the men seeking positions that are opposed are all qualified men and should furnish their opponents considerable trouble and many hours of anxiety before the polls close Friday afternoon. Two years ago when the winning clique came into power the presidents of the classes in the next election, and subordinate officers for the dances, and other positions in the student body were assured to certain members of the party, but this year because several of the fraternities felt that they had men who were qualified to run as men in other clubs who would not back out the situation here will be watched with interest.

Political interest here is not what it was four or five years ago, but it is a decided improvement over the past two years and should be indicative that Washington and Lee wants a good close race at the polls Friday.

UNIVERSITY ORIENTALISING

Every year about this time Lexington is the mecca for thousands of tourists, and every year about this time not a day goes by that some tourist does not stop a student and ask him if there is a school situated in this town. They have seen a large number of men on Main Street, and want to know why there seems to be so many men in such a small town. To the students here, or the thousands of people who are familiar with the traditions of Washington and Lee and the part this institution played in the history of the United States, it seems strange that anyone should not know that Lexington is the home of two of the finest schools in the south. However, many tourists from the far north and west who visit Lexington apparently do not know the background value of this small town for the question "Is a school located here?" is a daily occurrence.

Washington and Lee men don't mind answering the questions of the tourists; many of them have been known to spend the afternoon showing visitors around the campus when they learned that Washington and Lee and Virginia Military Institute were located here, and showed interest in learning about the school. However, it does seem that the town or university would profit by constructing signs at the entrance of this town informing tourists of the places of interest around Lexington.

It wouldn't be a "shine" for conservative old Lexington to erect a signboard at each entrance to this town, informing visitors that this is the home of Washington and Lee University. The sign could have a large map of the town featuring the two campuses and perhaps show a view of Washington college.

Every college in the country is interested in mediums of advertising. Some advertise in magazines, others have their own radio stations, while still others obtain directories of prospective students and send their literature to these prospects. When tourists come through town it seems as though Lexington is defeating its own purpose when these people do not know that Washington and Lee university is located here. Many automobile parties, not knowing that there are points of interest in Lexington, ride on to the larger neighboring cities and Lexington loses their patronage.

The future of this town depends upon the support given by tourists and students. It would appear a wise move to adopt such an economical method of informing tourists who travel through here each year that this town is a good place to spend a few days.

BOAT CLUBS

The future existence of the two boat clubs of the campus, the Albert Sydney club and the Harry Lee club, are being threatened through lack of funds and general interest among the students. This year very few men have handed in their names for places on the crews, and the financial situation of both organizations is such that the men who have signed up for the clubs will have to be assessed to make the necessary repairs on the shells and secure additional equipment.

The annual races staged between the two clubs has been one of the high spots of the Finals activities for many years. If it should be discontinued, there would be many alumni of the University and numerous visitors who would feel that the abolishment of this tradition of having the races was a distinct loss. The interest shown in the two clubs in the next two weeks will tell whether it is the desire of the students to have the races continue or not.

Rowing on the crews is not a special honor. The lack of facilities and proper rowing conditions have curtailed the activities of the clubs to these races at the end of school. The clubs have never been financially able to go away for meets with other schools because the distances involved would be prohibitive. The members of the crews, however, have to train rigidly for these races over a period of two months including examination period and dance time.

If under the conditions mentioned above, the men still show interest in the clubs, the races should be continued. There are undoubtedly many men on the campus, who could make places on the crews and who have not signed up so far because they did not understand the situation about the races.

When the final check-up is made, rowing on the crews is more of a form of amusement for the men involved than a campus honor. The rowers have always felt, however, a certain amount of rivalry between themselves and invariably stage good races. At the close of the race, the crowd cheers, the crew men wear ribbons to one of the Finals dances, and another year is gone.

No amount of urging can make a man go out for the crews, if he doesn't want to. It is sufficient to say that the clubs need men and cannot exist without support. We feel, however, that there are men who are interested in crew racing. Let these men indicate their feelings on the matter soon.

Front Row

Amateur Daddy

Motion picture fans who thrilled to Warner Baxter's melodious Spanish voice singing to the accompaniment of guitar music in "In Old Arizona" will have another opportunity to enjoy the liquid quality of his soft, resonant accents in his latest human element drama. As a shy bachelor guardian of a family of waifs, Baxter is called upon in the story to care for Marian Nixon, as the oldest of the children, her younger brother and two adorable baby sisters. During the round of his daily duties with the children, Baxter forms the habit of putting the babies to sleep each night with lullabies. That, in brief, should serve as an introduction to this one. But in case you want more, "Amateur Daddy" will probably put you to sleep—that is, if you're unresponsive to mother love and heartstring pangs no end.

Charlie Chan's Chance

Murder is committed in the pent house, and the Swedish Chinese menace, Warner Oland, looks down on Manhattan's millions to trail the killer! Quick as a flash (well, not too quick, because that would be making it all too easy) he follows the lights of Broadway to a beautiful woman, an ugly past and a startling confession!

Earl Derr Biggers created one of the best of the murder detectives when he first gave Charlie Chan is given some good epigrams murder-mystery-reading public. Chan is given some good epigrams and quaint old Chinese proverbs to quote as he goes about his profession of being cleverer than Scotland Yard, all the police departments, and even the ingenious criminals themselves. His characterization is amusing and entertaining.

"Charlie Chan's Chance" is good entertainment in its way, though it is a bit weak in spots throughout the plot construction. Warner Oland gives a good performance, and is ably assisted by Alexander Kirkland, H. B. Warner, Marian Nixon, Ralph Morgan, James Kirkwood, Linda Watkins, James Todd, and Charles McNaughton.

Recommended if you are not too jaded to enjoy entertaining mystery yarns and such sayings of Charlie Chan as this, one of his latest: "Man is not incurably drowned—if he still knows he's all wet."

The Menace

That prolific writer who before his death turned out mystery stories by the tens of dozens, Edgar Wallace, once wrote a story called "The Feathered Serpent."

With this work as the basis, the melodrama is now brought to the screen as "The Menace."

A drama of vengeance, this new thriller tells of an escaped convict who returns to his ancestral home externally an entirely changed man (having had his face remodelled) but internally burning with the desire to prove himself innocent of the murder of his father and bent upon tracking down the guilty parties.

An oil well explosion proved a blessing in disguise for Ronald Quayle. His mutilated face now changed by facelifting, he becomes a willing victim to the crooked designs of his step-mother and finally settles their kettle of fish in a vigorous way.

H. B. Warner, Walter Byron, Bette Davis (newest recruit from the stage who was so terrible in "The Man Who Played God"), Natalie Moorhead, and Halliwell Hobbs do their best to make a thrilling story of rather thin material. Fair.

Joan Crawford is now scheduled to do the new talkie version of that good old drama of stage and screen, "Rain."

Al Jolson is planning a comeback in an original story by Ben Hecht, of "Front Page" fame.

Chester Morris and Richard Arlen will be seen together in "Come on, Marines."

Constance Bennett is now filming "The Truth About Hollywood."

"Is My Face Red?" now in production, concerns a broadcasting New York columnist—which would undoubtedly be Walter Winchell who was recently immortalized in the play about his life called "Blessed Event"—James Cagney's newest film, incidentally.

The most "rumored" person in Hollywood at the moment is Greta Garbo. She will sign with MGM; she will not sign; she will go back to Sweden; she will go to another organization; all these and more are floating around now that the great Garbo contract has run out. The best of the rumors and facts seem to be these: She has asked for an extension of her passport until next year; her manager has resigned from MGM to be free to negotiate with some other company; if MGM does not meet her terms she will go elsewhere; when she is through with her next contract she will make a two-year

464 cash prizes this month for "blurbs"

$25,000

WELL, JOE—HERE GOES FOR A REAL SHAVE. I'VE EXPERIMENTED WITH SHAVING CREAMS FOR YEARS, AND I'VE NEVER FOUND A LATHER THAT STANDS UP ON THE FACE LIKE PALMOLIVE'S

YEAH? SHOW ME A BETTER SHAVING CREAM THAN COLGATE'S. IT GETS RIGHT DOWN WHERE THE RAZOR WHACKS 'EM OFF—RIGHT AT TH' SKIN LINE

AND ANOTHER THING—I'M TELLING YOU THERE'S SOMETHING TO THIS OLIVE OIL BUSINESS. NOTHING LIKE PALMOLIVE FOR KEEPING THE OLD FACE FEELING FINE

MAYBE SO, AL—BUT TAKE A LOOK! THERE'S WHAT Y'CALL A CLOSE, SMOOTH SHAVE, GOOD FOR ALL DAY. NOTHIN' LIKE COLGATE'S—NOTHIN'!

LISTEN to Joe and Al! Nothing will ever convince Al there's a better shaving cream than Palmolive. Nothing will ever sell Joe off Colgate's!

Millions of men are like Joe and Al. That's the kind of loyalty that has put Colgate's and Palmolive miles ahead in a field of 176 competing brands—made them the world's biggest sellers by far.

Where do you stand in this big Colgate's vs. Palmolive argument? That's what we want to know.

Here's what you do. In ONE of the empty "blurb" spaces (not both) at the right, or on a sheet of paper, help Joe out—or help Al out. If you're a Palmolive shaver, write a boost for Palmolive. If you use Colgate's, write a "blurb" in favor of Colgate's. Just "horn in" on the argument—and may the best "blurbs" win.

Write your "blurb" here, men!
Get some of that $25,000

What can you Palmolive users say to help Al out? Or what can you Colgate shavers add to Joe's side of the argument? If you don't use either, start now and take a shot at this real money!

CONTEST RULES

MAIL your "blurb" with name and address to Contest Editors, Dept. CN-2 P. O. Box 1133, Chicago, Illinois.

The prize money (totaling $25,000) is divided into six sets of monthly prizes (each set totaling $4200). At the end of each month prizes are awarded (see list at right) for the best "blurbs" received during that month, as follows:

Feb. 29, $4200 Mar. 31, $4200
April 30, $4200 May 31, $4200
June 30, $4200 July 31, $4200
{Contest closes July 31, 1932}

Contest is open only to residents of the United States and Canada. Employees of the manufacturers and their families are not eligible to compete.

In event of a tie, each trying contestant will be awarded full amount of the prize tied for. Decision of the judges shall be final. All contributions shall become the property of the manufacturers, to be used in any way desired.

Some hints to help you win

Here are some facts about the world's two largest selling shaving creams—Colgate's and Palmolive. Here are some of the reasons why men prefer these famous shaving creams.

PALMOLIVE

1. Multiplies itself in lather 250 times.
2. Softens the beard in one minute.
3. Maintains its creamy fullness for 10 minutes.
4. Fine after-effects due to olive oil content.

COLGATE'S

2. Small bubbles get down to the base of the beard. Rapid water vapor each hair at skin-line and soaks it soft where the razor works.
3. Gives a close, skin-line shave due to small bubble action.
4. Gives a lasting, 24-hour shave.

Here are the prizes for each month—464 in all!

"Eddie" Bacon Writes Prize Essay on Subject of Football

Editor's note—The following essay was awarded first prize among the members of the football team. During the Easter holidays each man was required to write a theme relative to the subject of football.

By E. H. Bacon

Few of the investigators who tried to discover the origin of the game of football have gone very far, for they have soon found that the sport of football as enjoyed by the ancient peoples had no relation to the organized game which is so widely played in modern times. It is, however, an established fact that some order did not begin to appear in the game until the fifties of the last century. It was originally introduced into American collegiate circles in the year 1876 when Harvard encountered Yale for the first time. Whatever may be the case, it is quite evident that the polished, machine like teams that take the field today have come to be a result of a considerable revolutionary process of the game.

Football has had and will continue to have, its coaching luminaries who are influential in establishing "systems" of play, but few, if any, will ever surpass the contributions of Mr. Glenn Warner, present coach at Leland Stanford University and of the late Mr. Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame. The great game of American football of today with its colorful glamour and machine-like precision is largely attributed to the efforts of these two coaching geniuses. Both men are responsible for their respective "systems" of play—the Warner system and the Notre Dame system—around which ninety percent of the teams in America today, with slight modifications have organized their style of play.

Briefly, the Warner system features the "wing back" and the use of an unbalanced line. Its chief motive is to obtain power and deception. Mr. Warner quite logically believes that by bunching more men on one side of center than on the other, with the backs in such a position as to allow for their power to be massed behind this "strong" side of the line, he will be able to realize a consistent means of gaining yardage. At the same time, he is able to keep the opposing team "guessing" as to what tactics will be used by the use of the wing back swinging back the "weak" side of the line on reverse play.

On the other hand, Mr. Rockne's style of play advocates for its means of gaining yardage the shifty and elusive running of backs "around end." The Notre Dame system uses the balanced line in offensive play, with the ends slightly detached. Behind this, the backs originally line up in a "T" formation—the quarter back in position just directly behind the center with the three other backs being several yards behind this man, in a parallel line with one another. At the end of the first series of signals, these backs all shift into their respective positions from which the play is to begin. The key of success to this type of play is found in the perfectly timed and precise shifting of these backfield men. The better this timing is, the better the team will be, as is evidenced by the phenomenal success of Mr. Rockne's teams at Notre Dame.

The making of a good team, in my opinion, is centered around the development of a powerful offense. A good defensive may "hold its own" with its opponents, but it will rarely ever get very far in the race for any championship. I think that the knowledge that it is strong offensively, infuses a spirit into a team that will help it to play a defensive game that is far better than the average. One of the first important prerequisites in creating this strong offense is to make for a spirit of cooperation among the players. Each man should be so influenced that he will do his part to perfection and more if it is possible. With the success of the team as a unit. When a man carries out his individual assignment, he should have the feeling that by doing so he is a "cog in the machine," which requires that all parts perform smoothly. Whether his task be one that will bring him individual glory or one that will pass by unnoticed by the multitude of spectators, it should always be performed in a thoroughly cooperative spirit.

An offensive line should play just as low as is reasonably possible, thus allowing for more power in "taking out" opponents in the defensive line. In my opinion, a low, fast-charging line cannot be stopped by any defense, no matter how good it may be. In making this low charge the legs should spread moderately wide apart, and the "drive" should be made with short piston-like strides. One big fault with many promising line candidates today is that they cease driving the instant they feel contact with an opponent's body. The original charge may be furious and practically unstoppable, but the minute contact is felt it seems to be a habit for many of us to either cease charging altogether or to charge with far less zeal. Above all, that is the very time to begin charging all the harder! Drive your opponent until he is well on the sod and even then, don't stop!

I think one of the best practical inventions to develop outstanding line play is to tell the component members, as a unit, that they are the "fightingest, chargingest, and best line in the state (conference, etc.)." Boys are, as a result of psychology naturally of reputations that involve physical prowess—they will outdo themselves to maintain such a reputation.

Backfield candidates to be "good" on the offense, should be shifty, light of feet, powerful, and quick-thinking. A slow, heavy-footed back will tend to get in the way of his own team-mates, and his ground-gaining for the season will be scant. Regardless of his physical size it is perfectly possible for every backfield man to develop power and drive. When carrying the ball, he should try to gain "that extra yard" even when he feels the arms of an opponent encircling him. Or, if he is merely serving in the position of blocking back, he must be able to drive fast and hard when taking out an opposing end—he must have the way for touch-downs. The type of man who drives hard is an asset to any team, regardless of his lack of spectacular ability; he will be the one to "deliver" when the first downs are badly needed. Finally, a good back should be able to think quickly. Knowing what to do at the right time is probably one of the biggest assets any football player can possess.

Many of the points relating to offensive line play are also applicable to defensive play. Here too, a low, hard-driving line is the kind that stops opposing backs for little or no gain. In my opinion a defensive line man should direct himself at the heart of the play (straight ahead) just as rapidly as he can get there. Whether he, as an individual, makes the tackle is of little actual consequence. Certain it is that by his hard, direct charging, he will so demolish the opponents interference that it will be a relatively simple matter for one of his nearby team mates to bring the ball-carrier to the ground. A good defensive lineman should be smart—the ability to diagnose plays will naturally be an asset in stopping them. A line man who is light of feet will be able to deceive and elude any opponent trying to "take him out." Also the defensive line man who is fast is quite apt to get into the opponents' backfield and mess up the play before it is fully developed. Also the line man who tackles viciously will develop the "respect" of an opposing ball-carrier.

A defensive back must be "on his toes" all the time. Figuratively speaking he must be prepared to meet any type of play at any time. He cannot be caught napping; allowing himself to be sucked in on what he thought would surely be a line play, and find out later that an opponent has caught a forward pass in territory that he should have been protecting. The man backing up his line should have the ability of diagnosing plays, and should be able to tackle viciously.

No football player, regardless of how well he knows these theoretical points I have mentioned, can ever develop into the star class of football player unless he has confidence in himself. A football man without confidence in himself is as bad off as a high-powered automobile whose gasoline tank is empty. Neither the car nor the athlete can function without the proper "force" behind it. The men must be made, above all, to believe in themselves and their abilities. Only too often we see cases where a player of natural ability gives a little fire of confidence in himself. His ability has been wasted during the previous one, two or three years! It is my firm belief that seventy percent of the make-up of a star football player consists of self-confidence. With the possession of this trait one simply cannot be beat. I think that coaches who can help members of a team to instill this spirit into their inner hearts, have done half of their function of turning out a winning football team.

Graham Morison III
Graham Morison, president of the student body, entered the hospital Monday afternoon suffering from a sudden attack of pneumonia. According to hospital authorities, his case does not appear to be particularly serious and he is resting comfortably. It is uncertain as to whether or not he will be able to attend the convention here next week.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. H. G. Morison, Lexington, Va.

My dear Mr. Morison: As I have just written to Dr. Gaines, your letter was laid aside for a personal and detailed reply and in some way became misfiled. It has only just come to my attention and I am hastening to answer it, with the hope that I am not too late for your mock convention.

It is very good of you to say that you have followed my public career with special interest and that you want to represent me fairly at the convention. I shall know that my reputation is in good hands!

As you perhaps know, I am a Democrat "by conviction" as our Quaker friends say. That is, I honestly believe the underlying principles of the party are more truly in accord with our national ideals of representative government than are those of the rival party. To discuss these principles in detail would involve the writing of a book rather than a letter and I am, therefore, going to ask you to consult your university library for more detailed information than I can give. I would especially suggest that you look up the life and writings of Jefferson, whom we all regard as the great exemplar of our party.

I am enclosing a set of pamphlets which will give you my own "slant" on a Democratic administration. These pamphlets show what I have tried to do in my own state and from them you may obtain my views on the more important questions now before our nation. Will you please express to your fellow students my good wishes for a successful convention. I thoroughly approve of this method of "learning by doing" and whoever may be the successful nominee in your meeting I am sure you will all profit by the discussion and study.

With cordial good wishes,
Very sincerely yours,
Franklin D. Roosevelt, (signed)

February 8, 1932

President H. G. Morison, Washington and Lee Univ., Lexington, Va.

Dear President Morison: Permit me to take advantage of this opportunity to assure you on behalf of the Democratic National Committee of our commendation of the proposed mock convention of the Democratic Party that you expect to have at Washington and Lee University. The idea is an excellent one and should serve to instill in the minds of the student body a deeper and more personal interest in the political affairs of the party and of the country. May I add that in my judgement there has never been a time in our history when it was more desirable to have the younger element of our population thinking and talking of the problems of government.

This headquarters has been delighted to supply all requested information and to cooperate in every way in the effort to make your mock convention a success. If there is anything further we can do, feel free to command us. Sincerely yours,
Jouett Shouse (signed)

Newman Awarded Fellowship In Social Science Research

Sidney Newman, who will be graduated this June from Washington and Lee after three years' work, was recently informed that the Committee on Southern Fellowships of the Social Science Research Council had awarded him a $600 fellowship for the coming year to do graduate work in Social Psychology. This research will be carried on at Clark University, where Newman has been awarded a $300 stipend. Newman has pursued courses in the Department of Psychology for the past two years and holds the department scholarship this year.

He received the recommendation of the department for both scholarships. Newman is a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

M. W. ADELSON

The first of the fish stories of the season is already with us. It seems that Professors Paxton and Moffatt spent the entire opening day of the trout season up on Irish Creek.

And lest you think that this column has been slighting the faculty, here is another. Yesterday afternoon, three eager freshmen politicians cornered popular Mr. Hinton and harangued him for quite a while on the merits of their respective candidates.

A case of mistaken identity or something has recently been called to our attention by Robert Boyd, of Duke, a member of the band at the North Carolina school. It seems that after he returned home from the Washington and Lee-Duke game he was informed that he was permanently barred from Washington and Lee dances because of his conduct at the dance set.

A midnight marauder entered the Phi Psi House sometime Saturday night or Sunday morning, yanked all the phones from the walls and with various articles of apparel, proceeded to drape one of the large oaks in the yard as a Christmas tree.

Pete Gilmore, that well known man-bout-village, recently invited Jean Harlow to attend Finals on his bid. The letter was forwarded to her at the Hotel New "Gawker" from where the girl who was not always that way replied "The proposition for the dances is very interesting, but I am leaving for the coast next Saturday. My best wishes for a happy and enjoyable dance set."

There were so many spectators at the recent murder trial in the historic old county court room, that the supports of the floor were weakened to an extent necessitating new supports being added. The prisoner was tried for the murder of two men and got a year. At the same term Johnny "Boots-on" Harlow (no relation to Jean) got the well known bee, receiving five years under the Jones act.

Stone bars do not a prison make and neither does a uniform make a bus driver a military school student as Vic "Length" Griewank found to his embarrassment last week. It was in the beany as one of the visiting clubs was eating supper (go ahead and call it dinner), that the elongated basketball man noticed the bus driver eating with the team and walking over exclaimed, "I never knew that Virginia was a military school."

We thought all the hullabaloo had died down what with so many of the different parties leaving town, but we were mistaken as usual. Sunday morning at exactly two a. m. the bell atop of Washington College tolled twice and two shots rent the calm of slumbering Lexington. This comes to us from our faithful night owl reporter.

WOODCHA HAVE SUPPOSED THAT?

Several candidates in the forthcoming elections have refused to give men political cards until they displayed campus tax cards. Only one president of the student body has ever come from outside the Low School. Tex Tilson, present aide to DeHart, was the man.

Four fires in five days the past week, set a new record for Lexington. The local smoke smotherers believe that practice makes perfect.

Southern Sem got a taste of real kollitch life last fall for three days while that gal and her sister were there. Now I ask you, whose fault is it?

The negro meat market on Main Street was formerly the home of Governor Letcher of Virginia. And we are not in the real estate business.

Interest Increases In Elections Here Friday

Continued from page one Norbert Gladden, distance track star, is an intermediate lawyer. W. M. Burdette, Jr., the last man to submit his name, entered the Law School this year.

It will be a two-cornered race for the President of Finals with George D. McClure opposing Billy Methvin. McClure is a Junior in the Academic School, a member of the Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity, and is junior manager of the boxing team. Methvin is a member of the Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, a Junior in the Commerce School, and a pitcher on the varsity baseball team.

Running unopposed for President of Fancy Dress, Frank R. Bailey, Alpha Tau Omega Senior, is a three letter man. He played in the backfield on the varsity eleven, was a regular guard on the basketball squad, and throws the discus on the track team.

The only opposed office among the candidates seeking honors in the publication division is in the Editorship of the Ring-tum Phi. Arthur Lamar, present Assistant Editor of the publication, will oppose John A. Culley, Managing Editor. Both men have served on the paper three years, and are recommended by the Publication Board. Lamar is a Delta Tau Delta, and Culley is a Phi Kappa Psi.

Unopposed offices include: Dick Edwards, a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, seeking the editorship of the Calyx;

G. P. Goldenberg, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, running for Business Manager of the same publication; Ed Pewett, Beta Theta Pi fraternity, applying for the position of Business Manager of the Ring-tum Phi;

J. W. A. Smith, Lambda Chi Alpha Junior, who is running for Editor of the Southern Collegian; Vic Tucker; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, who is seeking the position of Business Manager of the Southern Collegian;

Girls vote for PIPES (for men!)

ASK any girl you know to name her favorite smoke—for men! Ten to one she'll say a pipe!

She's discovered—trust her bright little eyes—that it's the BIG men, on the campus and off, who welcome the mental stimulation and relaxation they get from this real man's smoke.

And if she's very wise in the ways of smokers, she'll go one better than that. She'll tell you the men who know, smoke Edgeworth! No two ways about it, you do get a doubly satisfying smoke when you fill up your pipe with this famous old blend. It's a happy combination of choice burleys—cut long to give you a cool, slow-burning smoke. And its mellow flavor and rich aromahavemaded Edgeworth the favorite pipe tobacco on 42 out of 50 campuses.

Help yourself to a pipeful next time someone pulls Edgeworth out of his pocket. Pick up the familiar blue tin yourself at any good tobacco stand. Or for a special free sample packet write to Larus & Bro. Co., 105 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va.

Lexington High School Presents 'Mice and Men'

A very enjoyable evening's entertainment was given at the Lexington High school last Friday night, when the Senior class staged a performance of Madeline Lucette Ryley's play in four acts, "Mice and Men." The play was staged under the direction of Miss Katherine Sieg.

The scenes of the acts were the attic study of an English gentleman in the summer of 1786, the living room of his home, the ballroom of an English manor, and the last act was the garden of a cottage. Locale of the play was Hampstead, England.

Outstanding characters in the play were Miss Lucile Dixon, Miss Margaret Travis, Miss Marjorie Morris, Mr. William McCoy, Mr. James Johnson and Mr. Richard Varner.

ENGINEERS MEET

A lecture and the discussion for the annual banquet featured the meeting of the Custis-Lee Engineering Society last Thursday, April 13. C. E. Duncan gave a fine paper on free-hand sketching as the speaker of the evening, and later the plans for the coming dinner were taken up. It was decided that the banquet will be held at Forest Tavern on the last Friday before exams, which will be May 20.

The Old Order Passeth

Tennessee Tech has abolished the ancient institution of the baccalaureate sermon and moved the graduation exercises up two days.

This is an intelligent move. Baccalaureate sermons have been the same every year the world over since time immemorial, and will, in all probability, always be the same.
