SIGMA ABOLISHES FACULTY

Organization Follows NRA, AAA, Sigma And Groucho Marx

Reason Is That W-L No Longer A Country Club

"We Have Slipped," Says Bailey; "Not Worshipped by Morons"

By a unanimous resolution late this afternoon Sigma society banned the faculty from appearing on the campus again for at least six months. Any violations of this rule are to be turned over to Dr. Chip Jones, Dr. Emerson Dickman and the Lambda Chi house.

Speaks to Louisville Alumni

Sigma termed the mid-semester grades of the faculty an "exhibition of absolute brass and indecency such as to disgrace Washington and Lee University." Said Dr. "Stud" Bailey, head of the Physics department: "It is time all such impurities as the faculty were washed out of the fair city of Lexington. Washington and Lee's priceless heritage as the Country Club of the South has been sacrificed to faculty lust. Our reactionary faculty has allowed such schools as Rollins College, the University of Alabama, and the University of Virginia (especially Virginia), to usurp our cherished place in the hearts of all the youthful morons and Joe Colleges in this mighty nation. Such a condition, so in violation to our traditional policy, has got to stop. Why we can't even keep athletes in school anymore."

Lee's Presidency Recalled

All students are requested to report the presence of any stray faculty members still wandering around East Lexington. Only faculty members excepted by this blanket ruling were those in the Education and Psychology departments. It was generally thought that the fine work of these departments in aiding so many Sigma members to graduate should stand in their favor. Consequently, members of this department have been retained as butlers by Sigma for their weekly laboratory dinners.

Down With Everything, Cries Marx

This world Needs More Of Less Organizations, Prexy Shouts

"Everything must be abolished," announced Groucho Bungalolo Marx, president of Oh Decay, in an interview with a representative of The Ring-tum Phlop.

"We advocate annihilating every professor, president, person, organization, building, and student on the campus. Everything must go! There can be no compromise with a situation such as this. Imagine a university where the students shine by appearing on the campus and even go so far as to answer the professors when the roll is called! A contemptible spectacle like this makes my blood boil," continued Mr. Groucho Bungalolo Marx, taking another swig from the bottle across the room. (Ed. Note: Quite an accomplishment.)

Shot Twice by Madman

"Oh Decay has always stood for the principles of gentlemen and the abolition of shining," continued Mr. Groucho Bungalolo Marx. "Our sterling example, as shown by our public-spirited action in pushing over the alumni building last night, has long been the bright torch to lead Washington and Lee students.

This is Where Graham Dorm Isn't

Burglars crept into the University last night and crept out, after stealing Graham dormitory. The above picture shows Lees dorm, which the thieves didn't take, and in the foreground can be seen the ground where Graham dorm stood last night. Police are searching all suspicious characters in an endeavor to find the purloined dormitory. Already seventeen faculty members have been seized by mistake. The theft is interpreted in official circles as a demonstration against the Graham Plan.

Dogs Promise Help In Growing New Trees On Campus

Lexington's barking canine population hailed the acquisition of 356 imported arbor vitae trees to this historic campus today as a blessing from heaven. Barking and sniffing curiously, tens of mutts, puppies, and one honest-to-God pedigree were amazed at the transformation that has taken place on the Washington and Lee campus.

Scores Marx System

Herb the dog man, standing idly by a deserted telephone pole, watched over the frolicking dogs with an apprehensive glance. "I don't know wot to make of it," he said. "In my generation a mongrel was only too glad to get even a telephone pole. But now, hell, what do they do? Why the darn snobbish mutts ask for arbor vitae trees for themselves! And what's more your Mr. Penick got 'em for 'em. All I got to say is that you're spoilin' the critters. A telephone pole was good enough for the last generation, it most certainly should please this year's bumper crop. Why the first thing you know the little dears will be a wantin' pink-tiled bathrooms for their daily needs."

Viewing the situation in an entirely different fashion from their cynic impressario were the dogs themselves. Realizing that they add a decided scenic charm to "The Shrine of the South," a great many of them scored the administration severely for not doing it sooner. But the majority of the bow-wows were quite pleased with the administration's gift.

Price High For Finals

Students Fear For Worst As Dance Leader Fails To Announce Plans

Frank (I've Got My Fingers Crossed) Price today declared that the choice of a Finals orchestra lay between Johnny Hamp and Mal Hallett, with campus opinion slightly favoring the latter.

Generals Get 11 Goals

When asked by long distance today whether he would consider a bid to Finals, Mal Hallett replied: "Price is no consideration," hastening to assure The Phlop representative that "Price is determined by supply and demand, and if students demand us, we'll supply the demand."

Price also assured The Phlop that there would be a figure. "A figure?" he queried. "Why, of course. There always is a figure, isn't there?"

New York Prepares for Raid

NEW YORK, March 27—Fifteen ripping, raring journalists from good old Washington and Lee, way down in Dixie, will converge on this city tomorrow for their annual field trip.

Mayor LaGuardia has ordered the marines down from Albany, a complete lockup of Welfare Island, Harlem, and the Bronx, and the temporary closure of several of the Broadway hot-spots.

Revolution

Made Easier for General Lee by Modern Science

Out of consideration for the bones of the great benefactor of the University, Gen. Robert E. Lee, the administration has decided to install ball-bearings in his grave, it was announced today.

"At first glance this may seem like a foolish and sacrilegious move," a University spokesman said, "but if you stop to think of the number of times Lee must turn over every day, you will realize that it is for the best. Every time he turns there is bound to be some wear on the bones, and if the student body keeps up at this pace, it won't be long until there is nothing left but dust to remind us of the dear departed, who has passed into the great beyond from whence no man returneth."

Cops Seize Students

The spokesman further stated that a conservative estimate of the number of times Lee turns over per day, adds up to at least fifty, some observers claiming that the great statesman hasn't had a bit of rest since beer came back. It is believed that a great deal of damage has already been done, but that the new bearings will stop the friction.

Dynamite vs. Discretion

WILMINGTON, March 27—A major catastrophe occurred today when William Latta (Big Bill) Mapel, editor of the Infernal Journal, failed to temper dynamite with discretion.

Lady Is Shocked

Mr. Mapel walked into the office of his employer, Aimee Ethelbert Aloysius Irene DuPont, who was sitting surrounded by a host of beautiful secretaries and a group of samples of new types of dynamite.

Scientist Tours Campus

Sir Basil Flubdedub Marx, famous scientist, toured the campus today as guest of the chemistry department. When asked what he thought of the Chemistry building, Sir Basil unhesitatingly replied: "It stinks."

Latest Gift To School Proves To Be a Bust

Mrs. Oglethorpe Presents University with Famous Gift

Mrs. Oglethorpe, widow of the late Robert B. Oglethorpe, '12, was discovered today to have presented her famous bust to Washington and Lee University. Mr. Pepper, the registrar, was visibly shaken by some strong inward emotion or other as he announced that students here might expect the formal unveiling any day now, and as he went on to describe the object feelingly. It is a matter of general knowledge on the campus that Mr. Pepper is something of a connoisseur of objets d'art, being especially good on busts.

Asks Return of Prohibition

Although Mrs. Oglethorpe has for years been generous to a fault in all relations with her late husband's alma mater, her latest gift was totally unexpected in all quarters, being a whim of the moment, as she herself said in a confidential tete-a-tete with Mr. Pepper yesterday. Mr. Pepper, who is a connoisseur of objets d'art, and especially good on busts, expressed himself as being 'all agog' over the thing.

Where to put this new acquisition is a question which has boded up already. Mr. Whipple, modern civilization professor, wants it ostensibly to round out his paleontology exhibition, while Mr. Hopkins, English professor, said it would look "peachy" in his own class room.

Assails Roosevelt Regime

Close friends of Mrs. Oglethorpe were of the unanimous opinion that this latest gift to the university was unique in its evidence of sheer selfishness. One of them, who shall be nameless, breathed, breathlessly, "I can't see how she could part with such a thing."

It was perhaps in explanation of this unprecedented phenomenon of generosity, that Mr. Pepper was heard to say: "Mrs. Oglethorpe is a fine . . . a very fine . . . woman!"

Mr. Pepper, as we may have intimated before, is a connoisseur of objets d'art—is very good on busts.

Text of Decision

Text of the Supreme Court Decision as announced by Chief Justice G. Marx in the beautiful new building (all done up in white marble, and the most beautiful new curtains you ever saw. Why, my dears, the material is the cutest chintz, and they got it for just 45 cents a yard down here at Adair-Hutton. It will sweep the country.)

Scores Crew

Justices of the court, ladies, gentlemen, ODK's. The case of The Ring-tum Phlop vs. ODK has a priori come to our attention. The defense lawyer was the cutest non-sequiter thing we ever saw, but it made no difference. The case must stand on its ex partibus demerits. Why, in case of In Ray Noble we fined the city of Lynchburg $1.50. In the case of the V. C. versus the freshman class we judged that case a reductia ad absurdum and awarded the entire freshman class padding for their breeches. We have no recourse, then, but to judge this case accordingly. E pluribus unum.

We looked all over that tempus fugit constitution and could not find a damn thing about the ODK. It is clearly a matter of habeus corpus. We can therefore come to no decision but that while the ODK is not forbidden by the Constitution, it is not provided by that paper, so we must declare ODK as ipso facto unconstitutional. Furthermore we feel that ODK is juris sole

'HECK WE CAN'T,' REPLIES S. COURT

Administration Advances Sigma as Substitute For ODK

By ANDERSON BROWNE

Special Washington Co-respondent WASHINGTON, March 27—In a surprise decision rendered at 4:12 a. m. this morning the Supreme Court declared O. D. K. unconstitutional because, as Justice G. Marx said in the majority decision, "While the constitution does not expressly forbid the operation of such an organization, it does not expressly provide for it."

When informed of the decision, Anxious Bowell, president of O. D. K., shouted, "They may surpass us if they will, but we will live on in the hearts of Washington and Lee. It is such decisions as these that will bring on the Revolution! Hurrah for the revolution!"

Tallichet Scored by Sigma

News of the decision threw the campus into an uproar. Justice Marx was assailed and defended on all sides. Mr. P. Wee McNew called for a national referendum on the powers of the Supreme Court. "They have gone too far this time," Mr. McNew shouted in the midst of thunderous applause.

The court was tense as the nine justices filed in early this morning to render their decision. Justice G. Marx was followed close behind by Justice Amos Marx, who was the sole dissenter of the decision. As the justices slowly took their seats, the audience swiftly filed from the room.

"Stop!" shouted Clerk Cornwallis Marx, "The decision has not yet been rendered."

At this Justice Cy Marks rose from his chair, "I will not go on unless we have a full house." The other judges applauded this statement vociferously and suggested that Eleanor Marks and Delano Marks do a brother and sister dance act to attract the crowd. This resolution was passed unanimously with the suggestion that the dance team put some feeling into their act and that Eleanor Marks tie a bag around her face. When Eleanor appeared upon the screen the bag was found unnecessary.

Says Many Are Hungry

Political commentators say that the decision of the Supreme Court will be momentous. Pendleton Marks aptly summed the situation when he wrote, "This will mean either the end of O. D. K. or the end of the Supreme Court. One or the other must fall." Time marxes on!

To Heck With It All, Says ODK

Members of ODK today were a very saddened bunch, following news from Washington of the Supreme Court decision. "They have ruined our whole plan," added one tear-drenched member.

Reinforcements Arrive

"We were successful in doing away with the old law school, the alumni building, the freshman officers, and we were just about to begin tearing down Washington College. Now the Supreme Court has ruined everything.

'Shine!' Cries F. D. R.

"Our original plans called for doing away with Natural Bridge, the Kappa Sig housemother, campus communists, the library, chemistry building odors, and the faculty, and this was merely a beginning."

WHITHER ARE WE DRIFTING?

The famous ODK decision is now history. It takes its place among the Scheeter chicken case, the Marx hog case, and others as famous travesties of justice. Nine old men in Washington, sitting in a putrified halo, far from the realm of actualities tell us here in Washington and Lee that the ODK is unconstitutional.

The decision says that in the first place ODK is not representative of the student body. Anyone familiar with the true conditions knows that this is not true. Membership in the now unconstitutional club is spread among the more prominent men in all branches of school life. We have on ODK the center on the football team, the quarterback on the football team, the left end, the right end, the half back, the full back, the football coach, the assistant football coach, the second and third football coaches, and the water boy. What fair-minded person can say that such an organization does not represent all that is good and noble at this institution, the flower of Southern culture and refinement?

We are proud of our ODK. We love our boys and when they are attacked we shall come to their defense. Let the Supreme Court beware! They have outlived our leaders on this campus. And when they begin attacking leaders they beware—they are attacking leaders, and when leaders get aroused then they should beware still further, for when our leaders get aroused you have no idea what leaders they can be! Hurrah for our leaders! We love our boys!

You Can Fool Some of the People

Josiah Bellwether came into the office yesterday and asked a pertinent question. Very pertinent, in a way. "Why," he wheezed, "don't you do something about it? It's gone far enough. Far too far enough." He was in earnest. We sat back and thought, "You've got something there, Bellwether," we said. "Something's got to be done about it."

Well, there we were. What a start we had! Something had to be done about it, and we were the ones who were going to do it. Seldom did such an opportunity knock at the door of a columnist. Often our door was knocked at, but when someone knocks at a columnist's door you can bet he's there for no good. But (as we say) here was opportunity.

First we had to have a plan of attack. When something's got to be done, you need a plan. We contacted a couple of professional letter writers for the paper and got them to write letters. They did a good job. There are always a couple of guys (generally on the staff) who yearn to have their names in print or mostly are afraid to have their names in print but write letters anonymously; so they write letters about anything.

Thus far everything was shrdiu. That's just how we wanted it. The campaign was going at full blast.

Bellwether came in again and complimented us, and wasn't at all annoyed by the fact that though we had waged a terrific attack, nothing had been done about it. "Give us time," we said. Then we went to see the president. But he wasn't in.

We went to see the Deans, but they weren't in either. Nor was the registrar. This was veree lucky, all right, because we really didn't want to see them anyway. Still nothing was being done about it. We tried McCrum's. After three beers we decided that the time had come for action. Then we moved to the Southern Inn. After three beers tverything looked better.

We moved up the street to the next emporium. Things were humming. And then Olga looked into his eyes and said, "But, dearest, we can get married now. We just can't." Dearest looked right back at her and, manlike, said nothing. There was nothing to say. All had been said. (Whoops. We must have slipped that time. Bellwether, where were we?)

Still, nothing had been done about it. Nothing would be done about it. We were disgruntled. But hell, we were getting paid for it all. Where were we? The Southern Inn? Well, after three beers we were ready to start the campaign. We were going to get something done if it was the last thing we did. It was.

Exploring the Campus

By WILLIAM LATTA MARX

The Co-op

There are few spots on the campus here which have as much historical background as the Co-operative store in Washington College. Hundreds of students pass in and out every day, but it is doubtful if more than one or two or three or four or five ever stop to think what history might lie behind it all.

Just why the Co-op was established, nobody knows. But it must have been for a good purpose, otherwise it would never have been started in the first place. It is here, more than any place on the campus, that the students stand in awe when they gaze upon these old ruins. Every morning at 8:28 numerous students may be seen sipping chocolate milk and chewing on doughnuts and tubing professors, and at the same time a very dreamy, pensive look may be seen in their eyes as they imagine what great man must have stood in the same place at one time or another. It was here that football players, Troubadours, debaters, ping-pong players, and members of ODK have more than once stopped to eat their breakfast.

The old Co-op is certainly an hysteric place, and no student should graduate without having gone in at least once to look around. If you wish to be shown around, you will have the able guidance of such figures as Pat Mitchell, Dorsey Wilson, Al Szymanski and Prof. McDowell. There is no admission charge to students.

Dear Suh:

Please tell me what to do. My boy is growed up now, but he don't want to go to work. I want him to be a carpenter, and I think it would be nice for him to go to a boarding school. Instead, he wants to join the ODK. What must I do?

Dear Mrs. Marx:

Since your son wants to be a carpenter let him join ODK. There will be plenty of wooden heads there for him to work on.

K A's Plan New, Bigger House Fire

"You Ain't Seen Nothing Yet," Say Chapter Officers

Lloyd's of London, world-famed insurance company, today revealed that upon being approached by members of the Kappa Alpha fraternity of Lexington, Virginia (Washington and Lee University) they refused absolutely to insure the K. A. house against fire.

Lloyd's is famous throughout the world for their seemingly reckless insuring. However, they state that they never bet except on a sure thing and, stated the president of the company, "The K. A. house is a fire trap. We cannot risk our money in such a venture. Really." Their refusal is based on the recurrence of fires last year which threatened to smoke out all the hams in the house.

Lloyd's also revealed, upon being asked, that the insurance for Dr. Gaines, president of the University, would be as high as that

Marx Must Leave, Cries Administration In Frenzy of Rage

"Marks must go!" is now the battle-cry of the administration, an unidentified man, said to be a friend of Dean Gilliam, told an inquiring reporter with a hang-over today.

"We have had enough of Marx around here, and the time has come to arise and act! The whole tribe have been infesting the campus for no good purpose for entirely too long. We are going to do away with all of them: Groucho Marx, Bad Marx, Mid-Semester Marx, Karl Marx, The Marx of Time, Birth Marx, Eddie Marx, Dirty Remarx, Black Marx, and X Marx the Spot. When they are gone this will be a better campus. Arise! Act! Are we Mice or are we Men?"

Where Thief Who Broke Into the Phlop Office Is

Two masked burglars entered the offices of The Ring-tum Phlop last night and escaped safely after stealing the letter "ecks" out of a typewriter used by members of the news staff.

The eckstortion of the key took place approximately at nine-thirteen last night. The masked pair entered the office, and with a machine gun, kept the extremely frightened reporters covered while they eckstorted the key from its proper place. After threatening the reporters, should they attempt to follow them, the thieves escaped through a back alley. Although well-masked, one of them is said to have resembled Groucho Marcks.

"The neckst time they attempt anything like this, we'll be ready for them," remarked Joe Doe, ecks-editor of The Phlop. "Ecks-treme measures should be taken with any would-be robbers, and that's ecksnactly what we intend to do."

Dr. Stow Discovers Remarkable Mineral In New Co-op Shoppe

Hopes of geologists all over the world were abruptly dashed to the lithosphere today when what promised to be an important piece of geological research turned out to be nothing but a phoney.

Dr. M. H. Stow, browsing around the museum, which has lately been invaded by the Co-op, suddenly galvanized into action when he saw a little round, rocky object lying on the floor. "What ho!" he exclaimed after a hasty examination, "I've got something here. From the hardness and age of this thing, I judge it to be a relic of the lower cretaceous age. I'll write this up for all the journals!"

But just then one of Pat Mitchell's stooge who happened to be working in the Co-op at the time, sauntered up and said, "Look here, please give me back that doughnut that you found on the floor so we can start business for the day."

Investigation proved that the man was right and that it was a doughnut. As the old museum began to fill up with students coming for their breakfasts, Dr. Stow strode out muttering that he'd beat the racket and prove that it was a rock anyhow

University Plans Culture Program

Nothing's Too Good For Our Students, Says Gilliam

In line with its program of providing more room for student recreation, the University has announced several purchases of property in addition to the recent pool-room purchase, designed to give the students a broader choice of things to do during leisure hours. The purchases include Mike's Place, Nelson's Tavern, and some property in Lynchburg.

"We feel that this move is a great step forward in the history of the University," Dean Gilliam told reporters when he announced the purchases. "No longer will the unoccupied student be forced to play ping-pong in the Y room, or drink beer at McCrum's. Now he can drink beer at Mike's or go to Lynchburg. This, we feel, will broaden the student's life, and give him a more cheerful outlook."

Love Nest Raided

In the early hours of yesterday's fog the police force of Lexington descended en masse upon the notorious TKI Love Nest, uncovering a den of vice unparalleled in the sordid history of Lexington.

Ginger ale bottles were lying upside down upon tables, showing that their contents had been consumed, and other evidences of vice and sin were prominently displayed (and others not so prominently displayed).

Aloysius Marx, head of the G-Men who did the advance work said, "It was more fun tracking down the criminals. I never met such nice friendly girls. I enjoy being a detective and I'm going to make it my life's work."

More violent in his opposition was Mr. Bungalolo Marx, another defective, who said, "I was never so disgusted by anything as the sight that met my eyes when I entered the TKI Love Nest. It shall live forever in my mind as the moment that shattered all my illusions about college boys and girls."

Tallichet Marx said, "What we need is more love nests!"

Chaperone Reform Is Promised for University

Due to the recent warning by the administration to the effect that Washington and Lee men were not conducting themselves properly at neighboring schools, chaperones are to be supplied singly or in gross loads to all men on week-end treks.

"We have a fine supply of chaperones," said Dean Gilliam. He further revealed that a limited supply of blondes with large blue eyes for them what likes blondes. "Since gentlemen prefer blondes we may have to increase the number of chaperones. In fact, if we increase it enough we won't have to worry about the boys going out of town," Gilliam stated.

The Executive Committee approved of this inauguration of chaperones, since they pass on all applicants for the positions. Chaperones with cars are in great demand.

No Busts Are Promised In Art Course Next Year

"There will be absolutely no busts in these courses," the administration said yesterday, when asked about the institution of art courses. "However," the administration continued, "if we find it necessary, we will institute professional models as poseurs for the students, should we find the enrollment slipping."

One course will teach the tyro how to draw, shoot, and nick the ace of hearts at fifty feet; another, how to sound the musical note which is guaranteed to wither the wooing woman. (Music Appreciation 101.) The best course is to be the one instituted for instruction in painting the side of a barn door. "You can never tell," said Leonardo del Angelo Cappuccini Palestrina, "when you'll need to paint a barn door, or a town red. Courses should be practical."

There is under consideration a course in "How to Kill." This is in opposition to Music Appreciation 101-2, and will teach the refinements necessary in killing trombone players, zither players, and cracked baritones. A large enrolment is expected.

A LIGHT SMOKE

OF RICH, RIPE-BODIED TOBACCO

The top leaves of all tobacco plants tend to give a definitely harsh, alkaline taste. The bottom leaves tend to acidity in the smoke. It is only the center leaves which approach in nature the most palatable, acid-alkaline balance. In Lucky Strike Cigarettes, the center leaves are used.

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show* that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

Vinson Foxes Boys Into Believing He Is Twins

A daring expose of a Jekyll and Hyde life led here in the University by one of the students was made today when it was discovered that the Vinson twins are not twins but that there's only one of them.

Some time ago a Ring-tum Phlop reporter suspected that all was not well and determined to get to the bottom of the affair. After months of arduous shadowing, he discovered that Vinson often doubled up in his tracks and reentered buildings with different clothes on.

Late this afternoon authorities apprehended the culprit just as he was changing his watch chain to effect a disguise. After hours of grilling interrogation, the double-identity man finally broke down and admitted all.

"I don't think it was such a bad idea," Vinson confided, "and I can't understand how I was discovered. The reason I pretended that I was twins was so I could get two Southern Collegians, two Troubadour tickets and double cuts in all my classes. Boy, it was fun while it lasted!"

Hortense and Emerelda Marx, beautiful daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wetherhold Marx, who may be asked by Frank Price to lead Finals (perhaps). Price declares that he will start off with Hortense, and when she passes out he will switch to Emerelda. Mrs. Marx, wealthy matron, told a reporter today "We never think of Price."

Construction Starts Tomorrow
The U. D. C. today conducted memorial services over the ruins of the alumni building. Several of the daughters were startled by the discovery of a flannel night-gown, the petrified corpse of a Wahoo, and the charred embers of a Sweet Briar chap-erone among the debris.

aroma . . . it's as much a part of Chesterfield as the taste

Did you ever notice the difference in the aroma of Chesterfield tobacco?

Every person who knows about tobacco will understand this . . . for to get a pleasing aroma is just like getting a pleasing taste from fruit.

Mild ripe tobaccos, home-grown, and welded with the right kind of tobacco from far-off Greece and Turkey (Samsoun, Smyrna, Xanthi and Cavalla) . . .

. . . that's why Chesterfield has a more pleasing aroma.
