BURTNER STUDENT BODY PRESIDENT

Executive Committee Fills Vacancies; F. C. Currie Vice-President

At the meeting of the Executive Committee last Friday night, William O. Burtner and F. C. Currie were elected, respectively, president and vice-president of the student body for the present year. In the election last spring, C. H. McCain and J. D. King were chosen for these positions, but neither of these men returned to the University this fall and the filling of the vacancies thus caused evolved upon the Executive Committee.

Burtner is exceedingly well-qualified to be president of the Washington and Lee Student Body. He has been at W. & L. for five years, has received the degrees of B. A. and M. A., and is on the second lap of his pursuit after a degree in the Law School. The faculty too, claims him for he has been an instructor in English here for three years. His prowess in debating has won for him the title of "The War-Horse of Oratory," and he is a member of numerous fraternities and societies, among them, Alpha Chi Rho, Omicron Delta Kappa, Sigma Upsilon, Delta Sigma Rho, Square and Compass and Phi Beta Kappa.

F. C. Currie is now in his third year at W. & L. and his popularity and ability are fully recognized in his election to the office of vice-president. "Crit" is also junior assistant manager of football and is a member of the Alpha Tau Omega Fraternity and of the White Friar Ribbon Society.

BILLY SUNDAY IN LEXINGTON

Noted Evangelist Speaks in Jackson Hall To Students, Townspeople And Cadets

"Billy" Sunday at one o'clock yesterday addressed an assemblage of the V. M. I. Corps, the W. & L. Student Body and townspeople in Jackson Hall.

The noted evangelist is conducting a meeting in Roanoke and upon invitation of General Nichols he motored over to address the Corps. The W. & L. students and faculty were invited to be present and most of them took advantage of the opportunity.

Homer Rodeheaver ("Rody") with his famous trombone took immediate charge and swinging into Dixie started a round of applause.

Mr. Sunday was introduced by Mr. Nichols and he at once started off in his rapid-fire manner giving a resume of his early life. Vigor and realistic illustrations were his chief characteristics and many times he swept Saturday, October 2, the Generals opened their 1920 football season on Wilson Field, defeating Davidson College, 6 to 0 in a slow yet interesting game. Its interest lay chiefly in the fact it was the first game of the year, and everyone was kept on his toes waiting for some brilliant White and Blue broken field runner to emerge free from the scrimmage, but none was forthcoming.

The only brilliant work of the entire contest could hardly be called unexpected. This was the footwork of Quarterback Silverstein who three times sent the pigskin straight and true thru the goal posts as easily as if it had been in practice. The third goal was a repetition of the disqualified-second, which was not allowed because both teams were offside. Undaunted, however, Silverstein called the same play again, and daring his opponents to come in and block it, dropped it over again.

The play as a whole was ragged and loose as are all first games, and owing to the strength of Davidson who was a formidable opponent at all times, little could be learned of the relative ability of the new material. If a weaker team had been played the opening game the coach might have run in many of the squad and saved his first string men at least. The Wildcats strength made this impossible and aside from revealing lack of practice which can be attained only thru game experience Saturday's battle told little.

Even at this early stage in the season the line gave evidence of midseason impregnability, and in the second half Davidson was able to gain only two scant yards thru this avenue. Paget showed clearly his lack of condition, but this fault of course will disappear in time, and while his passes were low his defensive play could hardly have been improved on. Barrow and Patterson at guards both played good games as is evidenced by Davidson's dearth of gains over their positions.

Pat in many ways recalls to mind his brother Craig and whatever he may lack in poundage he more than makes up for in fight. Barrow played the calm, methodical game, characteristic of his nature, and at all times he and Sanford had their side of the line well in hand. Not a yard was made over these two in the second period.

Captain Moore was in every play, continually exhorting the men, and setting them an example by his own efforts. Time after time he would smear the play from behind the line, while his offensive was perfect. Henson and McDonald at ends played positions new to both of them in a manner which spoke well for their lack of experience. McDonald was completely at home on left end and fighting little Riley who relieved him mused up several plays despite his manifest lightweight. Heavy Henderson replaced Paget in the fourth quarter and played a good, heady center. His style of play is the smash-up game of Al Pierotti and he doesn't

F. A. VANDERLIP ADDRESSES ASSEMBLY

New York Financier Urges Creation of New Economic Standards

Speaking to an audience of students and townspeople which filled to capacity the Lee Memorial Chapel, last Saturday, Frank A. Vanderlip, New York financier, urged the creation of new social, economic and financial standards for America, and stated that this was the great opportunity and duty of the young men of today.

"America has always been the land of opportunity," said Mr. Vanderlip. "Opportunity means three things: to have a job, to want to work, and to have the technical skill to do it well. The war has left problems which require men of new vision in the world; men who will cut loose somewhat from traditions; men who can do things in new ways."

The speaker stressed the need of new solutions for social, economic, financial and governmental problems of the day. Because of the lack of cooperation between the different government organs in charge of our foreign relations, a condition inherent under our present system, the nation is constantly in danger of being mis-

PROSPECTS BRIGHT FOR S. AND C.

Local Masonic Fraternity—Has 50 Members Probably Will Have Club Rooms

The Square and Compass, a National Masonic Fraternity founded at Washington and Lee, is now entering upon its second year of reorganization since the war, with very bright prospects for the future, according to Mr. Cummings who is the president of the local "Square."

Squares have been established at several schools which include Colgate University, Tulane University, and Virginia Polytechnic Institute. The organization will no doubt enter other colleges and universities during the ensuing year. The Fraternity publishes the College Mason, which is issued five times during the school year.

The Washington and Lee Square, which is the home Square of the fraternity, has a half hundred members. For the time being its meetings are held in the Lexington Masonic rooms, but it is most likely that the Square will move into its own club rooms during the present session. It can be said that one of the prime functions of the Square and Compass is to do its part to promote wholesomeness and high esprit de corps in whatever institution the fraternity may be found.

MESSAGE FROM PROF. R. H. TUCKER

My connection with Washington and Lee dates only from 1915. This brief period of service has been sufficient, however, both to inspire me with a lively interest in the University and its development and to give me some definite impressions as to its needs.

The distinguishing characteristic of Washington and Lee is the personnel of its student body and the spirit of its campus. Everything goes to show that the institution has been singularly fortunate in the character of the men it has attracted to itself as students and equally fortunate in the character of the men it has sent out as graduates. These men have distinguished themselves in the profession, in business, in almost every line of endeavor. There is just one weakness in the situation, namely, the failure of the great body of Washington and Lee Alumni to continue their touch with the institution and its affairs. The University seems able to equip its students with everything save the kind of remembrance of their Alma Mater that would inspire them to effort and sacrifice in its behalf.

This statement is made advisedly and after due consideration. For more than a year Washington and Lee has been conducting a two fold campaign, to enlarge its endowment and to increase the membership of its Alumni Association. The results have been gratifying in many respects but as far as the Alumni as a whole are concerned the response has been discouragingly small? Two or three hundred of them have given unstintingly of their time and money and effort, but the great body of the Alumni—the other thirty-five hundred—have apparently been content to pursue their way, unmindful of the appeal of the institution at this critical time.

Yet the need was never greater than it is at the present moment. Under an exceptionally strong and progressive administration the university has grown by leaps and bounds. New buildings have been erected, new courses have been added, the teaching force has been enlarged, and the student body has grown from 525 in 1915 to more than 700 in 1920. But while the student body has increased approximately 50 per cent it has been impossible, for lack of endowment and in the face of mounting costs of instruction and material of every kind, to increase the faculty by more than 20 or 25 per cent. The institution has thus reached a point where every advance in numbers, every step in its progress but serves to emphasize its poverty. It must have additional funds, and above all it must have the active support of its Alumni if it is to continue its progress and fulfill its high purposes.

The forgoing is written in no critical or pessimistic mood. The prospects were never brighter than they are today. But these prospects cannot be realized. Indeed Washington and Lee cannot even hope to maintain its present position relatively to the other institutions of its kind without the unanimous and wholehearted cooperation of its faculty, student body and Alumni.

C. A. Foss, '20 is the Y. M. C. A. Secretary at The University of Alabama.

READ WHAT PROF. MORELAND OF THE LAW SCHOOL HAS TO SAY

Oct. 2, 1920.

Fellow Alumni:

As one of your number I most earnestly urge you to answer the call that is being made on every former student of this institution, and join the Washington and Lee University Alumni, Inc. This is the organization that is carrying on the work that our alumni should do. It is needless to say that in the past this work has been done by a very few men and it is thru their efforts that the present organization has been effected, with its aims and purposes clearly stated, and the active conduct of its affairs placed in exceedingly competent hands.

Its officers have demonstrated energy and efficiency that are most commendable. They have not spared themselves but have worked in season and out of season. The beautiful Memorial Gateway nearly completed testifies to their efficiency and energy as well as to the generosity of the alumni. But this is just one task. Many others lie before us, and there is needed the active assistance of every son of Washington and Lee.

I therefore suggest that it is the duty of every alumnus to become a member of this organization. The cost is pitifully small but the amount of good that you can do is very great. I put this before you not as a matter of sentiment but as a matter of plain duty. If Washington and Lee's sons do not feel that it is their duty to advance her interests by every means in their power, then there is something the matter with them or with Washington and Lee. There isn't anything the matter with Washington and Lee.

Send your application for membership together with your check for $5.00 to Mr. Charles S. Glasgow, Treasurer. You will continue to be a contributing member; Mr. Eddie Parks Davis will see to that, and if you will stay in just one night and help the boy with his arithmetic you will get the five dollars back.

W. H. MORELAND.

ALUMNI NOTES

How do you think we can run this column unless you let us know where you are and what you are doing? The Alumni Secretary wants to hear from you. He wants to get your correct address. Send this in every time you make a change. Do not kick about "never hearing anything about Washington and Lee" unless you are sure that we have your correct mailing address. If you have subscribed to The Ring-tum Phi and it is not reaching you promptly let us know. We want to get the dope on you. Are you a paid-up member of the Alumni, Inc.? A five dollar check to C. S. Glasgow, Treasurer, Lexington, Va., is what it takes. That's ALL!

BABE RUTH OF THE BUSHES

Frank Brower, '14, has made for himself the name of "the Babe Ruth of the Bushes." Brower is the sensation of minor league baseball this year. Up to the time that he was bought by Washington from the Reading, Pa. team he had hit twenty-three home runs. He plays first base the way first base should be played, is a left-handed hitter and throws right-handed.

Brower originally was a pitcher. He pitched on the 1913 team at Washington and Lee, making a fine record. He was an ensign during the war and was discharged in January, 1919. His career in the big league will be watched with interest by his Washington and Lee friends.

W. & L. vs V. P. I.

Do not forget Alumni that football game in Lynchburg October thirteenth. It is V. P. I. This will be a big day for our Alumni in reach of Lynchburg. They will all be there. You can depend on the Lynchburg crowd to furnish the entertainment. "Fats Miller" and Fred McWane will be in charge of the parade.

T. H. Geddy, Jr., '14 has been appointed Estate Tax Officer for the State of South Carolina with headquarters in Columbia. Tommy has been practicing law at Williamsburg, Va.

Adrian H. Boyd, '17 is with Farns, Worth, Smithwick & Company, Cotton Brokers, Memphis, Tenn.

Robert G. Thach, '10 who has been practicing law in Birmingham, Alabama since he graduated at Washington and Lee, has become a member of the firm of Whitman, Ottinger & Ransom, 120 Broadway, New York City.

"Jiggs" Donahue is again teaching the Clemson Tigers how the game of Football should be played. We wish him all good luck.

Now listen, Alumnus! Pay your dues, $5.00 a year in the Washington and Lee University Alumni, Inc. and you will feel better, look better, sleep well at night. Our organization cannot run on good will. We want your good will, your five dollars, and then some more good will and co-operation.

Charlie Locke, '20 is trying his hand in the insurance game in Birmingham, Alabama. He is with John G. Smith & Company. He guarantees a big time for all Alumni who attend the Washington and Lee-Auburn game, November 13th.

ALBERT SIDNEY TO HAVE FALL PRACTICE

J. R. Sturm, manager of the Albert Sidney Boat Crew will make his first call to the freshmen as well as all the old men to try-out for the crew in the next few days.

Membership to this club is now open to every student connected with the University upon payment of a fee of seventy-five cents per year.

Practice lasts on the average from one hour to an hour and a half each afternoon. During the last week of college in June, the big race of the year is held between the Albert Sidney and the Harry Lee Boat Clubs.

Whether you have any experience in rowing or not come out and you will be given a fair chance. If in any doubt concerning any detail this branch of athletics, see William Holt, president of the club, of J. R. Sturm, manager.

ALUMNUS HEADS EDUCATIONAL DEPT.

Three New Courses Established
Under W. M. Brown, '14

The new department of Education, recently established by the Board of Trustees and offering special training to those who intend to make teaching their profession, fills a long-felt need in the University's career of public service.

Two main reasons prompted the establishment of this Department: The large majority of the graduates in the academic school during the last eight years have taken up teaching either temporarily or permanently and all of the larger institutions of today must have a Department of Education in the present program of National Education.

Mr. Wm. M. Brown, M. A., '14 has been elected as head of the new Department. A brilliant student, an exceptionally successful teacher and heartily in love with the profession of teaching, his acceptance of the work assures its success and rapid development.

Of the three groups of college studies noted in the catalogue, the Linguistic, the Humanitarian and the Scientific, the courses in Education belong to the second, and altho undertaking, especially, to train those who intend to make teaching their profession, it also intends to give the student who does not expect to teach a better understanding of what education means to himself and the world at large.

Three courses more or less general in their scope, are offered for the session 1920-21. Each is a nine month course, three recitations per week:

Education 1—History of Education.

This course is designed to give the student a comprehensive view of educational institutions, and methods, beginning with the status of education in the time of the Greeks and Romans and following the main points of its development to the present day.

Education 2—Principles of Teaching

This course is intended, primarily, for students who have had no teaching experience whatever, in order that they may become familiar with the fundamental principles of the teaching process from the standpoint of both the teacher and the pupil.

Education 3—Education Psychology

In this course a rapid review of psychology, including the study of sensation, perception, attention, etc. will be taken, in which simple experiments will be performed and the physiology of the human organism will be studied as far as necessary.

The prerequisite in this course will be some knowledge of psychology such as may be had from the course in Philosophy 1, or its equivalent.

For next year it is intended to add courses in Educational Philosophy, Sociology, or Rural Education according to the demand.

EX-SENATOR ROBINSON TO SPEAK THURSDAY NIGHT

Ex-Senator A. W. Robinson of Lexington will speak at the Y. M. C. A. Thursday evening at 7:45. Mr. Robinson has been known on the campus heretofore as an official at football games.

His subject will be "Standards of Manhood." He has been prominent in the state politics since 1908, in which year he graduated from Richmond College, where he was an athlete of ability.

GRAHAM DORM SELF-GOV- ERNING

Students Make Honor Rules;
Committee Appointed

The House Committee of Graham Dormitory is the latest and one of the most interesting developments of student self-government on the campus. It was felt by the authorities that there should be some general oversight of the Dorm and its occupants so they turned the matter over to a committee of students with F. M. Thompson as chairman. Acting on the principle that a "gentleman is considerate of the other fellow" they drew up a set of rules which will be conducive to study in that they will eliminate unnecessary noise and disturbances. True, they will fall somewhat heavily on those bull-artists whose meat and drink is a gab-fest. During President Smith's administration at Davidson, students rules of a similar nature were in satisfactory operation there.

There are one or two men on each floor who are to see that the occupants of their respective floors are law-abiding. Sturn and Leap have the first floor; Maben and Patterson the second; Crockett the third, while Frew and Phelps will restrain the youthful exuberance of the fourth. In substance the rules are as follows:

After seven-thirty in the evening there is to be no playing of musical instruments, no loud talking or boisterous laughing, no singing or whistling, and no moving of furniture or scraping of chairs on the floor.

F. A. VANDERLIP AD- DRESSES ASSEMBLY

understood by others. "If we have a war with Japan, said Mr. Vanderlip, "it will be because of our lack of national courtesy in dealing with that nation."

Industry must be remodeled to meet modern conditions, said Mr. Vanderlip. The modern large corporation, an essential feature of our present system, must be made over in such a way that directing genius, labor, and the public will all have their proper influence in the conduct of its affairs. The speaker said he was opposed to government ownership, but thought that some means could be devised to improve efficiency through large-scale industry, without sacrificing the interests of labor or public.

Turning to finance, Mr. Vanderlip said that some substitute was necessary for the present gold standard, to prevent continual fluctuation in the length of the financial yardstick.

The chief end of a college education is to give young men new and durable standards of the most important things in life. Mr. Vanderlip expressed confidence that the youth of the country would meet successfully the great responsibility which now rests upon it.

The Ring-tum Phi wishes to correct an error in last week's issue. In the Scholastic Averages of the Fraternities for last year the Phi Gamma Deltas were given an average of 79.9 per cent. The correct average is 75.9 per cent.

With the last issue of the Ring-tum Phi, its twenty-fourth year as the official news publication of the Washington and Lee Student Body was begun. Never in that period has it witnessed such an advancement from one session to the next as the last three months have brought about.

The largest enrollment in its history, the Memorial Gateway nearly completed, nine new professors of undisputed ability and learning, a new $100,000 dormitory with modern equipment in use, the progress of the Million Dollar Campaign, an up-to-date monthly magazine starting work promisingly, the entrance of 350 new men, most of whom expect to receive degrees, and a Football Schedule which will advertise the University extensively,—all these things cause the loyal supporter of Washington and Lee to realize that the old University is getting a strangle hold on future progress.

The Ring-tum Phi records these events and achievements with pardonable pride, and welcomes to the campus the new professors, the new publication and the new men.

While the Ring-tum Phi is not by the Students for the Alumni, the Alumni Page will be continued this year. The alumni subscription list is half as large as the student subscriptions, and is growing every day.

Dean Campbell calls our attention to an error which appeared in the letter from him last week. The letter as written commented upon "the efforts of a few loyal alumni." Through a typographical error this was made to read "the efforts of a few local alumni."

INTRODUCING THE LITERARY SOCIETY

How do you spend your Saturday evenings? This question is directed generally to every man in the University, be he Fresh, Soph, Junior or Senior. Out with it! Let's see how honest you are with yourselves. It would be a pretty safe bet to wager that ninety per cent of the Students visit, between the hours of 7:30 and 11, the Lyric and McCrum's and the other well-known institutions for grabbing off loose change. A good many others attend club meetings and social entertainments of divers kinds in order to make a day of it, for when Saturday night comes the average student is inclined to kick his heels in the air figuratively speaking, and chirrup "Nothing to do until Monday!"

And so a vast majority of the young men look upon a Saturday evening spent in the Literary Society as that much good time thrown away. How much more enjoyable to see Bill Hart or Doug or Anita or Theda or some other celebrity of the screen! How much more profitable to indulge in one of the fascinating indoor sports; What's the use of wasting time in an argument over which is the butt-end of a billy goat or the relative importance of the sword and the pen in the history of the world? They want none of it.

But they err grievously, and grievously will they rue it.

The Graham-Washington Literary Society offers peculiar advantages to the young men with ambition. Each Saturday night there gathers in its hall a group of serious-minded students who weigh questions of state and decide destinies of nations with the eloquence and skill to be derived only from continuous practice. They recognize the importance of public speaking as a fine art, and as a medium of communicating their thoughts, opinions, and observations to the public at large. They realize, too, that only by constant effort can they overcome their natural diffidence, their eccentricities of speech and gesture, and their tendency to regard hands and arms as useless appendages. The Literary Society is theirs to use; they use it to the utmost advantage.

The question beginning this article is, therefore, entirely relevant. You cannot spend your Saturday evenings anywhere more profitably than in the Literary Society, because no where else can you derive the benefits accruing to affiliation with that organization. And the good thing about it is that it is never too late to join. New men and old are alike urged to become members, actively participating in the programs and learning something of the fundamental rules of parliamentary procedure. They They can't afford to miss this opportunity.

Then, too, the Literary Society leads to other things and better things. But join up, and find out for yourselves.

WASHINGTON & LEE WINS OVER VIRGINIA AND MICHIGAN

In the recent race for Solicitor for the Tenth Judicial Circuit of South Carolina, Mr. Leon W. Harris, LL.B. W. & L. Class '15, was the winner over two opponents, one of whom was an alumnus of the University of Michigan and the other of the University of Virginia.

Mr. L. L. Rice, University of Virginia '07, who has been practicing at the Anderson Bar since his graduation was one of the candidates for this office. Mr. K. P. Smith, University of Michigan '05, who also has been practicing at the Anderson Bar since his graduation was the other candidate. Although Mr Harris has lived within the circuit for less than eighteen months, he was elected with a handsome majority over both his opponents. So great was the defeat, that Mr. Smith the then Solicitor, resigned from the office the day following his defeat and refused to serve out the remaining four and one half months of his term. The Governor of South Carolina immediately appointed Mr. Harris to fill out this unexpired term.

HARDING-COOLIDGE-SLEMP CLUB ORGANIZED

Republicans' First Meeting Last Night

The Republicans of Washington and Lee's Student Body organized last night into a club to be known as the Harding-Coolidge-Slemp Club.

F. C. Parks was elected to be President and Permanent Chairman, and T. X. Parsons was chosen Secretary. The club has representatives from 20 states thruout the country.

Resolutions were adopted condemning the Democratic Administration, and proclaiming the fitness of the Republican candidates to deliver the goods at this crisis in the world's history.

TROUBADORS STARTING OFF WITH ABUNDANT TALENT

250 Men Competing for Positions —Extensive Plans Under Way

With about two hundred and fifty men competing for positions and an efficient set of officers the Troubadors are planning to make this year an even greater one than the initial success of last year.

At the organization meeting held last Monday night, with a crowd that the Y. M. C. A. room was unable to accommodate, plans were discussed for this year.

Under the direction of their respective vice-presidents, W. B. Patterson, J. F. Somers, J. L. Peck, the Glee Club Mandolin Club, Dramatic Club and Orchestra will practice separately. The Mandolin Club is already organizing with a large number of men playing various kinds of stringed instruments. Plans are being made for a larger and better Orchestra and one that will produce some "lively jazz."

As yet little can be said about the new material but President Dupree says that it looks unusually promising. Every man who has any talent in this direction should certainly come out. All those who are trying out should watch the bulletin board for notices of rehearsals and "tryouts."

All the departments will unite in giving the first show, which will come as early as the Thanksgiving Dances. This is to be a vaudeville show, with a skit written by a student of the university. In addition there will be several specialties. The rehearsals and tryouts for this begin this week at the New Theater.

Further plans for the year include three other shows. The principal production of the year, to be presented during the week of the Fancy Dress Ball, will be a first class musical comedy.

This show will then go on the road for an extended thrip probably playing at some of the places visited last year. Possibilities are also being discussed of the "Troubs" making a tour later following the Baseball team on its Spring trip.

W. & L. HONR STORE BEGINS NEW YEAR

Prices to be Lower Than in Town

Much to the satisfaction of the Student Body, the Y. M. C. A. canteen opened last Tuesday in the "Y" room on the old honor system basis. Although for the first few days the stock was not large, still if one had "the root of all evil" he might satisfy his sweet tooth at cheaper prices than up town. A full stock of candies and confections arrived Saturday from a Lynchburg wholesale house which will furnish supplies in the future.

The canteen will be managed this year by our Secretary, Ted Schultz with Alex Quarrier as Student assistant. This simply means that they will buy stock and keep the money-bag, while as in the past, the customer will be both his own clerk and cashier. If your favorite eats are not in evidence, ask the managers about it and they will see if same can be secured. Also any suggestions for improvements will be welcomed, for this one is being run particularly for the benefit of the customer.

As may be seen the prices are in general below those which the same goods sell for in town. This will be true for all future goods except on a few standardized products which have a fixed price set by the makers. Like last year the store will be open five hours every morning from nine until two.

JOE WRITES AGAIN

Lexington, Va.,
Oct. 4th, 1920.

Dear Bill,

I got your letter and believe me I was glad to hear you won the checker match. It shows you have the real stuff in you.

You will have to excuse me for not writing you sooner as I haven't been feeling well for over a week. A bunch of rowdies took me out and beat me. It was this way. These fellows think that because this is my first year up here they can make me do anything they say, so they told me to get a little blue and white cap and act like a fool.

You know, Bill, I am always out for good sport, and like to play good jokes on people but when it comes to making a fool out of me it just can't be done. Well, I didn't get the cap, so when I wasn't looking they slipped up and grabbed me and blindfolded me. Maybe I didn't give them a stiff scrap, but there were too many of them.

They beat me with big two-by-fours, and almost knocked me unconscious. I have to eat my meals off the mantle-piece as a result of it. Then they got on each side of me and I had to run for the first time in all my life.

I went to the faculty the next day and explained everything and they were entirely in sympathy with me, but advised me to get a cap, so I did. But not because that bunch of hoodlums wanted me to. I didn't win the name of "Old Ironsides" for nothing.

You know I wrote you about that little fellow Raftery. Well, he is Football coach. Between you and me, I don't believe he knows his job, because he hasn't even put me in a scrimmage yet. I made several suggestions to help him out the other day and he appreciated them too. He said that if I would take his job he would go and resign. I think he is a right nice sort of a fellow even if he is a bum coach, but goodness knows I wouldn't take his job away from him.

Well, Bill, I got to close now as Billy Sunday is going to lecture over at V. M. I. and it don't cost anything so I believe I will go hear him.

Yours hurriedly,

Joe.

his audience into applause by the forcefulness of his manner and speech.

The evangelist drove home to his hearers the importance of having a definite aim in life, and showed the effects of idleness and the value of perseverance. "Cut 'fail' out of your vocabulary," said Mr. Sunday, "and those who have done so have had their mugs hung in the Hall of Fame for guys like you and me to rubber at."

Gentleness and faith in one's self were also stressed and in each instance Mr. Sunday backed up his point with a wealth of vivid illustration. "Keep off the merry-go-round of fads, and don't juggle with your conscience so as to try to get rich quick. It can't be done." Especially enjoyed was his realistic description of a baseball game during his major league days with the old White Sox. He told of his conversion while a baseball player and the loyalty of his teammates.

The climax of his address was a magnificent and eloquent tribute to the greatness and nobility of character of Robert E. Lee, and Stonewall Jackson.

At the conclusion the W. & L. students sang the Swing which was followed by the V. M. I. Spirit by the Cadet Corps.

miss either. Leake who was substituted for Herndon played his first college football well. Speed getting down under punts resulted in his slowing his man in his tracks in the very shadow of the goal posts.

As to the backfield, it seems to possess an almost unlimited amount of latent ability. Its keynote will undoubtedly be speed. Tucker, who has proved a real find, and Monk Mattox both of the fastest that have ever stepped on Wilson Field, Sam Raines and Silverstein, make up the square of this box formation. While there was no spectacular work Saturday Mattox illustrated his power to gain practically at will, and though called into service more than any other to carry the ball he rarely failed to gain. The rest of the backs gave a good account of themselves and their defensive was all that could be desired.

The true relative strength of the two teams is best mirrored in the number of first downs made. Washington and Lee succeeded in making eleven first downs to Davidson's two, and the Generals had the ball on the Wildcats 5 yard line on three different occasions.

The first part was marked by much forward passing on the part of the Generals and frequent gains on end-runs. The center of the line was touched very seldom, and Davidson had possession of the ball only twice.

The second quarter was featured by the first of Silverstein's successful dropkicks and a beautiful forward pass from Mattox to Tucker netted 15 yards. The quarter opened with the ball in Davidson's possession on their own 20 yard line. On the first play Sanford broke through and his vicious tackle resulted in a fumble which Silverstein recovered. Two line plays and a forward pass were ineffective and Joe standing on the 30 yard line dropped the oval between the goalposts. This was disallowed, however, owing to a double offside, and Joe with equal precision dropped it again from the same position after telling Davidson what he was going to do.

In the third quarter Washington and Lee annexed five more first downs and Silverstein kicked his second drop from the 25 yard line. In this quarter W. & L. ran eighteen plays and Mattox carried the ball nine of these times for a gain of forty-two yards.

In the fourth period a number of substitution were made and Henderson, Riley, and Herndon who went in played very well. The play of the Generals was greatly strengthened when McCogbill entered the game. This little quarter was fresh and ran rings around his opponents. In two plays he made seven and three yards respectively, picking his hole warily thru the center of the line. He replaced Tucker, and called the signals instead of Silverstein.

AS OTHERS SEE US

(Clipping from Times-Dispatch, Richmond.)

Times have changed at Lexington, the historic seat of the Virginia Military Institute, and of Washington and Lee University, and the residents are "all het up," it is stated, over the changes.

As a result of a confusion of times the people hardly know when to get up and when to retire. The stately old town clock, in the steeple high over the Presbyterian Church, differs about fifteen minutes from that of the Rockbridge Bank clock across the street. The Western Union time, received hot from Washington at noon, does not tally with the jewelry store clocks.

Then there is the ringing of the university bell and the striking of the clock at the V. M. I., each differing from the other. Taken all together, or even separately, the question has been asked, How are the people of Lexington to get together in any public meeting?

Numerous travelers say they have missed trains for which they had started, because the railroad time differed from the town time. Most of the people are inclined to shift the blame to the old town clock, which has seen its best days.

ON OTHER GRIDIRONS

Three of W. & L.'s Opponents Victorious Last Saturday

While the Generals were engaged in slipping it to the aggregation from Davidson last Saturday, the other opponents of the Trident supporters were not idle. Each of the seven teams that the locals are to meet on the gridiron this season, with the exception of Auburn, played Saturday. Three of these teams won over their opponents, two played to ties and one was defeated.

Wake Forest, which opposes the Blue and White here Saturday, lost to North Carolina by a lone touchdown, the score being 6-0. A second touchdown was prevented in the third quarter when the Forest team held on their one yard line and the Saturday before, the Foresters held Georgia Tech to two safeties, proving that the Generals will have to fight hard to win a victory here Saturday.

Princeton, whom the locals meet Saturday, October 16, at Princeton, defeated Swarthmore 17-6, and Roanoke College, who comes to Lexington the following Saturday held the Tarheels from Guilford College to a 7-7 score.

Va. Tech, the ancient and honorable enemy, whom the Generals meet in Lynchburg October 30, had no trouble in wading thru William and Mary Saturday for three touchdowns and an equal number of goals, totaling 21 points against an oval for W & M. Wallace, a sub-half for Poly, was responsible for the entire score.

The team from the University of West Virginia, another team to play the local eleven, broke even with Lehigh, with one touchdown and one goal for each side. Auburn, whom the Generals meet in Alabama on November 13, did not have a game yesterday, according to reports.

The Georgetown game, which closes the season's playing for the locals on November 20, is fast becoming the most important game of the season. This Washington team rolled up 79 points on St. Louis Saturday and were able to keep their own record clean by holding the Western team scoreless.

GRAHAM-WASHINGTON HAS LIVELY MEETING

A good crowd came out to the second meeting of the Graham-Washington Literary Society Saturday night, and the interest of the initial meeting seemed to have carried on, thus giving promise of a whole-hearted renewal in this important phase of college life.

After President Parks had initiated several new members into the Society, and the reports of committees were heard, D. P. McKinnon gave an excellent oration on "The Old South." Then the debate: Resolved, that the U. S. should stop immigration for a period of five years, ensued, with Messrs. Tuck and Wiggins upholding the affirmative, and Messrs. Creigh and Howard the negative. The decision of the judges, Messrs. Baker, Joyce, and Hampton was for the negative.

Extemporaneous speeches were made by D. H. Taylor, on the subject of "Politics," and by J. G. Anderson. The extempore speeches of several members on the question for debate were interesting, as was the report of the critic, R. S. Chevis.

$1,000,000 DRIVE RESUMES CAMPAIGN

Confederate Organization to Aid —Pres. Smith Chief Executive

The Million Dollar Campaign was resumed about two weeks ago and will be pushed hard during the coming winter. Mr. Howard L. Hall, traveling secretary of the campaign forces began a drive in Chicago last week among the alumni there and secured nearly five thousand dollars as the results of his efforts.

Mr. Verbon E. Kemp, a former student of Washington and Lee, has been secured to travel with Mr. Hall as assistant and general secretary. Miss Mary Barclay is resident secretary of the campaign with headquarters in the Carnegie Library. Miss Barclay will be remembered as the able assistant to Mr. Adams, resident secretary of last year, and is thoroughly capable of carrying on the home work.

As heretofore, the campaign will be under the general management of President Henry Louis Smith and the general supervision and direction will rest with him. However, Dr. Smith's main efforts for the coming winter will be among the various Confederate organizations of the South: the United Confederate Veterans, the Sons of Confederate Veterans, and the United Daughters of Confederacy. These organizations are taking up and forwarding great movements for Washington and Lee and have all heartily endorsed Washington and Lee as the most typical southern university. It is to be expected that these organizations will help greatly in the successful conclusion of the campaign.
