Dr. Hinton Elected Academy Secretary

Dr. William M. Hinton, professor of psychology, was elected secretary of the Virginia Academy of Science at the academy's 35th annual meeting Tuesday night at the Hotel Roanoke.

Dr. Hinton has been on the Washington and Lee faculty since 1930, and has held the rank of full professor of education and psychology since 1951.

He was one of a slate of officers elected to serve the academy for the coming year. President of the group for next year is Dr. John C. Forbes, professor of bio-chemistry at the Medical College of Virginia.

The Academy also made several awards for research among college professors, and also in connection with their talent search of high school students. The Academy will also try to provide scholarships for these 15 high school winners to attend the college of their choice.

The next year he accepted the pulpit of his present church. Dr. Peale's son, John, a Phi Psi, is a member of the 1958 graduating class.

Mid-East Expert Speaks Here Tonight

Edward L. Waggoner, State Department specialist on the Middle East, will deliver the second address in a two-day forum on foreign policy tonight at 8 p.m. in duPont Auditorium. In last night's address, Sen. Thruston Morton (R-Ky) spoke on "Our Foreign Policy—How effective?"

Waggoner, who is the officer in charge of Lebanon-Syria affairs for the State Department, will speak on "Recent Developments in the Middle East."

A career diplomat and a graduate of the Fletcher School of Law and Diplomacy, Waggoner is 38. He joined the State Department in 1942, with subsequent overseas assignments in Chile, Honduras, Iran, and Syria. He took over the Lebanon-Syria desk in 1956.

The talk will be open to the general public. It is sponsored, as was Senator Morton's address last night, by the International Relations Club in conjunction with the W&L chapter of Omicron Delta Kappa.

Last night, Senator Morton discussed the accomplishments of U.S. foreign policy in the last several years in the background of the objectives of our long range policy.

He stated that our primary aim in foreign relations is to seek for "a world living in a just peace—Peace" meaning the absence of the threat of war.

He named as among the accomplishments of U.S. foreign policy the armistice in Korea, the Austrian peace treaty, the frustration of Communist efforts in Iran, the emergence of Western Germany to her rightful place among the powers of the world. Above all, however, Senator Morton stated that probably the most important positive fact concerning U.S. foreign policy is that we have learned to get our position known in the world so that there is no miscalculation on the part of a would-be aggressor as to what action we would take. He stated that both World Wars and the Korean conflict were all partly due to miscalculation on the part of aggressor nations as to what action the United States would take in the event of aggression.

The Kentucky senator remained after his talk for a brief question and answer period.

'Teahouse Of August Moon' Theme For Finals Dance Set

Bringing Japan in all the splendor of the August season to Lexington will be the purpose of the 1958 Finals Dances, it was announced today by Farris Hotchkiss, president of the set.

"Teahouse of the August Moon" completed successful tours on Broadway and was very popular in the screen version. Hotchkiss said that "It was this great popularity and the natural beauty of the oriental decor that led to the choice of the Teahouse theme."

Concerning decorations, a new concept will be attempted to add materially to the usual murals which decorate the gymnasium. Primarily this new approach will be centered around structural props and the construction of an authentic teahouse. In addition, decorations are being imported from Japan to add to the atmosphere.

Hotchkiss stated that "this theme will lend itself to the ideal atmosphere that prevails at a summer dance. With the addition of world famous bands, Billy Butterfield and

Tickets Scarce For Faulkner's Thursday Talk

William Faulkner, Nobel Prize-winning novelist and one of America's top literary figures, will conduct the final Seminar in Literature of Washington and Lee University's academic year here Thursday afternoon.

Faulkner will read from his work and answer questions in Lee Chapel at 3:30 p.m. The seminar, 26th in a series which began in 1952, is scheduled for Lee Chapel for the first time in order to accommodate the large attendance expected for the noted novelist.

Admission to the seminar will be by free ticket only, distribution by the department of English's seminar committee through Dr. Marvin B. Perry, department chairman. A limited number are available for the general public.

Faulkner, whose A Fable won the Pulitzer Prize for fiction in 1955, is visiting author in residence at the University of Virginia.

Harry Levin, professor of English and comparative literature at Harvard, conducted a seminar in English Friday night in duPont Auditorium. The topic of his talk was "The Age of Experiment," and he dealt primarily with James Joyce and other literature of the 1920's.

BILLY BUTTERFIELD

Count Basie, the music should leave nothing to be desired."

The first night of the set will be formal and arrangements for dress at the second night's ball will be announced at a later date. As announced in last Tuesday's Ring-tum Phi, the dances are Tuesday and Wednesday, June 3, and 4.

The Count Basie jazz concert will be given on Wednesday afternoon from 3 until 4:30 on the lawn in front of Lee Chapel. The President's cocktail party will follow the concert.

Hotchkiss added that "The finals dance set will have a lot to offer this year, both with the decorations and the bands. I hope that the students will plan to stay in Lexington Tuesday and Wednesday to finish the year in oriental style."

The dates of finals, formerly June 4-5, were changed last week in order to correlate better with the end of exams, which will be in nine days instead of the usual ten.

Butterfield's band will play for the formal dance Tuesday night, and Bassie, in addition to the jazz concert, will play for the Wednesday night dance.

Watts Discusses Civil Liberties

Mr. Rowland Watts, Staff Counsel for the American Civil Liberties Union, will speak tomorrow night at eight in duPont Auditorium on "The Status of Civil Liberties in the United States."

Mr. Watts, a member of the Maryland Bar, has written several reports and books on the subject of civil liberties, as well as having an active role in cases involving civil liberties.

The American Civil Liberties Union is well known for its activities in civil rights cases and often appear as "amicus curiae" before the Supreme Court.

Although seven right wing groups have labeled the ACLU a communist front organization, on the contrary it has been highly praised by numerous newspapers and leaders of both parties.

The New York Times commented: "The American Civil Liberties Union is a useful and thoroughly patriotic organization... to equate patriotism with conformity, orthodoxy, and name calling is dangerous non- (Continued on page four)"

Norman Proulx Awarded CPA Achievement Award

Norman Philip Proulx, Pi Phi senior from St. Petersburg, Fla., has been presented the achievement award of the Southwest Chapter of the Virginia Society of Certified Public Accountants. The award was made at the meeting of the group in Roanoke Friday night.

The Society presents the award annually in recognition of "outstanding proficiency in the prescribed courses in accounting. The Award was presented by Dr. Jay Cook, local representative of the VSCPA. (Continued on page four)"

IFC Approves Sunday Combos

The Interfraternity Council last night defeated a motion to ban Sunday combos by a decisive vote. Considering the motion which was tabled several weeks by a close vote, the representatives voted last night almost unanimously to retain Sunday combos, according to unofficial sources.

In other action at last night's IFC meeting in the Student Union, the group discussed arrangements for next year's foreign exchange students. It was announced that Tom Mandey, exchange student from Hungary, would return to Washington and Lee next year.

Following the regular meeting, the Judicial Committee of the group met to hear complaints. The Phi Gamma Delta House was fined $100 as the result of several complaints regarding noise near their fraternity house, especially with regard to noisy automobiles. The fine was administered along with a warning that further complaints might result in social probation.

Pictures from F.D. Contest In Hands of News Service

The News Service still has a number of photographs of young women which were submitted last winter for consideration by Look Magazine relative to a story on Fancy Dress.

Students who loaned these photos to FD president Corky Briscoe are urged to pick up their pictures from the News Service in Reid Hall.

Two Ways Open For Reform Of Campus Politics . . .

For the past several weeks, the Tuesday Edition has directed an intense attack upon our present campus political system. Last Tuesday, we proposed a framework for a practicable program of reform.

We prefaced the introduction of our program of political reform by saying that

- 1.) any reform program must reduce the motive of fraternity self-interest within the limitations imposed by the existence of our fraternity system,
- 2.) such reform must allow any student to seek office and be given fair consideration on the basis of his own merit, and
- 3.) such a program must allow the student body the opportunity to choose the candidates for office, instead of leaving this in the hands of the clique representatives.

Numerous criticisms have been made of the proposal of the Tuesday Edition. Briefly summarized, they are:

- 1.) It won't pass a student body vote, as required.
- 2.) It won't work.
- 3.) It won't accomplish the purpose for which it was formulated, particularly the purpose of reducing the motive of fraternity self-interest in the selection of nominees and in the elections that follow.

The first criticism is purely speculative. Whether it is valid can only be determined by allowing a student body vote on a program of reform, a program carefully formulated by the Executive Committee of the Student Body and presented to the students at a student body assembly. If the program presented has merit, it is not difficult to envision its approval.

Neither the Independent Party nor the NFU has anything to lose from a change. Also, there are at least some students in University Party fraternities who hope to see established a more equitable political system; these and other University Party students have the foresight to realize their present advantage may be temporary, for they can remember the situation three years ago when the tables were turned and some of their deserving candidates fell victim to the present system. Furthermore, sometimes the two men best qualified for the presidency are from the same party. Since one of them will have to settle for less, it means in this case the race for president will not be between the two most qualified men. In the general election, the man who is dropped to another office might have succeeded to the presidency of the student body.

The students themselves have the prerogative to decide whether a change should be made; an opportunity to make that decision can be provided in one of two ways: a student petition for the amendment of the Student Body Constitution, signed by fifty members of the student body, or by a two-thirds vote of the Executive Committee. If there is desire for change among the members of the student body, there should be sufficient support to force consideration of an amendment.

There are numerous details to be worked out before the plan we have offered would be practicable. First, it must be decided whether nomination by student body vote is to be by a majority or by plurality. Since several candidates may be offered, a majority, which certainly is desirable, may take time and deadlock the assembly. A plurality would eliminate on the first ballot the candidate with the third highest total, a candidate who might have gotten enough for the other votes to be in the top two on a second ballot. The second problem that must be worked out is an efficient system for reducing the time involved in carrying off such an assembly. These are genuine problems.

The argument that student body interest would lag merits only one answer. The students will at least have the opportunity to take part and have a voice in the proceedings; if they do not avail themselves of the opportunity, it will hardly be any worse than a system that denies them that opportunity.

Some students also say that such a proposal will not prevent the parties from coming to the convention with organized slates. This, too, may be true, but it will at least make their efforts more difficult than they are now at a convention composed of only a few delegates handpicked by the party organizers.

Furthermore, the new proposal, by eliminating many of the meaningless class offices, removes one source of party solidarity. These offices are now passed out as political plums to keep disgruntled member fraternities satisfied. Again, it doesn't remove the possibility of party solidarity, but it does make it more difficult to maintain. There would be only twelve offices under the new proposal.

Under the present party alignment, there are ten fraternities in one party and seven plus the non-fraternity union in the other. "Grooming" of candidates will be all over, since if a fraternity has a candidate up for Big Seven office, this means its chances of having others up for class offices is dim indeed; in future years the system will be working against instead of for them. Figure it out for yourself. If a University Party fraternity has a man on the slate for a Big Seven office, one year, this means its sophomores and freshmen will be denied nominations—either that or some other fraternities will be left out, and the latter would wreak havoc with party solidarity. The next two years, then, the fraternity who originally had a Big Seven office will have to compete for student body nominations with other candidates in the party who have held class offices. The same rule applies to both parties. Party solidarity will then become a problem, because the system will then be working against some of the member fraternities.

Some fraternities are going to have more than just one man who can win a free election; if they recognize this, they will simultaneously recognize that the present system is no longer serving them. If they have a man who could, in a free student body election, win one of the nominations for president, were it not for party considerations, they are going to find it difficult to accept the mandates of their party which relegate their candidates to nomination for a lesser office. Suppose some "free thinker" nominated him for president at the assembly. He could decline as he now would probably do, but the motives prompting such a refusal are gone. His fraternity would no longer be promised several other offices in compensation; if they were, this would mean that other fraternities would be denied and therefore hardly satisfied. Also there would always be the NFU and the law school students to cope with. The headaches of the party organization would be many under such a system.

The core of the proposal lies in this: if there is student desire to frustrate the fraternity slate system, the opportunity is present instead of denied as is the case now, and it is presented with certain incentives to make the efforts work!

Remember, if you desire to see a change, there are two chances of bringing it to a vote. The first rests with your elected representatives on the Executive Committee. If they fail to take action, you can still force a vote by submitting an amendment plan signed by fifty members of the student body!

British Exchange Student Suggests Changes at W&L

By ALFRED HARRISON

I think you will agree that in the present condition of the world no generation of oncoming Washington and Lee students ever faced greater tasks, sterner duties, or more challenging opportunities. Now, after a year's study in Lexington, I think I have fair knowledge on which to base certain conclusions, make a few criticisms, and suggest some ideas which the leaders on campus might consider. If justification is necessary for this presumptuousness on my part, I can only add that the future of my own country is inextricably bound with America. It is then imperative for all of us, that the students of today (leaders of tomorrow) meet the challenging years ahead—and meet them effectively.

First let me say that it has been a pleasure to work under an excellent Faculty and alongside many fine students. But this article is addressed primarily to a certain section of the student body, who, I contend, are not living up to the responsibilities of their po-country, college, and above all—to themselves.

When college admittance is a prized goal in England, one has reason to feel rather sore that such chances are taken so lightly. Surely no student has a right to be in this or any university (especially when so many seek entrance) unless he is prepared to regard his position as a privilege, an opportunity provided by others so that he can have the chance to develop his potential ability to the maximum by applying himself to study, and also taking full benefit of the extra-curricular activities offered? Apparently a number of students are here solely for the social prestige of the A.B. degree; seeking all the "soft" courses they can; content to drift for four years—drift from one party week-end to the next. But it is not intelligence (or lack of it) that I am condemning, rather the attitude displayed. A college education is no more or no less than each student himself is prepared to put into it.

Having made this criticism I will give a few examples of where this irresponsibility is evidenced. So many students stay away from guest lectures, talks, concerts, and society meetings, giving as their excuse—too much work, no time. If work consists of "flicking out," bowling, and listening to "Peggy Sue" in "Doc's," then the problem of American education is deeper than would first appear. The International Relations Club consistently throughout the year sponsored excellent speakers, but so often their talks were delivered to an audience of twenty. This is just one example. Yet the very students who scorned these opportunities, were the first in their criticism of certain facilities on campus—the library for example. But how many make full use of the record collection in the Anderson Music Room; how many read the European journals and newspapers? In short, the opportunities are there but they are not taken.

Finally I would like to make some recommendations which I feel could profitably be introduced to this university. A big disappointment in my stay has been the lack of forums and debates on campus. When it comes to an intelligent discussion on Germany, the ecumenical church, or equality of the sexes, W&L is usually found wanting. Yet there has been much talk of a "Great Issues" course being requested. I seriously wonder if this is just a plea for knowledge from students too lazy to dig into subjects themselves.

My proposal (less expensive and under student direction) would be for a University Union debate each month—on the same line as Oxford and Cambridge. Apart from student debaters, guest speakers from faculty, alumni, and prominent Virginian and national personalities could be included. By this plan you have most of the advantages of a Great Issues course, plus student participation en masse.

Another proposal would be to see an enlargement of student-faculty seminars, which I believe occasionally gather. I feel sure the faculty would respond to any proof of enthusiasm on the part of the students. Here again it is up to you to take the initiative. Lastly, and here I am really sticking my neck out, I would advocate that the "cut" system be abolished, and student be required to "audit" two courses in addition to their 15 semester hours. Both these measures, though drastic, would go some way towards raising

Shepherd Favors Paper's Plan To Renovate Political System

Editor-in-Chief, Tuesday Edition
The Ring-tum Phi

Dear Sir:

In your last edition you presented a plan to amend the Student Body Constitution in order to change the present campus political set-up. I would like to present here my ideas on that plan and on the political situation as a whole.

First of all, I believe that there is a need for a change in the present system. I think that most students on the campus will agree with this premise. Under the present system, the candidates for campus offices are chosen not by the students but by clique meetings composed of several representatives from each house in the party. Naturally, these meetings, in their selections, take into account the strength of the candidates for the major offices, BUT the prime consideration is pleasing all of the houses. Under this consideration, if a party has a rather large majority, it can put up for nomination men who are not top caliber but who come from houses with large representation. This is the basic fault in the whole system, that the individual has no choice in the selection of candidates except through his fraternity's political representatives. This is wrong no matter which party is in power.

I think the need is evident to a vast majority of the student body. The problem is what plan can fill this need? What plan can give the nomination of candidates back to the student body and take it away from a group of say 10-15 political representatives? I feel that the plan proposed by the Tuesday Edition can do this if it is given a chance.

Naturally, coalitions will arise even under a convention system. The point here is that the plan cannot eliminate coalitions but can minimize them. No one party or group of fraternities has a monopoly of talent and ability, and it is conceivable that under a convention system two candidates could be nominated from the same coalition. This argument is based upon the belief that there are enough people in this school with minds of their own to nominate a person whom they feel is the most qualified in spite of the pressures to the contrary.

Most freshmen, for example, come to this school with the idealism we need in our campus politics. Unfortunately, the present system works to suppress this idealism and substitute for it a stultified pressure atmosphere.

No system can be foolproof, but I feel that this system proposed by your paper can work for two reasons: first, those who cannot be told what to do will have the opportunity to frustrate the party efforts, and secondly, for the very reason that fraternity self-interest will be stronger than party self-interest. If a fraternity has a man that it feels should be, say Vice President of the Student Body, and if it feels that this person is popular enough in the student body, I believe that the fraternity will push the man in spite of contrary party pressures.

Space won't allow a complete evaluation of the good and weak points of the new proposal, but I feel quite strongly that any step away from the present system, if it has any validity whatsoever, is a good step. Therefore, I heartily endorse the plan presented and urge that it be put into operation as soon as possible.

Sincerely,
BOB SHEPHERD
Chairman, Independent Party

The Hammer and Spade Dildoe Makes May Day Trip

by susskind and hoogenboom

How pierceful grows the hazy yon!
How myrtle petaled thou!
For spring has sprung the cyclotron,
How high browse thou, brown cow?
—Churchy Lafemme, 1950

It had been raining for forty days and forty nights, and Samuel P. Dildoe and G. Wellington Sniffing were putting the finishing touches to their ark, when Bromley S. Toadbottom brought them their invitations to the May Day festivities of a certain nameless school for girls.

Dildoe looked at the lowering skies and remarked that it was a perfect weekend for a festival. Sniffing just clutched his bottle of grappa and muttered darkly to himself.

As they roared up the hill to the school in Sniffing's acquired 1930 Dusenberg, the sun broke through the clouds, exposing to their view the rambling wreck of a victorian building around which hundreds of giggling girls cavorted.

As they got out of the car, Sniffing tried to turn and run, but was steadied by the intrepid Dildoe. The hapless pair went to their places to watch the re-enactment of the ancient pagan rites of spring.

The featured presentation of the afternoon was a ballet, "Pandora's Box." A girl dressed in white cheese cloth tripped up to a large blue box, which she opened. Immediately a fat little girl hopped out, stumbled, and skipped away, followed by a myriad of other little fat girls, representing the evils. Soon the whole lawn was swarming with little elves and gnomes, trailing gauze and cheese cloth in the wind.

"My God," said Dildoe.

Following the ballet, our shaken heroes were taken to a sumptuous

Wilson Applicants Should Plan Exams

Students who intend to apply next year for Woodrow Wilson Fellowships, should, if possible, plan to take the graduate record examinations this summer, it was recommended in a recent communication from Professor Fredson Bowers, Chairman, Region V, to Dr. W. W. Pusey, Chairman of the W&L faculty Committee on Graduate Fellowships. These examinations will be held on July 12, and applications for them must reach the Educational Testing Service in Princeton by June 27.

Professor Bowers also stressed the importance of candidates having an adequate knowledge of French and German, so that time would not have to be wasted in graduate school taking undergraduate courses.

In general, Professor Bowers advised candidates to secure a more accurate knowledge of costs and requirements of graduate study, and to give careful advance consideration to the choice of the university they wish to attend for graduate work.

Washington and Lee students have a fine record in winning Wilson Fellowships, five having obtained the award for 1958. Interested Juniors are urged to consult Dr. Pusey or other members of the local Fellowship Committee at their early convenience this spring.

Netmen Place Third in Conference Tournament

McWilliams, Glauser Lead W&L In Drive For SC Championship

W&L's netmen got off to a strong start, then ran into some stiff opposition from George Washington and Davidson, and wound up in third place in the Southern Conference tennis tournament held last week in Williamsburg.

The Generals finished the three-day tourney with a team total of 19 points. Davidson was second with a team total of 21 points, and GW, which took six victories in nine divisions, took an easy first place with 32 points.

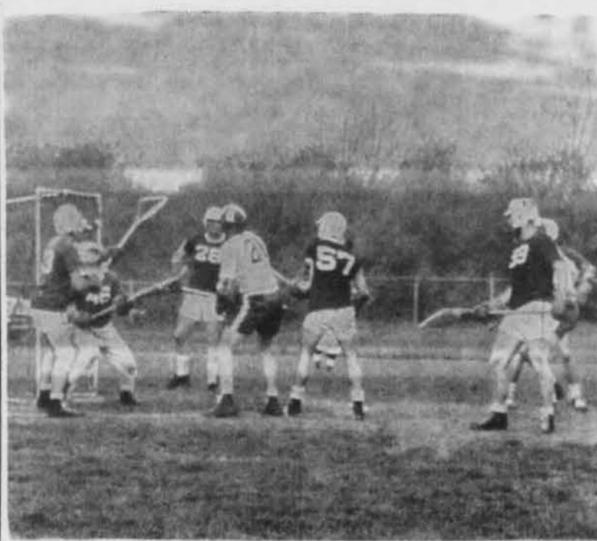

In the first day's competition, the Blue and White swept to victory in all six singles divisions to establish a three-way tie for first place with the Colonials and Wildcats. In the second round Bill McWilliams (No. 2), Mauricio Glauser (No. 4), and Chuck Bowie (No. 6) took singles victories to reach the finals. In the doubles, Glauser and Bowie (2) and Ace Hubbard and Tom Gowenlock (No. 3) registered quarterfinal victories but were defeated in the semi-finals. At the end of the second day W&L had dropped behind GW but retained a slim one-point lead over Davidson.

In the final round the Generals' hopes were dashed by defeats in every division. Top-seeded Jim Tarr came through as expected by defeating Toby Perry of W&M for the No. 1 singles title, while his brother Jack Tarr took the No. 2 title away from Bill McWilliams.

Finals Summary (Singles)

1. Jim Tarr (GW) def. Toby Perry (W&M), 6-4, 4-6, 6-4.
2. Jack Tarr (GW) def. Bill McWilliams (W&L), 6-2, 6-4.
3. Saul Leibowitz (GW) def. Tom McCutcheon (D), 6-3, 6-0.
4. John Bouquet (GW) def. Mauricio Glauser (W&L), 6-1, 4-6, 6-3.
5. Doug Orr (D) def. Jim Whitehead (G.W.), 10-8, 6-1.
6. Dick Hodel (D) def. Chuck Bowie (W&L), 7-5, 6-2.

W&L attack works for a goal against Baltimore University.

Baltimore Tops Stickmen 16-8; Blue Meets Virginia Saturday

By BOB O'BRIEN

Led by Tim Albrecht, who scored 4 of his total of 6 goals in the fourth quarter, the Baltimore University lacrosse men broke an 8 to 8 deadlock and exploded for 8 goals in the final period to clinch the Class B championship, dropping W&L's fighting Generals 16 to 8 last Saturday at Baltimore University.

The Generals, who play one of the toughest lacrosse schedules in the country, started off fast, scoring 2 goals in the first minute and 19 seconds of the first quarter on shots by attackmen Dave Nichols and Ned Pendleton. However, the Bees caught up and went ahead to lead the Generals 6 to 3 at half-time.

With 2:23 gone in the third quarter, midfielder Dave Noble tallied to narrow the margin to 6 to 4. Downey of B. U. came back to increase the Bee's lead to 7 to 4 with 2:36 gone. Successive goals by Nichols, on an assist from midfielder Skip Horst, and Pendleton pulled the Generals within 1 goal of the nationally fourth-ranked Bees. A goal by 42-goal Tim Albrecht with 9:56 gone made the score 8 to 6. However, goals by Horst and Pendleton scored in a period of 19 seconds brought the Blue and White back into the thick of things, knotting the score at 8 all.

In the last quarter a complete about face was experienced as the Maroon and White netted 8 goals in fast and furious succession. Several times they got the extra step on the defensemen, and at least 3 goals were scored before the W&L defense got the chance to set up properly. The B. U. midfielders and attackmen worked the ball well as demonstrated by the fact that 14 of their goals were assisted.

Goalie Jim Lewis played a good game in the goal despite the rocky fourth quarter. He made a total of 22 saves running his season total to 210, and looked good on the clears. Two B. U. goalies had a total of 11 saves between them. Many of the goals scored in the fourth quarter were fired from point blank range around the crease and were almost impossible to stop.

The Generals had several bad breaks throughout the game as well as in the fourth quarter on pipe shots and retrieving ground balls. However, attackmen Nichols and Pendleton, who paced the Blue and White attack with 3 goals apiece, controlled the ball well for the Generals. Albrecht, Downey, and Loewer showed the way for the Bees with 6, 5, and 4 goals respectively. Also,

Baseball Team Ends Season With Virginia

This Saturday the Generals will travel to Charlottesville to play their final baseball game of the season with the University of Virginia. The Blue and White haven't played a game since their stunning 7-6 extra inning upset over Richmond eleven days ago, which snapped the Spiders' nine-game winning streak. Richmond trounced the Cavaliers 18-1 earlier this season.

FRANK HOOPES, W&L's star first baseman, will be the only senior playing his final game for the Generals. Hoopes has been an outstanding defensive player and has contributed a great deal to the Blues' offensive strength this year.

Golf Team Takes Fourth In Big-Six Meet Monday

U.Va., led by Jordan Ball, won the state Big Six Golf Tournament at Hot Springs yesterday, while VPI finished second. The Washington and Lee team came in fourth behind William and Mary. Ned Baber finished in a tie for third with a 158, only four strokes behind the winner, Jordan Ball.

W&L ended the golf season with a 6-4 record in dual meets. Coach Tombley stated that his team is better suited to match play than to medal play, as can easily be seen by a look at the record. Twombly also said that with just a little luck, the linksmen could have had an 8-2 season. Ned Baber did not play as well as expected, partly because he could not practice three days of the week. All in all, however, it was a pretty successful season, in dual meets, anyway.

Captain for the team will be elected sometime next week.

Thinclads Bow in SC Meet

Thursday the W&L thinclads traveled to Davidson, N.C., to compete in the 34th annual Southern Conference track championship. Defending champion William and Mary nipped the freshman-littered squad of the Citadel by 3½ points to win the meet. The Indians mustered five first places in the finals and finished with 47½ points to 44 for the Citadel.

Washington and Lee was only able to garner one place as Captain Skip Rohnke took a fourth in the javelin with a heave of 183 feet 10½ inches. The mile relay team of Dwight Chamberlain, Bill Offutt, Nathan Simpson and Jack Blakeslee also did very well as they covered the distance in 3:32.2. This time was three-tenths off the best previous time, but considering the condition of the track, it was an excellent showing.

The meet was supposed to be a hotly contested battle between VMI and W&M. But the injury ridden Cadets were able to do very little towards earning the title. The Citadel made it very hard on the Indians throughout the meet, and it was not until the next to last event that W&M was able to assure itself of a victory. The Indians took a first and second in the high jump, the winner setting a new conference record, and mustered nine points to put them ahead of the Citadel. The irony of the meet was that Citadel was last in total points last year. This year the South Carolinians acquired several outstanding freshmen

Civil Liberties Talk Tomorrow

And from "Atlanta Constitution: "The ACLU... has been praised for its work by such men as President Truman, Thomas Dewey, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur. The ACLU is a group which fights for the right of men everywhere to free speech, fair trial, and equality before the law... Its leadership is as far removed from communism as Gen. MacArthur himself."

The San Francisco Chronicle summed up the purpose of the ACLU in its statement: "Both locally and nationally, the American Civil Liberties Union has functioned effectively for the preservation of the Bill of Rights..."

Some of the more prominent members of the National Committee of the ACLU include: former attorney, Gen. Francis Biddle, Pearl Buck, Van Wyck Brooks, Henry Seidel Canby, Henry Steel Commager, Robert E. Cushman, Harry E. Fosdick and many others.

Fraternities Elect Officers

Several fraternities on W&L campus have recently held elections of officers for next semester.

Don Morine will be Sigma Chi president next year. A rising senior, Morine was recently named business manager of next year's Ring-tum Phi. Mike Winston was elected vice-president, Amzee Barbour elected secretary, and Clem Gunn is the new Sigma Chi treasurer.

The SAE's elected Ed Woodson as their new president. Woodson is also president of the 1959 Finals dance set. Ed Good was elected vice-president, Jim Crews was elected secretary, and Bob Collins was elected SAE Treasurer.

Dick Gwathmey, rising senior from Baltimore, was elected president of Beta Theta Pi lodge, Owen Harper was elected vice-president and Sam Merrick named secretary. The new Beta treasurer is Ned Baber and Sandy Larson was elected recorder.

In the Kappa Sig elections, Joe Budd Stevens, rising senior from Hunting, W. Va., was elected president and Rard Beville was elected vice-president. Phil Grose is the new Kappa Sig secretary and elected co-treasurers were Nathan Claunch and Bob Major.

Toynbee Discusses City Problems

THE HISTORIAN cited many examples of "super-saturation" of city populations in "nonwestern" countries. The discovery of oil in Saudi Arabia, and its resulting technological emphasis, accounts for an urban population that did not exist there before, he said.

He said many oasis orchards in that country have been left to decay while people go off to the cities to work for the American oil companies.

In Australia, he noted, 40 per cent of the 10 million inhabitants live in the cities of Sydney, Melbourne and Brisbane despite the fact that the country's big business is wool—an agricultural industry.

Japan, he said, "is the most highly urbanized country I have ever seen." Even the countryside is congested, he said.

A growing bureaucracy in national governments also is contributing to the growth of the cities, he said. This is true regardless of politics or ideologies, he said. He cited Washington, D. C., as an example.

Technological advances, he said, are making people think. Western technology, he said, is coming in all over the nonwestern world and has awakened the majority of the people "to the idea they may be able to change their lives." He saw this as of "more moment" in the future of the world than the present struggle between the western nations and communism.

Baltimore Stickmen Win

(Continued from page three) for W&L Horst had one goal and one assist and Noble tallied once. The Blue and White meet Class A U.Va. here next Saturday, May 17. It is extremely doubtful whether or not high scoring midfielder Henry LeBrun, who has missed the last 2 games with a knee injury, will see action. However, the Generals are determined to give the Wahos the fight of their lives and expect to close out the season on a happy note. The Cavaliers have edged W&L by one goal each of the last three years.

Dildoe Gapes at May Day

(Continued from page two) meal of cucumber sandwiches and tea. Sniffing rushed back to the Dusenbergs to fortify himself with a little grappa before the dance. Disdainfully he flipped away his cigarette, squared his shoulders, and went off to join Dildoe and the dates. Together they wandered to the tennis courts and the dance, from whence could be heard the melodic sounds of an orchestra turning up. After an hour's dancing with chaperones beaming like mother hens at their little charges, the figure was announced.

For twenty minutes fifty couples shuffled aimlessly around the floor, finally forming one gigantic circle which whirled around faster and faster until it smashed against the tennis nets, which had not been removed. In the confusion Dildoe lost track of Sniffing, and went off in search of him. He finally found him under the Dusenbergs, a happy smile on his face and still clutching his (now empty) bottle of grappa. It had been one tire check too many. At this point a roly-poly chaperone approached him and said:

"How did you and your friend enjoy the dance?" Dildoe smiled and said: "You know what they said to Buckley..."

Citadel Thinclads Romp

(Continued from page three) who should do well in the coming years. Despite their showing, the Generals enjoyed a successful meet outdoors as they finished the season with a 4-3 record. This is the first winning year for a W&L track team in ten years. Coach Norm Lord has high hopes for next year, as most of his outstanding individual performers were freshmen and sophomores.
