

Student Opinion Varies On IFC Rush Plan

By ROGER PAINE
Friday Managing Editor

Since the IFC proposal to move fraternity rushing up four weeks in the school year has been released, student bull sessions have taken a serious turn. The proposal has been intelligently aired at almost every fraternity meeting and in discussions in the dorms and in the respective houses. Needless to say, Rush Week touches the students at Washington and Lee even more closely, if possible, than the hours of combo parties.

The student body is split up into three basic groups of opinion. One of these groups feels that the new proposal is the best thing for W&L and for the fraternity system as a whole, that it far surpasses the old system in many points, and that it should be passed.

The second group feels that the present rushing system has proved itself, that it has many strong points, and that it would be ridiculous to change. The third and strongest group feels that the IFC proposal should be passed, but only because the faculty will ram something even worse down the students' throats if it isn't.

The Faculty Standpoint

A good number of students firmly believe that the present system should be changed. The faculty is in favor of a change because they want to get their hands on the incoming freshmen before the fraternity men do. Many faculty members feel that the average freshman coming to W&L gets a bad impression of what the school is all about by drinking beer and talking about parties for more than a week before seeing any books or the inside of a classroom.

Fraternity men would like to see the system changed for a different reason. Dave Peters, president of the Sigma Nu house, feels that while it is good to assimilate freshmen into the social life of the school as quickly as possible, the new system would make it easier on the freshmen and on the fraternities too. The freshmen would have more time to get a good grasp on the academic and social atmosphere at Washington and Lee, and the fraternity men would have more time to organize their rush plans.

This brings up the matter of the month-long period between the beginning of school and the time when the S and U reports come out. This has been designated in the IFC proposal as the time to begin formal rushing. At present all that has been stated by the IFC is that any rushing during this time would be informal. If a fraternity were to have a combo party during that time, freshmen would be allowed to go to it, but any moves would be left to the discretion of the freshman.

George Honts, who led the IFC committee which presented the new rushing proposal, made it clear that the present plan is only a skeleton of what is hoped for, and that in the coming year the necessary refinements on this four week period would be made. It is the feeling of most fraternity men that contact with freshmen during this time would have to be on a casual level and no higher. Otherwise the four weeks would be hard on fraternity men and on freshmen to an extent not even approached under the present system.

Tim Ireland expressed the strongest sentiments for the group of students who are opposed to any change in the present system. He said: "I'm convinced that the present rush system is best for W&L, and I see no valid reason to change it. The present system has proven itself. Any maladjustment of the freshmen under the present system would only be intensified by this new system due to the four weeks of social pressure. I do not believe that any so-called maladjustment now is due to the fraternities.

The IFC's Bob Doenges

"If this proposal is passed it will be because of the fear that the recent faculty decision on combos has engendered in us, making us afraid something worse will be forced on us by the faculty if we don't act ourselves. I certainly do not think that the new proposal should be passed on its own merit."

Those students in the third group—that is, those who feel that the proposal should be passed for the very reason that Tim stated: faculty pressure—point to the actions that the faculty has taken on combos. It is obvious that they are going to do anything they want to, and the student body cannot stop them, so it would be better to pass this than to wait until the faculty takes action.

300 Alumni Arrive For '62 Reunion

Over 300 alumni and their wives are at Washington and Lee this weekend for reunions of the classes of 1912, 1922, 1937, and 1952.

A flurry of activities is scheduled for the former students, who include both academic and law school graduates. Alumni secretary William Washburn said this year marks the first time the Tucker Law Lectures have been combined with reunion activities.

"The unusual number of events has increased our alumni interests this year," Washburn said. "We expect a 20 per cent increase in attendance to reunion foundations this year."

Registration for the four classes officially opened at 2 p.m. this afternoon. Campus tours were conducted by members of the Student Service Society through the afternoon. Late in the day President and Mrs. Fred C. Cole held a reception for returning graduates at the president's home.

The traditional "State of the University" reports by President Cole and the university's deans will be given at 10 a.m. tomorrow in Lee Chapel.

President Cole will be the featured speaker at a 1:15 p.m. Saturday luncheon in Evans Dining Hall for the alumni.

Tomorrow afternoon the alumni will have an opportunity to tour the science building currently under construction, and the new dorm which is near completion. Members of the IBM data processing staff will give special demonstrations on W&L's new IBM 1620 computer during the afternoon.

Saturday afternoon will also see a meeting of the Washington and Lee Law School Association, composed of all law alumni. Law alumni from classes other than the reunion classes have been invited to attend the meeting.

Rising junior Buck Ogilvie and rising sophomore Ashley Allen will be seeking the remaining two EC posts for the University Party, as will rising junior Jim Sylvester and rising sophomore Lamar Lamb on the Independent Party ticket.

Meade Christian, a Phi Gam, is no stranger to W&L politics. He served on the EC this year, and was the Independent Party's candidate for vice president in the recent student body elections. Christian, an Honor Roll and Dean's List student, is also in ODK, SWMSFC, AED, Phi Eta Sigma, and the "13" Club. A member of Phi Beta Kappa, he also received the Phi Beta Kappa Outstanding Sophomore Award. Christian was a 1961 Fancy Dress president and is a dorm counselor.

Ed Holmes, SAE, was recently named Ring-tum Phi Business Manager. Holmes, a house officer, is a member of AED, the Cotillion Club, "13" Club, and the Publications Board. He is a Dean's List and Honor Roll student and was initiated into Phi Eta Sigma his freshman year.

Running with Holmes on the University Party ticket, Frank Young, a Phi Delta, is president-elect of the Dance Board and served this year as president of the Dance Board Advisory Council. A Dean's list student, Young is a member of the Cold Check Committee, White Friars, Mongolian Minks, SWMSFC, and the Student Service Society, and the House Managers Association. He is a Ring-tum Phi columnist, treasurer of his fraternity, and has been a member of the W&L Glee Club. Bob Holland is president of Sigma Delta Chi, Senior Editor of Home Edition, and vice president of Lambda Chi Alpha. Holland, also an Honor Roll and Dean's List student, has worked on the Ring-tum Phi and holds a duPont Communication Scholarship.

Jim Sylvester, Independent Party candidate for Junior EC, plays varsity football. He is a Dean's List and Honor Roll student, having been initiated into Phi Eta Sigma his freshman year. Sylvester holds a Baker Scholarship, is a dorm counselor, a member of the Student Control Committee, and a Kappa Sigma house officer. He has also worked for the Ring-tum Phi.

University Party candidate Buck Ogilvie, a Beta, plays varsity football and lacrosse. Ogilvie, an Honor Roll and Dean's List student, was named Outstanding Freshman and served this past year as Sophomore EC member. He was a vice president of Springs, and is a member of Phi Eta Sigma, SWMFSC, and the Calyx staff. He was recently named a dorm counselor for next year.

Lamar Lamb, a non-fraternity man and the Independent Party's nominee for Sophomore EC played freshman football and is a member of the UCA and the Glee Club. In high school, Lamb was Lieutenant Governor of Boys' State, Governor

Maj. Roxbury Transferred For Staff Chief Assignment

By RANDY JONES

Major E. C. Roxbury, Professor of Military Science and Tactics at W&L for three years, is leaving his post to attend the Armed Forces Service School in Norfolk. At the school he will receive training to familiarize him for possible positions with the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

Major Roxbury's three years have seen a number of improvements in the local ROTC department.

Among programs instituted by Major Roxbury during his three-year stay here, none is more impressive than the "esprit de corps" that he has managed to inject into a previously lackadaisical outfit.

A material example of this newly felt pride is the distinctive Washington and Lee military crest which was designed by the Major. Demanding more work than students had been used to, he has, by example, instigated a feeling of professionalism which is invaluable in any military career.

In line with the continually changing army, it was necessary to revamp the old regiment into a battle group in 1959, and to change from a battle group to a battalion the next year. To make the usual military manual dogma interesting, Maj. Roxbury initiated a visiting lecture series which supplies ROTC students with valuable background material.

Major Roxbury

Commenting on his years at W&L, Maj. Roxbury said: "I loved it, and wouldn't mind staying. Washington and Lee is a school which has and is making continual success in educating individuals who attend the school, and they in turn have and will benefit the country."

Roxbury is a West Point graduate and Korean War veteran, and holds a Master's degree.

Law Lectures Begin Today

By MALCOLM MORRIS

The president of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York will deliver the 14th annual John Randolph Tucker Lectures in Law at W&L today and tomorrow.

Orison S. Marden, a member of the law firm of White and Case, will lecture on "Equal Access to Justice." He will speak tonight at 8:00 on "The Challenge" and Saturday at noon on "The Opportunity." Both lectures will be given in Lee Chapel.

Marden received his LL.B. degree from New York University in 1929. He has been recognized for his work as chairman of the National Council on Legal Clinics, a project of the National Aid and Defender Association in cooperation of the American Bar Association and the Association of American Law Schools.

Marden is a former president of the American Bar Foundation.

SIPA's Baffled By Current Events Quiz

By STEVE SMITH

George Romney turned up as president of the AFL, General Motors, Chrysler, and Ford last week in the SIPA current events quiz given high school students attending the journalism conference here. (Romney is actually associated with American Motors.)

Romney was only one of a host of misplaced persons on the quiz. All personalities on the list had been prominent in some recent news event.

Spessard Holland, senior Senator from Florida, was thought by someone to be the King of the Netherlands.

Gen. Edwin Walker was described as "the next man to be shot into space." Also in the space line was Soviet astronaut Titov, who became the head of the Yugoslavian government, engaged in an argument with Khrushchev. One U.S. astronaut didn't fare so well—he was named the boxer who killed Benny "Kid" Paret.

Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel of New Orleans, involved in a segregation battle, was described as a "Catholic Archbishop who survived persecution during World War II." He was also called a German pianist who is becoming popular in the United States.

Katherine Anne Porter, writer who has spent some time at W&L, was given the post of physician to President Kennedy.

Newly-appointed Supreme Court Justice Byron White was called a Briton "who is a member of Ban the Bomb." Robert Weaver of the Housing Administration was labeled "head of the John Birch Society; a radical organization," and "a Senator who attacked a civil right bill."

James B. Reston, New York Times columnist who attended the convention as a featured speaker, was rewarded for his efforts by being described as the "President of Inland Steel."

Bernis Owens, the PFC whose criticism of Kennedy's call-up of the reservists almost earned him a court martial, was described as "a great polo player who just fell off his horse" and a "U.S. playwright who has a play off Broadway."

The Wife of U-2 pilot Gary Powers was called the wife of a "U.S. spy" who recently was stricken with food poisoning.

Perhaps the most-maligned personage on the quiz list was Miss Loubelline, a character in the "Pogo" comic strip who was called one of the characters in "Smiling Jack."

The Publications Board this week elected George Honts editor of the Southern Collegian, and Bob Payne its representative to the Executive Committee. Payne, new editor of the Calyx, will replace Bill Roberts in the EC post.

Roanoke TV To Broadcast Debate Team Again

WLS-TV in Roanoke (Channel 10) will feature the W&L debate team May 12 at 12:30 p.m. As a public service, the station will present a debate between W&L and Randolph-Macon on the question, Resolved: That the United States should withdraw from the United Nations.

The debate will precede the broadcasting of the national championship debate match.

Four Errors Give Victory To Tigers

The Washington and Lee baseball team suffered a 10-5 setback at Wilson Field on Tuesday at the hands of Hampden-Sydney.

Going into the seventh inning, Coach Joe Lyles' nine was behind 5-4, but due to five hits and five runs by H-S, assisted by four W&L errors, the Tigers had plenty of room to breathe with a 10-4 lead.

Mason McGowin, the starting pitcher for the Generals, lasted only 3 1/3 innings, and was replaced by Phil Sharp after giving up four walks, four runs and four hits while recording three strike outs.

Pitchers on Parade

Nearly the entire pitching staff made an appearance as Sharp was hooked in the sixth and replaced by Louie Paterno, who lasted only an inning being replaced by Brice Gamber who finished the game. Coach Lyles was pleased with Gamber's performance, saying that "Brice appeared more relaxed with more control than he's shown the last few games."

Jim Russ and Bob Williams led the hitting attack for the Generals with two hits apiece. Russ connected for two singles in three at bats, and Williams collected a triple and a single. Ned Hobbs and Park Gilmore each collected a single also.

Hampden-Sydney's eleven hit attack was led by Charlie Cook who belted out a double and two singles.

Coach Lyles said that Tuesday's game was an example of the tough luck which the Generals have encountered throughout the season. He added that "when the pitchers are on the hitters aren't, and visa versa." Another problem is that stolen bases by the opposition are hurting tremendously. Finally, Lyles said that his big hitters, Russ, Hobbs, and Monier, aren't coming up with the RBIs when they're vitally needed.

The teams record now stands at 0-7, but hopes are high that the team will get in the win column this weekend when they play William and Mary on Friday and the University of Richmond on Saturday.

Vardaman Warms-up For Match

Linkmen Defeat Colonials; Season Record Now At 4-3

The Washington and Lee golf team scored an impressive 6 1/2-1/2 victory over George Washington on Tuesday. The out-matched team from George Washington arrived with only five players, necessitating a change in procedure.

Jack Vardaman tied in individual play which gave George Washington their single one-half point. Grantham Couth recorded a very strong 8-6 victory over his opponent and was team medalist with a 73. In best ball competition, Vardaman and Couch took a 4-3 victory.

In other matches, Ronnie Stewart copped a 4-3 decision and Steve Henry won an impressive 7-5 victory. Best ball won 4-3. In the final match, Paul McBride defeated his opponent 3-2.

The high point of the afternoon's play came when Stewart and Henry drove their electric golf cart into a ditch on the seventh hole.

The team played Bridgewater here this afternoon in an attempt to improve on its 4-3 season record.

Generals' Track Team Sweeps Triangular Meet

The Washington and Lee track team ran away with a triangle meet with Elon and East Carolina here Tuesday scoring 94 1/3 points. East Carolina was second with 44 1/3 points and Elon was third with 31 1/3 points. In the sixteen events Washington and Lee took eleven first places, and with these two victories the team brought its record to 6-1.

Skip Essex raced to a 50.0 victory in the 440 and Jim Hickey earned a win by burning up a hundred yards in 9.8 seconds, his best time this year. Hickey's school record is 9.7 seconds, established last year. Distance runner Mike Shank won the half mile and placed second in the mile. Since Mike felt the need for more exercise, he went on to run the two mile unofficially.

Robin Kell added 10 points to the team's effort by easily out-jumping his competitors in the high jump and in the hop, step, and jump. John Pearson, too, was a double winner in the high and low hurdles. Henry Sackett scored nine points with a first place in the broad jump and a second place in the hop, step, and jump.

Other winners were Dave Munroe in the shot-put, Dave Callaway in the pole vault, and freshman Ken Boiarsky in the javelin. Coach McLaughlin states that Boiarsky has excellent potential.

Saturday the track team winds up its season by going to Lynchburg for the state meet. Everyone on the team will attend the meet. Jim Hickey will be defending his 100 yard dash title.

The results of the Elon-E.C.C. meet:

Mile—Miller (E), Shank (W&L), Kead (W&L), Patton (W&L) Time 4:41.3.

440—Essex (W&L), Tart (E), Bass (E.C.C.), Moore (E). Time 50.0.

Rain Halts Tennis Match

The Generals' tennis team was stopped short of a win today as the rain interrupted their match with Hampden-Sydney there.

When the match finally was stopped, the netmen had a 2-1 lead over their opponents. Captain John Baker, who has been having difficulty with his game this season, dropped the first match to Hatcher of Hampden-Sydney, 6-2, 6-4.

The two wins of the day were registered in the number two and three positions. Freshman Randy Jones and Jim DeYoung playing their usual fine tennis beat their men, but not without a certain amount of difficulty. Jones came out on top of a three set match, 4-6 7-5, 7-5; and DeYoung, who breezed through the first set, 6-1, found it hard winning the second, 8-6.

Both Jim Mell and Bud Hollman had captured the first sets from their opponents, 6-3 and 6-4 respectively.

This Friday the team plays Bridgewater on the home courts at 2:30. Then the following Tuesday, the Generals travel to Charlottesville to meet their arch-rival, the University of Virginia.

Is The Faculty Forcing Rush Changes On Students? Parties Select Class Slates

Dave Montgomery said, "I think the present system has its weaknesses, but at this school it is the best system you could find." He has, however, placed his position with this third group.

Some students have pointed out that W&L was rated in the top ten small men's colleges back when there were fraternity combos during dance functions and just about any other time too, and rush was at the beginning of the year, and that these things are actually an integral part of the individual personality of Washington and Lee.

'Dirty' Rushing

One obvious weakness of the proposed system is that it would leave the door open to dirty rushing. The IFC committee feels, however, that the advantages of the proposal far outweigh the chance that dirty rush might be increased. The gains from the system would include "improved academic environment, abolition of hell week, and an opportunity for the freshman to orientate himself to the university's way of life."

Also, the IFC would have all next year to iron out problem areas which might lead to dirty rush situations. Some of these problem areas are whether or not fraternity parties should be open or closed, and what kind of dating situations should be allowed between freshmen and fraternity men; what extent casual greeting would be carried out on campus, and what should be done about contact between the freshmen and fraternity men in unavoidable situations such as on the athletic field and in the gym.

A point of major concern is the effect on the freshman of worrying about fraternities for this month after he gets to school. Under the current way of doing things, at least the freshman has the "which fraternity to join" question behind him, and he can concentrate on his work. No matter how many regulations might be placed on the freshmen and upperclassmen during this month, the freshmen would still feel social pressure.

In walking down the colonnade a freshman might pass a fraternity man from a house he was interested in, but not being able to remember his name, he might worry about it. Little things such as this worry the freshman when he is concerned about joining a fraternity, and there is no freshman who enters Washington and Lee, beyond those who have already made up their mind to remain independent, who is not worried about what fraternity he will join or if he will receive a bid.

Freshmen would be under pressure to look their best and to always try to make good impressions for an entire month, and this could hurt their powers of concentration on academic matters.

Fraternities themselves wouldn't have to base any actions on snap decisions about rushees. The superficiality of the present system would be completely eliminated.

Some fraternity men envision "bandit groups" of actives running around on the night of an open party weekend trying to pick up as many freshmen as possible in order to get them over to their own party. This would be a point of considerable friction. It is also felt that the day on which the freshmen are to see all 18 fraternities at open houses would have to be changed in some way.

NOTICE

There will be an Independent Party beer party Saturday afternoon at the Lambda Chi Alpha house from 2:00 to 6:00. A combo will be provided and all students are invited to attend.

Tradition of Proper Dress Has Not Lost Any Support

said or done about conventional dress late at night.

Some people will say that if you let assimilation slide a little, W&L will be just another little Harry High School College in a short time. If that is the case, why hasn't it happened here already? Because the students have had the sense not to let the situation get out of hand. Is there any reason to believe the students are losing this sense now?

There doesn't seem to be any indication in this direction. How many people have you noticed lately going to classes without coat and tie?

Washington and Lee's standards aren't going to be lowered. The type of men who are students here won't let it happen. The traditions of Washington and Lee are meant for serious consideration. I wonder if they are treated with this consideration by the card-carrying assimilators hiding behind the Columns?

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

to describe the power politics of W&L. Well, this is just so much horse excrement. I agree with Hugh Trout that we are flagrantly neglecting our responsibilities to ourselves and to Washington and Lee.

Super-Saturated with Honor

In a school reputed to be super-saturated with honor-conscious gentlemen, it is disgustingly hypocritical to see upperclassmen cajole, coerce, and lie to freshmen in order to brainwash them into blindly voting for University Party candidates. I thought it was obvious that Tim Ireland was the best man for president. I thought it was equally obvious that Meade Christian was the best man for vice-president. But it didn't seem to make any difference. We weren't even told that the University Party slate was the best; we were just told it was the one we had to vote for, so we did.

Now that Executive Committee elections and class elections are coming up, the same thing is happening all over again. All sorts of pre-election promises are made. Or, if they aren't openly stated, they are at least hinted at. The kind of promises I mean are the loaded little phrases like: "Well, if we are elected, that will put your house in a good position for committee appointments." Every conceivable inducement is used to bribe everybody into voting a "straight" ticket.

The white collar gentlemen of Washington and Lee who speak so idealistically about honor and tradition are just so many hypocrites wallowing in a bed of self-satisfied scheming. When I first came here I saw and felt a solid and sound college atmosphere with beautiful traditions and worthwhile objectives. Now, everything here has become a meaningless sham. The only time there is ever any sincerity shown is at a keg party—and even then I wonder if everyone is as uproariously drunk and happy as they pretend.

As far as I am concerned, you can have your studs and you can keep your cliques and party politics. I am leaving here next year because I still believe there might be some place that isn't corroded with sanctimonious hypocrites. God help America—and the world—if there isn't!
