McLaughlin Named P. E. Head; Twombly To Stay As Lecturer

Washington and Lee University head football coach Lee M. McLaughlin Thursday was named Director of Athletics and head of the department of physical education. The appointment by the University's board of trustees is effective Sept. 1, 1968, said Dr. William W. Pusey III, W&L acting president, in making the announcement.

IFC Chairman To Investigate Rule Violations

Rumors that several fraternities might face prosecution by the IFC Judicial Board for failure to obtain permission for parties on the weekend of December 8 and 9 have been denied by IFC president Ellis Zahra.

Zahra said that an investigation by IFC social chairman Ed Allen showed that only one house had apparently failed to comply with IFC rules requiring advance notice of parties. He added, however, that it is not yet certain that any violation has been committed.

No action is likely to be taken until after Christmas holidays.

Ariel Distributed Today

Ariel, the student literary magazine, will be distributed free to students today at fraternities, the bookstore, or McCormick Library.

McLaughlin, 50, will succeed Edwin P. (Cy) Twombly, who is retiring at the end of the current academic year as athletic director and head of the department. Twombly will continue as golf coach and lecturer in physical education in 1968-69.

Like Twombly, McLaughlin will be responsible for the direction of the University's program of intercollegiate athletics, physical education and intramural sports.

Dr. Pusey also announced that McLaughlin will continue as head football coach, the position he has held since coming to Washington and Lee in 1957.

Faced with the job of revitalizing W&L's football program following desubsidization of all athletics in 1954, McLaughlin suffered through early lean years (only one victory in 16 games). Then, beginning in 1960, his teams embarked on a three-year record of 25 victories against only one defeat and a tie. This included unbeaten seasons in 1960 and 1961.

McLaughlin's overall record as head football coach is 48 victories, 43 defeats and four ties.

Twombly joined the W&L athletic staff in 1921 as coach of golf and swimming. Since then his teams have recorded more than 400 victories.

Twombly's swimming teams once captured four consecutive Southern Conference championships, and for five years in a row they never lost a dual meet. His golf teams won two Southern Conference titles and four state championships in compiling an overall 167-102 record.

Twombly, 70, was named athletic director in 1954.

McLaughlin is a native of Rockbridge County, grew up in the Richmond area and gained football fame as a lineman at the University of Virginia from 1938-41. He was named to the All-American third team in 1940 and played one year with the professional Green Bay Packers before entering naval service in World War II.

Twombly is an outstanding athlete in several sports. As a professional baseball pitcher for 15 years, including two seasons in the major leagues with the St. Louis Cardinals and the Chicago White Sox, Twombly played with or against the likes of Walter Johnson, Tris Speaker, Babe Ruth and Ty Cobb.

Liquor-By-The-Drink Supported By Levin

By FRANK ROSE

"After dark, history is not enough." This was the attitude expressed by Bernard Levin, a member of the Virginia House of Delegates from Norfolk, in a speech Tuesday night before the Political Science and Young Democrat clubs.

Levin spoke for "a number of Virginia legislators" when he said that liquor-by-the-drink was necessary to bring conventions and tourists into the state. He added that "Virginia is a step behind the times" in this respect.

The issue concerns the passage of a bill by the General Assembly authorizing local option on liquor-by-the-drink, or "shall localities have the right to vote on the right to have whiskey served under the strict supervision of the existing Alcoholic Beverage Control Board?"

If this bill were passed, Levin stated, the rules on the sale of liquor would be much the same as those already applied to the sale of beer and wine. This means that the people of each locality would be allowed to decide if liquor would be sold by the drink in their areas.

Levin cited numerous reports, including one prepared by Richmond Professional Institute, stating that the assumption that "prohibition is directly related to consumption is misleading," and that "prohibition is of little or no significance" in the occurrences of problems with alcohol.

When asked about the chances of the bill's passage by the 1968 General Assembly, Levin said that the problem with the bill is "just basic politics," with urban areas in favor of the bill and rural areas opposed to it. However, he pointed out that the power is shifting to the urban areas of Virginia.

Ring-tum Phi Takes Break

Due to the ensuing Christmas vacation, the Ring-tum Phi will not publish again until Tuesday, January 9, 1968. This is to give the staff of the Friday Edition a well-deserved rest. In keeping with our editorial policy, we cannot speak for the staff of the Tuesday Edition.

Group Opposes Foreign Policy Over Viet War

"Students Against War," a W&L student group "stressing the inherent contradictions in U.S. policy towards Vietnam and urging withdrawal of U.S. forces in action there," was formed last Wednesday.

The founders are Bill Timmerman, '69, from Ridgewood, N. J.; Jeff Thistle, '68, Delray, Fla.; Ed Dood, '68, Louisville, Ky.; Tom Brickhouse, '69, Lynchburg, Va.; Bill Rambo, '70, Columbus, Ohio; Mr. John Fielder, instructor in philosophy, and several ROTC students who did not divulge their names.

Although specific action was not mentioned, Timmerman said, "As a student group at W&L we cannot decide the specific practices of U.S. foreign policy (i.e., the war) but we can aid in determining the basic political attitude of our student body towards this war."

W&L Given Accreditation From Southern Association

Washington and Lee University has received official notice from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools that its accreditation has been completed to the satisfaction of the regional accrediting agency.

In a letter to Washington and Lee's acting president, Dr. William W. Pusey III, the association's Commission on Colleges reported action taken at the College Delegates Assembly held in Dallas, Tex., on Nov. 27-30.

Required Self-Evaluation

All colleges and universities belonging to the Southern Association are required to undergo periodic self-evaluation and scrutiny from a visiting panel of educators in order to gain reaffirmation of their accreditation. Accredited institutions must meet established standards in eleven major areas.

Washington and Lee began its self-study in October, 1964, and submitted its final report to the Commission on Colleges in September 1966.

Commission Visited Last Year

A committee of presidents, professors, deans, and other administrative officers—representing nine Southern colleges and universities—visited Washington and Lee in November, 1966. Because of the timing of the association's annual meetings, the visiting committee's report and Washington and Lee's self-study report were not acted upon officially until last month.

Washington and Lee's self-study is an impressive document, both in physical size and in its scope. It runs for nearly 500 pages, weighs nearly four pounds, and contains some 300 recommendations for strengthening Washington and Lee and planning for its future.

The visiting committee's report was smaller—only 60 pages in length.

Candlelight Service One of Many Projects Undertaken By UFOCC

BY CHIP HARRIS

The Robert E. Lee Memorial Parish House hosted the annual Candlelight Service Thursday night, presented through the efforts of the United Federation of Christian Concern (UFOCC). The traditional Christian worship, organized by Dave Cummings, consisted of nine bible readings and nine carols. Readers included faculty and students. The Washington and Lee Glee Club and the John A. Graham Brass choir assisted in the carols.

The Candlelight Service is one of the many projects and organizations which come under the auspices of UFOCC. The Federation is directed by a steering committee, which meets weekly and consists of Jay Thieme, Chairman; Dave Cummings, Secretary; Bo Chapman, Publicity; and a representative from each church in the area.

Sub-committees include the Boys' Club, which is directed by Bob Munson; the Clothing Drive Committee, organized by John Carrere; the Randolph-Macon Intercollegiate Forum, headed by Bob Cowperthwaite; The Hollins Forum, directed by Bo Chapman; the Baldwin Forum, supervised by Steve Kozlar; and the Mountain Mission Committee, which is led by Bob Herring.

A tutoring service has been set up for any students at W&L requiring additional help in a course. The faculty has been provided with a list of those who are willing to donate a certain number of hours per week, free of charge to help a fellow student. A tutoring program to aid the local high school is currently being developed.

The film forum, under the guidance of Rev. Tom Brown, has proven highly successful thus far. Both "The War Game" and "La Strada" were well attended and here after optional discussion groups will meet after future films.

Sponsoring certain speakers is also done by UFOCC. Dr. Joseph Flecher and Dr. Paul Lehman, both presenting different views on morality, were

A Message From The President

I would like to take this opportunity through The Ring-tum Phi to wish all students and their families a joyful holiday season. This vacation is well deserved and, I'm sure, very welcome.

I earnestly hope that the holiday will be safe as well as pleasant, that no tragedy will mar the joy of us all, and that Christmas will bring happiness to every home.

We shall look forward to your return in January refreshed and ready for the challenges of the new year.

Group Organizes Effort To Protest SAC Penalty

An effort to disclaim the Student Affairs Committee has been organized by a group from Kappa Sig fraternity because of disciplinary action taken against one of their brothers.

Posters, which were placed throughout the campus, and a large sign in front of the Kappa Sigma house were prepared by this group to protest the stiff punishment given a Kappa Sigma sophomore who was convicted of burning the facade of the Lambda Chi house. The student was placed on social probation until the middle of second semester and conduct probation until the end of the school term of this year. The posters were worded in this way:

STOP!
 try to understand and appreciate the Drive,
 Perseverance,

and... fairness
 of Your Student Affairs Committee

—Friends of the Torch
 The sign erected in the front of the Kappa Sigma house reads:

LOVE AND HONOR
 THY
 STUDENT AFFAIRS COMMITTEE

The posters were placed in several classrooms on campus and along the columns and the doors of the colonnade; some were even taped to the windows of cars owned by Kappa Sigmas.

Dean Edward Atwood, chairman of the Student Affairs Committee, expressed no objections to the posters.

Reason For Survival

It used to be called the Vigilance Committee, and its black-robed members were empowered to paddle any freshman for forgetting to wear his blue beanie and green tie to every social gathering. When corporal punishment was abolished it continued to levy fines on offenders against tradition; and if fines proved unimpressive to the coatless, tieless student, it could arrange through the EC for social probation. "Dictatorial little cabal!" said the columnists. "Legal buffoonery and petty tyranny!" said the reformers. But the Assimilation Committee has fallen on hard times now, and when the Forensic Union met Wednesday night in Payne 6 to debate whether or not it should be abolished, there were only seventeen students and a dog who cared enough to attend.

Still, the debate was interesting. It got some things out into the open that everybody has been thinking for a long time—that the Assimilation Committee ought to be abolished; and also some things which people have perhaps not been thinking about—that the Committee's work actually serves a useful function.

Dick Penny and Rudd Smith, defending abolition of the committee, probably had the sympathies of most W&L students on their side. A vote of the spectators before the debate started showed that 5 were in favor of ending the committee while 3 favored keeping it on.

Their arguments centered chiefly around the committee's ineffectiveness. It did not succeed in enforcing conventional dress even when it had fining powers, they pointed out, and is even less capable of doing so now. Its meetings are infrequent (the last was a month ago). Its concrete activities are restricted to preparation of the Student Handbook, arranging Orientation Week so as to allow freshmen the maximum opportunity to join W&L organizations and activities, and visiting freshmen in the dorms once or twice a year to answer questions and give advice on the subject of W&L traditions. And even these activities, they argued, could be performed more economically and effectively if they were spread out among other groups. The enforcement of conventional dress and wearing of name tags might be better left up to the IFC (which supplies them anyway) and the dorm counselors (who see the freshmen every day). The speaking tradition should be the responsibility of all upperclassmen. The Student Handbook could be handled by the IFC.

On the face of it, they were right: the concrete activities of the present Assimilation Committee doubtless could be conducted by other groups and organizations. Presumably, this is what the spectators felt Wednesday night when, after the debate, they voted 8-5 in favor of abolishing the Committee.

But one other point was made during the debate which seemed to us highly significant. It was implicit in almost all the discussion, and it was explicitly stated by Smith when he said "We do not attack what the committee stands for (our boldface), but its ability to do what it says it can." The criticisms which he and Penny made were concerned with whether the committee could carry out its function, not whether it should do so; in proposing the abolition of the Assimilation Committee itself, they were suggesting only that its task be assigned to others to carry out.

The function of the Assimilation Committee, as both sides of the debate seemed to recognize, is greater than any of its concrete activities. It is the end for which these activities are means: the assimilation of freshmen into the experience of W&L life and values. Part of that assimilation involves opening as many doors to him as possible in campus organizations. That's why there is an Orientation Week. Part involves familiarizing him with aspects of W&L. That's what the Student Handbook is for. A very important part is presentation and encouragement of certain traditions—not with threats of paddles or fines, but on the understanding that these traditions exist and that the freshman is expected of his own free will to observe and appreciate them.

This is the overall aim of the Assimilation Committee. Its individual tasks could conceivably be handled by other groups. But we doubt very much whether the goal behind the individual aims would survive without the unifying purpose of a single committee. Wendall Winn and Bill McDavid, when they argued for preserving the committee, pointed out that the Assimilation Committee is made up of people who are on it because they want to be and because they are sincerely interested in the overall goal of assimilation. It is not fair to expect the same interest or effectiveness from groups such as the IFC, which has its own aims, or from individual students and professors. It is also foolish to think that assimilation can be attained by means of a paragraph in the catalogue and a speech or two at Freshman Camp—as Winn and McDavid also pointed out. The Assimilation Committee can provide unifying purpose and direction to what otherwise would be unrelated assimilation activities. It is on that ground that it deserves to exist.

Rather than abolish the committee, we would do better to give it greater scope.

Proposed Ten Year Plan, 1957-1967

More Completed Than Apparent

The above "Proposed Ten Year Plan" is a reproduction of the plan presented to the student body in 1957. It represents the needs presented by the University Development Office in a booklet entitled "The Vision of Greatness."

Much of the plan has not been accomplished, however a good deal more than meets the eye has been.

In the Development Program plan, immediate needs were listed as follows:

- Biology and Geology Building
- Physics Building
- Remodel Howe Hall
- Remodel Reid Hall
- Maintenance Center
- Long-range needs were:
- Athletic Facilities
- Auditorium
- Dormitory
- Amphitheater, Lake and Arboretum
- Perimeter Road and Parking Areas
- Utilities
- Alumni and Faculty Club
- Memorial Entrance Gates.

The cost of this program was expected to come to almost $6,000,000. All of the Immediate Needs have been met, although not necessarily as they are listed above. A new science building for Physics and Biology was built, and Howe Hall was remodeled to include Chemistry and Geology. In the Long-Run needs, a new dormitory was built, some remodeling was completed, an alumni and faculty club was built, and the memorial entrance gates were established.

In addition, a supply store and co-op was built, a new Student Union is in the process of construction, and Lee Chapel was restored.

The Development Office ceased to exist when Dr. Fred Cole became President. Dr. Cole feeling that systematic fund-raising between campaigns was too costly. In deference to Dr. Cole, with the demise of the office, development faltered.

Letters To The Editor . . .

Editorial Hearsay

Dear Sirs:

I was appalled at the editorial which appeared in the Tuesday Ring-tum Phi this week. The editor evidently gained his information from pure hearsay, as he did not attend the IFC-Faculty Coffee. I don't even think that it was covered by a Ring-tum Phi reporter since there was no article about it in either edition, although the Friday edition did have a picture. At any rate, the editor was obviously misinformed or uninformed.

In the first place the entire purpose of the Coffee was misunderstood. The purpose was not to discuss whether or not deferred rush should come to W&L, or how to avoid it. This is what the editor would have us think. The IFC has accepted the fact that deferred rush is coming, although admittedly this was not accepted as soon as it should have been. The purpose of the IFC Coffee was for a critique of the present system of deferred pledging and for an exchange of ideas on systems of deferred rush.

The meeting was definitely not "a disaster of the first magnitude." The faculty members present took an interested part in the discussion and the Deferred Rush Committee received some useful ideas. The meeting was such a success that it lasted twenty minutes longer than planned, mostly because of faculty participation. Perhaps the light turn out of faculty was due to a misunderstanding of the true purpose of the meeting, or due to the fact that the individual invitations to faculty members were not received until the day of the Coffee.

Has Not Failed

The IFC obviously has not "failed to bring about a thing." The Deferred Rush Committee is meeting regularly and plans to bring a plan for deferred rush before the IFC this Spring. The IFC-Faculty Coffee was not a meeting of "opposing factions," but a meeting for the resolution of deferred rush problems. The editor does recognize the fact of existence of the Deferred Rush Committee, but claims that the problems it is concerned with are a "waste of time." What are the "actual" major problems of a deferred rush committee if they are not the problems of contact before rush begins, and the actual structure of a system of rush?

The editor has misrepresented the nature of the study the Deferred Rush Committee is doing. It is not a "poll of deans of various universities on rush, deferred and immediate," and it is not an attempt to verify the results of last year's poll. Again the editor is misinformed. The purpose of the study is to see how other universities have instituted a system of deferred rush, and to see what problems they came up against. In this manner the Deferred Rush Committee can better devise a solid system of deferred rush and attempt to foresee and clear up many problems.

Would the editor have us create a system out of thin air, completely oblivious of the experience which other universities have had with deferred rush? Does not the editor realize that even a flatworm can profit by experience? Evidently not. Dean Atwood has guessed that the faculty will accept whatever system the IFC proposes as long as there is no rush before second semester. The IFC and the Deferred Rush Committee fully realize this and are attempting to find the best possible system.

Stupid, Short-Sighted Ignorance
Obviously the editor of the Tuesday edition did not bother to acquaint himself with the facts. His ignorance resulted in a stupid, short-sighted, and even malicious editorial. The Ring-tum Phi is the major source of knowledge of fraternity events and other student affairs for most of the faculty. An editorial of this nature can be very harmful to the IFC and fraternity system as a whole.

In my opinion, the IFC has made some mistakes in the past and has (Continued on page 4)

Blue Rips Bulldogs 85-72 For Fifth Win

By ROY CARLTON and STUART PORTER

Doremus Gymnasium shook last night with the cheers of jubilant W&L students, as the Generals broke open a tight basketball game in the closing minutes, beating Asheville-Biltmore's Bulldogs 85-72. Although they only trailed but once, the Generals couldn't seem to break away from the Bulldogs until late in the game.

This marked the second win of the week for the on-the-move Blue, as they overcame Lynchburg's Hornets 68-44 in a game played Tuesday night in Lynchburg. Lynchburg's stall offense in the game kept the score down, as well as putting the clamps on the Generals' attack. A full-court press and double-figure scoring by four W&L players—Bauer (10), Cartwright (12), Fauber (11), and Carrere (10)—provided the margin for victory.

Against Asheville-Biltmore, W&L opened with a flurry and with 13:57 left in the first half, held a 13-7 lead. After this things tightened, and the Blue could never seem to stretch the lead. This was due primarily to Asheville-Biltmore's very effective full court press, which the Generals were never able to break.

Although W&L completely dominated the boards and was constantly in control of the ball, the Bulldogs managed to keep close, forcing turnover after turnover, and sinking some beautiful shots from the outside.

With 7:50 remaining, the Generals lead had been cut to 27-25, but after this they started to pull away again and when the half ended, the Blue found itself with a 47-40 lead.

Second Half Tightens

The Generals were not yet out of the woods though, and when the second half started, the Bulldogs started to creep up again. The Generals found themselves unable to get in close to the basket as they had in the first half and started shooting from the outside. At the same time as the offense began to run into trouble, the Bulldogs' Jim McElhaney began to come to life. Playing outstanding defense, McElhaney repeatedly stole the ball and broke down court for lay-ups. With 9:20 remaining in the half, Asheville-Biltmore took the lead for the first time 64-63, and the W&L partisans started becoming uneasy.

Hope was not to be lost, though. With the Bulldog offense working the ball for another score, John Carrere stole the ball and ran down court for a jump shot. The shot was good and the Generals had the lead again 65-64, never again to be headed.

Sparked by another basket and the leadership of Carrere, the offense suddenly ignited. The Generals offense scored fourteen consecutive points and with 2:54 remaining the score stood 77-64. The Bulldogs in attempting to catch-up, fouled Mal Wesslink twice after shots, giving him two three-point plays.

Wrestlers Crushed By West Va. In Mighty Morgantown Mismatch

What happens when a fully subsidized major college team meets a fully unsubsidized small college opponent? If you want to find out, don't ask General wrestling coach Dick Miller. He might tend to be prejudiced.

It seems as if the Washington and Lee wrestling team traveled to Morgantown, West Virginia, yesterday to face the University of West Virginia Mountaineers. When the dust had settled, W&L was about where it had been at the beginning of the match—with no points. Unfortunately, the same could not be said for the Mounties—forty points were on their side of the board.

"We were just outclassed," commented the surprisingly cheerful Miller. "They've gone in big for wrestling, and every boy on that team is on scholarship. I firmly believe we wrestled the best we could against that caliber of competition."

Washington and Lee's wrestlers will not see action until after Christmas, when they meet RPI's Rams in Lexington on January 9. Still looking for their second win, the Generals should benefit from this momentary descent back into the small college ranks.

And Burma-Shave in plain or menthol,
Leaves your face as smooth as renthol.

(NOTE: As everyone knows, renthol is the smoothest substance ever discovered. You may not know, however, that renthol is named after its inventor, Ralph Waldo Renthol, who developed it by crossing a swan with a ball bearing.)

(Interestingly enough, Mr. Renthol did not start out to be an inventor. Until age 50 he was a Western Union boy. Then fate took a hand. One day while delivering a singing telegram to a girl named Claudia Sigafoss, Ralph noted to his surprise that the telegram was signed "Claudia Sigafoss!" She had sent herself a birthday greeting!

(When pressed to explain, Claudia told Ralph a heart-rending tale. It seems that when she was only six weeks old, her parents were killed in an avalanche. The infant Claudia was found by a pair of kindly caribou who raised her as their own. They taught her all they knew—like how to rub bark off a tree and which lichens are better than other lichens—but in time they saw that this was not enough. When Claudia reached age 18, they entered her in Bennington.

(Unused to people, Claudia lived a lonely life—so lonely, in fact, that she was reduced to sending herself birthday greetings, as we have seen.

(Ralph, deeply touched, married Claudia and tried his best to make her mingle with people. It didn't work. They went nowhere, saw no one, except for an annual Christmas visit to Claudia's foster parents, Buck and Doe. To while away his long, lonely hours, Ralph finally built a work bench and started to futz around with inventions, as we have seen.

(It is pleasant to report that the story of Ralph and Claudia ends happily. After the birth of their two children, Dunder and Blitzen, Claudia joined the PTA and soon overcame her fear of people. Ralph joined the Elks.)

But I digress. Merry Christmas to all and to all a good night! Ho-ho-ho!

The makers of Personna and Burma Shave join Old Max in extending greetings of the season.

Fraternities Victimized By Thefts of Christmas Decorations and Trees

The SAE's and DU's were both struck last weekend by the disappearance of the decorations for their Saturday Christmas parties.

According to Bob Murray, University Proctor, all that is missing are the Christmas trees, lights, and two poinsettia plants, the last from the SAE house. They were apparently taken early Saturday morning, after the decorations had been set up Friday night.

Since the presents under both trees were left alone, Murray said the work was probably not that of local "hoodlums," and that perhaps it could be part of a pledge raid on the houses.

 dogs scored the final basket, but no one minded or even seemed to notice. Washington and Lee had beaten a tough Asheville-Biltmore club by a comfortable 85-72.

Although the Generals' teamwork was greatly improved, the game was filled with excellent individual performances. Mike Neer was magnificent under the boards. He grabbed every rebound in range and was constantly free underneath for easy lay-ups. Despite the fact that he rested a large part of the game, Neer scored 26 points and was the high scorer for the game.

Also not to be forgotten are the performances of Jody Kline and Mal Wesselink. Kline played an outstanding defensive game, pulling off several turnovers and rebounding well. Wesselink was spectacular, in the final minutes especially. He scored sixteen points, but eight of these were made at the close and were largely responsible for sealing the win.

1957 Ten-Year Plan Partially Fulfilled

 September, 1966, and the visiting committee from the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools recommended, "reestablishment of an office of University development to coordinate institutional planning and financial development."

According to Frank Parsons, Director of University Development, a new master plan is needed. "Priorities shift, and any projection becomes subject to remodeling."

Many of the items pictured above may never come into being. However, should the alumni and development office continue to support these projects, it is altogether conceivable that we will have more accomplished within the next ten years.

 not attacked all problems in the best possible manner. However, in this case the Deferred Rush Committee is working a system and the IFC-Faculty Coffee was a step in the right direction for the solution of the problems of a deferred rush system as applied to Washington and Lee. The Interfraternity Council has many problems to face on the behalf of fraternities, and a misrepresentation of the issues by a confused Ring-tum Phi editor can only lead to faculty misunderstanding and more problems. An apology is certainly in order.
