Telephone Tax For Residents In City Limits

BY JOHN ROBINSON

Have you ever looked closely at your telephone bill? With a bit of scrutiny, you would notice your "local tax" total. This represents a City of Lexington tax on local rates and services.

The City Council approved this tax June 20, 1968 to increase its sources of income. As the ordinance is written, only local services and rates are subject to taxation. A maximum of 20% can be levied on local expenditures of $10 on personal phones and $50 on business phones.

Dale C. Ramey, local manager for the Virginia Telephone and Telegraph Company, explained that most private student phones require a flat rate of $6.50 every month. This results in a local tax of $1.30.

It is important to remember this tax does not apply to long distance calls. However, service charges such as installation of extension phones would be subject to taxation.

Guy B. Agnor, Lexington City Manager, said, "This telephone tax only rarely reaches its maximum of $10. On the other hand, gas and electricity taxes often reach their maximums due to the seasonal demands for these services."

Agnor also revealed that this telephone tax makes a substantial contribution to the city budget. Last year the city anticipated $130,000 in revenue from this particular tax. The actual revenue was $136,353. This sum was deposited in the general fund. This amount of money was approximately 11% of the city government's revenue.

How does Lexington's rate compare with other local telephone tax rates? For the Commonwealth of Virginia Lexington's rate is high. According to Tax Rates in Virginia Cities and Urban Counties, 1968 by Donald C. Dixon, only one city in Virginia (Alexandria) has a higher rate. Nonetheless, Lexington does have a maximum which is not true in many localities.

So, if you are upset by the size of your phone bill, maybe you can take pride in the fact Lexington's general fund has benefited by your sacrifices.

2 New Trustees Announced Today; I. M. Scott and T. C. Frost Selected

The election of Isadore M. Scott of Philadelphia, Pa., and Thomas C. Frost Jr. of San Antonio, Tex. to the Board of Trustees was announced today by Washington and Lee University.

The announcement followed the regular autumn meeting of the board in Lexington last weekend. With Mr. Scott and Mr. Frost, the university's board now has 18 members.

Mr. Frost, elected to a six-year term on the board, is president of the Frost National Bank of San Antonio. He was graduated summa cum laude from Washington and Lee with a B.S. degree in 1950, and was valedictorian of his class.

He is currently president of the Texas Bankers Association and is past president of the San Antonio Clearing House Association. He is also first chairman-comptroller of the Currency Regional Advisory Committee, and a trustee of both the Southwest Research Association and the University of the Americas Foundation of Mexico.

Mr. Frost is a trustee and vice-chairman of the board of the Texas Military Institute, a trustee of the San Antonio Medical Foundation and of the Foundation of Full-Service Banks, and serves as treasurer of the Southwest Texas Methodist Hospital Board and of the Texas Foundation of Voluntarily Supported Colleges and University.

In addition, he holds directorships on the boards of the San Antonio United Fund, the Farah Manufacturing Co. of El Paso and San Antonio, the Handy Andy Co., Inc., of San Antonio, the Santonio branch of the Federal Reserve Bank and the Association of Reserve City Bankers.

He has also served as chairman of the Greater San Antonio Development Committee, vice-president of the city's United Fund Drive and director of the Chamber of Commerce and of the Boy Scouts there.

Mr. Scott, also newly elected to a six-year term on the board, was president of the Winner Manufacturing Co. of Trenton, N.J., from 1947 until selling the firm in 1961. He earned his bachelor of laws degree from Washington and Lee in 1937, after receiving his B.A. from West Virginia University in 1934. He also holds the M.A. degree in political science from West Virginia.

Active in a wide range of civic groups, Mr. Scott has served as chairman of a citizens' committee to study the financial needs of Philadelphia public schools; as chairman of the board of Tri-Institutional Facilities, Inc., a joint medical complex built for the Philadelphia General Hospital, the Children's Hospital and the University of Pennsylvania, and as a member of the board of governors of the Pennsylvania Economy League.

He has also served as president of the Philadelphia Council for International Visitors, and is a director of "Scientific American" magazine. In addition, Mr. Scott is a board member of Girard Trust Bank, the

EC Appointed Group Investigates Car Tax

BY RITA ENNIS

The Legal Aid and Research Committee of the Law School has been commissioned by the Executive Committee to study the required Lexington automobile license tags for students.

After last week refusing to take a stand on the issue, the EC in its Monday night meeting unanimously requested the Research Committee to determine the exact legal points of the ordinance, to present a memorandum to the EC as soon as possible, and, if necessary, to begin proceedings for a class suit on behalf of all out-of-state students.

The EC also heard a progress report from Dan Silberberg concerning the 1972 Mock Democratic Convention, named members to the Honor System Subcommittee and passed changes in the Conference Fund Committee.

Discussion regarding the license tag ordinance began following a request made by junior John O'Neal. In his statement, O'Neal asked the EC to take a definite stand on the ordinance. He stated that aside from legal grounds, the ordinance was "inherently unjust." Discussion followed which ultimately led to the commissioning of the Legal Aid and Research Committee. Action on O'Neal's request was postponed until the Research Committee issues its memorandum.

The EC unanimously approved a motion to give the Conference Fund Committee's primary power of granting requests to the Student Finance Committee. Other changes include elimination of monetary ceiling grants and the establishment of the Conference Fund Committee as the appeal board above the Student Finance Committee for requests.

Unanimous EC approval also greeted the Faculty proposed exam envelope.

All members were present.

Interfraternity Council Studies Food Buying

Tuesday night's Inter-Fraternity Council meeting saw the culmination of the effort to coordinate the cooperative food buying plan for the fraternities. The IFC has been checking with all the houses over the past few weeks to compare prices and sound out the reactions of the housemothers and cooks.

Several fraternities demonstrated reluctance to go along with the plan, the chief reason being that they felt that they would not save that much money and the effort would not be justified unless a considerable sum was saved. There was also some reluctance on the part of several houses to cooperate as they felt that they would lose money in the venture, especially when Mr. Jerry Darrell's services would be recompensed at the rate of $5 per house per week.

The chief worry of those fraternities who favored the plan was the reserve fund, which with fifteen houses cooperating would come to $200 per house. If there was a significant reduction in the number of houses participating, the amount required from each house would increase. Bruce Madison, treasurer of the Beta house, stated that he couldn't see tying up three or four hundred dollars when people wouldn't go into the plan.

After long discussion, the plan was passed by the IFC. A meeting will be held Thursday night in the Student Union with the cooks and housemothers present to discuss implementation of the plan.

Bruce Madison, Social Chairman of the IFC, announced plans to accumulate data from the houses on the combos that they have used in the past, focusing primarily on booking agencies, combo ratings, and prices so that a cross-reference guide may be made available to all fraternities.

Doug Gossman, President of the IFC, called for the creation of a committee to study partial rules that were in effect last year to evaluate them and determine whether any revisions are in order for this year.

Ken Murov, Junior Justice, announced plans for a committee to study the rush system as it existed this year. His philosophy, as he expressed it, is to examine the flaws.

Dr. Henry Steele Commager, Amherst Scholar, To Visit Washington and Lee November 5

Henry Steele Commager, the noted American historian and author, will visit Washington and Lee Nov. 5 to deliver the first lecture in the 1970-71 "Contact" program.

Dr. Commager, professor of American history at Amherst College, will speak on the crisis in education, the theme of this year's "Contact" program.

In the past quarter century, he has written a great many books on American history. Among his best-known works are "Growth of the American Republic," which he co-authored with Samuel Eliot Morison, "The Heritage of America," written with Allan Nevins, "The American Mind," "The Story of a Free Nation," and "Living Ideas in America."

He is also editor of "Rise of the American Nation," a 40-volume study now being completed. Dr. Commager also contributes frequently to professional journals and to general magazines, including "Atlantic" and "Harper's."

He received his B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Chicago, and taught at New York University, Columbia, Cambridge and Oxford before going to Amherst.

His lecture at Washington and Lee will be open to the public.

Contact is a student-sponsored symposium which brings notable speakers to the university to discuss and debate issues of major current interest. Begun under the sponsorship of the Inter-Fraternity Council in 1965, Contact has in the past featured such speakers as George McGovern, Barry Goldwater, and Tom Wolfe, a W&L alumnus.

Last year's program, chaired by Larry Honig, was highlighted by Washington and Lee's first Coed Week, as well as by speeches by former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, Esquire's Harold Hughes, William Rusher of National Review and TV newsmen Robert Goraliski.

Dr. Commager's visit next month will be followed by the customary week-long Contact session in January.

Through a Spyglass Darkly . . .

Coeducation for W&L?

BY GREG RAETZ

Now that the school year is underway and everyone has just about accustomed himself to classes beginning on a staggered schedule (starting classes on the hour would have been too simple), it is appropriate once again to look at a question which has been facing W&L for a couple of years and which will, hopefully, soon be answered. The question is, of course, whether Washington and Lee should become co-educational.

Much time and effort have been consumed extolling the virtues of co-education, but all too little have been spent considering the problems that would inevitably come with it.

Obviously the first problem that arises is the economic cost of such a move, and the fact is that to coeducate W&L would be a very expensive proposition. Even now dormitory space is at a premium and the addition of female students would make it necessary to build more dorms.

Expansion and/or remodeling would also probably be necessary for the dining hall and the gym. The absolute costs of construction would strain the W&L budget to say the least, but the opportunity costs could even be greater. How long would we have to postpone the construction of a new library, or the moving of the Commerce School to its new building or any of the other improvements which W&L needs to accommodate properly its present enrollment.

Construction costs are not the only economic problems which would have to be solved. New female faculty members would have to be recruited, hired and integrated into the University. New funds for scholarships would also have to be obtained. W&L would have to seek out new sources of income in order to keep an endowment which would allow it to remain competitive with other schools in recruiting high quality students.

Furthermore, all of these changes and additions would have to be made without alienating alumni who make a considerable contribution to the solvency of the University each year; and it seems likely that many of the alumni would be bitterly alienated by such a move. A man contributes to something he knows and believes in and as the institution changes he has less in common with it and his interest in it wanes. This has been borne out by the experience of schools like Harvard who have chosen to coeducate and it doesn't seem likely that Washington and Lee would be an exception. W&L would lose the support of many once loyal alumni.

There are problems besides the purely economic ones. Would a change in the size of the University adversely affect the student life? Would it be necessary to fire some of the instructors, e.g., in math and the sciences, and add more in history and sociology? The changes which these questions and others like them imply are especially important because they involve changing the character of the University.

I remember hearing or reading somewhere that W&L offered a unique educational experience; and I have found that it does. Change is inevitable, but the path to improvement and achievement is not always the most trodden one.

The Name Of The Game . . .

BY BOB BAROODY

The pathological insanity of the Nixon administration is once again being exposed to the public view. The occasion is, of course, the eve of the November elections; no better time to rally the nation against that menace to human decency . . . us. The problem is that, thus far, students haven't done anything. No strikes, no bombings, no Kent States. Some students actually watch football games in October. To a sensible person it would appear that Nixon and his crew are wasting their breath. We can't even accuse the president of overreacting; there is simply nothing to react to.

Unfortunately, the above analysis fails to acknowledge the fact that when a man has been a politician for nearly twenty-five years of his life, he does not act as rationally as some would wish. To perpetuate yourself in power you need to be crafty. You must be willing to subvert reasonable thoughts to what a social scientist might call a "game mentality." Richard Nixon, political creature that he is, delights in playing games. Consider his record: everyone is familiar with "The Road to Indochina;" some prefer "Southern Sweepstakes," the fun domestic game; and who can forget the built-in thrills of "Middle East Show-down?" Move the Sixth Fleet three (free) world-squares and see what the Russians do . . .

And now it's time to play "Campus Chaos." The object of this game is to incite and foment a student riot through the use of the most offensive tactics ever to be seen in this country. To be considered a success, this scheme must produce violence.

The president will then shift his attention to something else: "Backlash," a game of repression.

Thus, it is not difficult to understand the rationale behind Nixon's dark warning on the tube last month. To underscore his point, Nixon sent a ridiculous "Reader's Digest" reprint to university presidents; then, in a most alarming gesture, he cried to Congress for 1000 (more) FBI agents to patrol our campuses. Spiro Agnew typically hit the low road, sputtering the alliterative asinities spoon-fed to him by Nixon's own corps of speechwriters. Agnew would be a very funny person if he were still a PTA president, but it so happens that this madman can command first-page attention if he sneezes. Most recently, as if "effete snobs" were passing out of vogue, John Mitchell added his great insight; to the Attorney General we are "those stupid bastards."

All this is very heavy. It sounds like a plot, and I believe Nixon's student strategy to be exactly that. But there is a way out; we don't have to hear the administration or-gasm, "I told you so!" Students can refuse to play Nixon's sick game and walk with the dice. In doing so, we can only help the several candidates who have yet the sense to veto the president's game plans. I am not so deluded, however, as to suppose that if we ignore these people the problems will disappear.

A plea. For the time being, let us seek outlets other than violence for these frustrations. The obvious, if not ideal, alternatives are: (1) drugs, (2) the World Series, and (3) your own Candy Bergen. Pick your poison and say "thank you Richard Nixon," we'll see you on the fourth.

Freshman Football Cancelled

BY PALMER TRICE

Freshman football made a different appearance at W&L this year. Those who chose not to participate on the intercollegiate level were divided into nine teams. For the last two weeks, we have been able to participate in action-packed contests in which we were pitted man against man, dorm section against dorm section. The thrill of agony, and the victory of defeat were ours for the taking. We of the Old dorm's Oilers can hold our heads high and claim that we were, perhaps the best. Our record was 3-0.

The Oilers were—and remain—a motley crew. We had everything—from speed to lack of speed and size to pint-size. Just like the pros, we even had injuries. One of our stars (of course, we were all stars), suffered a sprained knee in our first outing, but returned a week later for our third game. Cases of devotion to the game, such as this, were seen frequently, on all teams.

The teams were usually fairly even, making the games fun for all, win or lose. All teams had their problems. Some could not find a leader. Others were unable to round up eight players. The Oilers had the leader, but frequently lacked the players. In our first two games, we were forced to play five on five.

Everyone enjoyed the competition and the exercise. But while we were mustering five, some dorm sections were unable to draft any stars. This resulted in many forfeits, and the defeat of the purpose of the program—which was to give those non-varsity competitors a chance to play.

Each team was made up of three dorm sections. They were coached by one of the dorm counselors, in our case by Mr. Rob Turnbull. Rob, or "Coach" to us, was a constant inspiration to all of us. His limitless knowledge of the game, his devotion to the team, and his soul-moving halftime pep talks made a bunch of potential great stars into, not a great team, but a bunch of great stars.

When Coach Canfield brought the

LaRue's Pressbox Red Machine vs. Birds

This week it is Baltimore's turn to see a large, four-wheeled mechanical monster, painted bright red and bearing Ohio license plates. This machine has been the gem of the summer season, awing millions; its speed on the track, its power, and its ability to put down opponents has made it a favorite among multitudes across the nation, particularly in Cincinnati.

As most people realize, the Big Red Machine is not a new model on display at Woody's or Newcomer's, but the Cincinnati Red National Baseball Club, Inc. Despite the fact that the Reds have developed engine problems lately, their American League counterparts for the 1970 World Series, the Baltimore Orioles, should by no means be preparing any victory speeches yet. And although the Reds did not look like the same terrors of the past season in the first two games of the October Classic, they are just too good a team to go down four straight.

On the basis of the past weekend's action, the opening Red losses can be attributed to bad luck in Game One, and bad pitching in Game Two. It has been alleged that when Plate Umpire Ken Burkhart was a National League pitcher back in the '40's, the bullpen catchers caught him bare-handed. Saturday Burkhart proved he is as bad an umpire as he was a pitcher when he committed what will undoubtedly go down as one of the biggest no-no's in the history of the national pastime. Burkhart made two mistakes; he blocked Baltimore's Ellie Hendricks from applying what looked to be a close play at the plate, and then called the Red's baserunner Bernie Carbo out as he slid past Hendrick's outstretched arms. Carbo represented the tying run in the 4-3 duel won by Baltimore, and the ruling prevented an extra-inning contest and possibly a different outcome.

But bad breaks are part of the game, and the Orioles might just as easily have been the victims. However, Burkhart's blunder suggests that perhaps the umpires should think twice before striking soon for more pay.

The lack of good relief hurling killed the Reds in the next game as Baltimore surged from behind to win 6-5.

The Reds may be down but should not be considered out of the money. With Perez, Bench, and May, Cin-

Rugby team scrums Hampden-Sydney in 18-14 win last Sunday.

Rugbers Stomp H-S, 18-14

Washington and Lee rugby team evened its record this week as they banged out an 18-14 win over stubborn Hampden-Sydney.

The Generals jumped out to an early lead when Bob Deaderick fell on a loose ball in the Hampden-Sydney end zone and Fred Fletcher converted the kick to give the rugger a 5-0 lead. Chip Henry later rolled his way into the end zone with one minute left in the first half and raised the score to 13-0.

Early in the second half W&L was left two men short because of injuries and Hampden-Sydney roared to within two points. However, with ten minutes left in the game, fly-half Chris Murray took a pass from Larry Cohen and romped 40 yards for the final score.

Playing outstanding defensive rugby were Parker Wise, captain Al GaNun who was injured in the second half and fullback Fletcher who also had a perfect day on conversions going four for four.

W&L Lacrosse Ranked 17th

W&L's lacrosse team ranks 17th in the country in pre-season rankings announced today.

Coach Dick Szlasa's Generals posted an 8-3 record last year, their best in the school's history, and just missed taking the South Atlantic division championship, losing an 8-7 heart-breaker to champion North Carolina.

Most of that young team returns for Coach Szlasa this spring, and will be joined by a bevy of talented youngsters among the freshman class.

The rankings were announced by "The Lacrosse Newsletter," the "bible" of intercollegiate lacrosse. Last year's national tri-champions, Virginia, Navy and Johns Hopkins, are ranked No. 1. Others in the top ten, in order, are Army, Cornell, Maryland, North Carolina, Brown and Yale.

Washington and Lee was ranked 43rd in the national rankings last year. There are a total of 160 colleges now playing lacrosse.

H-S; Too Big, Too Fast

By Pete Jones

The Washington and Lee Generals put together their best mixture of offense and defense thus far this year but failed to come up with turnovers as they lost the Homecoming contest 19-0 to Hampden-Sydney.

Turning out for the game was a crowd of over 3,000, including an abundance of W&L alumni. The Generals came to conquer; they took to the offensive right away, but the big play eluded their grasp.

Immediately upon receiving the opening kickoff, the Generals, led by Steve Fluharty, churned out steady progress from their own 37 yardline, with the help of a pass completion to Frank Stearns and a penalty. But on third down and long yardage, a blitz by Tiger linebackers caught Fluharty behind the line of scrimmage. Fluharty fumbled on the W&L 45 yardline, a play from which Blue morale never recovered.

Hampden-Sydney later forced W&L to punt from their own four and swept down the sidelines to return the ball to the W&L ten. Three brilliant defensive stands went to waste when, on fourth and goal from the five, the Hampden-Sydney split end caught a touchdown pass for the first score of the game. After the conversion, the score stood 7-0 with 6:23 left in the first quarter.

The remainder of the quarter ran out to the tune of three plays and a punt by both sides. As the second quarter opened however, Hampden-Sydney put together its longest ball-control drive of the game, 68 yards, helped along the way by a personal foul call against W&L.

After three attempts to score from two yards out were thwarted by a brilliant General goal line stand, the H-S running back broke the line on fourth down and darted 1 1/2 inches to score with 5:15 left in the half. The extra-point kick went wide and the half closed with a 13-0 score.

The defense dominated the third quarter as twice the Generals stopped dangerous threats. Hampden-Sydney penetrated to the W&L 14 yardline midway in the quarter and had to cough the ball up on downs.

Even though Hampden-Sydney recovered the ball on the very next play on a fumble, an interception by Jim Allen ended the challenge. With only a minute remaining in the third quarter, Hampden-Sydney began to roll after receiving a Blue punt on the W&L 47 yardline. An eight yard pass with 12:12 left in the game capped the 47-yard drive and put the remainder of scoring away as the conversion run was stopped, and the scoreboard read 19-0 until the final gun.

On defense, Dave Brooks, Marshall Washburn, George Harris and Frank Evans all provided the basic punch of the tough Blue defensive squad that repeatedly held Hampden-Sydney back on several occasions.

This week, the Generals travel to Medford, Mass. to meet Tufts and the opportunity to pull off their first victory of the season.

Virginia Tops Generals 7-0

BY DAVE TORRANCE

The Washington and Lee soccer team suffered a bad loss on Sunday when the University of Virginia blanked the Generals 7-0. Led by Jay Connor, who made three goals, during the game, U.Va. commanded the game at the half 5-0. Although the Generals kept the Cavaliers scoreless in the third quarter, U.Va. got two more goals in the last period.

Virginia is certainly a different team this year from the club that barely squeaked by W&L last year 2-1. This year U.Va. could be the best team in the state. They out-passed and out-guessed the Generals with a form that has been rarely seen in teams W&L has faced so far this season.

Perhaps W&L's problem is its inexperience; 75 percent of its players are sophomores and freshmen. The team's inexperience is reflected in its problems with depth and passing. U.Va. had two squads of players which they rotated every 10 minutes last Sunday, while the Generals had to employ basically one team throughout the game. The Generals passing was poor at certain points in the contest; no doubt this can be attributed to the team's inexperience in playing together.

The Generals have a tough schedule ahead. A consistently hard-nosed Roanoke College squad will tangle with the Minks this Saturday, and in weeks to come the Blue will play Jacksonville, the fifth-ranked soccer team in the nation. Undoubtedly, the Generals will not be short on challenges during the rest of the season. And at the season's close, they shouldn't be short on experience, either.

A Great Weekend

The Weekend must be rated one of the best in recent years. As a result, my column didn't get done. But don't worry; next week I'll be back in true form to tell you all about it . . . What I can remember that is.

One short word on the football game. Nobody probably noticed the beating the offensive line took against H-S. They deserve special mention simply for the fact that not too many people realize their hardships.

Record Now Stands
At 3-1 For Season

Over the past two weeks the W&L cross-country team has charged to a 3-1 record. Sparked by freshmen Bill Kalal, Tom Young, Tim Kearney, and Doug McNeel, the harriers defeated Lynchburg by a comfortable 21 point margin. Upperclassmen Bill Wilkinson, who finished first, and Bob Sherwood also turned in strong performances.

The following weekend the team was beaten at Centre by 9 points. Kalal ran in the number one slot for W&L, with Wilkinson close behind. Sherwood, Young, and Carter Glass were the remainder of the General's scoring combination.

On Homecoming weekend, a strong team effort defeated Roanoke and Old Dominion by a 10 point margin. With another excellent time, Bill Kalal once again led W&L runners. Second for the Generals was in the present system to find out what went wrong and to determine how the system can best be re-worked.

Gossmann added that the IFC would like a list of pledges that the fraternities had gotten since the beginning of rush, with the weeks that they had pledged, so that the committee may better determine whether a shorter rush period would be feasible.

Tim Criss proposed a motion that the rush dates for this weekend be shortened to any hour apiece. The motion passed 26 to 8.

Dean John reminded the IFC that financial statements for the fraternities are due, and that several reports from several houses are far past due. He also mentioned that the fraternities had been generally lax in observing the three o'clock curfew on having girls in the house; if this rule is not observed, then some houses will in the words of Dean John, "get burned."

Send a letter to North Vietnam.

Right now hundreds of Americans are being held captive in North Vietnam.

A few prisoners have made it back. They talk about bamboo cages. Vicious beatings. Malnutrition. Humiliation.

But the North Vietnamese will tell us nothing. And it's this silence that makes our appeal more urgent.

For the families at home, there is no word on who's alive. Who's dead. Or even who's being held. There is nothing. Except the anguish of not knowing.

Maybe you can change this. By writing to the one man who can change it: The President of North Vietnam.

Ask him to release the names of prisoners, allow them to write to their families, and let the Red Cross inspect the prisons to insure proper medical treatment and living conditions.

Remind him that he is bound by the 1949 Geneva Convention which his country signed. And by the Istanbul resolution.

North Vietnamese leaders do care about American public opinion. And if they think they can gain something by bowing to it, they will.

But one letter won't do it. Or a thousand. Maybe it will take millions. So we've got to write now. All of us. And often.

Write a letter tonight. And send it to: Office of the President, Democratic Republic of Vietnam, Hanoi, North Vietnam.

It'll cost you a quarter. But it might save a life.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS

Maybe they'll open it.
