U.S. Army Reserve Corps Seeks College Candidates For Aviation Cadet Force

To meet increasing needs of the Army Air Forces for aid crews to man fighting planes and for supporting ground crews, the War Department and President Gaines simultaneously announced today a sweeping new program for the procurement of Aviation Cadets by recruiting men from Washington and Lee and upwards of 300 other colleges and universities in the nation.

The plan, full details of which will be released later, calls for the obtaining of these Aviation Cadets through preliminary enlistment as privates in the Air Force Enlisted Reserve, which is part of the larger Army Enlisted Reserve Corps program to be announced shortly. This larger program will offer similar opportunities for students to enlist in other branches of the armed reserve.

Providing opportunities for enlistment on a deferred service basis, the program has been arranged so that aviation cadet candidates may continue their education until they are actually required for Army training.

Students who enlist in this new Reserve will be subject to call for active duty at any time, as determined by the Secretary of War. The plan, however, is to defer them, permitting further scholastic training provided they maintain a satisfactory scholastic standard.

Upon graduation or an earlier call to duty, reservists will be given the opportunity of competing for vacancies in Officers' Candidate Schools. Reserve enlistment and continuance of education has been approved in the belief that this education will develop capacities for leadership, the War Department's dispatch said.

In compliance with the Army request for the appointment of a faculty member to provide definite contact between Service representatives and the college personnel, Dr. Gaines announced this morning that Dr. Allen W. Moger, assistant professor of history here, has been named Faculty Air Force Adviser and will handle W&L's part in the vast new program.

Whether or not college students will continue their college training for these special posts will depend largely upon the results of examinations to be given to sophomores enlisted in the Air Force Reserve, Lieutenant General Henry H. Arnold, Commanding General of the Army Air Forces, who announced the plan today, in a telegram to 160 centrally located colleges said.

With the possibility of competing for commissions in the same manner as other Aviation Cadets, American college students enlisted in this Air Force Reserve who are graduated or who are summoned before taking their degree, will be ordered to active duty and appointed Aviation Cadets.

Instrumental in the coordination of the war effort with American colleges was the Special Committee of the Association of American Colleges and Universities, which was headed by Dr. Gaines.

Flick Is Named Representative Of AFS Here

Dr. Walter A. Flick will represent the American Field Service at Washington and Lee, Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president, announced today. Dr. Flick's appointment was confirmed by Mr. Stephen Galatti, director general of the AFS, from the organization headquarters in New York.

Dr. Flick's duties will consist primarily of interviewing anyone applying for a position with the AFS as an ambulance driver and supplying general information about the work of the service.

The American Field Service, which is a complete volunteer ambulance service, was originally organized in 1914 in France, where its ambulances carried more than a half million wounded during the World War. In the second World War the AFS has not only continued to serve wounded soldiers, but has also carried many civilian bombing casualties and refugees.

The drivers, who are for the most part men who have failed to pass rigid physical examinations for the Army, Navy and Marines, are volunteers who serve without pay and buy their own uniforms and equipment. Although there is no age limit for entry into the AFS, the majority of the ambulance drivers serving in Europe are between the ages of 20 and 35.

Applicants must be physically capable of withstanding the climate of Africa and are required to know how to drive a car. Selective Service Headquarters often grant draft deferment to men accepted by the American Field Service.

Sheriff Requests Students To 'Keep Off' Fairgrounds

Howard Dobbins, president of the student body called attention today to a letter he has received from the Sheriff of Rockbridge County asking W&L students to refrain in the future from playing softball at the Lexington fairgrounds.

Dobbins said the Sheriff had asked him to warn students that the grounds were "well-fenced private property" and were now for sale. He added that no action had yet been taken against the trespassers, but that he would have to step in if students did not heed his warning. Dobbins this afternoon asked for student cooperation in the matter.

I-F Sing Preliminaries Set for Friday, May 1

The Inter-fraternity Sing will be held this year a week from Friday night, May 1, in Lee Chapel. John Walter Stowers, president of the Inter-fraternity Council, announced definitely today.

Glee clubs from fraternity houses and the Non-Fraternity Union who enter must have a minimum of ten men in the group and are required to sing "College Friendships" and another song of their choosing.

The entrance fee is $2.

War Education Aims to Feature Commerce Conclave Discussions

High-ranking officials from several government war agencies are scheduled to deliver addresses and lead panel discussions at the 24th annual meeting of the American Association of Collegiate Schools of Business which will be held at Washington and Lee University Friday and Saturday. Educators representing commerce and business schools from 34 states will discuss the effects of the war upon university training and methods by which commercial schools and departments may make their greatest contribution to the nation's cause.

Brigadier General Frank J. McSherry, deputy director for labor supply and training of the War Production Board; Harvey H. Bundy, special assistant to the Secretary of War, and J. W. Barker, special assistant to the Secretary of the Navy, will discuss the government's wartime need for specially-trained men during one of the meeting's feature conferences. Wallace B. Donham, dean of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration, will speak on "Cooperation with the Army and Navy" during that session.

Wayne Chatfield-Taylor, Under Secretary of Commerce, will speak on "Economic Thinking for War and for Peace," and Dr. Stacy May, director of the statistics division of the WPB, will talk on

Myers, Armstrong, Robb Elected To Business Manager Positions; Three Applicants Are Unopposed

Six new men were named to positions on the three University publications at a four-hour meeting of the Washington and Lee Publications Board this afternoon. Joseph F. Ellis, Jr., of Clarksdale, Mississippi, was named editor of the 1942-43 Ring-tum Phi, while Corneal B. Myers, Jr., of Richmond, Va., received the paper's business managership unopposed. The editorship of the Southern Collegian, campus magazine, went to Walter R. Browder of Brooklyn, New York, without opposition, and William Henry Armstrong of Christchurch, Virginia, was elected to the business manager's post.

Albert D. Darby, Jr., of Martinsburg, West Virginia, received the editorship of next session's Calyx, and Edwin F. (Bud) Robb, Jr., of Minneapolis, Minnesota, met no opposition in his contest for the business managership of the annual.

The six men—all juniors—were selected by a two-thirds vote of the board, in accordance with the regulations of that body. The Publications Board is made up of current and past heads of the publications and two faculty representatives. This year's membership consisted of Homer A. Jones, Jr., Lee M. Kenna, Oscar C. Dunn, Calhoun Bond, C. Thomas Fuller, Harold R. Levy, Robert F. Wersel and Floyd K. Yeomans of the Student Body and Dean Frank J. Gilliam and Professor Lewis W. Adams of the faculty.

Only three of the offices were opposed—the editorship of the Ring-tum Phi, the editorship of the Calyx and the business managership of the Southern Collegian. In the first, Ellis was opposed by Edwin A. Zelnicker of Mobile, Alabama, managing editor of this year's paper. On the yearbook Darby won out over John N. Peoples of Valdosta, Ga., and James W. Davis of Confluence, Pennsylvania. Armstrong nosed out Stuart Faison of Lexington, Virginia, for the Managership of the literary magazine.

Ellis is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and Sigma Delta Chi. He will replace Bud Levy, Phi Psi, as editorial head of the University semi-weekly.

Myers, who is a member of Phi Kappa Sigma, succeeds Oscar Dunn, Kappa Sigma, as business manager of the paper.

Browder, non-fraternity, will follow Tommy Fuller as editor of the Collegian, while Armstrong, also non-fraternity, takes Bud Yeomans' post as business manager.

Darby, Pi Kappa Phi, follows Cal Bond, Delta Tau Delta, at the helm of the yearbook, and Robb takes over the business post from Bob Wersel, Sigma Chi.

Dance Board Authorizes Spring Set Ticket Refund

At a meeting of the Washington and Lee Dance Board, Bob Gage, president of the Spring Spring Dance Set held last weekend was authorized to give a rebate of one dollar to those students who signed up for Spring Dance tickets.

The rebate will be issued beginning tomorrow afternoon at the office of Sam Rayder, treasurer of the student body.

Those students who do not call at Mr. Rayder's office in person for the $1 rebate will automatically have their rebate applied to the Finals Dance Set.

Students must come by the office in person not later than April 30.

Those men whose money remains in the pool of the dance board will, if they so wish, have the deduction on the price of the Finals tickets.

Council Ballots Mailed

Ballots for the annual election of officers for the Christian Council were mailed yesterday to several hundred students who have taken part in council activities during the past year. They must be returned by mail or in person to Seymour Smith's office by Wednesday of this week. Results of the balloting will be divulged Friday.

'Thirty'

This issue of the Ring-tum Phi holds no particular significance for most of the 1500 people who will see it—it's just another issue of the paper which comes around twice a week to give the boys something to read while they sip their evening coke in the Corner Store or to let the home folks know what's going on in the little world that is Washington and Lee.

But this issue means a lot to a couple of boys—more than does any other of the year's issues.

Those two boys are the paper's junior editors—News Editor Joe Ellis and Managing Editor Ed Zelnicker, who were responsible for getting it and 50-odd previous issues to press. For one of these boys—his name had yet to be determined by the Publications Board at this writing—this issue becomes the rainbow's proverbial pot of gold. The paper for which he has toiled faithfully for three years now carries the word that he has become its editor.

For the other this issue means the realization that his reward for three years of slighting studies, missing meals, cutting classes and giving up shows can consist only of the fun which he has derived from doing work which he likes to do and of the satisfaction of a job well done. Several sow and only one can reap.

That is an evil in the Ring-tum Phi's system of staff competition just as it is an unattractive part of many phases of life in a world of competition.

One of this year's two junior editors will be receiving congratulations, handclaps and pats on the back by the time these words find their way into print. The other will get a few perfunctory "tough luck" phrases shed at him. He deserves more. He deserves public recognition of the fact that he, now but a "former junior editor," has done far more for Washington and Lee and for its student body than most of the holders of coveted campus positions.

This issue means something to another guy, too. It means the end of four years of Ring-tum Phi-ing for the writer. He experiences mixed emotions as he tip-toes out of office. But he wants mainly to voice a sincere "Thanks" to all who helped make the Ring-tum Phi mean as much as it has meant to him—and that includes about everybody.—Bud Levy.

With last year's tires wearing thin and the gas supply threatened, Boston motorists may be diverted by the current search of its transportation service for the single old-fashioned open streetcar which it believes it owns.

If the present demand for streetcars, due to the lessening of motor traffic, brings back the open car, we recommend two things: George should get one of those cords that father used to wear between his straw hat and his coat lapel if he wants to keep his hat. And Mamie should leave her parasol at home. It always fell off the car.—Christian Science Monitor.

Now that a New York barber shop is advertising "the haircut that does not look like a haircut," isn't it about time for a fashion designer to come up with women's hats that don't look like women's hats?—Roanoke Times

Campus Comment

By Ty Tyson and Shabby Davidson

What a Weekend Department: Spring Dances is always an event at the Gam House because of guys like good old Mike Lau, Merrill, Gilmer, Suarez and all the rest literally haven't been out of the house since last spring when the whole campus broke itself over the new lounge to christen a new era in Fiji circles.

But good old Mike Lau is a sentimental sort of a guy and likes to remember the days when men were men at the Gam House. It's alright to sit in the house during Spring Dances and look at the wallpaper and the glass bricks... but give old Mike the great outdoors in a convertible with a case of ice cold Doctor Peppers.

So there's good old Mike sitting in the back seat sipping a cold one and waving at the "Gams" in front of Macon when a terrific gust of wind caught him right between his T.B. and the Adams apple.

Waving his arms frantically to keep from being blown clear out of the car, good old Mike lost his coat in the face of the oncoming traffic. Oil trucks ran over it from all angles, several loads of stimulant for Mr. Mattingly's Victory garden sprinkled on it with a flourish, and in general it began to look like it has always looked.

Good old Mike, seeing it lying there in the road, was convinced that he still had his coat on and that it was only the boot from the convertible that had blown off... or maybe it was the top.

Lau still swears that he wouldn't have recognized the thing if it hadn't been for a slight trace of herringbone, which is just the way we still think about Lau. Just a slight trace of herringbone with dark glasses and a lot of memories about Spring Dances, 1942.

Punchy Stieff Department: The Sigma Nus swear by their boy

Punchy Stieff as their candidate for the most punchdrunk individual in the lodge...and, with "Boley" Steves in the fold, that may be construed as quite an achievement.

Anyway, Stieff found himself in Durham the other night with the lacrosse team. How he got there, he's not quite sure. But, to put it mildly, it was thrilling to be staying in a real hotel with lots of hotel literature to read.

Just before bedtime "The Punch" was wading through some exciting stuff about what to do in case of an air raid...and so to bed. Stieff slept on, dreaming about air raids and such, when all of a sudden he was awakened by what to him seemed to be a terrific clanging of bells and blowing of whistles.

"The Punch" sprang from his bed screaming at the top of his lungs something about getting under cover during the air raid. Rushing frantically from room to room he awakened everybody in sight.

So, everybody got up, watched the train go through town blowing its whistle, and Stieff wended his confused way back to bed.

Trivia Department: Howard Peabody, sans dachshund, was last seen trying for the biggest catch of the weekend. She made Peabody look like the dachshund ought to be leading him on a leash.

Jim Berry's fabulous Margie was in town, looking better than ever. Berry still looks the same... We can't all be like Bob Pinck, who says that he's not so good looking but he has lots of money.

We've tried blasting the telephone company for several weeks now. They can't read either... Several people are still bitter towards Bobby Funkhouser of McCrum's fame. We're sorry we can't tell why, because it makes very interesting reading. Along this line, Bobby has asked us to announce that there will be no more sneezing in McCrum's.

FILMS . . .

An unusual picture that combines comedy, romance and a moral in the form of a documentary film is "Sullivan's Travels" coming to the State Thursday and Friday.

Joel McCrea plays the starring role as a comedy director who has an ambition to film a story of the down trodden people of America. Knowing nothing of the way in which these people live, he decided for accuracy's sake to disguise himself as a hobo and go out among them to live and observe. Fisherman's paradise—Veronica Lake—provides the blonde hair on McCrea's coat.

As soon as he meets her, he still (still disguised) hops into his car to drive away when he is arrested for stealing the director's car. He is forced to prove his identity and almost loses Veronica. The best part is yet to come, so we won't spoil it for you here.

No doubt "Hellzapoppin" is the screwiest picture ever filmed. Everybody must find something in this show that he likes, since it goes from a horse opera to a swanky estate. Olsen and Johnson, the Broadway creators of the stage play by the same name, are the stars (if such is possible).

It has no story to speak of but is just a series of the funniest happenings you'll ever see on the screen. Don't miss this Saturday!

Wednesday and Thursday at the Lyric comes another unusual show worth investigating. "40.00 Horsemen" is the story of the fighting Anzacs, with Grant Taylor and Betty Bryan.

THIS WEEK Another Year . . .

April 23, 1930—Bills totaling over $1000 were presented to the University treasurer this week by the City of Lexington and citizens whose property had been damaged by members of the Freshman class celebrating the lifting of Freshman rules.

The traditional coat of paint was applied to "Old George" atop Washington College as the first of the night's activities. The Ring-tum Phi commented that the statute was painted "a repulsive shade of green."

Following another tradition the Freshmen burned their caps and then crashed the show. After the show a cry of "We want the fire engine" travelled through the crowd and the students launched an attack on the fire house. After being repulsed by a force of firemen and police armed with black-jacks, the students retreated, with a number of wounded, and began to bombard the fire house with eggs and tomatoes.

Still unable to get the fire engine out of the station, the students built several bonfires in the streets and the fire truck was brought into service to extinguish these, after which the fire hoses were turned on the crowd.

The city's bill for $887.67 including a charge for 350 feet of fire hose, $75 for cleaning the building bombarded by eggs, and a bill for 30,000 gallons of water which flooded the streets after the students had turned on the fire hydrants. A citizen charged the University with $150 damage done by the students. Various other minor bills were also presented.

These bills for over $1000 were reduced to approximately $220 after city authorities had conferred with University officials. The University paid for the damage done to streets by bonfires. Members of the Freshman class and other students who participated in the night's activities were assessed for the remainder of the sum due.

Moreover, the Freshman rules were put back into effect for the rest of the year.

Generals Meet VPI Nine After Two 'Big Six' Losses

Dropped into the "Big Six" depths by weekend losses to Richmond and William and Mary, W&L's varsity baseball team attempted a reversal of form this afternoon when they met the current leaders of the Old Dominion college league, Virginia Tech, in Blacksburg.

Before their clash with the Spiders in Richmond Friday afternoon, the Generals were leading the "Big Six" race with a victory and a tie in two games with Virginia. On the other hand, both the Spiders and W&M had dropped a decision to the Wahos.

Ev Schneider started on the mound for the Blue Friday and got into trouble in the first inning when Wholey hit safely and eventually scored. A five-run outburst in the second frame, featured by Sonny Wholey's two-run homer gave the Spiders a 6-0 lead that they never relinquished. The final tally was 11-7.

W&L's one big inning was the third when they collected four runs, three as the result of Carl Johnson's home run into left field. The Generals picked up another run in the sixth and scored their last two runs in the seventh. Schneider was safe on an error after two were out, and Cook, Brown and Cavanna singled in succession.

Al Wheeler was the winning pitcher for Richmond although he was touched for 11 hits. Cook accounted for three hits, Johnson

Van Buskirk Hurls 4-Hitter As Kappa Sigs Trip NFU

A well-balanced Kappa Sig team trounced the Non-Fraternity Union, 14-6, in an intramural baseball tilt yesterday afternoon as Keith Van Buskirk limited the losers to four bunched hits.

The Kappa Sigs scored in every inning but the sixth, and they tallied five markers in a big fourth frame. The NFU team failed to collect a hit until the sixth when they pushed across four runs. They scored twice more in the seventh but could not overcome a sizeable Kappa Sig lead.

George Bowers, of the NFU club and Van Buskirk slapped home runs.

and Harry Baugher got two each and single blows were gathered by Cavaliere, Brown, Cavanna and Eshelman. Wholey, with four bingles, and Fenlon and Lawler, with three each led Richmond's 15-hit assault on Schneider.

Saturday afternoon the Generals lost to twice-beaten William and Mary when the Indians scored four runs in the first inning, added three more in the third and accounted for their final three in the eighth.

Cap'n Dick Smith's men were limited to five hits and gained their two runs in the seventh inning. Captain Pres Brown started for the Blue but was relieved by Bud Cook in the third. Roy Merritt was the winning hurler in W&M's 10-2 victory and John Korczowski, who drove in four runs, was the Indians' hitting star.

Virginia Tech leads the state race as a result of victories over William and Mary and VMI. The Generals' next home appearance will be Saturday when they square off against William and Mary in a return engagement.

Netmen Beaten 4-5 By H-S Contingent For Second Setback

After dropping their second straight 4-5 match of the season to a strong Hampden-Sydney squad last Friday afternoon on the local courts, Washington and Lee's erratic netters began sharpening their shots this week in preparation for their important return bout with Virginia here next Wednesday.

Friday's loss was a duplication of the 4-5 defeat suffered at the hands of the Wahos there last Monday when the Blue netmen dropped two of the final three doubles matches to lose after breaking even in the singles play.

W&L started off strong by annexing the first three singles encounters. Jack Barrie, Generals steady No. 1 stroker, beat White, 6-1, 6-3; Soph Jack McCormick downed Pugh, H-S, 6-4, 6-3; and Bill Phillips, new addition to the W&L squad, turned in his initial

Richmond Wins Dual Meet Here By 69-57 Score

Scoring nine first places in the 14 events, the University of Richmond's powerful track aggregation downed the W&L cindermen in a dual meet Saturday afternoon, 69-57, despite the fact that General Captain Bud Yeomans won four events and racked up twenty points to take high scoring honors for the day. Preceding the varsity clash the Richmond freshmen and the Blue frosh battled to a 57-57 deadlock.

Yeomans' efforts were the highlights of a meet which saw the Spiders grab a lead at the outset which they never relinquished. In addition to capturing his specialties, the hurdles and broad jump, the W&L captain walked away with top honors in the 220-yard dash.

Yeomans was clocked in 16.4 for the high hurdles, 26 flat in the low hurdles, and 23.2 in the 220, while his winning leap in the broadjump was 19 feet, 9 inches. In winning the 220 he defeated his team-mate Chuck Wooters, who is still rounding into shape after a knee injury. Wooters won the 100 yard dash in 10.2.

Leading the Richmond team to victory were its two stars, John Griffin, weight man, and Gwathmey, distance runner. Griffin was high scorer for the spiders, placing first in the shot put, discus and javelin throw. His heave of 154 feet in the discus set a new Southern Conference record for the event. Not placing second in the discus, Hank Woods broke the

300 Sign For I-M Track Tourney; Strong Beta Team Defends Crown

Almost 300 intramural track candidates will trot onto Wilson field tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 to compete in the field events and Thursday at the same time to compete in the running events, according to Cy Twombly, intramural director.

Beta Theta Pi will defend their track crown, having three men back from last year's team. Betas Bob Tyson, Charles Lanier and Evans Jasper placed in three, one and two events respectively are expected to make strong bids again this year.

Last year's one man team, Bob Lawton of Phi Delta Theta, is on the varsity track squad this season and will not be eligible for the intramural meet. In last season's intramural meet he won the 220-yard dash, high hurdles, broad jump, and placed third in the high jump. Hal Keller, Sigma Nu, is also on the varsity thinclad. He placed third in the javelin event in last year's intramurals.

Those who should make the strongest bids in each event and their places in last season's meet are as follows:

Mile: Haven Mankin, Phi Psi, (second); 440-yard dash: Ashby Carver, Sigma Nu, (second); 220-yard dash: Bill Babcock, Phi Psi, (third); 880-yard dash: Lynch Christian, Delt, (first); 100-yard dash: Charlie Didier, Phi Delt, (first); low hurdles: Bob Cavanna, Phi Psi, (third); high hurdles: Bob Tyson, Beta, (second).

Broad jump: Jack Roehl, Sigma Chi, (second); javelin: Ashby Carver, Sigma Nu, (first); shot put: Ed Samara, NFU, (first); discus: Bob Mehorter, SAE, (second); high jump: Evans Jasper, Beta, (second); pole vault: Jasper, (first); mile relay: Phi Psis, (first).

PIKAs Nose Out KA Ten; SAEs Top Lambda Chis

The PIKAs gained the semi-final round of the I-M baseball chase this afternoon when they eked out a 5-4 triumph over the KA ten. The winning battery was Gorman and Signaigo.

In the only other tilt today, the SAEs swamped the Lambda Chis by a 14-4 count, with Work hurling and Hood behind the plate.

Tomorrow's action will find the Betas facing the Phi Kaps and ZBT meeting Kappa Sigma. Both games start at 2 p.m.

Tennis Match

But the Blue courtmen could not hold such a pace as Ralph Taggart, Bill Allison, and Clancy Ballenger yielded in the other three singles.

Barrie and Taggart were the only W&L winners in the doubles competition, whipping Taylor and Johns, 6-1, 6-1, in the No. 2 match. W&L's first-ranking combination of Dick Spindle and McCormick dropped a thrilling three-set struggle to White and Pugh after winning the first set and being up 5-1 in the second. Allison and Ballenger were bested in the third deciding doubles by Stewart and Ammonette in two close sets.

The Generals' singles play has shown strength so far this season, at least in the first three spots, but the doubles play has been the losing factor in the two defeats this year. The Virginia match next Wednesday promises to be a toss-up, with the Generals seeking vengeance and their first win.

Literary Societies List New Members

Listing eight pledges each, the Graham-Lee and Washington Literary Societies announced today the names of freshmen chosen for membership in the societies from the outstanding men of the Forensic Union.

The new pledges will wear ribbons all this week to designate which group they have pledged. Both initiations will take place next week.

The following men have pledged Graham-Lee: Charles Rowe, Ray Prater, Bob Boucher, Charles Martin, Owen Easley, Ed Jackson, Joe Magee and Marvin Finklestein.

Varsity Track

(Continued from Page Three) W&L record with a 137 foot toss. Gwathmey, one of the best milers in the Conference, came up with victories in both the mile and two mile runs. Sammy Graham finished second in both races to establish himself as a point-winner in future meets.

In the freshman meet, the Baby Spiders held a slight lead all through the afternoon down to the last event, the 220-yard low hurdles. Here, however, Chip Miller and Ray Prater came through with a first and third, respectively, to square the meet up.

Miller and Pete Figgatt were high scorers for both teams. Besides his victory in the low hurdles, Miller won the high hurdles and topped the pole vaulters with a leap of 10 feet 6 inches. Figgatt won both dashes, the 100 in 10.1 and the 220 in 23.3, in addition to capturing the broad jump with a jump of 19 feet, 8 inches.

Dyke and Pinky Norman displayed strength in the field events, their best performances coming in the discus, which Pinky won with a toss of 126 feet, and in which Dyke placed second.

The varsity is preparing this week for its' meet Saturday with William and Mary at Williamsburg, while the freshmen will next see action a week from Saturday against the VPI freshmen.

Measurements and orders for seniors' caps and gowns will be taken in the Student Union from 2 'till 4 Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. This will be the only time these measurements may be taken. The rental fee has been dropped from $2.75 to $2.50.

Senior Banquet to Be Held April 29; Gaines, Dobbins To Address Annual Affair

The annual banquet given for the graduating seniors by the Washington and Lee Alumni Association will be held at the Mayflower Hotel on Wednesday night, April 29, Cy Young, alumni secretary, said this morning.

John C. Morrison of Charleston, West Virginia, will serve as toastmaster for the occasion. He is president of the Alumni Association. President Gaines will speak to the seniors for the University, and the class address will be made by Student Body President Howard Dobbins.

Each member of the graduating class received an invitation Monday and with it a return postal card on which he is to indicate whether or not he plans to attend the banquet. Young urged that these cards be returned promptly so that final arrangements may be made early next week.

The senior banquet idea was inaugurated several years ago by the Alumni Association for the purpose of bringing all members of the graduating class together

Horton Barker to Present Ballad Program Tomorrow

Horton Barker, blind ballad singer who has appeared at folk festivals held annually at Berea College in Kentucky and at White Top in Virginia will present a ballad program in Lee Chapel tomorrow night at 7:30.

Given principally for freshmen English students who are required to attend, the program is open to the public. The appearance has been arranged by the Department of English in line with a recent study of ballads by students.

Barker is under the direction of Richard Chase, of Damascus, Va. He uses a guitar as accompaniment without the assistance of a piano, his programs usually consisting of American ballads and of old English and Scottish songs.

Defense Speakers Bureau Organized Under Jackson

To provide student speakers for appearances at civic organizations, schools, and on the radio in the surrounding area, the Defense Speakers Bureau has been organized under the direction of Professor George S. Jackson, as a branch of the University's Defense Service center; it will take the place of the Speakers Bureau.

The speakers will be gathered from the Washington and Lee student body and will be free to talk on any subject they choose pertaining to the American war program or the international situation.

Any students interested are requested by Mr. Jackson to submit to him their name along with the subject that they have chosen to speak on or before next Monday.
