

IFC Planning Festive Homecomings

Charity Chest Drive Starting Monday; PAN & WF Backed

The annual Charity Chest drive opens Monday and will continue through Saturday, according to Bill Cogar, director of this year's drive.

Supervised by the Christian Council, the drive will be conducted by the White Friars and Pi Alpha Nu, sophomore honorary societies, and Pat Collins and Jim Paradies, presidents of White Friars and PAN respectively, will serve as assistant directors.

The goal for this year has been set at $2 per man. "This is a relatively small request in view of the fact that this is the only drive of its kind conducted on the campus each year," Cogar commented. Individuals may designate the organization that is to receive their contributions, he added.

The chest fund last year was divided among the World Student Service Fund, cancer drive, Rockbridge Chapter of the American Red Cross and the Children's Clinic of Lexington. This gave an equitable distribution among worthwhile world, national, regional and local activities, Cogar said.

The director observed that $2 is scarcely a tithe of the monthly pocket change of Washington and Lee students, and since no other drives will be conducted this year, each and every student should be eager and willing to contribute to these most deserving activities.

An accurate tab will be kept of the contributions of each fraternity house and the house contributing the most per capita will receive recognition at the Homecomings game on Saturday, October 29.

The presidents of the three law classes have been asked to stimulate the drive in the Law School. In order that these men may conveniently contribute their share, a student will be stationed at the entrance of Tucker Hall to receive their contributions.

NOTICE

All freshmen are required to participate in the torchlight parade next Friday night. The annual pajama procession will follow the pep rally.

Torches can be purchased in dorm rooms 350 and 430.

Brockman to Give Piano Recital In Lee Chapel Monday Evening

Thomas Brockman, 28-year-old piano virtuoso, will give a recital in Lee Chapel next Monday evening. The concert will be sponsored by a group of Washington and Lee students headed by Bruce Woodruff. No admission will be charged.

Born in Greenville, South Carolina, this outstanding young American artist entered the Curtis Institute of Music at the age of seventeen. In 1941 he enjoyed the distinction of playing as soloist at a Youth Concert of the Philadelphia Orchestra. Later he studied at the Juilliard Graduate School. During the past war he served with the U. S. Army as a lieutenant in the Special Services division.

Mr. Brockman is to play in Carnegie Hall later this season and his program this Monday night will be the same one he will play in New York.

Calyx Shortened Again by Budget

Fraternity Prices Up; Features Cut

Further reductions in the budget of the Calyx, Washington and Lee yearbook, will result in a smaller book, increase in costs of fraternity pages, an increased need for more individual pictures and the elimination of some features of the annual, editor Bill White announced this week.

Last year's annual suffered a $700 deficit at the end of the year. "We cannot afford to go into debt this year, therefore we have decided to reduce the contents of the book," said White.

Fraternity pages will sell for $90, an increase of $20 over last year's figure. The increase was made "to offset losses due to low campus tax sales," White said.

A disappointing start in the taking of individual pictures, has resulted in the extension of the time limit. Pictures will be taken from October 24 to 29, from 2 until 6 o'clock each afternoon.

White reminded all fraternities and the Campus Club that the Calyx is offering a cup to the group which has the most members photographed individually.

"We are depending on the income we derive from individual picture sales," White stated.

This statement from the Calyx was the first indication that campus publications have been seriously affected by the failure of the campus tax drive. Its supporters stated earlier that all publications would be curtailed if the drive failed.

Calyx costs took a big jump when the yearbook was forced to negotiate a new contract with the printers this year. Costs went up 20 per cent.

Cabaret Dance Canceled By '13' Club; Lynchburg Armory Not Available

A cabaret dance planned for November 5 in Lynchburg after the Virginia Tech football game was called off today after officials at the Lynchburg Armory stated that the Armory would not be available on that night.

Bob Williams, publicity chairman for the proposed dance, said that plans originally called for the "13" Club and the Student War Memorial Fund Committee to sponsor the affair.

Monograms Plan Dance Saturday

Homecomings Queen To Be Chosen Soon

Continuing in their efforts to bring a once dead organization to life, the Monogram Club is planning to sponsor the Homecomings Dance from 9 until 12 following the Davidson football game. The organization, under the able leadership of president John Bell, has been given a shot in the arm and is rapidly returning to the influential position that it held at W&L before the war.

Advance tickets sales begin today and early reports indicate that a capacity crowd of alumni and undergraduates will be in attendance. The dance is always one of the highlights of the Homecoming weekend and Doremus Gymnasium will be well decorated for the event.

This year, for the first time, a Homecoming queen will be elected by three members of the club who will serve as judges. The three men who will pour over the scores of photos submitted by the girls' dates are Fred Vinson, Jim Fahey, and Bill Pacy. All men who have not submitted their date's picture to one of these judges are requested to do so immediately.

Music for the dance will be furnished by Darrian O'Brien and his orchestra, a well known musical aggregation from Lynchburg. Tickets will sell for two dollars a couple.

President's Wife At Home To All Student's Wives

Mrs. Gaines will be at home to the wives of all W&L students on Wednesday afternoon, October 26, at 5 o'clock at the President's home on the campus.

Invitations are being mailed to all wives whose addresses are available, Mrs. Gaines said. However, since the list may be incomplete the President's wife urged all wives to attend whether they receive invitations or not.

Junior Class Throwing Big Party Homecomings

The Junior class will have a closed party from 7 to 9 o'clock Homecomings night in the Pinto Room of the Mayflower Hotel, announced Ed Bassett, class president.

All Juniors are urged to attend, Bassett said, and they will be assessed one dollar each.

Committee Formed to Spark Event; Parades, Parties, Races Planned

By HAROLD HILL

At a meeting Tuesday night the Interfraternity Council formed a committee to supervise the activities of the various campus organizations contributing to Homecomings. The organization is to coordinate and colorize Homecomings.

The Coordinating Committee consists of Bill Wallis, Tal Bond, Bob Silverstein, and Bill Cogar. They have received full cooperation from the Monogram Club, Pan, White Friars, "13" Club and the Spiked Shoe Society.

A unified and well organized Homecomings program has been set up. Friday night along with the pep rally and pajama parade, the White Friars and Pan initiates will have their annual contest. Later they will participate in the parade.

The IPC is making arrangements with the Charleston High School Band for half-time entertainment. This is the same band which represented W&L in the West Virginia game in Charleston. The band, under the direction of Mr. Williams, has 72 members and 20 drum majorettes.

Band Will Parade

Before the game Saturday with Davidson, the Charleston Band will parade thru Lexington. Sponsors of each house in the Homecomings Queen contest will ride in the parade, which will start about 1:30 p. m.

During the half the Spiked Shoe Society will sponsor The Olympiad, a 440 yard relay. Contestants will represent each fraternity. Jim Roberts has asked that all fraternities support this affair. Eliminations will be held next week.

The finish of the Cross Country meet will be timed to come during the half. The Charleston Band and '13' club will also perform.

Sponsors To Be Chosen

Also at the half the queen chosen by the Monogram Club from the fraternity sponsors will be presented. Two sponsors for each team will also be chosen from these contestants. Bill Pacy requests that all pictures be in by Friday.

Decorations Award

Saturday night at the dance sponsored by the Monogram Club, the Alumni Association will present an award to the house winning the Homecomings decoration contest.

In commenting on the activities of the Coordinating Committee, Chairman Bill Wallis urged "all students to come out and take part. Let's make this a bang-up Homecomings."

House Managers Claim Gilliam's Frosh Plan Means Financial Ruin

By J. W. BENJAMIN

A survey of fraternity house managers taken this week, shows that Dean Frank J. Gilliam's plan for a consolidated freshman mess hall definitely struck a sour note in fraternity houses throughout the campus.

Mr. Gilliam's plan, announced in the last issue of the paper, calls for the construction of a large dining hall in which all freshmen would be required to eat throughout their year; the basic reason being a need for the development of a greater class solidarity.

Jack Earle, Phi Gamma Delta, has this to say concerning the plan: "Not enough men would be left in the fraternity to allow for efficient operation. Fraternities depend upon the pledge class to a large degree for the balancing of their finances. With the pledges eating elsewhere, the individual cost per meal of the remaining members would be much higher. Also, the fraternity companion ship centers largely around the meals as far as freshman are concerned. If they lost this opportunity for binding themselves more closely to the fraternity, both the house and the pledge would suffer."

Chris Moore, Phi Delta, offers a solution to the problem: "If worked in with delayed rush week, it would be a fine idea. Under the present system of an early rush week were delayed it would be a big help to the freshman in developing class spirit and in enabling them to get their feet on the ground."

Dick Bidwell, Kappa Alpha, believes it is a good plan for developing freshman spirit but that financially, fraternities couldn't survive.

Gene Anderson, Pi Phi, can't see how it could work with the present fraternity system, but believes some plan might be derived whereby both freshman and fraternity could benefit.

Fred Moffatt, Phi Psi, says: "Difficult financially, but any idea of Dean Gilliam's is bound to be backed by sound thinking and fact. Let's hear some more concerning this plan before drawing any conclusions."

Keep Off the Track

Don't get us wrong...we're all for more color at Homecomings, but it has occurred to us from a casual glance at the front page, that perhaps not quite enough has been planned this year. After all, you might as well go whole hog on the thing as do it half way, and we have thoughtfully prepared a few additional extravaganzas, spectacles, and so on that may have been overlooked by Norm Lord or the Spiked Shoe, etc.

For instance, if somebody will write up to the Front Royal Remount Station they might be able to dig out an old polo team or so for a little half-time rally...polo being just the thing for half-time.

Then you could arrange for a couple of balloon ascents and a lacrosse scrimmage, if the players can keep out of the horses' way. Of course all this will detract from the wrestling match we'd planned for on top of the public address booth, but you can see wrestling matches this winter.

Just for the sake of variety we'll gladly fix it so there'll be some handball matches under the stands right next to the ping pong table we've arranged for.

George Barclay isn't going to like his football players having to change to a track suit to run in the Olympic Games during the half, but we may be able to persuade the Committee to let them keep their football suits on, which eliminates George right there.

What pleases us most about our idea, though, is that the Charleston Band can come over, see all kinds of wonderful things going on, and they won't even get out of their seats...in fact there won't be any room for them.

Briefly on the Charity Chest

We won't attempt to bore you with pleas to support the Charity Chest Drive this year. It's none of our business...it's yours.

Movie Review

By MCKELWAY and SIBLEY

(Note. Because we couldn't see Glenn Ford, we have asked Joe Moffatt to review the picture, The Doctor and The Girl.)

The Doctor and the Girl is a picture about a doctor and a girl. It is one about hospitals and the people who get sick in them. I liked Glenn Ford especially, because he shows what a young doctor goes through nowadays. And I also liked Virginia Leigh because she can handle her part well. I have always liked Charles Coburn because he is such a fine actor and because he can play any part well.

One thing I thought was handled exceptionally well was that one scene in the operating room. Such a scene is a delicate one for any doctor to handle, especially with Gloria de Haven on the table.

We'd like to see more men like Glenn Ford who says nuts to pull and influence and do what their wife wants them to do. The young doctor stayed with his people, because they were his people and he wanted to stay with them. He wanted to help them along in their problems, regardless of the fact that he had graduated from Harvard. It just goes to show that you can be happy with the elevated running by your door and a two-room apartment. Maybe if more people were like this, we wouldn't

Moffatt: The Shifting Scene

By JOE MOFFATT

Anyone who saw the Wahoo game last Saturday is well aware of the fact that Coach Art Guepe's Virginia team was damned lucky to walk off the field with another victory tucked under their belts.

And don't think that the Wahoos don't know it, too. However, we don't intend to dwell on the bad breaks which haunted the "Fighting Generals" over in Charlottesville last weekend. Rather we are trying to put across a point, which is simply this. W&L's football teams have always been unlucky, ever since we can remember.

Time and again it has appeared that one of our football teams was on its way to an inspiring victory, only to have some bad break take the game right out of their hands.

Last week's Virginia game recalls several of these incidents to our mind.

Two years ago the Generals went over to Charlottesville to play a highly-favored Wahoo aggregation and this 1947 game was somewhat reminiscent of this year's ill-fated contest.

In that game two seasons back, the Blue and White of Washington and Lee fought their hearts out to win, just as they did last Saturday. At Halftime, the Virginia Cavaliers led 13-0, in a game which saw a determined bunch of W&L football players surprising even themselves.

And this determination to beat "those damned Wahoos" paid off after intermission. The Big Blue had a halfback named Charlie Harrington then, and in the third quarter the slim Nebraska lad slithered through the entire Virginia team for 69 yards and a touchdown. The extra point was good and Virginia led 13-7.

The cavaliers bucked up against a rock-hard defense and were forced to punt. They did and the ball landed squarely in little Charlie's hands.

Harrington set sail down the sidelines this time, roaring by the Virginia bench, and a highly-agitated Mr. Arthur Guepe and scattered 70 yards for the tying touchdown. The W&L fans were insane with joy. Their beloved Generals had risen to unbelievable heights.

They would go on to win—nothing could stop them now. Nothing, that is, but an official.

There was no flag on the play, but the crushed Big Blue watched Tilson the General's coach at that time and a small but gallant crew of W&L football players. It was a game to end all games.

At the midway mark, W&L led 7-0. However, GW came back after the rest period and banged over two touchdowns to go in front.

The leg-weary Generals clawed their way over for another score, and took the lead 14-13 with only four minutes to go. It seemed a sure win for a team that had not much talent to speak of, except plain, unadulterated guts.

But George Washington sprang his ace back into the clear and scored again. Everyone sadly shook their heads and started for the exits. The Generals had tried—but it was over now. There was only one minute left to play when the Colonials booted the final kickoff down to the W&L 3 yard line. That one minute was the most exciting period that has ever existed on Wilson field.

Exactly 55 seconds later, the amazed Blue clad team had the ball resting snuggly on the GW one-yard line. A Lynchburg boy, Dan Justice dived over for the score. It was called back. Both sides off sides.

Time had run out, but because of the penalty, the Generals had one more try. Justice took it again. Over he went. An official threw up his hands. "Touchdown!" screamed the stands. The hills rocked.

But referee "Dutch" Eberts, a name that will live in infamy forever as far as W&L old-timers are concerned, overruled the decision, saying Justice's knee touched before he dived over. A riot ensued, and Mr. Eberts had to be escorted from the field of battle.

Pictures showed clearly that Justice had not been down before he hit paydirt, and the controversy raged everywhere—all to no avail, W&L still lost.

These are only a few of the many cases where the "Blue Jinx" seems to have exerted itself. However, we have a new coach, who doesn't believe in such things, a bunch of guys on the team who believe in him, and a student body who believes in both Coach Barclay and the team. This is the year to put that hex away for good.

Friday night W&L takes on George Washington and Andy Davis. But here's a vote for the Big Blue. A vote for a man who

GENERALIZING

By
Hunter Lane, Jr.Man Made Fog Clearing
Halfway Through Season

As this fall's football campaign nears the half-way mark, the shroud of mystery which surrounds the relative strengths of the nation's gridiron powers gradually begins to clear. This man-made fog, manufactured by weeping coaches and public relations men, is fast being dispersed as the teams leave the seclusion of their practice-fields for the acid test of actual head-knocking with their rivals for national football supremacy. At the end of four weeks of this organized assault and battery it is possible to draw some definite conclusions as to how the different squads stack up. Leave us the local green temporarily and attempt to glean an accurate picture of the nations football standings from the tell-tale reams of statistics which we have on hand.

Beginning with transcontinental conferences, the big, burly Bears of California, boasting a perfect record thus far and having survived last week's crucial game with Southern Cal, seem reasonably sure to repeat as Rose Bowl hosts. Their next-door neighbors, UCLA and Southern Cal, seem to have the edge on the more northerly coastal teams, both having lost only one game in four grueling Saturdays. California has a conceivable chance to come through their second season with a clean slate, with UCLA the biggest remaining threat to this notable achievement.

The Southwest Conference, the prognosticator's nightmare, is in its usual state of confusion. With sudden death lurking within every stadium for the pre-season favorite undefeated teams are ordinarily as rare as capitalists in Moscow, and this year is no exception. Favoured S. M. U. fell victim to the curse last Saturday in the form of unheeded Rice, previously beaten by lowly L. S. U. Rice faces Texas tomorrow in what should be a singularly tough job against Kentucky's ferocious Wildcats. Baylor sports the only spotless record so far, but have played only one conference power and have a thorny path ahead. This columnist is not venturing any predictions on the final outcome of this melee.

In the exalted Big Ten, Michigan has been dethroned after a two year reign, and the Gopher fans are already screaming, "Long Live Minnesota." Bernie Bierman's ponderous herd have hardly dirtied their jerseys in trouncing their first four opponents, but will face sterner stuff against the Wolverines this week. Northwestern, Ohio State, and Michigan State all have strong teams but are very unlikely to achieve top honors this year.

The Southeastern Conference is somewhat muddled at this point, too. Tulane's vaunted Green Wave, whose verdue was rather sickly compared to the Kelly shade worn around South Bend, is still the big fish in its river, until some of the local outfits prove different. Kentucky, the nation's darkest horse, is making people forget they also play basketball up there. Whether the Wildcats are better than the Greenies will have to be decided by the raters, as these two powerhouses won't get a chance at each other's throats.

Georgia Tech, and Vandy look like third best, while Ole Miss, Tennessee, Georgia, and Alabama will have to content themselves with being rough spots on the leader's schedules this year.

Getting closer to home, it looks like the same old story in the sprawling Southern Conference. Difficult though it is to pick a champ in that unwieldy group there seems little doubt as to the

Brigadiers Meet W. Va. Saturday

Broyles Returns To Frosh Lineup

By JAY GROSSMAN

The Washington and Lee freshman football team will travel to Beckley, West Virginia, Saturday, to take on the "Baby Mountaineers" of the University of West Virginia. This will be the second start for the "Brigadiers" and they will be trying for their second straight win. They defeated the University of Richmond freshman team by a 14-7 score in their first game.

Coach Davis has confidence in this year's squad, although he did state that it is very weak in depth. He thinks that the boys are really hard workers and will make a good showing Saturday.

West Virginia is said to have a big, powerful freshman team. Last week they defeated Kiski Prep School 22-12. Not only do they have the weight, but they have the depth which the "Brigadiers" lack.

"Randy" Broyles will be ready to start Saturday and he should help the team tremendously. Broyles has been out with a leg injury and got into the Richmond game only to kick the two extra points. He had shown very much promise, in practice, before he hurt his leg. Coach Davis has named Broyles as Captain for the West Virginia game and he said that if Bill Scott, who has been suffering from a pulled back muscle, is in shape, he will see a lot of action and will be alternate Captain.

The team has had three weeks of practice since their game with Richmond and have been knocking off the rough points in their "split T" formation. This extra amount of practice between games should be a great help to them and may mean the difference between victory and defeat.

Colon Campbell will not be in this Saturday's game. He broke his ankle in the Richmond game and is still on crutches. His position at fullback will be filled by either Scott or Abrams.

Three Frats Score League Victories

Betas, Sigma Nu and KAs annexed victories in this week's I-M competition. The Betas took an A League tilt from the Phi Deltas 6-0 on a long pass play from Jack Holler to Fred Vinson. The game was close all the way and that TD provided the winning margin.

The Sigma Nu's with Jim Connelly doing the throwing rolled to

Fahey and Mastriann Named Captains for Colonial Tilt

Andy Davis Back in G.W. Lineup; Blue Conference Record on Block

Back into Southern Conference competition, the Washington and Lee Generals travel to Washington tonight to meet the Colonials of George Washington. This will be the first league encounter for the Blue since they defeated Furman in the opener four weeks ago.

At the moment, the Generals are at the top of the Southern heap, although they have played but one game. They have a clean slate and intend to stay in the race when the standings are put out again on Sunday morning.

Coach Barclay announced that the same type of offense that was used against Virginia will be employed against Bo Rowland's Washington crew. Many laterals and much of the razzle-dazzle have been perfected during the week. GW isn't a bad team, and the game should be plenty rough, and plenty close.

The W&L coaching staff starts shaking when the scouting reports of the Va. Tech-GW game are looked over. Andy Davis, ace Colonial passer, sat on the side lines of that game with an injury, but teammate Al DuGoff ran for four touchdowns to win for GW, 24-14. DuGoff made the first two on short plunges, but then showed the crowd he could do it the hard way, running back a kickoff 106 yards through the entire Gobbler team. He carried ten of the thirteen times necessary to get the fourth tally over.

The staff is wondering what will happen with Davis and DuGoff in the backfield.

The Generals haven't played GW since the 1947 season, when the Colonials came to Lexington. The game was played through a rain that made everything messy, but the Blue came through with a 15-6 victory. Bo Bowland has an effective single wing attack that has been geared to revenge this defeat, but Barclay will give him a tough time with the split T. The fans around this Old Dominion school are saying it's the smoothest offense seen around these parts in many years. What W&L needs is a cure for that age-old disease, fumbitis.

Jim Fahey and Hank Mastriann will co-captain the Blue for the game. This follows the pattern that Barclay set up for previous games. Both men are seniors, and both have been playing here since

ADAIR - HUTTON, INC.

Clubs passing attack, but Gubelli and Eubanks managed to click for several short gains.

The KAs nosed out the Kappa Sigs in a C League thriller by a 14-6 count. Both teams scored in the first period, KAs on a pass from McCormick to Bean and Kappa Sig on a Pruitt to Camper toss. Then on the last play of the half Paxton intercepted a Pruitt pass and went 50 yards to score the deciding tally. The Kappa Sigs made numerous long marches, but the KA defense always held on the goal line. The Kappa Sig rolled up 12 first downs while the KAs failed to connect for one.

offensive end is a favorite for Bettini and Leister passes. Mastrianni is a hard-charging fullback from Massillon, Ohio, a breeding place of big, heavy football players.

Coach Barclay will use his passing attack to supplement the running, if he can find replacements for four injured halfbacks. Frank Davidson, Vic Marler, Jim Gallivan, and Jim Stark are out of the lineup. Gallivan, the speedster used on defense against Virginia, is down with a broken wrist and sprained shoulder. Star didn't play at all in the Wahoo game, but hopes to be back in time for this week's fracas. He is the kicking expert. The status of Marler and David-son is hopeful but doubtful.
