

'Macbeth' Opens Monday As Final Troub Production

Austin Hunt Stars In Play's Title Role

Upwards of 30 Troubadours will be sweating overtime this weekend to put the polishing touches on Macbeth, their final production of the season which opens a four-night stand at the Troubadour theatre Monday night.

Always recognized as one of the greatest plays in our language, Macbeth will be presented each night next week at 8:15 p.m. with the exception of Thursday, which is the night of the senior banquet.

Jack Willcoxon is directing this final effort, which stars Austin Hunt, also the producer of the play, in the title role, and Patricia Beach of Sweet Briar as Lady Macbeth. Willcoxon said today, "I think this play will prove as good or better than anything the Troubadours have done yet."

The play will be presented in true Elizabethan style with a few modern innovations. As in the days of the Globe, there will be a total absence of scenery in the Henry Street theater next week except for a few simple platforms and backdrops.

Ken Fox is stage manager, and has charge of constructing this set which makes use of several different levels of playing area, and which will give the actors more freedom of movement in their interpretation than a flat playing level would, according to director Willcoxon.

Costumes

The cast will be dressed in the most authentic Shakespearean costumes the Troubadours could find. These costumes have been shipped from William and Mary.

Troubadour veterans who play supporting parts to Hunt and Miss Beach are Jim Moffatt as Macduff, Phil Robbins as Banquo, Don Peterson as King Duncan, Pete Doyle as Malcolm, and Dave Collins as the drunken porter. Miss June Deakins, dramatic arts teacher at Southern Seminary, will play Lady Macduff.

In comparing the plays, Willcoxon called Macbeth "much tighter dramatically," and said that the acting in Macbeth will be considerably "more even" than it was in King Henry.

Hunt's Last Show

This production, the first Shakespearean play given here this year, will be the last W. and L. appearance for three members of the cast. Austin Hunt, long a leader in the organization, will retire from the Troubadour stage after Friday night's performance. Jim Moffatt, who has appeared in many Troubadour leads, will also drop from the organization's ranks along with actor-director Jack Willcoxon.

Three witches from Southern Seminary will stir the bubbling caldron. This trio includes Elaine Ennis, Suzanne Nagely, and Caroline Peelle. The twelve-year-old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Thomas Barrett, Lynne Barrett, will portray Macduff's son.

Freshmen in the cast include Bud Clopton, Bill Criminale, and Hal Hamilton. Other players are Bev Stephenson, Tom Perkins, Walter Smith, Paul Maslansky, Bill Blanton, Jim Berry, Sam Patton and Peggy Fuller.

Special Lighting

Special effects in the play will be largely the result of lighting and sound. Lighting will be handled by Sam Buchlotz, and sound effects are being done by Bill Strother. Special effects during especially dramatic scenes in the play are being developed by Sam Patton. Original incidental music has been written for the play by Jim Cook.

The play will run slightly over two hours in actual playing time, and is being done with very few cuts. The only cuts that have been made were repetitions of themes previously expressed in the play. It will be given in two acts with one intermission.

Tickets for the production are on sale at the Book Shop. They are priced at 75 cents for students and $1 for others. There will be no admission by the Campus Tax.

Final Corps Day Set For Next Tuesday

The final Corps Day for this academic session will be held Tuesday afternoon at 4:40 p.m. when the ROTC students put on the President's Review.

At these ceremonies, University President Francis Gaines will present two awards to those students who have exhibited a high degree of merit with respect to leadership, soldierly bearing, and excellence in their courses of study.

Col. Lindsay J. Griffith, executive officer of the Hampton Roads Port of Embarkation, will award National Defense Transportation scrolls and keys to the outstanding basic and advanced course students based on demonstrated leadership, academic standing, and aptitude for military service.

A third award, to the best drilled company, will be presented by Lt. (Continued on page four)

ROTC Band Schedules Concert For Lee Chapel Thursday at 8:15

Washington and Lee's ROTC band will present its second concert of the year next Thursday in Lee Chapel at 8:15 p.m. Under the direction of Dave Comegys, the 33-piece band will play ten selections. The concert is open to the public and admission is free.

Divided into two parts, the program will include marches, semi-classical and popular pieces.

The first part will include four tunes, the first one being Morton Gould's New China March. Then, on a more serious note, the band will play the Intermezzo Scene from Albert Ketley's In a Persian Market. The music from this scene depicts various things which a beautiful young princess sees in a market place while traveling through a small town in a caravan. The composition ends with the resuming of its voyage and leaving the market deserted.

Next on the program will be a Bach chorale entitled, Wachet auf! ruft die Stimme, (Sleepers Wake! Voice is Sounding.) This is to be played by the band's woodwind section.

W. and L. Sets Record with 216 Pints of Blood

W. and L. students set a new record for blood donation at a Virginia school yesterday by contributing 216 pints to the Roanoke Regional bloodmobile.

Previous records had been held by VPI with 210 pints of blood collected in one day and VMI with a record of 202 pints. Yesterday's bloodmobile visit to Lexington was the first for the purpose of collecting blood entirely from students. A drive for blood contributions from VMI students was made earlier in the spring.

SAE won the keg of beer offered by the IFC for the fraternity with the highest percentage of blood donors. Percentages of blood donors in each house follow:

Fraternity	Percentage
Sigma Alpha Epsilon	93.75
Delta Tau Delta	93.73
Sigma Nu	85.37
Phi Alpha Delta (legal)	74.00
Phi Delta Theta	69.44
Lambda Chi Alpha	52.39
Kappa Sigma	50.00
Sigma Chi	47.37
Pi Kappa Alpha	34.82
Kappa Alpha	34.00
Beta Theta Pi	33.94
Phi Epsilon Pi	30.00
Phi Kappa Sigma	25.00
Delta Upsilon	24.30
Zeta Beta Tau	19.44
Phi Gamma Delta	18.33
Pi Kappa Phi	14.89
Phi Kappa Psi	10.00

Bill McClintock and Chuck McCain directed the recruiting drive for the IFC. This visit of the bloodmobile was sponsored by the local chapter of the Red Cross. Arrangements were made by Fred Carmichael, manager of the Co-op and chairman of the local Red Cross group; Major General John Marston, blood program chairman, and Mrs. J. M. Sisley, executive secretary of the local chapter.

Forty-eight pints of the donated blood will go to the Armed Forces while the remainder of the contribution will be used in regional Red Cross activity.

Only four students who volunteered for donations were rejected while eight others who volunteered and were accepted fainted when their blood was being taken. Mrs. Sisley said that it was not unusual for donors to faint.

Approximately 100 students contributed to the bloodmobile on its regular visit to Lexington in December.

Notice

Excused absence has been approved for all members of the O-1 unit who will participate in the armed service parade the morning of Saturday, May 17. Dean Frank J. Gilliam has announced.

Such approval will be extended solely on the basis of the O-1 students signing out in advance for this absence at the Registrar's office.

ODK, Christian Council Plan Collection of Used Text Books May 19 To Start Lending Library

Galperin, Goodman, Jones Elected Publications Business Managers

Business managers for three publications were selected by the Publications Board Wednesday night, but the Board was deadlocked on the selection of an editor for next year's Southern Collegian and election of that editor was deferred until next Tuesday night.

Bob Goodman was chosen business manager of the Calyx, Sid Galperin selected head of the Collegian's business department and Bill Jones picked to head the Ring-tum Phi's business department.

Members of the Publications Board were unable to select the editor of the re-instated Collegian from among a field of five applicants. New interviews for these men and any others who might be interested in the position will be held in the Student Union building on Tuesday night.

Applicants for the Collegian editorship include Cal Cafritz, Hugh Glickstein, Tom Kenny, Joe Scher, and Glenn Scott.

Goodman has worked for three years on the Calyx. He will move up to the post of business manager on the yearbook from assistant business manager which he was this year. A rising senior from Troy, N. Y., he has been a member of the varsity swimming team, vice-president of ZBT and has been active in the Boys' Club work of the Christian Council.

Galperin is a rising senior from Charleston, W. Va. During his sophomore year he wrote for the Collegian and this year worked as advertising manager of the humor magazine. He has played varsity soccer and has been secretary of Alpha Kappa Psi and housemanager of ZBT.

Glee Club To Present Program in Capital Sunday, Here Tuesday

The Washington and Lee Glee Club will hold its Spring Concert in Lee Chapel Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. Dean James G. Leyburn will be guest pianist.

The program includes three sacred songs, Crucifixus, Cantate Domino and Salvation Belongeth to Our God. The Glee Club will do these three songs when it sings in the National Cathedral even-song this Sunday in Washington also.

A group of famous words by Thomas Jefferson which have been set to music by Randall Thompson, entitled Testament of Freedom should offer wide variety in the program. The Testament is divided into four sections, all of which will be done by the Glee Club.

Jim Cook and Joe Mullins will accompany the Glee Club on the piano. The club hopes to be able to return to the National Cathedral next year. The cathedral has a policy of inviting the best college glee clubs to sing at its even-song services. Besides W. and L., Princeton and Navy will sing during the present season.

Officers elected for the coming year are Henry Grady, president; Dave Comegys' secretary; Jim Andrews, business manager; Scott Clinton, librarian; and Bill Craig, historian.

'Blue Angel' With Dietrich Set for Tonight in Reid 12

The Blue Angel, starring Marlene Dietrich, will be presented by the German and romance language departments at 4 and 7:30 p.m. today in Reid 12.

Dietrich's famous German-made film will have English titles and some tickets will be available at the door. Admission is 35 cents. Showing is primarily for students in the various German classes, but is open to the public.

Council To Operate Service from Library

Sponsored by ODK and administered by the Christian Council, the first text book lending library in W. and L. history will be founded here later this month.

On May 19, "Book Day," a concerted drive by the ODK circle, the Christian Council, and the dormitory counselors will be initiated for the purpose of collecting currently-used text books from members of the student body. Collection centers will be in the freshman dormitory, the fraternity houses, and the Student Union.

ODK chairman of the project is Steve Lichtenstein. Hal Cochran will supervise the library.

The purpose of the new library, which will be located in McCormick Library, will be to lend text books free of charge to W. and L. students who might otherwise find purchasing of some or all of their books each semester a strain on their finances.

For a week at the beginning of each semester the ODK library will be operated by members of the Christian Council. Any student who feels justified in requesting the use of books may borrow them free of charge for a semester. The books will be placed in a special section of the stacks and a catalogue of them will be kept at the main desk of the library. Students borrowing books will be held responsible for damage and loss.

'Book Day' Important

Realizing that many students will want to contribute books after their exams, the sponsors of the drive will continue to collect books until June 4. Said chairman Lichtenstein, "Though the drive will last for several weeks, we hope that 'Book Day,' May 19, will be a successful launching of our project. Most students here must undoubtedly have several books with which they are already finished and would be willing to contribute them to a worthwhile cause. If 'Book Day' is a success, we'll know that our idea has the approval of the student body; and the ODK library will be a contribution to the progress of the University."

The ODK Circle plans to foster similar drives at the end of each semester.

Dormitory counselors and members of the Christian Council and ODK will turn the books they collect over to Mr. Coleman in the library for processing.

Books Loaned or Given

Lichtenstein stressed that only books currently being used in University courses would be of use to the ODK library. If a student wishes only to lend books to the library for a stipulated period of time rather than give them to the library, provisions will be made for the return of his books.

When questioned, student and faculty members of ODK voiced their approval of the spring ODK project and seemed confident that the student body would insure its success. Said Hunter Lane, newly elected ODK president, "The library project is one of our most worthwhile undertakings in recent years. We hope that its merits will attract wholehearted student backing."

Salesmen Taking Orders For Convention Booklet

Salesmen in each fraternity house have begun taking orders for picture booklets of the Mock Convention published by the Student War Memorial Scholarship Fund Committee.

Pictures will be printed on slick paper of the type used in the Calyx. Ten pictures will be used. Cost of the booklet is $1.00.

The slick paper is being used to prevent the tendency of the pictures to fade. The booklets will be delivered Wednesday.

Panel Considers Bank Problems

Classes in the Commerce School will be suspended after 9:20 a.m. tomorrow morning for a panel discussion of current banking problems to be held in Lee Chapel. Five prominent commercial and federal bankers, including three W. and L. graduates, will be the speakers in the panel.

Sponsored by the School of Commerce, the panel will begin at 9:30 and continue throughout the morning. The panel is open to all students, faculty members and also the public.

Heading the list of speakers is Robert S. Bacon, a W. and L. graduate, who is executive vice-president of the First National Bank of Mobile, Ala. Two other W. and L. graduates, Kenneth A. Durham, vice-president of the Chemical Bank and Trust Company of New York, and E. H. Ould, executive vice-president of the First National Exchange Bank of Roanoke, are also on the panel.

Two federal bankers, Dr. Charles W. Williams, vice-president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond and Dr. Albert Koch, chief of the banking section, Federal Reserve System, Washington, D.C., complete the panel.

Bacon will open the conference with a discussion of "Pressing Banking and Finance Problems Which Confront My Bank." Durham will follow with problems concerning "Current Status of the Textile Industry in Relationship to Banking Problems."

Ould, the Roanoke representative, will discuss "Government Competition with and Controls on Private Banking." Dr. Williams of Richmond will consider "Regional Industrial Developments and Government Competition in the Banking Field."

Dr. Koch will close the formal portion of the program by discussing "Patman Committee Findings in Their Relationship to Commercial Banking."

A luncheon for five guests, Commerce School faculty, and three recent initiates of Beta Gamma Sigma honorary commerce fraternity will be held at the Robert E. Lee Hotel tomorrow afternoon with President Francis P. Gaines presiding.

Myers To Help Pick Fulbright Winners

Dr. Edward D. Myers, professor of philosophy here, has been called to Washington to aid in the selection of applicants for certain Fulbright awards in the field of philosophy and religion.

Dr. Myers is meeting today with two other philosophers and the Committee on International Exchange of Persons to review 1952 Fulbright applications for teaching and advanced research in Denmark and Pacific and Asiatic countries.

The Fulbright awards were established by the government several years ago to stimulate education and training of Americans in most of the Lend-Lease nations.

Meeting with Dr. Myers are Professors Herbert Schneider of Columbia and George Thomas of Princeton.

THE TEXT BOOK LIBRARY

Omicron Delta Kappa and the Christian Council are undertaking one of the most noteworthy projects which we have seen on the campus during the past several years.

Until this time, the situation on text book prices has been like the weather: everybody talks about it, but nobody can do anything. Now, something is going to be done! The idea is for a lending library of used text books, to be made available to students who are hard hit by the usual 25 to 30 dollars per semester for new texts. This proposed system will be administered through the McCormick Library facilities, with the check-out term being up to a semester in length.

The idea was ODK's; the administration will be the Christian Council's; but the responsibility for making it a success is the student body's since the books needed to start the library must come from the students. The first collection time, called "Book Day," will be Monday, May 19. At that time, members of ODK and the Christian Council plus dormitory counselors will canvass the campus for books. Fraternity houses are a gold mine of used texts, and individuals' shelves are filled with old books. Out of these places, students will be asked to bring any books that are still used in University courses. For anyone who wishes to retain his old texts for reference after leaving college, the plan allows for loan of the books and return of them when the lender specifies.

All the executive ability and organization of ODK and the Council will not make this worthwhile idea a reality. It depends on campus-wide cooperation.

A RECORD AND A CHALLENGE

We've set a record. By contributing 216 pints of blood yesterday to the Red Cross blood bank, W. and L. students topped the highest number previously collected by this Roanoke unit in any one day. This applies not only to a college or other single group, but to any locale visited by the bank.

We would have given much more if the facilities had been available. More than 300 men volunteered to help, and turned in pledge cards; but the Red Cross had only time and equipment to collect the 216. Numerous students have complained that the Red Cross is managing its blood campaign poorly by not arranging to accept all the donations offered.

Our answer—and we feel sure it would be the Red Cross—is that while the offers are appreciated, this drive must be run in a business-like way with the unit appearing at the place that will be able to help the most. Since the unit was scheduled to collect in Roanoke all day today—and is in a different area each day—it therefore could not stay in Lexington a second day and gamble on enough additional students coming through to make profitable use of the blood mobile.

The logical solution for W. and L. is to give enough blood to keep either two units busy one entire day or one unit busy for two days—in other words, about 400 pints, or only 100 more than were volunteered this time. This should present no difficulty in a college of more than 900 men. As a matter of fact, 400 pints would probably be less than 50 per cent of the student body, even after those who are ineligible for health or other reasons are discounted.

W. and L. has a right to be proud of the 216 donors, and equally proud of those who volunteered but could not be used. However, rather than sit back and admire this record, we issue a challenge to prove that the student body can do better. This is a challenge to the Red Cross, and especially to ourselves: Washington and Lee can keep a Red Cross blood mobile occupied for two of its working days!

This is ambitious, but in the light of our record pledge this time, of the attitude about the Red Cross slighting itself and the men who need blood, and of our obligation to make part payment in this way for living the easy life during wartime, we offer this challenge with faith that W. and L. men will respond.

The Editor's Mirror

Seniors need not worry about obtaining good jobs following graduation, to judge from a report of the Department of Labor which optimistically states that our economy is at present operating at extremely high levels and is expanding, and that expansion is expected to continue for the next three years, at least.

Best chances for employment will be found along the West Coast, in the South Atlantic region and in Texas. Engineering is the single field which seems to hold best prospects for graduates in the next few years.

Engineers, the Labor Department says, is by far the largest technical profession and one of the nation's fastest growing fields of work. It has been estimated that there will be a need for 30,000 engineering graduates yearly for several years. The number of students who will graduate in engineering in the next three years has been estimated to be: 1952, 26,000; 1954, 17,000 and 1955, 19,000.

Even if we should suddenly revert to peacetime production, the demand for graduates would exceed the supply of new engineers in 1954-55. Actually, the estimated figures are misleading because many graduates will enter military service.

Regarding the job opportunities presented by the armed services, the Labor Department hints that too many Americans "look upon military service as a rude interruption of their civilian lives which postpones the carrying out of other cherished plans."

We'll ride with the majority on that one.

Letter to the Editor

'Shenandoah' Editor Outlines Next Issue's Contents

Editor, Ring-tum Phi
Dear Editor:

We have read your editorial concerning Shenandoah with considerable interest and some pleasure. While our policy must to some extent remain flexible, I think perhaps your readers will be interested in the next Shenandoah, which seems to me the sort of thing you had in mind.

The major part of the summer issue of Shenandoah, to be published before the end of school, is devoted to a re-appraisal of the Tennessee Agrarians. For the benefit of the students not having taken Dr. Fishwick's sociology, the Agrarians were a group of scholars at Vanderbilt who put together in 1930 a volume called I'll Take My Stand by Twelve Southerners.

The theme of the book was summed up in the phrase, Industrial versus Agrarian, in both cases meaning (not machines and farms) but ways of life. They contended that the South was the inheritor of a traditional European culture in the process of being usurped by the unique industrial civilization of the North. Because of the fact that all parts of the country are forever linked, the theme is pertinent not only to the South but to all sections.

Shenandoah begins with an introductory essay explaining who these Agrarians were and what they believed, followed by a personal memoir of the group. Then comes a symposium, or group discussion, of the subject by seven out of the ten living authors of I'll Take My Stand.

Any student will be bound to recognize some of the names—John Crowe Ransom, Donald Davidson, Frank L. Owsley, Allen Tate, H. C. Nixon, Andrew Lytle, John D. Wade. The point I would make is that these are not "pure literary studies"; instead, they concern sociology, economics, history, religion, philosophy, ethics,—yes, and to some extent literature!

The Agrarians are very important in any survey of southern thought, as a little research will show; in short, we think this issue is the sort of stuff of which term papers are made, but just as important a criterion has been readability.

As for the rest of the issue—we plan to reproduce, whole or in part as photography will allow, Dr. Junkin's fine new mural; we have poetry by Merrill Moore, one of the most popular, and, if you like, understandable poets in the country; there will be a short story. And for those people who, as I do, like literary criticism (although I am not an English major) there will be reviews by Hugh Kenner, one of the leading critics of the country.

I hope I may be forgiven for such windiness, but in view of your editorial, I thought these facts should be placed before the student body. And incidentally, though I have no desire to deny the power of the press, we have been working on this issue since January.

Sincerely,

Tom Carter

Deadpan Alley Budget of Time Seen as Answer To College Woes

By FRAZIER REAMS

I flatter myself occasionally and think that I have what you might call a methodical mind. By this, I mean that every now and again, I decide that I have been living too haphazardly, that I ought to plan for the future a little more.

The last act I do before retiring during these jags of planning (which are caused by the fact that I dropped a quiz cold due to having insufficient time to study for it) is to sit down at my desk, pull out three-by-five cards every true student wouldn't be without, and try to figure out what I am going to have to do on the morrow and what I am going to want to do at the same time.

This presents quite a conflict and therefore, the result is a compromise and all history majors know that compromises rarely succeed. Therefore I have two strikes against me before I begin. After finishing my task—the task of making the schedule, not the task of carrying the darn thing out, and there is quite a difference, ya' know—I leap into the pad and sleep with a secure conscience, knowing that tomorrow will be the day I am going to get every thing done and still have time to loaf.

7:45. Get up, dress, eat breakfast. I didn't make it out of the pad till around 8:24 but I made the class—and besides, I caught up with the schedule after that class.

9:20-10:15. Study for next class. I ran into the second hour coffee team and didn't get away till time for the next class, but that was all right because I was three chapters behind and it's a lot easier to read all that stuff at one time. I'll schedule it for later.

10:15-12:05. Classes. I got hungry in my 10:15, and so I decided to cut my 11:10. It didn't take any time off my schedule and besides, health comes first. I needed that second cup of coffee and I found out later that they didn't do anything but have a pop quiz.

12:05-1:15. Write Christmas thank-you letters. I didn't leave the Co-op till around 12:30 as I got involved in a discussion of girls' schools and got carried away with myself.

When I got to the house the mail had arrived and I managed to nail the new Life. I had to read it right away because there was a line waiting for it. I'll make up the letter writing some other time, maybe tomorrow. It's kinda late for Christmas letters anyhow.

1:15-1:30. Lunch.

1:30-1:55. Free time. Esquire came today also.

1:55-2:50. Lab. I have decided not to let my schedule get ahead of me for the rest of the day. I'll use a little will power and carry the thing out just to show myself I can do it.

2:50-4:00. Exercise. I had to go uptown and see if I could get something to eat. After all, my health comes first in this game. You can't expect to live if you don't eat.

4:00-5:00. Study history parallel. It was too nice a day to waste in the library, so I decided to go out and play a fast game of tennis. That comes under health also as you can't expect to think clearly unless you get some exercise every day. Boy, am I in poor shape!

5:00-6:00. Sociology parallel. I was tired and decided that health comes first and that you need plenty of sleep to think clearly. I was up late last night making this schedule.

6:00-6:30. Get ready for dinner. I overslept a little.

6:30-7:00. Dinner.

7:00-10:30. Study. Well, I was planning to schedule myself to a show tomorrow as you need that type of relaxation in order to keep your mind clear. I decided to take in the show tonight instead. I got out at 9 o'clock and had to have something to eat; after all you have to eat in order to stay alive.

10:30-11:30. Reading of good novels, Mickey Spillane just wrote a new one and I had to keep up with the times. It took me a little longer than the allotted time but I wanted to get it out of the way.

11:30. Sack. I didn't quite make it in time but it sure is a good feeling to know that for once this year, I got everything done and still had time to burn. These schedules are great.

Movie Review

Reviewers Expect Kelly Musical To Redeem Prediction Average

One good gauge of the rapidly closing year is that we—and you—will have to bear through only two more of these columns. We are getting rather tired of movies right now, anyhow, and will be glad of a chance to rest our eyes for a while.

However, while we wait for our deserved rest, the remainder of the campus seems bitten by some sort of spring-movie-fever. Attendance at night shows seems to have picked up, though of course the afternoon show team has suffered from too much cutting. The regular routine right now seems to be Goshen in the afternoon and the flick at night, and to hell with school.

Voyage Surprise, the first in the foreign film series here, showed last night to two large and seemingly pleased audiences in Reid Hall. Starring Sionel, Voyage got a lot of fun out of the situation of an old man who sets up his own travel agency in competition with the regular agencies, only his "Cook's Tours" are surprise packages—without regularly known itinerary.

The Voyage starts off with stolen money, unknown to the travelers, secreted on their circus wagon—strangest transportation ever seen. The good old movie technique of the chase was used to keep the picture up after that—but all in all, in spite of reliance on some stock movie stuff, the film was entertaining and of considerable value, we'd say, to the French students who saw it.

Recommended highly—The Blue Angel, which shows in Reid Hall tonight. If you think as highly of Dietrich as we do, you'll not miss this one.

On our predictions last week, we slightly overestimated With a Song in My Heart, were a little too enthusiastic about When Worlds Collide, and completely missed out on Just This Once.

This was a sleeper for practically everyone, as the previews looked rather foul, and Peter Lawford has rather disgusted us in the past, anyhow. But he and Janet Leigh were furnished some of the sharpest dialogue in quite a few months and the total result was boy-chases-girl comedy of much higher than usual caliber.

Though we messed up slightly on predictions, we still are betting on Singing in the Rain. Disregarding Donald O'Connor, the leads are all favorites with us, and Debbie Reynolds is fascinating in the previews. Gene Kelly looks like he has outdone himself in several of the dance sequences, especially the one in the rain that reputedly took some 45-50 hours to film.

A little before-exam relaxation can be bought cheaply here next week. The Troubs will be at the little theater off Red Square all week (except Thursday) with Macbeth. Those of you who saw the Orson Welles' film of the same name will want to come and see for yourself how Shakespeare wrote it. (Those who liked Welles' reading of the play be comforted, we're only kidding somewhat.)

The bill at the State next week is not too much, except for the above-mentioned musical, so there's really nothing to prevent seeing this glorious spectacle—in full color. To complete the picture of what Macbeth will be like, we'll only add that the best foreign talent has been secured for it—Lady Macbeth hails from Sweetbriar, and the three witches and Lady Macduff come through courtesy of the Sem.

Previews of the musical, Brother Rat, re-made from the now classic original of VMI life, did not look very good. In fact, it looked completely worthless except to go to see and laugh at—not with.

IFC Elects McClintock President for 1952-53

Bill McClintock was elected president of the Interfraternity Council for 1952-53 last night by acclamation. McClintock, past secretary of the IFC, will replace Harold Hill as head of the 17 fraternity body.

Bill Branscome, sophomore, was elected vice-president of the organization. Branscome is a member of Phi Kappa Sigma. He was elected by acclamation.

Sherman Secretary

Also elected by acclamation was KA Harry Sherman to the office of secretary. Sherman is a sophomore.

The only race for an office was for the position of treasurer. Past treasurer Bob Smith lost to Jim Conner in a close election. Conner, a sophomore is a member of Beta Theta Pi.

The newly elected president is a junior from Tunica, Mississippi, and a member of SAE. During the past year he served as secretary of the IFC.

Business Discussed

Other business discussed at the meeting last night included a plea from the IFC scholarship committee for applications for the IFC scholarship, awarded annually on the basis of academics, activities, and need. Anyone desiring further information can contact a member of the Council.

McClintock served as student director of the IFC sponsored blood drive yesterday.

W. & M. Nine Here Tomorrow; Generals Try for Tenth Victory

Generals Nip Gobblers, 8-7

On Saturday afternoon at 3:30 on the Lexington Recreation Field, the Generals will take on the squad from William and Mary in a Southern Conference baseball encounter. The Indians lost to W. and L. earlier in the season.

Last Wednesday afternoon on Smith Field, the Generals' Captain, Catcher Bay Arnold, tripled home the tying run and then scored himself on a wild pitch in the eighth inning to give W. and L. an 8-7 victory over Virginia Tech. The Generals, with Billy Mauck pitching steady ball, held a 6-2 edge over the Gobblers until the seventh, when two errors and a three-run homer resulted in four unearned runs for VPI.

Sloppy fielding in the form of seven errors hurt Mauck. The bespectacled righthander was relieved by Tyson Janney, who pitched no-hit ball for the last two innings. Janney gained the victory, the second by the Generals over Tech this season.

Bay Arnold paced W. and L. at the plate, collecting four hits in five trips, including four runs batted in. Driving in four runs with two homers, in the sixth and seventh innings. Rightfielder Tommy Bryant paced the Gobblers at bat.

On Thursday night Maryland University scored two runs in the eleventh inning to defeat the Generals, 7-5, and give W. and L. a Southern Conference record of five wins and five losses and a 9-9 slate against all opposition.

Maryland led, 4-2, until the ninth inning, on single runs in the first, third, and fourth innings off loser Glen Gamble, who went all the way for the Generals. In the top of the ninth the Terps added two more runs to their total to bring the score to 5-2. Then in the bottom of the ninth, triples by Jack Haver, Warren Moody, and Dave Waters, plus a walk, produced three runs for W. and L. and a tie ball game. Bob Soderberg, the Terp starter, was effective until the ninth, while reliever Connie Hemphill pitched no-hit ball during the tenth and eleventh innings to gain the decision.

Generals Host to Big Six In Track Meet Tomorrow

The annual Big Six track meet is scheduled for 1:30 tomorrow afternoon on Wilson Field.

VPI, Virginia and VMI are the favorites, with VPI holding a slight edge due to its sensational quarter-miler, Stu Johnson.

The Big Six record in the 100 may be broken tomorrow as "Baby" Nelms, Richmond, and Jimmy Decker, VMI, are capable of running the dash in under ten seconds.

Netters Defeat Tigers For Seventh Victory; Wahoos Triumph, 8-0

The felt-pounders lost to Virginia Monday on The Homestead courts, but racked up their seventh victory of the year by beating Hampden-Sydney, 8-1, away on Wednesday.

The Hampden-Sydney match was a repeat of the earlier encounter here, with the Blue dropping only the number three doubles.

Freshman Dick Cobban came through in his first singles match for W. and L. with an impressive 8-6, 6-3 defeat of Simmon. Garrecht bounced Slydon, 6-1, 6-3. Rockwell hammered Edmunds, 6-2, 6-4 and Mohr won his tenth match of the season, 6-4, 6-3, over LeCompte.

Hollowell, Barbe Win

Hollowell and Barbe found rougher sledding, with Hollowell at two triumphing, 6-2, 1-6, 6-4, and Barbe defeating Hoke, 7-5, 8-6.

Rockwell-Mohr and Barbe-Garrecht doubles teams won in straight sets, but Slydon and Simmons of Hampden-Sydney carried off the third doubles, 6-2, 6-3.

Virginia Triumphs

Virginia's powerhouse produced as usual to turn down the Generals, 8-0. Dawkins halted number three doubles after two long sets.

In the closest match of the day, Barbe lost to Bobby Cabell, 6-2, 5-7, 6-1.

Virginia controlled the other matches more decisively with Horsley over Henry, 6-4, 6-3, Jett

Lacrosse Team Plays Tarheels; Seeks to End Losing Streak at 6

Washington and Lee's lacrosse squad will go after its fifth win of the season tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock when they meet the University of North Carolina on the upper intramural field.

The team, which has posted a record of four wins and seven losses so far this year, will be favored to drop North Carolina, according to Coach Ben Collins. One of the Generals' four wins this season was against Lehigh University by a score of 12 to 5. The Tarheels were able only to tie Lehigh, 8-8.

Ross Wagner and Ken Spence, two of the W. and L. starters, will not be able to play tomorrow. Wagner has a severe case of poison ivy, and Spence is sidelined with a badly twisted knee.

Collins commended two freshmen and two sophomores for the improvement which they have shown since the start of the season. He singled out Freshmen Sid Negus and Tommy Robbins and Sophomores George Fellows and Jim Conner.

The probable starting lineup for the Generals tomorrow will have Fletcher Lowe at goal; Chuck Rauh, Tom Kenny, and Dick Johnson at defense; Captain Jim Gray, Negus, and Doug Rose at attack; and Chuck Bibby, Robbins, and Guy Drake at midfield. At second midfield, Collins will probably have Conner, Fellows, and Bill McHenry.

In a game played last Tuesday the Duke University team trampled the Generals, 10 to 3. Gray tallied two of the W. and L. goals, while Rose scored the third.

On Saturday, May 17, the Generals will close out the lacrosse season with a contest against Loyola University on the upper intramural field.

Golfers Down Wahoos, 6-4 In Season's Link Finale

The W. and L. golf team finished its regular season Tuesday with a 6-4 victory over the University of Virginia.

Victories in the third foursome decided the Generals' triumph.

THE DU PONT DIGEST

Engineering Unlimited

Training in many different engineering branches opens the door to opportunity at Du Pont

In recent issues of the Digest, we have discussed opportunities for mechanical and chemical engineers at Du Pont. However, this is only part of the picture. The special skills of more than a dozen different branches of engineering are needed on our scientific teams. For example:

Architectural, civil and structural engineers are attached to the central Engineering Department which handles most of the Company's construction projects. In this work they make site investigations, lay out new plants, design buildings, determine construction methods and specify materials and equipment. They also assemble necessary labor forces at field locations and supervise the building and assembly of complex manufacturing facilities.

Electrical engineers aid in designing process equipment and facilities for power generation and distribution, air conditioning and refrigeration. Instrumentation is another important phase of their work. Continuous automatic analyzers for cyanides, ultra-violet gas analyzers, multivariable recorders, and new photo-multiplier circuits are just a few of their developments.

Industrial engineers help develop methods and standards for new or improved manufacturing processes. This work often serves as training for production supervisors.

Metallurgical engineers play an essential part in the central Engineering Department's program of research. Their studies are aimed at improving equipment and construction materials, as well as methods of measurement and control.

Safety engineers strive constantly to improve the broad safety program initiated by the Company's founder 150 years ago. Du Pont is understandably proud of its safety record, which in 1950 was eight times better than the chemical industry's as a whole, and fourteen times better than the average for all industry.

Carl Gosline, B.S., Iowa '41, conducts meteorological engineering studies to help solve plant chimney problems involving smoke and acids.

This by no means completes the list. Every U. S. industry utilizes Du Pont products. Hence there is also a need for specialists in mining, petroleum, textiles and many other branches of engineering.

Along with chemists, physicists and other technical personnel, almost every kind of engineer finds opportunity at Du Pont. Your engineering degree is only a door opener. Any man with ideas, imagination and the ability to handle people will find plenty of room for advancement in this company that has never stopped growing.

W. and L. Seen Across U.S. On Sunday CBS-TV Show

TV watchers all over the country got a glimpse of Washington and Lee's mock convention Sunday afternoon when Edward R. Murrow used films of the convention for about half of his 30 minute "See It Now" show over CBS-TV.

Murrow's mock convention story opened with an introduction of W. and L. including shots of Washington Hall when classes were changing. Scenes of the convention itself included shots of caucuses, nominating speeches and demonstrations. Speeches by Senator Carlson and Lexington's Mayor Holstein were also shown.

Murrow said that about 500 schools hold mock conventions during an election year but the convention at W. and L. was chosen by his program as being the best.

Next Issue of 'Shenandoah' To Be Released This Month

Distribution of the summer issue of the Shenandoah will begin in about two weeks, according to Tom Carter, editor of the W. and L. literary magazine.

"The Shenandoah has never been in better financial shape," Carter said. Approximately 600 students, alumni, and friends of the University subscribe to the quarterly publication.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

No. 41...THE MAGPIE

He's a chatterbox himself — outclassed by no one! But the fancy double-talk of cigarette tests was too fast for him! He knew — before the garbled gobbledygook started — a true test of cigarette mildness is steady smoking. Millions of smokers agree — there's a thorough test of cigarette mildness.

It's the sensible test...the 30-day Camel Mildness Test, which simply asks you to try Camels as your steady smoke — on a day-after-day, pack-after-pack basis. No snap judgments. Once you've tried Camels in your "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste), you'll see why...

After all the Mildness Tests...
