Trustees Meet Soon to Choose New President

January 18 and 19 Dates Set for Committee Meetings

MANY NATIONAL FIGURES NAMED

Davis, Baker, and Latane Mentioned—Delay Advised

Committees from the board of trustees, the faculty and the alumni association will meet here January 18 to discuss prospects for the selection of the president of the University, to succeed Dr. Smith on his retirement July 1. The board of trustees will also hold its regular winter meeting in Lexington January 19, the birthday anniversary of General Lee.

Editorial comment from Virginia papers has been to the effect that every effort should be made to get a nationally prominent figure to head the University. The Lynchburg News last Sunday made the suggestion that the trustees be in no hurry, and that it might be advisable to request Dr. Smith to continue in the president's chair for another year, pending the selection of a successor.

Prominent Alumni Mentioned

The news mentioned in this connection the names of such national figures as Newton K. Baker, Washington and Lee alumnus, formerly Secretary of War, and now a well known lawyer, author and business man, and John W. Davis, also an alumnus, a Democratic presidential candidate, and now a lawyer and business man. John H. Latane, noted educator, scholar and author, has also been mentioned, although nothing definite could be learned in this connection.

Numerous other men have been suggested, including several prominent men now connected with the University, although officials today refused to make any statement regarding the men under consideration.

Three Committees To Meet

Five trustees, four alumni and seven faculty members will make up the three committees to meet in conference the day preceding the board meeting. The conference was called by John S. Munce, of Richmond, chairman of the trustees committee on the selection of a new president. Other trustees on the committee are: W. A. McCorkle, Charleston, W. Va., Hugh B. Sproul, Staunton; John W. Davis, New York City, and George Walker St. Clair, Tazewell.

Comprising the alumni committee are: John L. Campbell, Lexington; Dr. J. Morrison Hutchinson, Richmond; Judge E. C. Caffey, Newark, N. J., and Dr. William Allen, Charlotte, N. C.

The faculty committee is made up of Deans W. H. Moreland, J. L. Howe, G. D. Hancock, D. B. Easter and H. D. Campbell and Professors W. G. Bean and E. K. Paxton.

Varsity Boxing Squad of 36 Is Showing Promise

The varsity boxing squad, of some thirty-four men are going through strenuous work-outs each afternoon in the Doremus Gymnasium.

Coach Bill Price has been rounding this large squad out for the coming season. With such an array of talent to pick a team it is expected that an interesting season will develop. As yet Price has not selected the men that will represent the various weights in the first meet. He will probably do so within the next week.

The season opens with a meet with William and Mary here on the nineteenth.

Marshall (Little Sleepy) Glenn has been named captain of the West Virginia University football team for next season. He is the third of three brothers who have starred for the Mountaineers on the gridiron. Glenn played quarterback on the football team this year. He is also a star forward on the basketball quint.

Liquor Spies Will Be Banned On Campus By President

If Governor Harry Flood Byrd carries out his threats to conduct a liquor investigation on this campus, it will not be through the use of student spies and private detectives masquerading as students, President Henry Louis Smith said yesterday. Dr. Smith thinks such steps would be effective in exposing liquor conditions but are directly opposed to the spirit of Washington and Lee. He declared he would not tolerate that type of investigation.

Method Not Known
How Attorney General John R. Saunders will conduct the investigation of drinking conditions in Virginia colleges that Gov. Byrd ordered last Sunday is doubtful. He said yesterday he had not decided what steps he would take. In order to make the investigation effective Mr. Saunders said secret service detectives would need to be placed in every fraternity house. He declared such a method impossible, however, with the limited number of prohibition enforcement officers available in this state.

The threatened probe of collegiate drinking conditions in Virginia flared up when the Rev. Dr. David Hepburn, president of the Virginia Anti-Saloon league saw the Virginia-Carolina football game last fall. He publicly commented on the number of intoxicated persons at the game. "A state-wide scandal" is the way Dr. Hepburn characterized

Extensive Trip Faces Debaters

Team to Leave Feb. 10th for Debates With Kent Law School

The Washington and Lee debating team will start its most extensive trip in recent years on February 10. No former team has gone farther into the Northwest, according to Bill Plummer, manager of debate.

The first debate will be with the Chicago Kent School of Law, at Chicago, on February 10. This will be given over the radio by station WMAQ, the Chicago Daily News. The decision will be given by the radio audience, and the time is 6 o'clock central standard time. Separate pictures of both teams will appear in the News on that day. The question is: Resolved: That Congress should pass uniform marriage and divorce laws for all states. Constitutionality is waived.

Ohio Wesleyan at Delaware, Ohio will be the next debate on February 12. The question is: Resolved: That trial by jury should be abolished. Washington and Lee has the affirmative in both of these debates.

The same question will be debated with Miami at Oxford, Ohio on the night of February 13. The squad is working hard on both questions, but the team has not yet been picked.

As proof of the prestige of Washington and Lee debating teams, the debate last year with the British students was published in the University Debater's Annual for this year, being given first place in the book. The publishers have requested permission to publish another from the coming schedule. Few small schools have received a compliment quite as unique and extraordinary as this.

Local PEP's Hold Scholastic Honor

At the national convention of Phi Epsilon Pi held during the Christmas holidays the local chapter was awarded a cup for having the highest scholastic average of the twenty-five chapters represented. According to Woods Berger, who attended the convention, the chapter here received commendation not only for this year's record, but for their work for the last eight years.

student drinking in the University of Virginia in a letter he wrote to Gov. Byrd the next week. Charges of Dr. Hepburn were replied to in an open letter written by Dr. Edwin A. Alderman, president of the University of Virginia. Dr. Hepburn then came out with a statement that Dr. Alderman had not answered the liquor charges at all, but only defended the drinking students.

The controversy reached a stage animated enough to draw Governor Byrd into it. Aiming to prove or disprove the liquor charges the Governor ordered Attorney General Saunders to investigate drinking in the state and private colleges in Virginia.

In The Public Interest
Sunday Mr. Saunders received the following orders from Governor Byrd. "In view of the recent charges that excessive drinking exists at our state university I feel it is in the public interest that you should direct an investigation in all the colleges and universities of the state." He is expected to announce his method of procedure in this investigation within a few days.

The honor system at the University of Virginia is "false" "obsolete" and "protects the lawless liquor element," Dr. Hepburn charged. He further charged that the attitude of the faculty and administration at Virginia aggravates the liquor condition. He said Dr. Alderman had made no effort to stem the flow of "corn."

Jack Kane Dies Of Pneumonia

Word has been received here of the death of Julian Jackson Kane, of the law class of '28, at his home in Gate City, Virginia. "Jack" Kane, as he was known here, was president of last year's senior law class. He graduated in June and was engaged in the practice of law at his home when stricken with influenza. Pneumonia resulted and he died about one o'clock in the morning of January 8.

He was a member of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity here. He was also a member of the Glee Club and Phi Alpha Delta, legal fraternity. Kane transferred here from Hampton-Sidney College to study law. Upon his graduation last June, he married Miss Jo St. Martin, of Gate City. He is survived by his widow, his aged father, five brothers, and three sisters.

His father, the former Senator Henry S. Kane, who was already ill, is now in a serious condition after being informed of his son's death.

Funeral services were held this afternoon at the Southern Methodist church.

Frosh Wrestlers and Boxers Meet AMA Wednesday

Booked for competition with the Augusta Military Academy's crack wrestling and boxing teams at the Academy next Wednesday the Blue and White yearling grapplers and ringmen have been busily engaged during the past week in staging their tryouts.

Freshman wrestlers were selected yesterday, and Coach Bill Price expects to select the ring contingent the latter part of the week.

Wrestlers who will make the trip are:
115 lb. Davidson or Ladd
125 lb. Gordon or McWilliams
135 lb. Smithers
145 lb. Harris
155 lb. Mattox
165 lb. Guyol
175 lb. Tillson or Hamlet

Aspirants for the last five weights are numeral men on the frosh eleven, but Mattox and Harris are the lone contenders that have had any previous experience.

George Lanier Predicts The Greatest June Week of W&L History

The drive for funds to make Washington and Lee's 1929 finals the greatest in the history of the University will start tomorrow and will run through Friday.

Every man on the campus is expected to subscribe to the Finals fund. George Lanier, president of the 1929 Finals believes that every man will want to subscribe.

Tables will be placed in Newcomb hall, the Washington building, Tucker hall, and at the "Corner," where subscriptions will be received all day Thursday and Friday. Checks may be post dated if the subscriber wishes, and the finals committee will do everything in its power to facilitate matters.

If the money comes in early, preparations can be made early and the Finals organization will be enabled to operate more efficiently and carefully.

Lanier expressed the opinion that nowhere else could so much entertainment be received for the money as at Finals. The conventional subscription is ten dollars. At Finals there are four night dances culminating in the renowned Final ball which runs all night. On Saturday a dancant runs from eleven till two. During the night of Final Ball an elaborate supper is served on the campus to which a Washington and Lee man may bring his girl, friends, and family if he desires.

Lanier wants it distinctly understood that no one pays for Finals; there is no one "on the gate" at any Finals function. Anyone may go in or out of the Doremus gymnasium at will—no one pays for anything. What one does is to subscribe to the fund to make a great Washington and Lee institution possible.

AMA Quint Foo of Frosh Monday

Coach Davis Sees Many Likely Men in Large Squad; Game In P. M.

Coach Eddie Park Davis called his Freshman basketball candidates back to practice sessions after the holiday recess on last Saturday night. He has been putting them through stiff workouts each day since, in an effort to have them in fine form for the opening game of the season which is scheduled for Monday afternoon in Doremus gymnasium where the quint of Augusta Military Academy will be met.

The practice sessions of this week have consisted mainly in passing drills, floor work, and perfecting of plays in scrimmage sessions of the earlier part of the week with the Varsity.

No squad cut has been made at this date and all of the candidates have been getting their chance in scrimmage with no first five being selected as yet. Coach Davis has been using Smith and Atzback at forwards, Wilson at center, and Burke and Bailey at guards the most frequently in scrimmage with Vickers, Elias, aylor and Lighte getting their share of work at the forwards and Fulton, Wolfe, Jones alternating at center and Cross, Stone, Nesbitt, and Barasch seeing much service as guards.

None of the promising candidates have been out with sickness and only one accident of note has been incurred in the preliminary workouts. This was a broken nose suffered by Atzback, promising forward who received the injury in Monday's scrimmage session with the Varsity five. The quint should be in fine shape in their opening contest with all the men out for practice since the holidays.

WANT INFORMATION AND BEAUTY PICTURES

Students are asked by C. C. Hutchinson, Editor, to co-operate with the Calyx staff in making up the University sections.

Slips of paper and boxes will be placed in Newcomb Hall, Tucker Hall, the Co-Op, and the Corner before next Saturday, and all students are requested to fill out their names, activities, classes, and society affiliations up to the present time.

The staff will need the aid of the student body in order to get this section complete as soon as possible, and desires each member to fill out a slip before next Thursday.

All students wishing to submit pictures to be considered for the beauty section of the Calyx have been asked to turn them in to Bill Plummer at the Sigma Chi House immediately.

Initial Game of Basketball Season Tonight

Generals Take on Hampden-Sidney Tigers in Doremus Gymnasium

The varsity basketball season gets under way tonight at 7:30 when the Generals of Washington and Lee take on the Tigers of Hampden-Sidney in Doremus gymnasium. After the curtain raiser tonight the Washington and Lee quint plunges into the midst of a heavy campaign, taking on Bridgewater here Friday night and Randolph-Macon and Virginia next week.

Coach Smith spent last night's final practice session in polishing up the Generals' five man defense and putting the finishing touches on the offensive plays.

Three of last season's lettermen will be in the General's lineup when the men take the floor tonight. Captain Jim Lowry will take care of one of the forward berths, while Heinie Groop, a veteran of two seasons of varsity competition will appear in one of the guard posts. Ernie Wood who made his monogram last year will start in the other guard position.

Would Allow Clever Men a Kiss If He Were a Girl, Writer Says

"I'd treat men, if I liked them, as though they were men and not little boys who I thought might let them kiss me," says Eric Hatch in the February issue of College Humor.

"I'd be pretty careful whom I kissed, but I'd let every man I liked get the idea he could kiss me if he was clever. I'd let him keep the idea till he tried and then if he tried hard enough in a nice way I'd probably let him—in a nice way. I think I'd be low enough to try to make them think there wouldn't be anything on earth quite as snappy as having me around the house when they came in tired. I'd make them comfortable, act glad to see them and feed them and give them cocktails and things.

"I think I'd read a lot, if I were a girl. I wouldn't go out everytime somebody asked me to; my complexion couldn't stand it. I'd never make the mistake of staying at three parties in a row so late that I came out on the fourth day looking like a paste flower with black-rimmed eyes. Not on your life I wouldn't. I wouldn't come out on the fourth day.

Suggests Tricks
"I'd wear clothes that came from smart shops and if they did not and looked as if they might have, I'd hook some labels and sew them in. In summer I'd wear frocks that men would call love-ly and women call catenish. They

Dr. S. Z. Ammen Wrote Fraternity Ritual While A Student Here

Dr. Samuel Zenas Ammen, founder of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity here, first editor of the Southern Collegian, a Confederate veteran and for thirty years an editorial writer for the Baltimore Sun, died suddenly January 5, at Daytona Beach, Florida. He was buried yesterday at Fincastle, Va., where he was born in 1844.

Dr. Ammen had made his residence in Baltimore and Philadelphia for a number of years. He was spending the winter in Florida when his death occurred.

Soon after the start of the Civil War, he entered the Confederate service as a private in the Eleventh Virginia Infantry. Later he was in the Navy, and during the last year of the war served as commander of a guerilla cavalry troop.

Wrote Fraternity Ritual
At the close of the war he entered Washington College, and while here was prominent in various lines of college activities, being the founder and first editor of the Southern Collegian. As a founder of the Kappa Alpha Fraternity, he was the author of its ritual and code. The fraternity has since spread throughout the southern half of the United States.

He was graduated by this school in 1869 with the degree of Master of Arts, and in 1893 was awarded the degree of Doctor of Letters.

Prominent Teacher
Leaving college Dr. Ammen went to Kentucky and taught in the rural schools several years before moving to Baltimore, where he taught the classics in private schools for nearly eleven years. Many of his former pupils are prominent in Baltimore social and financial circles.

While teaching in Baltimore, Dr. Ammen wrote a number of books, the most important of (Continued on page three)

Sultana Scheherazade's Tale To Offer Brilliant Possibilities

PROFESSIONAL DANCERS APPEAR DURING BALL

Danced Before Lady Astor At Governor's Ball

Measurements for Fancy Dress costumes will be taken Thursday and Friday afternoons from 2:30 to 5 o'clock in Doremus gymnasium. All students desiring girls' costumes should get the dress size immediately.

Bal Oriental: "Scheherazade" from the "Arabian Nights" is the theme of the 1929 Fancy Dress Ball to be February 22, according to information given out last night by Carl E. L. Gill, director of the annual ball, and T. G. Gibson, the leader.

A gist of the theme of the dance follows: The Sultan Schahriar, holding the conviction that all women are false and faithless, vows to put to death each of his wives. The Sultana Scheherazade saves her life by entertaining her lord with fascinating tales, which she continues telling the Sultan for a thousand and one nights. The Sultan, consumed with great curiosity, postpones, from day to day, the execution of his wife, and finally repudiates his vow entirely.

Told Colorful Stories
Many were the wondrous tales recounted for the delectation of Schahriar by the Sultana Scheherazade, for in them she makes use of the verses of the poets, folk-songs, stories, and various other tales and luring adventures. The different groups of the figure will represent the characters of Scheherazade's tales, which keep the stern Sultan entertained. Dancing girls, slave markets, thieves, mystic temples, and all the glamorous characters and stories of the "Arabian Nights" will be vividly presented in the prologue of the ball figures.

Noted professional dancers will present a series of oriental dances. The same personnel that danced before Lady Astor, on her recent visit to Virginia, at the "Governor's Ball" will be here.

Elaborate decorating plans are being pushed since the close of the Thanksgiving set of dances in November. Professor Carl E. L. Gill is in complete charge of the decorations and costuming, while he is being ably assisted by several students. "The most brilliant social function of the South"—to quote a New York newspaper—will be even more spectacular and realistic this year than before. (Continued on page three)

THE PROHIBITION RACKET

Governor Byrd has instructed the Attorney General of Virginia to make a thorough investigation of liquor drinking in all the colleges of Virginia, both public and private. This means Washington and Lee will be investigated. And it means no girl school can be exempted.

While the Attorney General is having this campus-to-campus liquor investigation made, why not have him go still further and have everything else pertaining to college life investigated at the same time—have a thorough cleaning up and prevent any similar requests as the Rev. David Hepburn has made?

The investigators will find some liquor drinking at all boys schools, and, with a close investigation, in girls' colleges as well. But these probers will find the alcohol consumption far less than the Reverend Hepburn's charges against the University of Virginia. Insinuations against other Virginia colleges brings a black eye to student behavior in the state—enough unfavorable publicity to make one look to see if the "light s not shining" out of this state. And he would lead the grown-ups to believe students were trying in earnest to live up to the picture painted by F. Scott Fitzgerald and Percy Marks.

There is no denying there is some drinking in Virginia schools, but is it worse than in schools of other states? An investigation will put the much rumored drinking question to an end.

THE MEMORY LINGERS ON

You know the beauty and charm of Finals at Washington and Lee, or you have heard. The dances, the decorations linger in one's memory long after he leaves college. Finals are the gala occasion of a student's life. Other happenings are much sooner forgotten.

This week the finance committee of Finals is making its first appeal to students. It's a financial appeal to you to make the Finals of 1929 surpass those of former years. Plans are already well mapped, but for success in these your support is essential.

You want a Finals which will long be remembered as the most gallant occasion of your student years! You want a set of dances which you will be proud to say you helped finance! The finance committee of the 1929 Finals is at work. Let's give them our aid.

CALYX CO-OPERATION

Due to the wide-spread sickness on the campus before the holidays, and the impossibility for some of the students to have their pictures taken before Christmas, C. C. Hutchinson, editor of this year's Calyx, has had White's representative return. For the 1929 Calyx to be a success and be off the press on time your co-operation is needed. Have your picture taken promptly—do not be the drone to hold up the publication.

Soon the business staff, led by Ed Ould, will begin its drive for subscriptions. The Calyx is the most complete memory-book of college life here. You'll want one after you leave college—you'll want to recall days that used to be.

Both editorial and business staffs are working to give you a book representative of your school. Members of the staff have been working at night since their return to insure you a great book. Won't you lend your co-operation?

ELU HINTS

The influenza epidemic at Washington and Lee is over, for the time being at least. Many medical experts predict that the country will be visited by another wave of the malady before the winter months are over. It may mean that we shall see another infection here, through if students are cautious, such may not be the case.

Physicians have made extended researches for some method of completely ridding the country of the disease but as yet no way has been found. Doctors frankly say they know no certain preventative, but there are precautions which physicians the world over recommend.

Every student should set aside regular hours for rest and sleep. Begin the day with rest—end it with work and play. Wash your hands before eating, and be sure not to allow your unwashed hands to come in contact with your mouth. The county health officer advises exercise, but not in excess. Check colds at their outset, and be sure you have plenty of fresh air.

Other than these few suggestions physicians have no remedy for "flu." But if everyone will keep this advice well in mind, there should be little cause for alarm and little reason for a second wave of the malady.

MAKER OF KINGS

It's not the king that is dead, but the maker of kings. . . George L. (Tex) Rickard.

Rickard's name does not appear in "Who's Who," but it is safe to say that he is better known to the American public than all but a mere handful recognized in that august manual of greatness. The man who died Sunday had a personality and a gift of enterprise which made him not merely an outstanding "showman," but a very present reality in the consciousness of our American public.

Tex was a dreamer, but he had what so many dreamers lack—the ambition and ability to make his dreams come true. When he was a cowboy in Texas, or a miner in Circle City, or a cafe owner in Nome he would dream of things which have since become realities.

Rickard first came into prominence when he promoted the Gans-Nelson fight at Goldfield. From that day, his first fight, to December 24, 1928, Tex promoted 289 bouts, gross receipts of which amounted to over twenty-four and a half million dollars.

A genius is gone. Yes, a genius and it's not a king that is dead, but a maker of kings.

SPREADING EDUCATION

There are now 63 college radio stations in the United States. Radio, as a factor in teaching, is being taken up with almost the same seriousness, though not with such widely-spread results, as radio for news, for amusement and for advertising.

The time will come when through a combination of radio, moving pictures and television, our schools will be supplemented by a sort of "correspondence study" or "home university study."

And when it does come, we shall have a ratio of trained brains that corresponds to our ratio of trained hands; and the Old Utopia will have become a way-station on the road to real prosperity.—Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Young men life is before you. Two voices are calling you—one coming from the swamps of selfishness and force, where success means death; and the other from the hilltops of justice and progress, where even failure brings glory. Two lights are seen in your horizon—one the fast fading marsh light of power, and the other the slowly rising sun of human brotherhood. Two ways lie open for you—one, leading to an even lower and lower plain, where are heard the cries of despair and the curses of the poor, where manhood shrivels and possession rots down the possessor; and the other leading to the highlands of the morning, where are heard the glad shouts of humanity and where honest effort is rewarded with immortality.—John P. Altgeld.

Those things called dear are, when justly estimated, the cheapest; they are attended with much less profit to the artist than those which everybody calls cheap.

Beautiful forms and compositions are not made by chance, nor can they ever, in any material, be made at small expense.

All works of taste must bear a price in proportion to the skill, taste, time, expense and risk attending their invention and manufacture.

A composition for cheapness and not excellence of workmanship is the most frequent and certain cause of the rapid decay and entire destruction of arts and manufacturers.—Josiah Wedgwood.

It is an instinct with me personally to attack every idea which has been full grown for ten years, especially if it claims to be the foundation of all human society. I am prepared to back human society against any idea, positive or negative, that can be brought into the field against it.—George Bernard Shaw.

(Editorial)

EDITOR'S NOTE—To the cogent, timely editorial from the Lynchburg News the RING-TUM PHI wishes to call attention. We wish to urge those interested in the future, as well as in the present, of Washington and Lee to read it. It seems to us a particularly fortunate, sound, long-headed suggestion for solving a problem which, never simple, has become, through recent developments, particularly difficult and demanding of time and caution.

BEST ONLY FOR W. AND L.

When the board of trustees of Washington and Lee University meet on January 19 to consider the question of a President of that historic institution to succeed Dr. Henry Louis Smith, who retires next July, the eyes of many devoted Virginians will be turned toward Lexington. Not only alumni, not only those peculiarly interested in Virginia educational institutions, but all who revere the memory of George Washington, the real founder of the college which later became Washington and Lee University, and all who revere the memory of Robert E. Lee, who preformed there his great service to the youth of the South and the cause of reconciliation, will have intense interest in the result of the meeting on January 19. And not only to Virginians, but to men and women in every section of the United States is it a matter of concern who is to succeed that long line of notable men including Robert E. Lee and G. W. Custis Lee who have had charge of the destinies of the university which is seeking a new president. It is not for Washington and Lee and her alumni alone that the trustees will act.

It is, therefore, without great degree of hesitation that The News ventures to come forward with a little unsolicited advice. It is briefly to go slow. There is no need for hurry, President Smith does not retire until July and even then the board, as The News understands it, will have authority to re-elect the incumbent to serve for another year. If Dr. Smith could be prevailed upon to accept such re-election, in case no decision had been reached by July, the trustees would have twelve months in which to search the country for the very best man available. And that is what Washington and Lee should have. She should have a President who will bring prestige to the university and not one who, as well qualified as he may be otherwise, will acquire prestige from the university. The difficulties in the way of securing such a man are obvious, one being the comparatively small salary the university can afford to pay. The man selected may have to be one to whom the financial compensation is not of importance. Another is to find a man of national prominence who is prepared to give up an active career, but yet has not reached an age which would make his retirement as president compulsory in too short a period of time. Whether such a man can be found and induced to accept, The News, of course, has no way of knowing. There comes to mind Newton D. Baker, Secretary of War under Woodrow Wilson, and now a lawyer, business man and writer of world prominence, and John W. Davis, one time ambassador to Great Britain later candidate for President of the United States and now also lawyer and business man of note. What reply these men or a man like them would make to an invitation no one knows, but the effort to get the acceptance of some one like them can be made, and there is time enough in which to make it. As already stated, there is no hurry. Either Dr. Smith can be prevailed upon to continue his work for another year or the affairs of the university can be entrusted to an acting president until the field is combed and the best available man has been secured.

It is unnecessary for any one to remind the trustees of Washington and Lee of what they know better than any one else, which is that the institution over which they have control and which they love is at the point where it must either go forward or backward. Some other colleges and universities lacking the background of Washington and Lee and whose service to the State and to the nation has not been as great as that of which Washington and Lee is capable are progressing more rapidly in equipment, in buildings, in size and strength of faculties. A great president would mean a great future for the institution bearing with every right the names of two of America's finest men. An unknown might make a reputation for himself and for the school; one untried as an executive might prove a master executive. But it is no time for taking chances—and there is no need for taking chances.—Lynchburg News.

Collegian Believer in Weird Emblems For Luck in Finals

The modern collegian, the sophisticated, wise disciple of science, laughs derisively at medieval superstitions. Yet this paragon of logic cringes at the approach of final week and desperately resorts to absurd but futile attempts to obtain the favor of Lady Luck.

Sedate students search frantically for the pair of trousers which enveloped their shaking limbs that one time they "socked" a final examination. And in one case where that article of clothing was destroyed by continual quizzes and continuous wear, an ingenious student reverently clipped off a piece of goods and carried it with him, thus conclusively proving that the degree of luck is not dependent on the durability of the trousers. However, this particular lad met with great misfortune.

With only a fragment of the cloth in his pocket, he "flunked" the quiz. Since this fragment had occupied a most prominent position in the original trousers, they could not longer be worn, and the poor boy went home by request. Such is a heartrending tale of a superstitious student.

Weird Emblems

Those bits of lumber upon which examinations are written would convince the most skeptical that college men and women have implicit faith in the existence of jinx. It is impossible to pass an examination on some boards—words to that effect may be found scribbled all over the wood. Weird, magical emblems of luck decorate the boards and distract the mind of the conscientious writer.

Some student invariably draws an accurate likeness of Buddha before starting on his quiz. Someone else always takes the seventh board in the pile, sits in the seventh seat from the aisle, and carries seven pencils.

A shave during final week is absolute suicide. This belief seems prevalent throughout the campus. Some students maintain that the use of the fountain pen is the height of folly. Yet this writing implement has many staunch supporters who look with horror on the common lead pencil.

Lack of Punctuality

An industrial age like ours emphasizes efficiency, abominates wasted time, and regards procrastination as a fatal fault. Men who have risen to executive leadership in big business generally rate the value of subordinates so quickly by their promptness and punctuality that one who lacks this habit finds all promotion barred.

Let every young American, therefore, cultivate every day, in minor duties and engagements, a never-failing Habit of Punctuality. Such a habit, fixed and crystallized during youth's formative period, is a wide-open door to rapid promotion and business leadership.

Wrestlers to Invade North This Week-end

Varsity Grapplers to Meet Princeton and Army; Six Sophs on Squad

Facing Princeton at Princeton Friday and the Army at West Point the following afternoon Coach E. A. Mathis' Varsity Wrestlers will see their initial action of the season.

Although the Blue and White will be stepping out of their class to grapple the Tigers and the Cadets, Mathis is confident that a good showing will be made by Washington and Lee, if his men exhibit the form that they have displayed in recent practices.

Of the eight man combination selected to make the Northern invasion, six are sophomores and only two are letter men. Incidentally, the Tiger mat contest will be the first appearance for the six sophomores in Varsity inter-collegiate competition.

In the 115 pound class Barkus, a Sophomore who won his numerals on the mat squad last year, has shown promise, especially since the holidays, according to Coach Mathis and is one of the hardest fighters on the team.

Kaplan, also a second year man, will grapple in the 125 pound weight.

Perhaps the strongest entry will be "Shorty" Rule, 135 pound monogram veteran and captain for two seasons ago. Despite the fact that he has been rather slow in getting back into condition after failing to return to school last year, Rule, who for two years never lost a Southern conference bout, is gradually reaching his old form according to the Coach.

Belsar, a sophomore who did not report for wrestling in his Freshman year, will represent the 145 pound class, grappling in the place of captain-elect Tully who did not return this year.

The 155 and 165 pound weights are to be taken care of by Hall and Clark respectively. Hall was on the squad in 1928 but failed to make the team, while Clark wrestled with the freshmen, winning one bout and dropping another.

Bolton, 175 pound giant and letter man of two campaigns, will hold down his regular position. Although he is only a middleweight, Flagg will see duty in the unlimited division as no other promising candidate is on hand.

The squad will return Sunday and will start preparing for their first home encounter January 26 against North Carolina university.

tain is slated to start the game in the pivot position. McComas and McLennan will be held in reserve should Williams need assistance.

Cox and Hanna, the two high powered forwards of last season's undefeated frosh combination are waging a terrific struggle for the job opposite Captain Lowry. Cox has shown remarkable ability to ring the basket in the private scrimmages and will probably get the first call tonight. However, Hanna is pretty certain of getting into the scrap before it is very old.

If he gets the opportunity, Coach Smith will probably try Homer, Jacob, and possibly other candidates in the forward posts in order to get an early line on the members of his second team under fire. Scott, Pilley, and Faulkner, the three sophomore guards are also due to get a shot at the enemy in the course of the battle.

Tiger Strength Unknown

Little is known of the strength of the Hampden Sidney aggregation other than the fact that there will be three veterans in the lineup. This is also the first game for the Tiger institution. Reports from Hampden Sidney indicate that the early practice sessions were greatly hampered by the epidemic of "flu", but the squad is now practically intact.

On Friday night Bridgewater will come to Lexington for its annual game with the Generals. Bridgewater opened its season last week by taking a defeat at the hands of Randolph Macon. The game did not reveal the facts that were expected for the fast stepping Yellow Jackets decidedly trimmed the Virginia Cavaliers last Saturday night.

Probably lineup tonight:

Artistic Settings

Lovers of dance will see a most inviting spectacle when they enter the Doremus Memorial Gymnasium the night of the annual party. Word pictures cannot describe the beauty of the artists' touches in the settings of the scenes and the elaborate figures.

T. G. Gibson, also announced that he had secured a very noted Victor recording orchestra for the Ball, but would not release the name until later. It is expected the orchestra selection will be announced Saturday.

They're going to standardize the books of Northwestern University co-eds by operating a dress clinic. The too-tall girl, the too-short girl, and the too-stout girl will be given a chance to modify the lines of their figures to a point where she will be as attractive as the other.

Under the direction of Miss Anna Helga Hong, professor of art, the "dress clinic" will aid every fair co-ed to dress attractively despite possible handicaps of nature.

Coaches Will Conduct School During Summer

Knute Rockne and Meanwell To Give Instruction at Washington and Lee

Knute K. Rockne, famous football coach of the University of Notre Dame, and Walter E. Meanwell, head coach of basketball at the University of Wisconsin will conduct a school for football and basketball mentors at Washington and Lee from July 1 through July 13 of this year. The school coaches were secured for Washington and Lee through the efforts of Graduate Manager R. A. Smith and Coach Forrest Fletcher, who are personal friends of the two well known coaches.

The course is meant primarily for men who give their full time to the teaching of athletics, in various schools so that there will be no time wasted in reviewing fundamental points of the games. It covers "The Technique of Individual and Team Play," "The Principles of Coaching, Training, and Conditioning," and "The Care of Injuries."

The school was scheduled to meet here last summer but Mr. Rockne was on a trip abroad and the plans fell through. However, Graduate Manager Smith reopened negotiations last fall and has received the following letter from Mr. Rockne concluding the agreement:

I shall be on hand for the coaching school from July 1st to 13th at Washington and Lee University and I am looking forward to spending two weeks with you there with a great deal of eagerness.

The only data I can give you on the coaching school advertising is that I have lost, even with this bad season, only thirteen games and won ninety-two in twelve years, and I have played them from coast to coast. Warmest regards to yourself and Mr. Fletcher.

Yours sincerely,
(signed) K. K. Rockne
Director of Athletics

The tuition fee for the course is $25, which does not include room and board. Coaches Smith and Davis of Washington and Lee attended the school at Bucknell University in the summer of 1927 and there met the two famous coaches. Coach Fletcher and Rockne were class mates at Notre Dame.

Knute K. Rockne, head coach of football at Notre Dame University, has a record of ninety-two wins and thirteen losses in twelve seasons during which leading teams from coast to coast have been met. He was the coach of the famous "Four Horsemen" and the undefeated national champions in 1925. He was the originator of the widely known "Notre Dame end and forward pass plays." Rockne has turned out a small army of men who are now on the coaching staffs of some of the greatest colleges in the which are, Ammen's "Latin Grammar," a "Scientific Description of Luray Cave," and the "History of Maryland Commands in the Confederate Service."

Soon after, he entered newspaper work, and in 1881 was made an editorial writer on the Baltimore Sun, a position which he held until his retirement from active work in 1911. During his work on the Sun, Dr. Ammen wrote on all possible subjects, however, his strongest point was the discussion of economics.

In 1882 he married Miss Nannie Kelso Wetherall, who died in 1905, leaving a son, William W. Ammen, now a patent attorney in Philadelphia. Besides his son, Dr. Ammen is survived by three sisters and a grandson, William W. Ammen, Jr.

country. Among the Rockne pupils who are now head coaches are Crowley, of Columbia; Bachman, of Florida; Stuhldreher, of Villanova; Layden, of Columbia (Iowa); Mathews, of St. Louis; Collins, of North Carolina; Dorias, of Detroit; Smith, of Gonzaga; Vaughan, of Wabash; Banjan, of Dayton; Elward, of John Carroll; Shaw, of Nevada; Dwyer, of Niagara; and Mehre, of Georgia.

Dr. Walter Meanwell, of the University of Wisconsin, is the originator of the "pivot," "short pass," and "five man defense." Meanwell methods and technique have been spread by several thousand coaches who have attended his summer sessions since 1912 and by his numerous ex-players in active coaching. Meanwell teams have won or tied nine conference championships in 14 seasons and have won 196 games in contrast with only 43 defeats. The following prominent coaches are Meanwell's ex-players: Olson, of Ohio State; Ruby, of Illinois; Williams, of Iowa; Levies, of Wisconsin; Bond, of Missouri; Chandler, of Ames; and Tebell, of North Carolina.

Wahoo Coach To Go With Cards

Students Want to Retain Neale In Spite of Baseball Job

Earl (Greasy) Neale, for several years head coach of football and baseball at the University of Virginia, has been released from his contract by the Athletic Council of the University of Virginia in order that he might accept the position of coach and assistant manager of the St. Louis National League baseball club.

The athletic officials were hunting around for new football and baseball coaches until Neale made the statement early this week that he would retain his position as mentor of football if the council would agree to allow him to report about the first of October. Immediately there appeared on the wahoo campus a flood of signs and placards bearing "We want Greasy" and similar phrases. The varsity club and football lettermen adopted resolutions at their meetings petitioning the athletic council to retain Neale as coach of football.

The athletic council is expected to reach a decision by the end of the week.

This Changing World

To-day, you can see big buildings erected noiselessly—by electric welding.

The structural steel worker is dropping his clattering hammer for the electric arc. Silently, swiftly, rigidly, economically, buildings are being fabricated by electric welding, which knits steel with joints as strong as the metal itself.

Building silently! Nothing seems impossible in this electrical age.

Not only in building construction, but in every human activity, we instinctively turn to electricity to add to the comforts of life and to eliminate the wastes of production—another evidence that the electrical industry is maintaining its leadership in this changing world.

Not only industrial equipment, but electric refrigerators, MAZDA lamps, and little motors that add to the comforts of home, are manufactured by the General Electric Company. All are identified by the G-E monogram—a symbol of service.

Dr. Brown Again Is Secretary of National Square

Local Professor Relected Secretary of Fraternity at Richmond

Dr. William M. Brown, professor of education and psychology at the university was re-elected to the office of National Secretary of the Square and Compass at its last National convention.

The 1928 convention, which was the fifth National convention of the Fraternity, was held with the Virginia Medical Square at Richmond, on December 31, 1928 and January 1, 1929. The sessions were presided over by National President Howard V. Funk; other members of the General Council present were Fred M. Davis, National historian, and Wm. Brown, National secretary.

Seven Squares Represented

Although there are approximately thirty active Squares in the organization, only seven of them were officially represented at the meeting, due to the great distance which many of the delegates would have been compelled to travel. The Squares represented by one or more delegates each were: Washington and Lee, Auburn, Virginia Medical, Wisconsin, Arkansas Medical, Georgia, and Marshall. Washington and Lee's delegate was S. J. Thompson.

The meeting place of the next convention has not been decided upon as yet, but during the 1928 session an invitation was extended by the Arkansas Medical Square at Arkansas university, Little Rock.

The following national officers were elected for the next biennium:

- National President—Oliver H. Schunk, Parlin, N. J.
- National Vice-President—J. B. Williams, Monroe, Ga.
- National Secretary—Wm. M. Brown, Lexington, Va.
- National Treasurer—Fred M.

Lexington Shop-Keeper Speaks Seven Different Languages

Around the world four times, in every country except three, speaks seven languages—that is only part of the record of experience of H. O. Dold, who keeps a smoke shop in the little college town of Lexington.

In this little shop labelled "The Only Dold," its proprietor has been in business forty-four years. During this time he has seen Washington and Lee University and the Virginia Military Institute grow from small colleges into two of the largest institutions of the South. He has lived in Lexington more than fifty years, although he was born in Harrisonburg.

"The Only Dold" comes from a fine old southern family. His ancestors are Scotch-Irish and English. Perhaps the roaming instinct which he inherited made him a world traveller. He is a philosopher, and a student of human nature.

Years ago his shop was the gathering place for students of both institutions; but now he says they have practically forgotten him in the rush of modern soda fountains and motion pictures. He has been a friend of college presidents, and the companion of educated men all over the world. His shop stands today on the corner of Main and Nelson streets, and returning alumni always pass to see if "H. O." is standing in the doorway, with his white apron, spotlessly clean, and his hands bulging his pockets.

Mr. Dold is not a very old man—perhaps not more than sixty—though his age is hard to guess. He is about six feet tall, well built, and erect as a young man.

"H. O.'s" business is not what it was when the students used his place for a "hang-out"; His shop has become careless-looking. A pop-corn machine runs incessantly, and the odor makes the air stuffy. When the customer becomes accustomed to the dimness of the store, he notices unusual display cards, and signs which tell mute stories of past popularity.

A series of placards posted along the back of the shop reveal at a glance the philosophical character of the man. One of these reads: "If a person can't pronounce psycho-analysis, he is out of luck in modern conversation." Another says: "If Noah had let the contract for the Ark to a government contractor the flood would have been postponed indefinitely." "There are other like signs which catch the eye as one enters the door.

In these dim surroundings is a man who has the physical appearance of a college president, or a very successful business man. He is neat, well dressed, and wears a stiff collar, with a neat tie correctly knotted. His most striking feature is his pure white goatee and moustache which he pulls reflectively while talking.

"I was educated in the school of hard knocks," said Mr. Dold, when asked about his schooling. "I have not had the advantages of a university education, but I have lived in the world and with the world."

"The Only Dold" talks the language of a man who is highly educated. He never makes an error in speech, and he still retains the genuine old Virginia brogue.

Travel has always been his passion. He has travelled around the world four times, and spent much time in foreign countries. Nothing delights "H. O." so much as talking of his adventures in corners remote from Virginia, and he has a collection of photographs which he has taken, all the way from the Rocky Mountains to the Sahara Desert. Life has been a series of adventures for him.

"H. O." speaks seven languages including French, German, and Spanish. He speaks them now with the pronunciation of a man who is not accustomed to using the tongues, but he speaks them correctly.

"There was a time," he said, "when I was young, that I could switch from one language to another as easily as not. Now, I have forgotten a great deal by not speaking them so much."

The only countries in which he has not travelled extensively are Russia, China, and Japan. He has, however, touched the shores of each of these countries. He has

At the outbreak of the World War, H. O. Dold was in Europe, and had difficulty getting back to the States. He tells a story of a man who offered him more than a thousand dollars for his ticket back, which had cost him only ninety dollars. He refused to sell. The man who offered him the price was trapped in Europe at the first outbreak, and he never heard of him since.

Now "H. O." is planning to return to Europe. "It will be an absolute pleasure trip this time," he said, "because I have seen everything of importance over there."

But he always returns to his little shop in Lexington, puts on his spotless white apron, and settles down to philosophize on life, and to wait on the few customers who still remember "The Only Dold."
