GENERALS DRUB ELON IN TENTH AGGIES INFLICT FIRST REVERSE

With Two Out Yancey Doubles and Scores Winning Tally on Mattox's Single. Game Played in Drizzle.

Washington and Lee defeated Elon College 4-3 Wednesday afternoon in a ten inning affair. With two out in the tenth, Yancey doubled and scored for the winning tally on Mattox's single between first and second.

The game was played in a drizzling rain and the players seemed to be uncomfortable. The old pep of former games was lacking. Both pitchers were freely hit, though they managed to keep the hits scattered except in the fourth session, when both teams scored rather heavily. Ten swatters were struck out by each pitcher.

Elon threatened in the very beginning when Johnson, first up, poked one out to center for two bags and advanced to the hot corner on Atkinson's grounder to Yancey. However the crowd was relieved when Jones threw Johnson out at the plate on Marlette's infield hit. The next men up walked and advanced on a wild pitch but Corbett fanned Brown.

For the next two innings the visitors were kept at bay though in the second Murphey doubled to right field fence with two out, but remained on second, for Martin struck out.

The fourth inning proved to be the most fruitful one for Elon, for in this period it made all of its runs. To start off with, Brown struck out and Jones threw King out. But Allen singled to short and took third when Murphey hit one to right for his second hit of the day. Then came the unexpected. Martin poled one to the gate

Visitors Pound Graham for Total of Twelve Hits While Keene Holds Generals to Five Scattered Hits.

Displaying for the visiting girls the poorest form of the season, the Washington and Lee nine met its first reverse of the year last Monday when it lost to the Maryland Aggies. The visitors clouted the pill hard throughout the game, while the Generals could not get to Keene, the Aggie pitcher, except in the sixth and ninth innings. After Graham and Gregg had fanned in the sixth, Jones and Yancey doubled in succession and Mattox was hit, bringing in one run. But Drye could only lift a high one to Snyder for the third out.

In the ninth, Mattox bounced one over the fence in left field. Drye then singled, but the next three were easy outs. For Maryland, Bailey's home run in the seventh and the pitching of Keene who struck out thirteen men, were the features.

Sam Raines covered acres in right field and made a splendid catch of Master's drive in the ninth.

DAVIDSON WINS DEBATE

Telegram received from W. J. Rush-ton, a member of the debating team which debated Davidson College last night, stated that they had lost decision three to two. The decision was in favor of W. & L. until the last refutation of the negative.

FOR VICTORY FINALS 1919

Washington and Lee has always been famous for her Finals, and the plan now being worked out should almost put previous commencement weeks in the shade. Take a glance at the brief program on page four,—Finals, 1919, will be some time.

For the student body at large, two things are required: First, pay your subscription NOW. Most things cost money these days and Finals is no exception. To make the proper contracts and other arrangements the money must be on hand. Be able to say, "I have paid, have you?"

Second, ask your girl NOW, and let Fain or Brown or somebody know when she says she will come. It is the duty as well as the privilege of every man who knows a "Queen" can "trip the light fantastic" to have her up for Finals. She will have the time of her life,—and so will you!

DO IT NOW.

MILITARY QUESTION PLACED BEFORE MEN

Dr. Smith Calls for Opinion of Student Body on Four Military Questions. Asks for Guidance of New Men.

Our military problem and the inauguration of a constructive program with the Student Body for the more thorough instruction of the new men while they are adapting themselves to the new conditions of college life were the subjects discussed at an important University Assembly held on Saturday, May 5th.

After the opening prayer by Dr. Howerton, Dr. Smith presented several questions to the Student Body in order to get their opinion concerning the advisability of establishing an R. O. T. C. at Washington and Lee. Although no exact count of the votes has been made it is understood that the Student Body in general was opposed to the establishing of military training for the remainder of this term.

Dr. Smith opened his address by saying that the men who entered college were an unusually picked set of men, as only five per cent of those

LIST OF RETURNING ALUMNI INCREASING

University Promises to Furnish Board and Lodging to All Returning Alumni, Thus Making Them Real Guests.

Since the publication of the first list of names two weeks ago of alumni who expect to return to the Victory Alumni Reunion, Finals, letters have been pouring into the office of N. D. Smithson, registrar and alumni secretary. The list below now contains fifty names and it is hoped that this number may be multiplied many times before June.

Further provision for entertainment of all returning W. & L. men has been made by the University in the promise to furnish board as well as lodging, thus making alumni real guests of Washington and Lee. The various committees on alumni reunion, headed by E. L. Graham, are still at work on the details of the alumni entertainment, while the special exercises in honor of W. and L. men in the service are receiving much attention at the hands of a sub-committee composed of Judge Quarles, Professor

HON HARRY ST. GEORGE TUCKER SPEAKS TO LAWYERS

Delivers Instructing Address on the League of Nations. Speaker Discusses Objections to Covenant.

Honorable Harry St. George Tucker, former dean of the law school, an eminent authority on constitutional law and the author of many treaties on the Constitution, delivered during the past week to the students of the law school two lectures on the League of Nations. This paper was prepared and read by Mr. Tucker before the Bar Association of Virginia at its last meeting. No effort will be made to reproduce at length the substance of the splendid and instructing address, but only the underlying principles will be observed.

The basis of the League of Nations, asserts Mr. Tucker, is found on the following clause of the Constitution of the United States: Art. 6: (1) This constitution, (2) and the laws of the United States that shall be made in pursuance thereof, (3) and all treaties made shall be the supreme law of the land. This clause is the very foundation of the League of Nations, and if there be such a society it must be based on this principle, declared the speaker.

He next cited some of the principal objections to the proposed league advanced by Senator Lodge and these he enumerated as: (1) the plan would not do because it would give the Constitution of the League the power to declare war; (2) it would give the league the power to disarm nations; (3) it would destroy the sovereignty of the United States; (4) the Monroe Doctrine would be obliterated; (5) the constitution of the league shows on its face that it is not only a league to prevent war but also a power to build up a super-government to rule and control the world, going beyond the purpose or ideal of the league which is to prevent war.

Mr. Tucker took up in order each of the above points and discussed them thoroughly and convincingly giving his authority for his statements when same was needed. As to the first objection he showed that the Constitution of the league could have only those powers which each individual nation could grant under its treaty power. While there is a decision of the Supreme Court to the effect that a subsequent act of Congress amends a prior treaty and a treaty amends a prior conflicting law, yet, emphasized the speaker, there is no decision of the Supreme Court which says that a treaty is supreme to the constitution of the United States and none will ever emulate from this judicial body. The Constitution of the United States is the supreme law of the land. The treaty making power is created by the constitution and is subordinate to it 'for the Creature cannot be greater than the Creator.' Therefore, while the president, under the treaty making clause may purport to give the league power to declare war for the United States, yet this power is lifeless until the United States Senate ratifies it, as is provided by the constitution. For those nations which will compose the league know the limitations of our constitution and they know that they themselves are under similar limitations. "He who enters into a contract with another is or ought not to be ignorant of his power to contract: Therefore the only conclusion in the light of the above facts is that the league cannot constitutionally declare war for the United States or for any other members of the society, but each individual nation must assent to such a declaration as is required by each respective constitution.

In the same manner Mr. Tucker showed that the league could not disarm nations, or pass a conscription bill, or tax the populace, etc. It would not destroy the sovereignty of the nation, nor would the Monroe Doctrine be affected.

But the last point, that the constitution of the league shows on its face that it is not only a league to prevent war but also a power to build up a super-government to rule and control the world, is one which cannot be evaded but is a truism admitted Mr. Tucker. He read several articles from the covenant of the league, which affected commerce, and problems of national concern, wholly unconnected with the idea to prevent war. In this respect, the league has gone beyond its original purpose and ideal which was purely to prevent future militaristic conflicts. The sooner these objectionable phases of the covenant be stricken out the sooner will the task of the plenipotentiaries be over.

Mr. Tucker expressed the opinion that the American people would accept the covenant of the league. In the course of his talk he paid a high tribute to President Taft, who has been working faithfully and unselfishly for the past five years for the interest of the nation.

GREEN STOCKINGS AT THE LYRIC TONIGHT

Production of Local Talent Given By Civic League, Under the Direction of Miss Annie White

The Civic League of Lexington will present a play, entitled "Green Stockings," at the Lyric theatre tonight. The proceeds of the entertainment will go to some improvement inside of the town. A great deal of time has been spent in the preparation of this play and the success of former presentations guarantees that it will be well worth while.

Miss Annie White has been directing this comedy-drama and the cast includes local talent from Lexington, V. M. I. and W. and L. The price of admission is fifty cents, twenty-five cents extra for reserve seats. Tickets may be purchased at Gorrell's or at the W. and L. Y room.

WITH THE Y. M. C. A.

Religious Meeting Well Attended and Many Hear Speaker Talk on Atonement of Sin.

The last meeting of the Y. M. C. A. was again attended better than most of them have been during the past few weeks. This is probably due to the very fine addresses that have been delivered by Dr. Howerton and also because the subjects of late have been of more general interest to everybody. In accordance with what he announced at the meeting before the speaker chose for his subject The Atonement of Sin. Dr. Howerton spoke of the great love that God the father has for everybody and how He is at all times ready and anxious to receive a person into his love if the person will only accept the love offered him. He also told of God's plan for redeeming sinners from the necessary results of the sin that they must commit because of their very nature.

As a short introduction the speaker explained how that everybody who speaks for God and Christ and the Kingdom of Heaven is God's mouth-piece.

Following this he told of how the love of Christ in a man could make what he said have very much more effect than it would have if that love were not in him. He said, "The efficacy of what a man says depends not merely on what he says but the way he says it."

In speaking of the love that God has toward people Dr. Howerton said that since he has been a father he has better understood how the love of God could be so everlasting in spite of all the ingratitude that it receives. He said that he could think of nothing that could make him so lose his love for his children that he would not be willing to receive any of them at any time back into the family and his love, and showed that this must be something of the nature of the love of God. It was pointed out that the question might arise as to the use of having an atonement at all. In answer to this he asked, "Does the human conscience say that a sin should go unpunished?" He then pointed out the fact that the human conscience is very lenient toward the sins that are common to the person possessing the conscience, and finally said, "It is written on the tablets of our conscience that sin is guilty."

He illustrated the plan of the atonement by supposing that a son of his had robbed a bank and was unable to get the money to pay back what he had stolen. The family would be dishonored and would do all that it could to help pay the money back, but if the family is unable to help matters the son has to confess before the law and suffer the penalty of his sin. Just here is where the divine love comes in in the fact that God says: "I'll pay the penalty." Father suffered in God the Son who came down on earth and died for the sins of the world. As he expressed it "He suffered the penalty of his own justice."

He said that it may not be possible to find a philosophical explanation of it but that one fact remains and that is that this simple gospel has been saving man throughout the ages and is doing so all the time now. He told of how a Sunday school teacher had told him that there was no use waiting until he had become sinless before coming to Christ because then he would never come. When he got the full meaning of this he did become a Christian and was able to break from some sins that he had not been able to cope with before. In conclusion he said, "The atonement is the expression of the illimitable love of God but which can't save you unless you are willing to accept it."

LITERARY SOCIETY HOLDS VERY SUCCESSFUL MEETING*Hall Crowded to Full Capacity Long Before Time for Meeting —Lots of Pep and Interest Displayed in Program.

By far the most successful meeting of the year of the Graham-Washington Literary society was held last Saturday night. The hall was filled to its capacity long before the time of the meeting, and an excellent program was rendered before an intensely interested audience. An instructive debate on the American system of trial by jury was the feature of the evening.

Fitzgerald Flourney enthralled his audience by a poetical declaration of Robert Burns Highland Mary. He put his whole soul into the delivery of this poem which seemed so completely to echo the feelings of his heart that when he finished the audience was so absorbed that they even forgot to applaud.

S. A. Anderson spoke on "Current Events." By his masterly presentation of these topics of daily interest, he revealed anew the possibilities of this feature of the program. Those who heard him went away feeling that in a five minute talk they had heard a complete summary of all the important news of the work.

"The Future of Washington and Lee," was the subject of an oration by E. D. Campbell. He declared that Washington and Lee had before her the most brilliant future of any college in the South. "Her position," said he "is unique in that she possesses all the capacities necessary for the development of the future leadership of the country." He closed with a brief account of a few of the plans for her expansion now in the consideration of the administrative officers.

Excellent as the rest of the program was, it could not detach from the all absorbing interest in the debate. The question was Resolved, That the jury system of the United States should be abolished. C. H. Patterson and W. F. Parker upheld the affirmative, while E. W. Poindexter and J. H. T. Sutherland spoke for the negative. The affirmative argued that the juries were ignorant of the law and therefore not capable of judging fairly, but the negative replied that the jury merely decided questions of fact. The decision was in favor of the negative.

The house was then thrown open for general discussion. L. A. McMurray, Frank Stipes, T. W. Gilliam and G. P. Wilson were among those that spoke.

(This meeting existed only in the imagination of the writer, and is intended to show what our Literary society ought to be and not what it really is.)

Lieutenant Berkely Cox, '15, has been visiting in Lexington for the past few weeks. Lieutenant Cox served with the 9th infantry in France until he was wounded and sent back to this country for treatment. He expects to receive his discharge from the Walter Reid hospital in about a month. Lieutenant Cox has been awarded the distinguished service cross for conspicuous bravery in action.

J. Carl Fisher is attending Boston Tech.

A HIGH PRIVILEGE

The early Roman sage who first said, "familiarity breeds contempt" did not have in mind the honor system of Washington and Lee,—if he had this oft quoted maxim might never have been conceived. For be it to the glory of Washington and Lee that her prized traditions are kept ever bright and quickened with the fire of eternal youth.

Not "contempt" then, never; but as really great men rarely appreciate their own worth, so we who are so familiar with the honor system do not perhaps fully appreciate our privilege and its far-reaching significance. The inauguration of an honor system with every student his own clerk and cashier has attracted the attention and wonder over the country, but was accepted at Washington and Lee almost as a matter of course. The presence of unclaimed books along the campus walks has its disadvantages to be sure, but strangers look and marvel either at the wealth or the scholastic indifference of the student body. The man from a northern university cannot understand how an examination can be held without a professor in the room or restrictions on the coming and going of the students during such a period, but to the Washington and Lee man it seems as natural as eating in the Beanery.

The honor system in operation is a high tribute to the fundamental sense of honor in human nature, but a higher one to the atmosphere of Washington and Lee. It is in this world a peculiar and prized privilege to be trusted in all things as a gentleman. May the men of Washington and Lee be always faithful to the trust.

—E. D. C.

THE U. B. CLUB AND ITS WORK

The U. B. club, under the direct supervision of M. W. Paxton, has fired its opening gun and the campaign for the solicitation of the future college men for next year has begun. From what we can get, the club is doing its work in a very business like manner, and is covering a wide territory, including many of the southern states and the principal high schools in Virginia. A host of students have been absent for the last few days and the inquisitive asks the question, where are these men going? Well, the U. B. club is not a joke as some men have seen fit to make of it by criticising it at every opportunity, but is now doing real service for the University and there is no doubt in our minds that it will bring results.

In the past week over a dozen students have gone on speaking tours, presenting to the high school senior the opportunities of Washington and Lee and its wonderful traditions. The most extensive tour was that of Lester Fox, who covered Knoxville, Bristol and Chattanooga, Tenn. Others have been canvassing the state. This line of speakers will continue until the state has been thoroughly campaigned.

These men who are going on these speaking tours are doing admirable work in the interest of Washington and Lee. Those who are not engaged in this work can render an equally serviceable task by writing personal letters to the seniors of their high school. This will be as effective a means of putting Washington and Lee before the prospective college man as sending a man to the high school to present the opportunities of the University. Every man should proudly say a good word about his college—it is his duty and now is the time because it will be only a few months before thousands of high school men will have to consider the question of higher education and the place they will choose for this training.

COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER ANNOUNCED

Dr. Campbell made the announcement last week that the commencement address will be delivered by Dr. William A. Ganfield, president of Centre College, Danville, Ky.

In a Syracuse school the 100 per cent Thrift class is the class where 100 per cent of the pupils are saving regularly. If a class in this school can show 50 per cent of the members saving they can hang up a little blue certificate. When they get to 75 per cent they put up a red card, and when every single member is saving something each week up goes the 100 per cent card, which is red, white and blue. Not how much but how many is the motto.

Mr. and Mrs. Cy Young have been visiting friends in Lexington the past few days. Cy has just recently received his discharge from the army, after having seen many months of service in France with a medical unit. Cy was one of our best athletes that has ever donned a Washington and Lee uniform and his name is known all over the south. He was captain of the football, baseball and basketball teams during his four years here, besides being a social lion.

Paul R. Scott and Lewis Twyman, both of the law class of 1916, have formed a partnership for the practice of law in Miami, Fla. Scott was a resident of St. Paul, Minn., until his entrance into the service, but upon receiving his discharge he settled in Miami.

Professor Hall has been in Philadelphia for the past few days on a business sojourn.

J. R. Caskie, '10, has returned to Lynchburg after a year's service with the Y. M. C. A. in France.

H. G. McGavach, '11, is working for the United States shipping board in Washington, D. C.

Lieutenant Carter Glass, '12, has recently landed at New York, after eight months service abroad.

W. B. Wisdom has been called to his home in New Orleans on account of critical illness of his father.

H. F. Madison spent the week end in Waynesboro, Va., visiting his brother, who is attending the Fishburne Military School.

J. M. Bauserman, Jr., has returned to his home in Woodstock, after having received his discharge from the army.

Lieutenant Horner Fisher, '17, who served with the field artillery in France, has returned to his home in Washington.

Lester Fox made quite an extensive trip last week in the interest of the U. B. club, visiting Knoxville, Bristol and Chattanooga, Tenn.

Professor Moreland has been forced to miss classes for a few days during the past week. He is now feeling better and able to resume his work.

E. A. Donahue (Jiggs), former assistant coach in athletics at Washington and Lee, is head coach of athletics at Clemson College, South Carolina.

Dr. Smith received a letter last week from R. B. McDougle, '17, telling of a dinner which he attended on April 8th, in London, commemorating the entry of the United States into the Great War, and honoring the American Ambassador to England, John W. Davis, an old Washington and Lee man of the class of '95. The dinner was given by the American University Union of London, and all of the members were present. There were also a number of distinguished Englishmen in attendance, and speeches were made by some of them, including Viscount Brice.

McDougle was a captain in the A. E. F., and is now one of the two thousand and American soldiers who are being sent to school in England by the American government. He is studying law at the Inns Court in London.

DIAMOND CUTS

The Generals proved that they were as good on the road as they are at home, and that is pretty good isn't it Watts.

"A man who can place his hits" said John McGraw, "Has the pitcher at his mercy." Did you ever notice Jimmy Mattox when he comes to the plate. He squints one eye out toward right field, and as the unlucky mortal who is out there prepares for a long fly chase Jimmy politely sends the ball over third, or in one case over the center field fence. He has the pitcher at his mercy alright, but he has no mercy on the pitcher.

Maryland State has a good team of tossers. We know this for a fact, they beat the Generals, and as a gentleman from V. M. I. hath said, "That is going some."

Raines takes a look at the coming ball, starts to run and then stops, right under it, or dives and stops, right on it. "Right in de ole tar barrel, and there it sho sticks."

Yancey and Georgie Gregg produced the old stick work in the Elon game. Drye also made a bid for his share and Corbett got a good bite. Mattox can't hit them any more tho' for all of the pitchers have decided to walk him.

A ball player has to use his head and feet. The Generals were sure using their feet at the baseball dansant. Perhaps they used their heads also.

Team work came out strong in the Elon game. Nifty fielding in the infield and good pitching made that drizzley affair one of snap and vin.

Willie Barron, down at the ticket booth gazed up at the sky and down at the receipts of the Elon game and decided that he could make a profit from the rain. He seems to be able to make it out of everything.

The Generals still have several games on thir schedule. Hopkins is coming, as well as other strong teams. Now that summer time is also close, everybody should get out and back up the team at EVERY game.

A little less individual remarks in respect to our opponents and more concerted rooting would help a lot. It is not the custom of a W. and L. student body to indulge in personalities, but to show our visitors we are gentlemen in every sense of the word.

Watts was officiating a dansant in Lynchburg and thus his absence from the field in the Elon game. Captain Gillespie from V. M. I. was on the job and to his credit it must be said that he umpired a very satisfactory game.

A little problem for math sharks: North Carolina walloped University of Virginia, and got walloped by the Generals. University of Virginia defeated Maryland State but Maryland State defeated the Generals. Elon won over North Carolina, University of Virginia, which defeated Maryland State, but was like wise given a drubbing by the Generals. Between the above the teams which has the better claim to the South Atlantic honors?

who entered high school ever got as far as the first year at college. He declared that Mentally, morally, and physically they were the best that our land could produce. Dr. Smith then proceeded to show that a man's freshman year at college was probably the most important year of his life. Here he is thrown on himself for the first time, and it is during this year that he must learn to be his own master. A student's last three years in college could be very accurately foretold by the stand that he takes his freshman year.

He followed this by saying that the faculty and the older students constituted the two most powerful influences that could be brought to bear on the Freshman. The faculty had most to do with the training of the mind of the men, but the older students exercised by far the most powerful influence in the upbuilding of the character of the new men during this formative stage. He urged that every man make it his first duty to instruct the Freshman both by precept and example.

The last fifteen minutes were devoted to a talk to the fraternity men as the best organized group of men on campus. He said that he was going to consider each fraternity as the guardian of its own men, and that he would send regular reports to them of the progress that their men were making. This was but one feature of a great constructive program he wished to see organized among the fraternities of the college.

HOW THE BOYS ARE BATTING AND FIELDING

Mattox Leads With the Stick, With an Average of .429. Drye Leads in Field. Gregg Gets Honors for Stolen Bases.

Statistics compiled through the Elon game bring out the work of each man on the Generals' nine. Batting honors go to Jimmy Mattox who is hitting the pill at a clip of .429, which is almost 100 points ahead of his nearest rival, Drye, who is batting .333. The rest of the men are batting below .300. The batting average of the team is somewhat low, being about .190.

In the field Drye has the best average, two errors only being chalked against him out of 112 chances. Mattox is close on his heels with an average of .971. This does not include the work of the pitchers who have perfect fielding records so far as the box score discloses. The feiding average of the team is about .900.

The work of the pitchers has been almost excellent. Corbett seems to have the best record, having won all the games in which he pitched. In the four games in which he participated, 126 men have faced Corbett. Only fourteen hits have been registered against him, while he has retired 44 by the strike-out route, an average of .349—striking out about every third man. This is perhaps the best record to be found among college pitchers. He has issued 8 free passes.

Graham has done almost equally as well but for the Maryland State game. He has won four of the five games he has pitched. One hundred and sixty-one batters have stepped up to the plate during the five games, 31 have been fortunate enough to get hits, while 36 were victims of the tall boy's strike out ability. Eleven free passes are recorded against him.

Sloan, who started in two games, is given credit for one game only in which he went the whole way. In this game, 33 men faced him, five hit, while three struck out.

Gregg leads the swipers with six stolen bases to his credit. Henderson and Mattox are next with four each. Yancey, Drye, Sutton and Raines have two each to their credit.

in center for three bases, sending all the runners in. He advanced a moment later on a wild pitch by Corbett. Johnson ended the fray by grounding to Jones.

From then on Elon was helpless for Corbett began going at great speed and many retired to the bench by the strike-out route, though an occasional hit was registered.

The Generals threatened in the very beginning when Yancey bounced one off of Martin's fingers after Jones and Gregg had been retired. Mattox and Drye singled to center filling the bags. However Sutton failed at the opportune time and breezed.

In the second, Raines, Henson and Corbett all struck out. But in the third the bombing began when Gregg doubled to center and advanced to third on Mattox's sacrifice. Gregg scored when Atkinson threw wild on Martin's grounder. Mattox was caught stealing.

Again in the fourth, the Generals rallied and succeeded in tying the score. Drye started things with a single to left. Sutton beat a bunt to first. Raines' pop up fell safe, but Drye hesitated and was forced out at third. Sutton and Raines advanced on a passed ball. Henderson was safe on Murphey's wild throw, Sutton crossing the platter. Henderson displayed skill in swiping second. Corbett fanned. Raines scored when Murphey booted Gregg's grounder but Henderson was out when he overran second which resulted in a chase.

The Generals were unable to score further in the following innings and each side was retired in short order. At the end of the ninth the score was still even and the game started in extra innings. However, Yancey and Mattox were getting somewhat anxious for supper and after a short conference they decided to break up the little affair. And they did in the manner already indicated, after Jones and Gregg had retired to the bench.
