MEMORIAL EXERCISES IN HONOR OF FALLEN HEROES IMPRESSIVE

Ex-Captain Thomas McP. Glasgow, a Distinguished Overseas Alumnus, Delivers Inspiring Address—Statistics of W. and Lee Service Men Read

The memorial exercises in honor of the sons of Washington and Lee who laid their lives on the altar of sacrifice and those who were engaged in the conflict, were held in the Lee Memorial Chapel on Monday, June 23, at twelve-thirty p. m. The outstanding feature of the exercises was the address by ex-Captain Thomas McP. Glasgow, Charlotte, N. C., a distinguished alumnus who returned from overseas a few months ago. His speech was of a superlative character and many alumni were heard to say that it was the best they had heard in Lee Chapel in many a day.

Mr. E. L. Graham presided and after the orchestra had rendered Alma Mater, he introduced President Henry Louis Smith who in a few well chosen words welcomed the alumni to the quiet and lovely campus, hidden in the hills but saturated with inspiring memories, which is the home place of every one of them. He congratulated them upon the part they had played in the war, thus bringing honor to their Alma Mater and to themselves.

THOMAS McP. GLASGOW
Speaker Alumni Exercises

"The next speaker on the program" said Mr. Graham "is described by the program as Ex-Captain Thomas McP. Glasgow of Charlotte, N. C. But to me he is not known in that capacity and therefore I take great pleasure in presenting to you Tommy Glasgow."

America at War and at Peace, was the subject of Mr. Glasgow's inspiring address. His introductory remarks had a little touch of humor to them. He stated that when he received the letter from J. L. Campbell asking him to be present on the occasion, he felt pretty much in the position of the old negro who was out hunting with his master in the dead of winter. The weather was bitter cold; night was settling down and the old man having gathered a bundle of sticks, was brushing the snow aside with his hand preparing to make a fire when his master, coming up took a quart bottle from his pocket and asked the old man if he would like to have a nip. Falling at once to his knees and assuming an attitude of prayer, the old man murmured, "O Lord, judge me not in anger but in mercy if I cepts this gemman's proposition." "And so" said Mr. Glasgow, "when I thought of the other alumni returning to Alma Mater; when I thought of Paul Derrickson and old Clovis Moomaw, sleeping in Flanders field, and the others who made the supreme sacrifice that righteousness and freedom might not pass from the earth—I went in to my boss and told him that I too must be present to add what little I could do to the immortal glory and homage which is so justly their due."

The body of the principal speaker's speech consisted of a short history of America's participation in the Great War. "Two years and six months ago, America was a nation at peace. The American dollar was supplanting the English pound as the medium of exchange. The fighting nations of Europe were all courting America's hand, seeking her financial and political support. Former European Kings of Finance came with bowed heads and suppliant petition into the presence of the monetary Lords of Finance in Wall Street."

But at this time the right of neutral nations upon the high seas was foremost in the mind of the non-fighting world and in defense of this right, President Wilson in January 1917 demanded of Germany that this right be recognized. But in answer the imperial government not only refused to obey such a demand but he extended his operation to the destruction of the helpless and innocent. There came the president's ultimatum but this final protest was likewise unheeded.

On April 6, 1917, war was declared. The industries of peace were transformed into arts of war. The conscription bill was passed, and every son of America was marshalled to her support. "Four months after the declaration of war, the American flag was flying in the sunny fields of France. The story is told that General Pershing when passing through England ordered a cab. It arrived late and the General looking at his watch said to the girl chauffeur, 'Madam, you are just three minutes late, to which the young woman replied, 'Yes, and you are just three years late.' Whether the story be true or not, a few days later standing at the tomb of the great Lafayette, General Pershing uttered those immortal words, 'Marquis, we are here.'

In March 1918 Germany realized that she had but one chance and it was at this time that she started the greatest drive known in the history of war. The allied armies of France and England were being pushed back and it seemed as though Paris was doomed to fall and with the fall of Paris, France was gone; with the downfall of France, the cause of the allied nations was lost. Frenchmen were retreating like a disheartened mob. All of a sudden like a flash from the sky, the sound of singing was heard, "The Yanks are coming, the Yanks are coming." It was the American army 7,000 strong. "A French officer hurried up to Col. Nevil, then in command of the United States Marines of my old division—and saluting said, 'Sir you are just in time to cover our retreat. Hold as long as you can and then retreat to a position we will have prepared for you.' 'Retreat?' answered Col. Nevil, 'Retreat Hell! We've just gotten here. Let the Germans do the retreating.'

FORTY-FIVE NAMES ADDED TO ALUMNI OF UNIVERSITY

Dr. William A. Ganfield, LL. D., Delivers Commencement Address Before Large Audience—Stipes, Cincinnati Orator—Taylor, Valedictorian of Class

The commencement exercises for the session of 1918-19 of Washington and Lee University were held this morning, Tuesday, June 24, in the Lee Memorial Chapel beginning at eleven o'clock.

Dr. Wm. A. Ganfield, LL. D., president of Centre College, Danville, Ky., delivered the annual address before the graduating class and the literary societies. Frank Cover Stipes, winner of the Cincinnati Orator's medal, delivered the oration which received first place and Charles Holt Taylor delivered the valedictory address.

Diplomas were presented by President Henry Louis Smith to one master of arts, thirty-one bachelors of arts, four bachelors of science, ten bachelors of law, and certificates to two graduates of the school of commerce. Two honorary degrees were awarded and one degree in Civil Engineering.

Following the seating of the professional, the officers, trustees, speakers, faculty, graduates and alumni who marched in academic costume from Newcomb Hall to the Chapel, the band playing "The Swing," the exercises were opened with a prayer by Rev. Shaw of Baltimore, Md. Next in order was the announcement of the scholarships, endowed and departmental, and the delivery of the prizes by the president. These will be found in a separate article elsewhere in this issue.

President Smith then presented Frank Cover Stipes of Flint, Michigan, winner of the Cincinnati Orator's Medal. In a very forceful and pleasing manner, Stipes spoke on Lafayette, the ideal of the French Republic, who gave his life in the service of mankind. The spirit of this statesman is immortal, declared the speaker, and it is present today at the peace table just as it was present during the many months of struggle which have just passed into history. Lafayette's life was a life of service and there is no greater inspiration to man than this noble heritage.

The young speaker received a hearty applause after he had concluded his speech and the manner in which he presented his oration made a favorable impression on the audience.

The main speaker of the occasion was next introduced by the presiding officer. As a speaker, Dr. Ganfield needed no introduction as the walls of Lee Chapel had on previous occasions resounded the eloquence of this learned educator. The question of Today best expresses the thought and substance of the speaker's address. The positive prerequisite to wisdom, began Dr. Ganfield, is honesty. An investigating spirit is abroad in the land. Just as the small child who is given a watch for a Christmas present will soon take it to pieces and find out for himself why it ticks and what makes the hands move—so the world today is aflame with the spirit of investigation. Institutions are being put on the witness stand today to account for their existence. They are being cast into the melting pot and tested. Is the state here to stay? Is the family but a passing stage in the evolution of Society? These are matters to be solved.—But that is not the question of the day. The question of today is not who and what is God, for some industrious mind has already solved that for the world. The question of today is not who and what is man, for that too has already been answered. Nor is the question that of communication between the above elements, God and Man, for that too has been solved and the answer accepted by the world. These were questions of yesterday and have been solved by the leaders of that age.

CHARLES HOLT TAYLOR

The notion that man can live to himself in a selfish and independent way has long been discarded. Man has realized that he cannot live for himself alone. The time has come when we must walk hand in hand with an ever increasing multitude of fellowmen. The day has come when the real man does things for the good of his fellow men and forgets about his own selfish self.

Then this is the question of the day. It is that of living with our fellowmen on this earth in a spirit of brotherly love with but one thought and purpose—the welfare of humanity. What is our attitude toward our fellowman? This question must be answered by every one of us and until the answer is correct, there is no solution just as is true of a mathematical problem.

"Education is splendid—Ignorance is the twin brother of vice and crime. Legislation is grand but consecration is the best of all." Education alone cannot save the state and while legis-

FINAL BALL BRINGS VICTORY FINALS TO GLORIOUS CLOSE

Large Crowd of Alumni, Students and Visitors Attend Crowning Event of College Year—James R. Fain Leads Figure with Miss Rives Hammer of Bristol, Tenn.

Some exuberant alumnus was heard to remark that with the exception of Sunday Finals was just one dance after another; he left out the qualifying adjective usually initialled as part of the standard "one after another" phrase because he did not feel that way about dancing. The alumnus was somewhat extreme in his views, as any partaker of all the joys offered by the varied program of Victory Finals will testify; but be that as it may, the social events transpiring in the Doremus Memorial Gymnasium during the past four days have made a place in the terpsichorean history of Washington and Lee which will not be forgotten so long as the present generation can remember Victory Finals.

Over seventy-five young ladies were present when Finals opened up with the Interfraternity dance, and the number of stags was perhaps several times as large. Saturday followed with the Pi Alpha Nu—White Friar morning German and the Sigma German that night. On Monday night came the Senior-Alumni Ball. Finally as the Ring-tum Phi goes to press, everything is ready for the opening of the Final Ball, Victory Finals' last and greatest feature.

James R. Fain of Bristol, Tenn., elected by his fellow students over a year ago for the presidency of the Final Ball, the highest social honor at Washington and Lee, will open the dance with Miss Rives Hammer, also of Bristol. Promptly at ten o'clock—at least that's what the program says—the curtains will be drawn back to admit the couples of the opening figure, thirty in number, each girl dressed in pure white and bearing on her right arm a basket of flowers. Marching in single file each girl will meet her partner in front of the "Victor" arch at the north end of the floor, a handsome festoon-covered structure surmounted by the American flag. Through this arch comes President Fain with his partner, followed by Vice-President Leonard T. Brown with Miss Elizabeth Adams of Lynchburg.

After crossing down the floor in single file behind the leaders the dancers stop at the whistle of President Fain forming a huge W. and L. monogram, the men making the "W." while their fair partners are arranged as the "L." Unwinding from this striking figure but still in single file the girls take their places in front of the chaperones and the men directly behind them on the other side of the room. Here the favors for the 1919 Final Ball are distributed, girls receiving beautiful blue ostrich plume fans while their partners are each given a handsome package of W. and L. monogram cigarettes.

At a signal the lines again start forward toward the tableau which proves to be the climax of the figure. At one end of the floor is a huge W. and L. monogram with thirty white and blue silk streamers on each side. Grasping these ribbons the dancers escort the emblem down the floor in a perfect V-shaped formation while the spotlight playing upon the figure makes a tableau of strikingly beautiful and unusual effect.

Again the lines unwind on each side of the floor and come together again to form the letters "U. S." Following this each man meets his partner and the couples are formed in two concentric circles in the center of the floor to sing the "Swing." Dancing is then begun.

About one-thirty tomorrow morning in the pleasant musical duties of old man Wright will be temporarily interrupted while the dancers at the Final Ball adjourn to the Dining Hall for supper. Back again after being anew, and with renewed vigor the Gymnasium is alive with music and happiness until the morning sun at six o'clock Wednesday morning testifies that the night has been completely conquered.

Then, covered with confetti perhaps, tired, but happy, dress suits and evening dresses will wend their way back home in broad daylight, with Victory Finals at an end.

Those participating in the figure are:

J. R. Fain, president of Final Ball, with Miss Rives Hammer of Bristol, Tenn.

L. T. Brown, vice-president of Final Ball, with Miss Elizabeth Adams of Lynchburg, Va.

COMMENCEMENT

Though we have not had the opportunity of witnessing many of the commencement exercises of Washington and Lee, from reputation and limited knowledge we are competent to speak on this occasion. While we are prepared to speak in terms of praise and gratification, we are also compelled to speak in superlatives. For the Final events of 1919 of Washington and Lee have been the best in the history of the institution. Never before have the Alumni flocked to Lexington in such great numbers to celebrate the part of their Alma Mater in the world conflict; to honor those sons who died in the cause; to demonstrate to Washington and Lee that her exponents are loyal to her and are willing to actively assist in the reconstructive period; to renew acquaintances and perpetuate the ties of college friendship; and, lastly, to dance once more to the melodious effusions of Old Man Wright's Saxophone orchestra. Visitors from North and South, always gladly welcomed, added to the success of the occasion—and those charming and bewitching young ladies, aptly known as Doremus Darlings, without whom we would go mad, contributed their share to the favorable termination of the college year. Though not as many degrees were conferred, yet in proportion to the attendance, and considering the adverse circumstances under which the college year began, the year was a success even in this respect.

The results of this happy reunion of so many alumni will make themselves conspicuous within the next five years. These men had an opportunity to see for themselves the status of their Alma Mater as it is today and compare it with the period when they were students—they have been informed of the campaign to increase the endowment of Washington and Lee in order that her facilities may be enlarged, thus placing her on a level with the foremost institutions of the country. That they will respond to the extent of their abilities is not doubted.

It is useless to comment on the sentiment of those who were in attendance for Commencement because they will remember this week as one of the most pleasant and well-spent in their lives; they leave with the thought that they want to be back next year, back to Washington and Lee and its historic campus. Those who were not able to honor us with their presence have missed something real, for the Finals of 1919 will go down on record with a high mark attached to it.

OUR TASK COMPLETED

And now the Ring-tum Phi of the session of 1918-19 assumes its place among the silent archives of history along with its predecessors for this issue concludes its publication for the year. Whether it is worthy of a chair along with the previous volumes of this college publication is a question which we leave for an answer to the student body, faculty and alumni who have responded so generously to the call for subscriptions. Should we have failed to reach the height of the task to which we addressed ourselves, we can only beg for the indulgence of a kind but critical patronage. If the decision be adverse to us, we can seek consolation in the fact that we have put our best efforts in the attempt to publish a paper that would reflect credit on Washington and Lee as well as on the ability of the individuals who were responsible for its compilation.

On reflection we find that we are now very much experienced along a line of activity which cannot be developed in the class room here in college but which requires hard and consistent work. On many a Tuesday morning we have been confronted with the somewhat provoking thought that a few columns were still needed to complete the paper and we were compelled to write from imagination or else flash the S. O. S. signal in the direction of E. D. C. who would respond with one of his pet editorials such as "In the Spring." But for the most part we have been fortunate because the news matter has been plentiful and all we had to do was to go after it. And this was one of our main purposes, to report and record every thing that happened on the campus in a fair and impartial manner.

Whatever criticism might be directed to the paper from a journalistic standpoint, it has been a complete success in one particular—and that is along financial lines. Due credit must be given to the manager, Cecil Burns, whose mode of extraction from the subscribers and advertisers has been painless and highly successful. It has been a pleasure to work with him and we gladly give unto him what is rightly due him. The student body is likewise indebted to the manager for we are informed that after the editor and manager receive their remuneration quite a handsome sum in the neighborhood of two hundred dollars will be left to the student body sinking fund. This may be surprising but it is a fact nevertheless and we are sure that it will be gladly welcomed.

Though the editor is primarily responsible for the publication of the paper it would be an unaccomplishable task if he had to write all the news, read all proofs, make assignments, etc. So, then, the staff must receive its share of credit because it has worked faithfully receiving nothing but experience together with a certificate from the student body acknowledging such work. To these men the editor expresses his sincere appreciation of their efforts and if the paper has been a failure, the cause cannot be attributed to them. We are sorry that they get no tangible reward for their labors for it is certainly an honor to be on the staff of the Ring-tum Phi and we believe that more than a certificate of faithful work should be awarded them. The men render a real service to the student body and though it is not along athletic lines it is just as important and should be recognized accordingly.

To our successors we extend the very best of wishes for a bright administration and with the beginning of a greater Washington and Lee we have every reason to believe that the Ring-tum Phi will grow and develop with the University. In the next year or two with the campus filled to capacity and the enlargement of our athletic program, as well as all intercollegiate activities, we hope to see the paper come out semi-weekly, or if it remains a weekly, an increase in its columns. It can be done and every effort should be made to carry out such a program. The Ring-tum Phi is one of the best college papers in circulation and it is the duty of each succeeding staff to guard this lofty position.

BACCALAUREATE A STRIKING SERMON

Rev. Cosby Bell of Theological Seminary of Virginia is Speaker

The baccalaureate sermon on Sunday, June the twenty-second, was delivered by Rev. W. Cosby Bell, D. D., of the Theological Seminary of Virginia at Alexandria, Va. In the course of his sermon he discussed liberty as it is and as it should be, saying that the only rule to follow is the truth. He took his text from the eighth chapter of the Gospel of John and the thirty-second verse: "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free."

The speaker said that there were several words that have a meaning that is perpetually reborn. Liberty and religion he said to be such words. Continuing he said that these words possess great principles that guide mankind and that each age reveals them anew. He showed how with the change of the times the old things that were once right are no longer right but in the light of what is known with the advance of the age become wrong. These words were shown to be used in history with all their meaning and then to come forth again when times are in a state of ferment with all the power and vigor of their meaning, but this time with a slight change over the old.

Dr. Bell told of how the word liberty is today one of the words that has been used most widely and that behind it as a motto almost every thing has been done. He told of how the very use of the word today has the power of arousing in people all their deepest feelings and how the men across the waters have been fighting with that word burning in their ears for the last four years. He showed further, however, how the word had come back to us from an unexpected source and with an unexpected meaning that is ominous rather than pleasing. The word as it has come back from the conflicts of Russia has not meant the same thing that it meant when it went there, and now people are fearing what that liberty will lead to. Along this line it was shown how today all classes are still fighting under the same word, liberty, and how that points to the fact that the issue of the war is still the issue of peace.

It was shown how the right to seek liberty might almost be called the slogan of America but at the same time the speaker said that the liberty must not be interpreted to include all its manifestations as they are seen today. The speaker said that those of the class that have perverted the meaning of the word liberty have been working on the theory that if they can tear down all that now exists then they will attain true liberty and at the same time it was pointed out that the end of destruction is not liberty but death.

In speaking of the proper kind of liberty the speaker said, "What is most needed is better social habits aimed at justice. The only lasting victories are won in men's minds. Only the truth can set men free." He then went on to show how the road to liberty is no easy one and that real liberty comes not in spite of the existing institutions that are good but because of them, and that men get liberty by obeying the natural law, not by trying to go counter to it. He showed how the conquest of the air was won only by obeying the laws that rule in that sphere and said that the same thing must apply when it comes to the sphere of seeking liberty. Then it was shown how the laws that must be followed can be found in the mouth of Christ as he is reported in the Gospels. Not only the laws of the word liberty but those of all the words that have a perpetual meaning can be found in the teachings of Christ. The speaker said, "Men are free not outside the law but only by the law. Only the truth can make you free. Liberty is not the power to do what you choose but the power to choose to do what is right." He said that there are several kinds of liberty and among them is that without knowledge, which is exemplified by the savage and that of the thug that is without character. Then he said that wisdom, character and liberty must grow and grow together. "The last liberty to which man can aspire is the liberty of serving freely—God."

Dr. Bell then addressed himself to the graduating class in particular and told them that it is their task to see that the principles here laid down are carried out in practice. He said that it was their task to establish the reign of liberty in brotherhood. In closing he said, "As long as there is a spirit that breeds disregard for the things that are true, then liberty is not attained."

INTERFRATERNITY DANCE

The dances of Final Week opened Friday night with the Interfraternity dance led by Louis Musgrove with Miss Mary Jim Strother. Though the crowd was not very large, as few alumni had yet arrived, yet it was enjoyed by every one. At 11:30 the figure W. L. U. was presented in a very artistic manner by fifty couples. At twelve there was an intermission of about thirty minutes during which time the dancers were served with sandwiches and coffee. Old man Wright furnished the jazz and his rendition of the latest rags inspired the dancers with pep.

The gymnasium was decorated with pennants representing every fraternity on the campus.

S. A. E'S WIN CUP

The Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity won the right to the permanent possession of the cup for interfraternity baseball. It easily defeated the S. P. E's in the final game of the series.

RESUME OF EVENTS OF PAST SESSION

Calendar of 1919 Shows Many Happenings on Campus Since January

The following is a brief resume of the principal events which have taken place on the campus since January. Due to lack of records, the happenings of the S. A. T. C. period must be omitted.

Jan. 3.—The winter term of the 137th session of Washington and Lee opens with a large number of old men back in school.

Jan. 4.—The Beanyery starts out on the co-operative basis with over a hundred men at its tables.

Jan. 13.—The Y. M. C. A. opens its student work on a war basis. Ted Shultz returns as secretary.

Jan. 14.—Generals open their basketball season with a smashing victory over Randolph Macon.

Jan. 20.—Founders day is celebrated. Lee Today is subject of instructive address before an university assembly by Dr. Flemming of Richmond.

Jan. 24.—Generals defeat St. Johns in close contest.

Jan. 27.—Student activities are presented by representative speakers at a student assembly.

Feb. 2.—White and Blue machine continues its career of conquest by annexing two more games.

Feb. 7.—Graham Washington Literary Society reorganizes with Parker as president.

Feb. 8.—Washington and Lee loses to V. P. I. in a hard fought game. Graham is put out of condition by a sprained ankle.

Feb. 13.—Compulsory physical training is put under way. All classes are required to attend.

Feb. 17.—Generals lose to University of North Carolina after having won a brilliant victory over Davidson.

Feb. 24.—The somberness of the winter term is enlivened by the coming of numerous fair maidens for the Hops. The Junior Prom and the Sophomore cotillion are very successful, and the Fancy Dress ball proves the best ever.

Feb. 26.—Y. M. C. A. starts its program of religious meetings with a strong address by Dr. Howerton.

Feb. 29.—Basketball season ends in V. P. I. game. Total results are that the Generals have won twelve and lost three games.

March 7.—Student Volunteer Conference meets here. Potent and Zwermer make magnificent addresses. Interest in Foreign Missions is revived.

March 10.—Plans for Finals are already under way.

March 15.—Kappa Alpha wins inter-frat basketball trophy.

March 13.—Omicron Delta Kappa initiates nine new men. Dr. Metcalf speaks at the initiation.

March 25.—Examinations start and the college settles down to a week of grind.

April 7.—Generals open baseball season with a thrilling victory over Lincoln Memorial.

April 8.—Student body campaign for a gift to Canton Christian College in China goes over the top with a total of over a thousand dollars.

April 10.—Statistics show that seventeen men have made the intellectual gridiron for the winter term.

April 11.—W. and L. takes back a little of the basketball grudge by a five to one victory over the Techs in a baseball game here.

April 15.—Ted Sullivan gives a very interesting lecture on baseball.

April 19.—Corbett steals home in ninth inning with score tied, and thus wins Randolph Macon game.

April 25.—The team returns in triumph. Carolina and V. P. I. succumb to their attack.

April 28.—Easter Hops prove to be a great success.

April 30.—Maryland State inflicts the only reverse of the season.

May 5.—The Military Question is discussed in an university assembly.

May 9.—Washington and Lee loses to Trinity in a close debate here Saturday. Subject of debate was: It is resolved that the immigration of foreign laborers into the United States should be prohibited for a period of five years.

May 16.—Jennings is elected President. H. S. Jones is Vice President. McCain will lead the Final Ball.

May 20.—The Cayx is nearing completion. All proofs have been sent back.

Generals close season with an easy victory over Roanoke. Graham pitches great game.

May 30.—W. and L. tennis team blanks Virginia Christian College. Cohn stars for Washington and Lee.

June 2.—Calyx comes out and is found very acceptable. Humor section is especially good.

TRAINING BEGINS NEXT SEPTEMBER

Thirty-Four Men Have Already Enrolled for Military Training this Fall.

Military training in the true sense of the word will be re-established at Washington Lee next September under the direction of Major S. M. Tuttle who has been on the campus for the last six weeks inquiring in the situation and the sentiment of the student body and faculty. For the first time in the history of the institution, Washington Lee will have a training unit in time of peace which will be a part of the curriculum of the university. It is simply following the steps of the progressive institutions of the country and whether it will meet with success or die a dishonorable death is a question which must be taken care of.

At the first ballot taken on the question of military training in the early part of the term, over one hundred men stated that they were interested in military training. It is very encouraging to Major Tuttle. However, on the vote a few days ago, only thirty four men enrolled for the training. But even this number is believed to be sufficient to start the training. Many men who did not enroll will probably do so in September and it is expected that about half of the incoming Freshman class will elect military training for physical training. One hundred men must be secured before the government will maintain the unit and if this number should fail to enroll the R. O. T. C. privilege will be taken away from the University.

A few facts in regard to the training might not be amiss. The work will consist of four hours a week the time being devoted about equally to the theoretical and practical sides of military tactics. During the first two years, the cadet receives his clothes free of charge. Then after he has taken two years of the training, if he elects to continue for a period of another two years, he receives from the government a scholarship of about $125 to $150. In this way men who are partially dependent on their own resources for their college expenses have an opportunity to aid themselves financially as well as physically. And it is likely that many will avail themselves of the opportunity.

Major Tuttle has been detailed to Camp Lee for the summer.

June 3.—Sigma Alpha Epsilon wins inter-frat baseball cup.

June 9.—Faculty makes special dispensation with regard to examinations to allow Washington and Lee to be represented at Blue Ridge. Seven men go.

June 14.—Examinations and work.

June 20.—Gaieties of Final Week open with interfraternity dance.

June 21.—Alumni continue to pour in for Finals.—Literary Society holds final celebration.

June 22.—Rev. Cosby Bell delivers striking baccalaureate sermon.

June 23.—Alumni day special feature of commencement week. Tommy Glasgow is main speaker of day. Boat crews hold regatta.

June 24.—Dr. Ganfield of Centre College addresses Seniors who are presented with diplomas.

June 24.—Final Ball greatest in history of college and brings to a close the 137th session of Washington and Lee.

PARKER RECEIVES ORATOR'S MEDAL

Fallacies of Patriotism is the Oration Presented by Successful Speaker

W. F. Parker of Texas, won the orator's contest at the annual celebration of the Graham-Washington Literary Society last Saturday night in the Lee Memorial chapel. The three speakers competing against W. F. Parker were V. E. Kemp of Alabama, B. A. Davis of Virginia, and H. F. Madison of Louisiana. An account of the dance at nine the audience was small; but, notwithstanding this fact the orations were of the best.

President Smith presiding, turned the meeting over to President G. T. Madison of the combined Societies, who after tracing briefly the history of the Societies at Washington and Lee, introduced the first speaker of the evening, V. E. Kemp.

V. E. Kemp chose as his subject "The Latest Entry." He showed that every nation has a list of its noted men engraved on the tablets of its memory. Wilson is the logical man to be affixed to our list. Wilson, the man of letters has grown from a poor lawyer and author to be the Man of Today. "Let us welcome with Washington and Lee our Latest Entry."

B. A. Davis took for his subject "Our Flag." It has been so gloriously upheld in the past that it has become the emblem of the American soul. The traditions of our country have been sustained in the present war by our soldiers and Wilson, as our flag is the only stainless one at the Peace Conference. "Our future is great, God leads. We follow the flag."

The third speaker, H. F. Madison, took for his subject "The Making of the Federal Constitution." He traced very interestingly the formation of our Constitution, showing clearly the opposition experienced at the table and the problems faced by our forefathers. He pointed out that in the end they developed a masterpiece which has held together a great nation destined to be greater.

The last orator of the evening was W. F. Parker who spoke on the "Fallacies of Patriotism." The war, he said, had changed us from a selfish to an unselfish people, who are willing to die for another's cause. Our patriotism should be expressed at all times as we have shown it in the past two years. The time to show patriotism is now at hand and we should spend this energy in leadership of the world in all lines of endeavor.

After the rendering of the judges' decision the meeting was adjourned. All the orations were excellent both in thought and expression, and the young orators deserve the highest commendation. Many would have us think that the literary side of academic life at W. and L. is on the decline, but the reverse was here proved to be the case. What more can be said?

DEAN LONG AWARDED LL. D. BY RICHMOND COLLEGE

Professor Joseph R. Long, Dean of the Law School, has been awarded the honorary degree of LL. D. by the board of trustees of Richmond College at their commencement exercises this June. He was one of the principal speakers the final day and delivered an address before the Society of Arachnidae. Dean Long is an alumnus of Richmond College having received his bachelor of arts degree from there in 1890.

BASEBALL NINE GLORIOUS TEAM

Has Best Record in Section—Seven Monogram Men Likely to Return

MONOGRAM MEN

Graham (Capt.)	T. S. Jones
Mattox	Yancey
Sutton	Drye
Gregg	Corbett
Raines	Henderson
Barron, Manager
Substitutes
Michael	Sloan
Coach
William C. Raftery

Playing a class of ball rarely seen on college campuses, the baseball team of 1919 of Washington and Lee has established a record which will be envied by the future representatives on the diamond. A list of eleven victories over the strongest teams North and South of the Mason and Dixon line is the record which confronts aspirants for this honor in the future.

Starting like a flash with a victory over Lincoln Memorial, the team had reached the height of its glory it returned home and after a spat with Maryland State, it concluded the season in grand style, hitting the ball all over Wilson field and trouncing their opponents unmercifully. At the rate the team was hitting and fielding toward the end of the season, it seems as though Raftery was training his men for a game with the big league teams. A game was in communication with the Navy but it failed to materialize and due to the closeness of the examinations the team disbanded after the game with Concord State. The season was a financial success in the sense that there was no deficit to face at the end of the year.

Of the monogram men, three will be lost by graduation, namely, Gregg, Graham and Sutton. The loss of these three will be felt next year, especially that of Graham who has done pitching of a phenomenal character this year. Gregg will also be hard to replace in the outfield for he is a sure fielder and when in the humor a hard hitter. He is a demon on the paths which is shown by the fact that he led the team in stolen bases for the year. Sutton has proved his worth.

But with the return of the rest of the monogram men, Coach Raftery should be relieved of much of his worry. A glance at the men who are almost sure to return might be interesting. To start off with there is Shrimp Jones, captain of the team for next year. What he lacks in hitting, he sure does make up in pep and is certainly well fitted for the position with which he has been honored. When it comes to handling the hot ones at second, Shrimp is right there.

To mention the name of Jimmie Mattox is enough for his work behind the bat and with the stick has been compared with that of Ainsworth and Drye. Bob has a good Detroit American by one of the sporting editors of a well known paper. Mattox's lightning peg throws fear into would-be swipers and few

GRADUATING CLASS HOLDS GAY BANQUET

Class Establishes Scholarship for Deserving Student. Will Pay Expenses for One Year of College

The class of 1919 held its final get-together meeting on Saturday night, June the seventh. At this time a truly big time was had and all the seniors began to realize more than ever before that their days at Washington and Lee are numbered. A banquet was held at the Dutch Inn and it is remarkable that all the class was there except four members. The president, George P. Wilson, assumed the task of toastmaster and showed that he has had considerable experience in directing such affairs. The most important business transacted was the adoption of the resolutions presented by Messrs. Graham and Gilliam.

It was an unusual sight to see so many grave and dignified seniors on the porch of the Dutch Inn about seven o'clock and those passing must have been impressed by the air of importance and self possession that was there displayed. On entering the dining room, however, where they were away from the gaze of the common herd, the class of 1919 let itself know that it has not really grown too old to have a good time. Those who had been eating at the Beanyery all the year were for a while at a loss to know what to do with all the utensils put there for their use, but it is needless to say that the dinner did not go neglected because of this ignorance. When the serious part of the evening came the class unanimously elected Tom Gilliam to the presidency of the permanent organization with Mercer Graham as secretary and treasurer. These two together with George Wilson were chosen as an executive board to see to the managing of such things as have to be managed.

The substance of the resolutions adopted was that the class should establish a scholarship for the purpose of helping some deserving man, preferably an athlete, through a year of college beginning with the year 1919-1920. The executive board is to see to the selecting of the deserving man, and the annual dues of the class will be enough to make up the proper amount.

Before the meeting adjourned several of the members "made a few remarks" and then L. T. Brown led in a long yell for the class of 1919.

John Drye, who leads the team in fielding, will also be back to guard this station next year and no better player could be found for this position. Drye is also a hard hitter and his favorite stunt is putting the ball over the left field fence into the tennis courts.

Strike-out Jack Corbett will again favor us with demonstrations of speed. With a clean record this year, he can hardly do any better next year. The outfielders, Raines and Henderson, are due to be here another year at least. Both are good fielders and are learning to use the stick to advantage.

Bob Yancey will be right there to favor us with demonstrations of speed. With a clean record this year, he can hardly do any better next year.

With this aggregation back, watch for the S. A. championship next year.

BASKETBALL TEAM HAS GOOD SEASON

Quintet Completes Season With Ten Victories and Three Defeats

MONOGRAM MEN
Fain, (Capt.)      McCain, Forward
Bryant, Guard      Hines, Forward
Graham, Center      Arbogast, Forward
Wilson, Manager.

SUBSTITUTES
Ball                      Bryan

COACH
William C. Raftery

Of those returning to college soon after their discharge from the military camps of the country, five monogram men, members of the basketball squad of last year, were found in the persons of Jimmie Fain, Mercer Graham, Howard McCain, Buck Bryant, and Bill Johnston, all of whom had been commissioned. And with the return of Bill Raftery, practice began immediately, for with these men back Washington and Lee could have but a first class team only. And, indeed, the basketball team of 1919 was one which commanded the praise and respect of every student and follower of the sport, for it closed the season with ten victories and three defeats. It is remarkable to note that the team had a clean slate until Graham's injury in the V. P. I. game and that after he left the squad, three defeats were registered against Washington and Lee. Had it not been for this misfortune, Raftery's quintet would today have the S. A. Championship to its credit.

Inaugurating the season with a game with Randolph-Macon on January 14, the White and Blue machine scored 50 points against their opponents, while the Macon were able to gather but six points. Victories over Bridgewater College, Virginia Christian College, and St. Johns followed, the team improving in each game.

On February 1, Roanoke College, who had as yet been undefeated, stepped over to the Doremus Gymnasium for a game. In their practice just before the game, these men seemed to be able to shoot the sphere from any angle of the floor. However, the team work and passing of the generals completely astonished the visitors and they succumbed by the score of 39 to 18. The game was fast and perhaps the best of the year.

On the 5th of February, the fans were presented with a comedy of errors when Elon College failed to score at all. Never in the history of basketball at W. and L. had this feat been performed before.

The game with V. P. I. in Lynchburg was lost to the Techs but only after Graham was forced to retire after the first few minutes of play. This disorganized the team and the loss of the tall center was keenly felt.

Following this, Davidson was scalped but University of North Carolina outwitted W. and L. by the score of 27 to 31. The game was anybody's until the final whistle.

Wake Forest and Trinity were disposed with in easy fashion and from the playing demonstrated in these games, there were indications that V. P. I. would be made to pay for the victory of a few weeks passed.

Thus ended the season. Two men have been donned the White and Blue uniform for the last time after three and four years of service respectively. Mercer Graham will no more be seen in action in the gym and his graduation today marks the passing away from the campus of an athlete second to none and whose name is worthy of a place with those of Barrett, Young, Moran, Raftery, Shultz, Donahue and a host of others. Captain Fain also brings his college to a successful close tonight when he leads the Final Ball. However, with Bryant, McCain, Hines, Harris, Johnston and numerous others, Coach Raftery has every reason to believe that he will have another aggregation of basket cagers next year which will make the sporting world cast its eyes on the campus of Washington and Lee.

MEMORIAL EXERCISES IN HONOR OF FALLEN HEROES IMPRESSIVE

The rest of the story is known. Three years ago Emperor William treated with contempt the American Army and its impertinent schoolmaster executive. Today his pompous legions lie shattered by America's free born.—Right truly spoke the doughboy of the Army of Occupation when upon entering Coblenz he came upon the statue of William the First, father of the late emperor towering seventy-two feet in the air.

Seated upon the base of the monument he wiped the sweat from his brow, gave the town the once over, gazed up and down the Rhine and then looking up at the statue remarked, "Well, old man, you sure played hell when you raised your boy to be a soldier."

In concluding, Mr. Glasgow remarked that having surpassed all other nations in preparing for war, we now find America excelling in her preparation for peace. "Scarcely had the roar of the guns died away before the Naval plane, C4, blazed the trail of a real trans-Atlantic commerce. We look forward upon the brightest pages of our nation's history."—"The price is paid by the aching hearts and empty chairs of those who laid down their lives that 'this nation, under God, might have a new birth in Freedom.' We are met today to do homage to their memory. One by one as they paid the accursed toll of German arrogant ambition, we could hear their cold, dumb lips above the din of battle and the ocean's roar, calling:

"In Flanders fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses row by row
That mark our place; and in the sky
The lark still bravely singing fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns beneath.

We are not dead! Short hours ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunsets glow;
Loved and were loved, but now we lie
In Flanders Fields.

Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from fallen hands we throw
The torch:—Be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die,
We shall not sleep, but poppies grow
In Flanders Field."

Upon the field of battle we took up that torch and lifted it to the blazing light of victory; and in the sacred chambers of verdant memory their names, their deeds, their honor will never die."

Mr. N. D. Smith then read the statistics of Washington and Lee's service men. He first mentioned the Washington and Lee Ambulance Unit which has three war crosses to its credit and which has distinguished itself on the battlefield in a manner most fitting to the traditions of this institution. The name of each member of the unit was read. According to the branch of service, the following are the statistics:

Infantry	290
Field Artillery	79

With the audience standing, Mr. F. S. Kirkpatrick of Lynchburg, Va., and president of the Alumni Association, paid a special tribute to the alumni who died in service. In a few words he expressed his sorrow which this page of Washington and Lee's and the world's history brings upon him. And yet, continued Mr. Kirkpatrick, I rejoice in the thought that these men have not died in vain, but for the cause of freedom which has conquered autocracy and illuminated the light of democracy. After the name of each alumnus who died in the service had been read, the audience remained standing in profound silence for two minutes. The orchestra then played Auld Lang Syne and concluded the services with the Washington and Lee Swing.

SENIOR-ALUMNI BALL

The Senior-Alumni Ball was a very delightful affair. An exceedingly large number of old alumni participated in the figure.

HARRY LEE DEFEATS ALBERT SIDNEY IN ANNUAL REGATTA

The Red was victorious over the Blue for the twenty-third time since old North River has offered up her bosom to the paddles of the Harry Lee and the Albert Sidney. The Harry Lees out-distanced the wearers of the blue at the tape by two boat-lengths.

The race was one of the fastest that has ever been rowed on the local course. Both crews put forth their mightiest efforts to win. The race was appropriate to the Victory Finals being a clear-cut demonstration of athletic prowess of well-trained men. Both crews have been in strenuous training for the past month, and with an almost equal number of veterans, both have stood about even in their chances for victory.

The alumni packed the island and lined the cliffs and roads. Jupiter Pluvius tried to argue the crews out soon followed by the Red shirts.

Somewhere up the river Coach Raftery pulled a trigger, and the echo of the shot rang down the river to the ears of the waiting enthusiasts. It was not long until the watchers from the cliffs saw the two crews swing around the first bend. The Blues were in the lead and coming steady, while the Reds were sticking close. The barks of the coxswains could be heard by the ardent fans, as the Red began to creep up on the speeding shell of the Blue. The Harry Lees forged ahead and gained the inside at the second turn of the river. From that time on they gained steadily until they came into the view of the landing a full length and a half ahead. Miller barked forth a command and the Reds put on a spurt that doubled their lead by the time that they were under the tape. The Harry Lee crew used their short of the race, but his best efforts were in the form of a slow drizzle, which dampness did not worry the alumni. Loud cries for Harry Lee came from one quarter, while an answering cheer came for Albert Sidney from another. Many cars loaded with fair "Calies" added zest to the otherwise gloomy atmosphere.

The second crew race was also captured by the Reds. They came under the tape a full three lengths ahead and still going strong. They received a large cheer from the throngs, who prosed a strong Harry Lee contender for the next year's race, if the Red second crew returns to fill up the vacancies. By the close of the second crew race, most of the spectators had arrived and were eagerly awaiting the start of the "Big" race. The Albert Sidneys were the first to put out from the boat house and were choppy stroke that brought victory in last year's regatta. The Albert Sidneys shortened their old long sweeping stroke but it did not have the practice with it as had the Reds. The Reds jerked along like an old broken-down horse, but finished like a thoroughbred record breaker. "Booker" Madison performed like a professional, and those behind him kept time with his heaving shoulders. Big "Pat" also bent his oar almost double in the attempt to curb the spurts of the ambitious Reds. W. B. Patterson, Lowman and "Curt" Humphreys also responded to the calls of "Shorty" Thomas with an admirable precision. However both could not win and the Reds had it.

Thompson, at stroke, for the second team pulled a strong oar for the Reds. The second teams are right there.

lation is but one step removed from the end desired, there cannot be happiness and indemnity against destruction without consecration. In illustration of these principles, Dr. Canfield took up the different professions and showed that if the representatives of these various lines of industry would work with the view of self-aggrandizement alone, there would be misery and suffering in the world. But let the farmer work and supply the manufacturer with raw material, let the manufacturer supply the world at a reasonable price, let the transportation systems distribute it at fair rates, let the grocer in turn sell it to the consumer at a legitimate profit, then the dream of an ideal world will have come true.

In concluding his eloquent address, Dr. Ganfield appealed to the graduates to consecrate themselves to a life of service and to serve their fellowmen in a spirit of sympathy and unselfishness. Reminding them of the noble traditions with which they are possessed, he earnestly requested them to work in the interest of humanity so that all peoples shall be on an equal plane.

After prolonged applause in which Dr. Ganfield rose and thanked the audience a second time, the intense moment of the final exercises arrived. Dean Harry Campbell of the academic department rose and after making a few preliminary remarks, read the names of Phi Beta Kappa initiates and then read the names of the graduates of the academic school. As each man's name was read, he stepped up to the platform and received his degree from the hands of the president. Dean Long before reading the names of the graduates from the law school remarked to the audience that Washington and Lee was not a local institution but that it drew its men from every state in the country. This fact was exemplified by the fact that out of the ten seniors in the law class, nine states were represented, Louisiana claiming two of the graduates. Dr. Smith then awarded the honorary degrees. The degree of doctor of divinity was conferred upon Rev. Wilfred Weaver Shaw of Baltimore, Md. The degree of doctor of law was conferred upon Douglas Southall Freeman, Editor of the News-Leader, Richmond.

(A list of academic and professional degrees will be found elsewhere in this issue.)

The last speaker on the program was Charles Holt Taylor of New Jersey who delivered the valedictory address. The significance of the word Victory was discussed by the speaker. He pictured the price that had been paid for it and as a parting farewell, he appealed to his classmates to carry on the work of those who have brought peace to man again so that those who lie in Flanders field might sleep peacefully.

Help you, Alma Mater this summer by talking her up.

PI ALPHA NU—WHITE FRIAR GERMAN

Following the Interfraternity dance which ended at about 2 a. m. Saturday morning, the Pi Alpha Nu-White Friar German was ushered in at 11 o'clock that morning and it proved to be quite a delightful affair. At least the performers felt much better for it was rather informal and dress suits were dispensed with. Barry N. Buford led the figure, which was a huge W. F., with Miss Lilian Shott of Bluefield, W. Va. Among the chaperones were Miss Annie White, Mrs. E. B. Schultz, Mrs. T. J. Farrar, Mrs. Joseph R. Long and Mrs. James R. Kern.

SIX ELECTED TO PHI BETA KAPPA

The annual Phi Beta Kappa election was held here last Friday night at the library. At this time six students and three alumni were taken into this honorary scholastic fraternity. The students elected were S. A. Anderson, H. E. Handley, L. A. McMurray, C. H. Patterson, C. M. Peale and C. H. Taylor. Of these six students all except Peale were candidates for the A. B. degree. However Peale was a candidate for a B. S.

PROSPECT FOR LARGE STUDENT BODY BRIGHT

The prospects for a large attendance next year are unusually promising. Many of those whose college course was laid aside to serve Uncle Sam will resume their places on the campus. The number of departing graduates is, of course, less than usual, thus entailing a smaller loss of this year's men. And the Law School abolished last term by the War Department and regaining only 65 students after the demobilization of the S. A. T. C., will take a long jump to ward its old-time enrolment of over 150.

Dr. Smith has scattered over a hundred thousand leaflet among high school teachers, students and parents and the result is seen in a big parade of daily inquiries from all over the country. The splendid work of the U. B. Club this spring is already bearing fruit, and the indications are good for a record-breaking class of Freshmen in the academic departments.

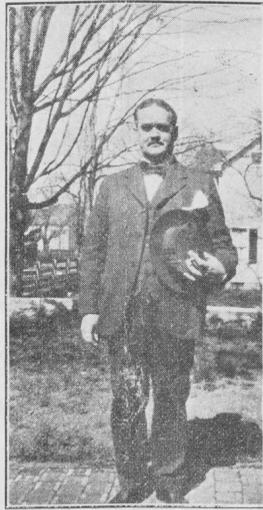

Zealous work during the summer by every alumnus and student, reinforcing the efforts of the University authorities, is all that is needed to start the ball rolling toward the goal of "A Thousand Students for 1925."

SIGMA GERMAN

On Saturday night, the followers of Terpsichore were entertained by the Senior Sigma Society who gave the Sigma German. Dancing began about 9, a little earlier than usual because it was scheduled to stop at 11 in order to observe the coming day. S. Mercer Graham with Miss Sara Lucas of Roanoke, Va., led the dance. After marching around the floor in different formations, the couple formed the Greek letter Sigma and at the whistle of Graham started to dance when the orchestra sounded the first note of "Carry Me Back to Old Virginia."
