SPES get new name

Hoping to cash in on the wave of sensitivity sweeping the campus since the CRC's takeover, members of Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity announced this morning that members are offended by the term "SPE."

SPE President Ivan Attitude said SPE has not always minded being called SPE, but since SPE nationally said SPE nationally is broken up about the SPE term, SPE should go.

Attitude said SPE members would rather be known as "that sensitive bunch of guys at the end of Lee Avenue," or "TSBOGATELA," pronounced, "SBOGATELA," just like "Tsongas," who is not a SPE.

W&L Empress Joan Shaughnessy said even though the SPES were a bunch of men, she would issue a decree that anyone calling the SPES SPES would be shot on site (unless they were women, minorities or ugly).

The Ring-tum Phi of course offered its full cooperation to SPE, saying the newspaper would henceforth call all SPES something different than SPES, so that the newspaper could affect and alter people's opinions and vocabularies, just like everyone knows they try to do.

"We're really excited about changing SPES to something other than SPES," a Phi spokesman, who is not a SPE, said. "The SPES will be especially happy with us."

Composite Q. Reporter did not turn in a story this week because s/he wasn't feeling well, and s/he had trouble getting in touch with people. Oh yeah, s/he also can't write the story, because Dean Howison asked that we not write anything about that.

So at first we were going to just stay up 'til 3 a.m. and write the story ourselves like we usually do. Then we decided to just stop the presses and not come out this week at all. Finally we decided, oh well, it's not the reporter's fault, after all. Let's just put a nice box there instead.

Washington and Lee's Confidential Review Committee forcibly took control of all university departments and services Monday and began implementing what it called actions "appropriate and necessary to rid the school of insensitive persons."

Beginning at dawn, members of the CRC, along with 2500 gun-toting PC mercenaries from the University of Iowa, went through every building on campus and removed department heads from their offices, leaving in their places physically-, mentally-, sexually-, ethnically-, and vertically-challenged persons to maintain control.

According to the always-straightforward University Public Relations Director Brian Shaw, there was only minimal opposition to the takeover from faculty members. But at least 73 white male students were killed or wounded while defending Dr. Jefferson Davis Futch's office before it, too, was taken by the CRC. After his capture, Futch was beaten senseless by CRC henchwoman Anice McCloud and left for dead on the front lawn.

Moments after the takeover was complete, CRC Chairwoman Joan Shaughnessy had herself crowned Empress of W&L. She allowed CRC member Allan Vestal to be crowned emperor, but said Vestal agreed to be under her control at all times.

"Vestal is an enlightened man and he realizes he needs to be oppressed by me a little to make up for what his ancestors did before he was even conceived," Shaughnessy said.

By noon, with her CRC troops firmly in control of the school, Shaughnessy was able to begin her "program of enlightenment" which included mass executions, public castrations and mandatory multi-cultural slideshows and lectures.

A group of 13 alumni was executed by firing squad on the practice football field at 1 p.m. Shaughnessy explained her reasons for ordering their deaths.

"They were white men, that's all the reason I needed," she said.

Next, Shaughnessy turned her wrath on sophomore Billy John Baker.

"I was in the bathroom and I overheard two girls in the next stall say Billy John had whistled at one of them," Shaughnessy said. "The boy needed to be taught a lesson."

Baker was taken to a rally in the gym and castrated, without anesthetic, in front of hundreds of cheering, bra-waving W&L women.

Later that afternoon, the CRC voted 5-2 to execute EC President Giles Perkins. He was burned at the stake.

On Tuesday, Shaughnessy held a press conference before her first full day of work as Empress of W&L.

Shaughnessy said she received had calls of support from the deans of seven, well-respected northeastern schools. She plans to remain in control of W&L indefinitely.

"My committee's continued control is necessary to set things straight, uh, I mean right, uh, no, I mean correct," she said.

Who survived the coup?

University President John Wilson: dismissed from post but escaped without injury. "He's never around anyways," CRC said.
Dean of Students David Howison: remains Dean, but no longer allowed to attend SAC meetings. "Maybe we'll get out of meetings faster since we won't have to 'chat'," said one member.
EC President Giles Perkins: Burned at the stake. Shaughnessy herself lit the copies of the U.S. Constitution used as fuel.

IFC President Greg Hicks: left in post, but forced to go on a date with 6'5" woman lacrosse player who rapes him since "she paid for dinner." CRC hopes IFC will now help curb date rape.
PHC President Carrie Eubanks: Promoted to under-empress of W&L. PHC also given de facto control over fraternities.

University Infirmary: now must perform abortions on demand.

University President John D. Wilson announced today that he is overriding the Student Affairs Committee and lowering Delta Tau Delta's penalty for its December house-trashing to nothing.

"I really didn't understand what happened at Delt because SAC screwed up so bad," Wilson said. "The Delt president and v p showed me the light."

"Basically we told John that one of the Phi editors was solely responsible for all the damage to the house, and the whole Phi staff collaborated in a conspiracy to make Delt look bad," said the Delt vp "Really, it's true. That's why we expelled him. He would do anything within his power to hurt us, even witchcraft. We think there's been witchcraft."

Wilson said it was clear to him that SAC asked all the wrong questions of the Delts.

"SAC asked questions like, 'what happened?,' 'what did you do about it?,' etc.," Wilson said. "That was all wrong. I wanted to talk about the future."

"Talking about the past is always so difficult," a Delt spokesman said. "Then you might really have to take responsibility for your actions. Talking about the future is easier, because since it hasn't happened yet, nobody knows what's true and what's not."

R.T. 'Smiley' or Weekly World?

This week we present you with two views of the Phi of the future. The choice is yours. Which one do you want?

R.T. 'Smiley' Phi — This is the official "news" paper of the idyllic Washington and Lee that the administration and most students dream about. Nothing bad ever happens. Everybody knows and respects one another. Students, faculty and staff walk around 24 hours a day with a smile securely painted on their faces. Too bad such a place doesn't exist, but this is the Phi everyone seems to think they want ...

The Weekly World Phi — So you thought you could compare The Ring-tum Phi to a supermarket tabloid? We don't think so. This paper leads with an exclusive expose on Dean Atkins' genitalia and goes down from there. It truly lives up to its ever present motto: "We're Gonna Get Ya!"

That's all folks, we're outta here!

OK ... on a more serious note ... take a deep breath and relax. As you've probably guessed, this is the Phi's annual parody issue. None of the news stories this week are either real or serious. In fact, any resemblance to persons either living or dead are purely intentional. Particularly to those who are living.

By this time every year, the paper has usually pissed off so many people that we take this opportunity to shamelessly pander for your affection by trying to make you laugh. But if that doesn't work, we really don't care. It's our last issue! Today we begin a futile attempt to make up a semester of work in just eight days. In the spring, the new Editorial Board will take over ... and if you think you're happy to see us go, you can't possibly comprehend what it means to us.

Have a nice day.

MY BRAIN'S FRIED

By John "Zero-Point-Zero" Blutarski

A member of The Ring-tum Phi's intrepid investigative reporting team sneaks a microphone into an executive meeting in the President of the University's inner sanctum. Names have been altered to protect the not-so-innocent. The evil plotters are: University President Johnny Stilson, Dean of Students Davey Howler and Dean for Co-educational Affairs Mrs. Scheer-LaRoue.

****

Stilson: This meeting will come to order, with me in charge, of course (ha, ha, I love power).

Howler: Oh, yes sir, that sounds quite good to me.

Scheer-LaRoue: Why does he get to be in charge all the time, hmm? Sounds like male chauvinism, if you ask me!

Stilson: We didn't. (Bangs gavel) We are here to discuss that muckraking, back-stabbing rag, that filthy piece of yellow journalism, that ... student publication.

Howler: The Spectator?

Stilson: No, you idiot, the Phi!

Howler: (Fawning) Oh yes, quite right, sir!

Stilson: And that sneaky little columnist of their's, Sparrow —

Scheer-LaRoue: Swann.

Stilson: Sparrow, swan, parakeet... who cares? This libelist should be strung by his ...

Scheer-LaRoue: Go ahead, say it, sir! Go ahead, you can do it!

Stilson: Vulgarity doesn't fit my new urbane image. By the way, Davey, are the students going for it?

Howler: Oh, sir, yes sir, they love it. Your popu-

Listen in as the university president and his crack team of barracudas destroy civil liberties on this campus forever!

larity is catching up to the President's!

Stilson: Excellent ... now about this Swann character.

Scheer-LaRoue: Obviously a sexually-deviant male, or highly repressed. Needs a mother figure.

Stilson: All I know is the sneaky little bastard verbally assaulted Leroy last fall.

Howler: Oh, that wasn't nice, sir. Certainly not good at all to attack the Dean of Social Affairs and Promiscuity.

Scheer-LaRoue: Called him a toad, didn't he? Obviously referring subconsciously to himself. Definite sexual problems.

Stilson: And that entire staff! Who do they think they are, mucking about with the Delt decision?

Howler: That's right, sir, if they hadn't blabbed we'd have kicked those punks right off campus.

Stilson: And who the hell leaked the car tax bit? Betcha it that do-gooder Brian Shaw had something to do with it. Everything he says is bullshit!

Scheer-LaRoue: Too bad Homer's deal with the University fell through, isn't it? I would have gotten a whole new Womyn's Center, too.

Howler: Uh, sir? You don't think there's ... well, a microphone hidden somewhere in here, do you?

****Tense silence****

Stilson: (Guffawing) You mean The Spectator? I've got those fools in my back pocket. Next week they'll attack the Buildings and Grounds people

Confessions of a lost soul

Vows never to write again

I'VE CHANGED

By Nile "The River" Macado

Those of you who know me realize that I am rarely a man without words (that is, rarely a man). But here I am speechless. I am so ashamed of the things I have said on these pages during the past months. It is now the time for true confessions.

I've changed. While reading the Law Wives' calm and polite response to my last diatribe, I realized that they are correct. They are not the ones that misunderstand, I am. It's not the values of this fine country that are warped and twisted, I am. It is not the Spectator that is vomit, I am. I am, in fact, not part of the solution, I am part of the problem.

The good Law Wives were quite correct at pointing out that I am Canadian. I would like to apologize to my fellow countrymen remaining north of the border for the embarrassment I have wrought. I am a hypocrite. Everything has been handed to me, and I have given back nothing but trouble. That settles it, from now on I'm a Republican. No more letters from me. I feel right at home here at W&L.

Ed. note: Yeah, right. Nile, oh Nile, you are puerile, vile and make me smile. Get back to your Parisian memoirs.

instead of me... AGAIN.

Scheer-LaRoue: When you say "back pocket," do you mean anything inherently sexual about —

Stilson: Oh shut up. To continue ... what do we do about this deranged columnist?

Scheer-LaRoue: I suggest extensive psycho-therapy. Put him ... I mean, the case, into my hands.

Howler: I don't know, sir, he's got a cult following among the students. It could backslash.

Stilson: A following?

Howler: Sick people, sir, but extremely loyal.

Stilson: How come I don't have a following? Check on it! Can't the CRC do anything about him?

****Pause****

Howler: My sources say he was seen drinking at the Palms last weekend. And he was seen dancing at the Fiji house.

Scheer-LaRoue: Definitely sexually-deprived.

Stilson: No, the entire student body drinks at the Palms, so do the profs... So do I. And the Fiji thing won't wash, either — that might make him desperate, but not immoral.

Scheer-LaRoue: Maybe I could persuade some of my female disciples to —

Stilson: No, the man's an English major. Moral character's too strong.

****Pause****

Howler: I've got it! (murmured whispers...our intrepid reporter can't catch the words)

Stilson: By God, Davey, that just might work! Now nobody on this campus will be subject to ridicule or harassment ever again ...

CRC takes control; reign of terror begins

LETTERS

Cramps bother depressed dean

Dear Phi Guys:

I have this little problem, and I hope you can help me. Upon returning from a relaxing Christmas break, I sat down at my desk with about 1,200 upperclassmen fall term grade reports. You know, parents love to see their little kid complemented on his report card ...

I was in the middle of writing my little messages ... you know the type: "Your son is a really nice kid. I see him in my office all the time." "Don't worry Chris has a full year to get his grade-point-average above a 2.0." and the ever popular, "I failed calculus, too!" When just then I began developing this sharp pain in my arm which eventually spread to my neck and the rest of my body.

So, I began consulting with doctors and chiropractors. I took medication and attempted neck-extension therapy with Tom Jones in the Training Room. When all else failed, I resorted to acupuncture treatment. I was finally told to sleep on my side instead of my stomach. BUT I ALWAYS SLEEP ON MY STOMACH! I CAN'T SLEEP! I AM BECOMING UNSTABLE! This has been going on for 11 weeks now. What should I do? I've considered filing law suits against W&L for on-the-job-abuse, against the students for getting grades and against the doctor who told me to sleep on my side. Please give me some advice. I have to do the grade reports again in just two weeks!

Eagerly awaiting your reply,
Davey Howison
Dean of Students

Ed. note — Listen Davey, sue the university, they'll just raise tuition to cover it. But don't sign the agreement until you get your own building on the Colonnade. Just think of it: Howison Hall ... your name in lights. No more being forced to sit in front of the Co-op for you! Next, make up a stamp that says "Your doing a great job. — DH" and see to it that everyone gets straight A's ... Oh, yeah ... don't forget to sleep on your side.

A message from Her Majesty

To the Editors:

There have been many false and truly harassing reports of what precipitated my recent ascension as "The Almighty Empress of Washington and Lee, Protector of the Everlasting Honor." This letter is to set the record straight. I don't expect ya'll to understand, after all you're both white males (and soon to be dead).

The tension on this campus has been growing steadily for about the past 250 years: fraternities are bad, this school is named after two dead slave-owners, the white male-dominated electorate continues to vote for other white males and just yesterday somebody implied that I was ugly. Obviously something had to change.

But the changes will be minimal. The school will remain where it is, we will just be changing the name to Homerville Community College. The Honor System and other vestiges of student government will remain intact, they will just be carefully overseen by members of the CRC. Free elections will continue, as usual, just we will screen the candidates and implement a proportional voting system to benefit the under-represented minorities. Finally, we will not tamper with the civil liberties of the students here unless they do not know when to censor themselves.

The current 6 p.m. to 8 a.m. curfew should only be necessary for a few years. So, sit back and relax ... there's nothing you can do. Have fun with you issue this week — it's your last.

Regally yours,
Her Royal Majesty
Queen Joan I

Lawyers thankful for building sale

To the Editor:

As a law-firm having recently moved to Lexington, we would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank the Washington and Lee University administration for the warm welcome they have extended to us. Specifically, we refer to the brochure we received detailing the school's excellent opportunities to express monetary generosity.

Since, having originated our firm in Houston, we have gobs of liquid assets with which to paper this municipality, the aforementioned brochure was particularly helpful. Our original intent of giving the city a fleet of brand-spank-in' new parking scooters was clearly upstaged by the recently donated snorkel fire truck. So, instead we have decided upon item C in the brochure: "prominent Colonnade building named for donor, with endowed professorship."

Frankly, we were at first concerned with defacing the natural greenery and beauty of the Colonnade, but the information packet from President Wilson and the Board of Trustees quelled any such fears. The Faculty/Student Opinion Cross-Section was what really did the trick. We found the comments of a Dr. Satz in the mathematics department most moving: "There just aren't enough buildings around here to piddle on!" Satz said. "Besides, each new slab of concrete means one or two less trees for cats to climb up." Even now, we stifle tears at the beauty of that sentiment.

One again, thank you.

Sincerely,
Dewey, Skrewum and Howe
Attorneys at Law

Ed. Note: To all you who wrote to us this past year ... I hope I never see another letter again!

Homer and the "little" woman vacationing off the coast of God knows where.

Homer vacations with YOUR tax money

By H.D. THOREAU
Thoughtful Dead Dude

After more than 12 months of saying that he had nothing to do with the car tax, Lexington Mayor H.E. "Homer" Derrick admitted Wednesday that the tax has paid for his repeated trips to the Bahamas.

"Look, my trips to the Bahamas are my own business," Homer said. "Just because the city collects money from students and then pays for me to have a little fun in the sun doesn't mean that the two are connected."

"The trips have nothing to do with W&L or the car tax," Homer said. "Bryan Shaw [W&L's public relations man, who is not a SPE] is right, tying the car tax to anything is bullshit."

Homer, who is not a SPE, rejected the idea that a flat tax on all cars, regardless of their value, is fair. He said that the 4.25 percent tax rate is needed to cover the increased road and sidewalk maintenance costs that expensive cars incur.

"The more expensive the car, the more damage it does to the road," Homer said. "Look, kids with more expensive cars are richer. Richer kids have less regard for nature. And Kids with less regard for nature litter more. Therefore, expensive cars damage roads more than cheap cars."

Besides, if those W&L babies don't like it, they can just vote me out of office next time!
— Homer

Additionally, Homer said, the tax is justified by the income he has lost at the College Town Shop, which Mrs. Homer runs.

"Ever since the Phi printed my phone number, students have stopped coming into the little woman's store," Homer said. "I figure the bastards owe me."

"Besides, if those W&L babies don't like it, they can just vote me out of office next time," the mayor said.

Homer said that students simply must register to vote with the city registrar, Lucille "I am the Law" Joyce.

The registrar, the mother of Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Robert Joyce Jr., said students are welcome to try to register.

"I dare them to come down and try it," the Law said. "When students grow up and get out in the real world, then they can vote."

While students do have certain rights, Joyce said, voting is not necessarily one of them.

"Here in Lexington, no one votes unless I say so," the Law said, "and I don't like students --- or their fancy cars."

"If anyone has a problem with that they can file a lawsuit. What, is my son gonna prosecute me?"

On perhaps the only bright side of this whole issue, Homer did get a serious sunburn on the top of his bald head during his last trip to the Bahamas

NOTES

Job Opportunity
McDonald's, Burger King, and Taco Bell will be on campus to interview any rising senior who is interested in the growing field of fast food preparation. For more information, contact the CD&P office.

Writing Center
For anyone who might be remotely interested, the Writing Center is still open. If you want help writing your paper, go there. Just be forewarned, they will probably just confuse you even more.

Wanted
Lexington police are currently looking around Washington and Lee for a man they consider to be the major link in the campus sex and drug trade. "We've seen him enter fraternity houses and dorms wearing black fishnet hose and a red garter belt under his ripped jeans. That alone made us suspicious of sex crimes," officers said. Currently police are investigating the suspect's bank accounts for large checks made out to Greek organizations or Victoria's secret. W&L security is reminding all women to lock their doors and promptly remove their delicacies from dryers in Gaines Hall.

Applications
Applications are currently being accepted for CRC, SCC, EC, CIA, FBI, KGB, AFL-CIO, UAW, UMW and ACLU class representatives. If interested fill out an application and submit to Carol Calkins.

Film Society
The next presentation of the film society will be the porn masterpiece Debbie Does Dallas. The film is in something that passes for English. Debbie Does Dallas is a classic tale of a woman's desires and how she goes about getting what she wants. If you want a ticket, Carol Calkins will slip you a pass.

Calyx News
Don't forget to turn in your nude photos for the new special "Come As You Are" section of this year's Calyx. If you need a photographer, we will provide. If not, come with your photos to Carol Calkins.

Lost Rings
An epidemic of lost rings have hit the campus. Thousands of gold rings with various initials have turned up missing at fraternity parties and around campus. If you find one, wash it, put in a plastic bag and shove it in Carol Calkins' box.

Theater men dress up and get down

By HOMO PHOBIC
Archie Bunker Wanna Be

After a long year of thought provoking drama, three senior theater majors dress up in their most stunning outfits and dance the night away to their favorite Village People tunes. Their impromptu performance of "Kick Me There, I'll Kick Your Ass" received a standing ovation from students assembled in front of the co-op.

Butch Browning, donning a pink tutu and stunning pink toe shoes, felt the performance was a success.

"The woman inside me has finally had the opportunity to manifest itself publicly," Browning said. "I represent women and their role as the oppressed insignificant other, tightly bound by society's tutu."

Blaine Dixon, sporting an oh-so stylish umbrella, agrees with Browning.

"It was great fun," said Dixon, "and Butch will make a great FD date."

According to Dixon, he represents the hope of a future free from racial and sexual tension getting shafted by the oppressive white male of contemporary society. "It's deep," Dixon said. "It really is."

Paul Tsmith, says the oppressive male character he portrays is the complete antithesis of what a truly sensitive guy he is. "I am a sensitive kind of guy," Tsmith said. "I really am."

Members of the audience also believed the performance to be a success.

"It was great," one student said. "It was better than Cats."

W&L to host Summer Games

By GEORGE STEINBRENNER
Phi Staff Reporter

In a strange turn of events, the 1992 Summer Olympic Games will be held at Washington and Lee University in Lexington, Va., U.S.A. rather than in Barcelona, Spain, as originally planned.

Olympic officials said that Spain funded its bid to host the Games with drug money and elected to move the games. Although W&L did not make a bid, they were awarded the games for free because of its history of honor.

"For nearly a month, W&L will become the focal point of the world," said University President John Wilson. "That can do nothing but bolster the University's already perfect image. And we're getting it for free."

Olympic officials said that despite the small size of both Lexington and W&L, "the games must go on. We're positive that W&L will prove to be both an adequate and an outstanding host to the countries of the world."

The Games will be held begin July 26 and end August 15.

There had been some question as to W&L's ability to run the Games smoothly because of its size and the lack of a large city in the immediate vicinity.

"That's bullshit," said W&L spokesman Brian Shaw. "There are two cities within an hour that are more than capable of handling the consumer rush the Olympic Games will bring. And as far as the athletics goes, we have more than enough fields, stadiums and gymnasiums. We have no doubts that the Games will go smoothly."

Staunton, to the north, and Roanoke, to the south, will be the primary distribution points for Olympic merchandise. There will also be stores in downtown Lexington.

"We see this as a great opportunity to put a lot of money we hadn't counted on into the economy," said Lexington mayor H. E. "Buddy" Derrick.

The opening ceremony will be held July 26. For its final leg, the Olympic torch will be run from Fairfield down U.S. route 11, past the Lee-Hi Truck Stop and Restaurant — caterers to the Olympic Games — into town, past VMI, across the footbridge and onto Wilson Field, where the teams will enter.

W&L history professor Taylor Sanders will carry the torch on its final leg.

"This is a fine opportunity," said Sanders. "Just as the Greeks consider it an honor, I do as well."

To honor the ancient olympians, Sanders will jog the final leg naked, as the Greeks did.

The venues for the sporting events will be spread out across campus. The track and field events will take place on Wilson Field and the football practice field. The basketball competition will take place in the Warner Center. The gymnastics competition will take place in the Doremus Gym, adjacent to the 2,500 seat Warner Center.

Soccer will be held on the Liberty Hall Field, and baseball will be played at Smith Field. Swimming and water polo will be held in the Cy Twombly Pool, and the weightlifting competition will be held in the Warner Center weight room. Tennis will be played on the Varsity Courts.

Boxing and wrestling will be held at the Pavilion.

"The athletic facilities will be in tip-top shape," said W&L Athletic Director Mike Walsh. "They are some of the finest fields in America, and we are proud and ready for the world to take them."

American athletes didn't seem concerned with the lack of size of the arenas.

"I've never played in a gym with less than 10,000 seats," said basketball player Michael Jordan. "I think it will be neat. Plus, they have a McDonald's so I'll be able to do some endorsements. Don't they?"

Swimmers expressed some concern about W&L's shorter-than-Olympic length Twombly Pool (capacity 500). The pool is 25 yards long and only 12 feet deep. Standard olympic pools are 50 meters by 15 feet.

"I've never had to do a flip-turn in the 50-meters," said Matt Biondi, who stands six feet, seven inches. "It should be really interesting, also."

Walsh insisted that the facilities would pose no problems for the athletes.

"They are the world's greatest athletes, excepting of course the athletes of Major League baseball," he said. "They should be able to adjust to their surroundings without complaining."

The Olympic Village for athletes will be comprised of W&L's student housing facilities. Athletes will reside in the four dormitories, Gaines Hall, Woods Creek and the dormitories in the lower levels of the Warner Center.

"As always, the women will reside on the third floor of the freshmen dorms," said W&L security officer Baner. "Even though the W&L students rejoice after finding out their school will host the Olympics. They are modeling what they will wear at the Games.

students aren't here, we can't have any trouble now — buddy."

The University, however, will not open the newly renovated fraternity houses to the Olympic athletes.

"We have spent too much time and effort renovating them," said Wilson. "We can't run the risk of these strangers to our community coming in and doing damage to them."

The Olympic committee spoke with W&L about using some of VMI's athletic facilities, but decided not to press the issue when both Wilson and Walsh said W&L's facilities were more than sufficient.

"Really, we saw no need to bring VMI into this," said Wilson.

"This is our project and we are more than capable of handling it," said Walsh. "We have worked long and hard and we don't need to give VMI some free notoriety after all our hard work."

Despite the unexpected and untold amounts of money that the Games should bring into the city, Derrick said he would not consider changing any of the city's tax structures, most notably the taxing of W&L student automobiles.

"We've gone around and around about this in Council," said Derrick. "The bottom line is, that no matter how much money we make from the Olympics being here — and it is sure to be a lot — the students will return after the Games. And if they have cars, then they'll have a tax."

Anarchy will reign; W&L coaches join the growing list of CRC victims

By MULDOON
Phi Staff Reporter

Washington and Lee coaches must now be wary of the way they treat players or even the way they criticize their performances.

The Confidential Review Committee released an amendment to their conduct code recommendation, calling for coaches to be put under its umbrella of influence. The amendment states that coaches may no longer "single out, punish or demean players because of their physical or mental shortcomings on the playing field."

According to the CRC, this amendment will secure a player against the obvious abuses of any athletic coach.

"What are 'shortcomings'?" This is going to cause major problems for us," said one coach.

This doesn't bode well for W&L coaches trying to discipline their players and get them ready for a season. This amendment will produce repercussions on every team at W&L.

Head football coach Gary Fallon can no longer criticize offensive linemen for missing blocks which result in the massacring of the quarterback.

Head basketball coach Verne Canfield can no longer make a player run extra suicides for refusing to play because an opposing player said he needed to use deodorant before games.

Men's swimming coach Page Remillard can no longer make a swimmer swim extra laps for deciding during a race to take a break and walk the rest of the way.

Women's lacrosse coach Jan Hathorn can no longer bench a player for refusing to remove her pink sandwich and replace them with the regulation black ones.

Head soccer coach Rolf Piranian can no longer bench a player for scoring a goal in his own net because he was mad at the keeper for stealing his date at a frat party.

Head baseball coach Jeff Stickley can no longer yell at a player for missing a fly ball because he was checking out the girls lacrosse team practicing on Liberty Field.

Women's tennis coach Cinda Rankin can no longer make a player run extra sprints for smashing tennis balls over the fence because she wants to protest the lack of a women's mud wrestling team.

I could go on, but I think you get my drift. This new amendment is a travesty.

"It will probably cause total anarchy for a while," said one anonymous CRC representative, "but after some time, the coaches will get used to the change."

An even bigger travesty is the fact this amendment doesn't include some of the professors who level students with unnecessary punishments, such as grades.

Dare to dream!

The Phi has learned that Associate Dean of Students for Greek Affairs, Parties and Olympic Games LeRoy Cole "Buddy" Atkins II has grown by three feet and 200 pounds by taking illegal steroids.

Buddy of course denied what we know is true.

"Do not mess with me," he said just before punching a Phi photographer in the groin. "I will be back."

A unidentified doctor we met in the dark alley behind the University Center described Buddy's physical condition.

"His muscles are enormous," Doctor X said. "But his ... [maleness] has suffered. It's barely there anymore. I wish kids could see it so they would know what steroids can do."

A woman who says she had sexual relations with "the old Buddy" agreed, saying Buddy's decision to take steroids was wrong.

"Men just don't understand what women want," she said. "It doesn't matter if you're four-foot-nothing and 102 pounds, so long as you're hung like a bull."

So why did he take the plunge into drugs? CRC Chairman Joan Shaughnessy, a self-proclaimed expert on the male psyche, said Buddy's problem was self-esteem.

"Like most vertically challenged men, Buddy did not think he was as virile as the other boys on the IFC," Her Highness said. "Now his self-esteem should pick up, since he has the body every woman craves."

By OVER M.D. BODY
Phi Staff Reporter

The Executive Committee cut funding to The Weekly World Phi Monday in an effort to curb "dreadfully fair and accurate reporting" by the newspaper, an Executive Committee statement said.

"What we really want instead of the Phi is an Executive Committee newsletter," said EC President Giles Perkins. "We don't want any of that journalism stuff. Just a direct channel from me to Joe and Janet Student."

EC President-elect Josh MacFarland agreed.

"When the truth hurts, you hide the truth," he said. "The Phi editors seem to have been under the mistaken impression that truth is good."

"W&L does not need a newspaper," MacFarland said, "because nothing bad happens here. We're all one, big happy family, where everyone trusts everyone else and everyone is honest about everything."

A Phi spokesman admitted that the newspaper's last issue, which put the most important story at the top of page one, might have been sensational.

"I don't know what we were thinking," the spokesman said. "You have to understand how confusing things can get. One minute your in journalism class learning about the Real World, and the next minute your back in 1775, uh, I mean W&L."

Dorm Counselor SLAYS Insensitive Reporter!!

By ROY BELKNAP
Phi Staff Reporter

Senior dorm counselor Nancy Noname and Ring-tum Phi yellow sensationalist Molly Muckraker disemboweled each other yesterday in front of the Co-op, to the horror of 25 students who witnessed the event.

Witnesses said Muckraker, 20, was emerging from Reid Hall at the same moment Noname, 21, left the C-School.

They spotted each other across the expanse of juniper bushes and the battle was on.

Muckraker, who was carrying a 3-foot brass anchor used for the annual "Revive Delta Gamma" benefit, struck first, bludgeoning Noname and wounding her severely.

Noname produced a sword she said had been given to her by a former Marine, with whom she denied sleeping.

Noname drove the sword into Muckraker, penetrating her and partially disemboweling her.

From there, the battle raged on as the women, interlocked in a bloody tangle, circled the C-School seven times, leaving a trail of intestines.

Politics Professor Lewis John, who happened to be looking out his office during the encounter said he saw nothing.

E.C. President-elect Josh MacFarland disagreed.

"I can't believe they spilled their guts all over campus like this," MacFarland said. "This incident was not an asset to the University."

They spotted each other across the expanse of juniper bushes, and the battle was on.

Noname finally got the upper hand in the battle when she caught Muckraker around the neck and smashed her brains out against the ODK benches.

Victorious, Noname attempted to drag Muckraker's body off to show the girls on her hall in Gilliam Dormitory. However, Noname got only as far as the steps to the Co-op before she died from her wounds.

Student Conduct Committee President Chris Haley said the incident was a "personal dispute" between the two women and that the SCC would not get involved.

By IMA FENDED

Workers began removing Old George's pedestal from on top of Washington Hall Wednesday after Dean of Students' Sex Anne Schroer-Lamont protested its seeming resemblance to a penis.

"My word!" said Ms. Schroer-Lamont. "No wonder students think about sex all the time, after they see that thing sticking up in the air."

"That pedestal goes against everything soft and feminine in this institution."

W&L Empress Joan Shaughnessy agreed with Ms. Schroer-Lamont's assessment.

"That pedestal is clearly a form of sexual harassment for the hundreds of women who are subjected to its erect form each day.

A truly wonderful lady falls ill with a fever

By WENDY O'MIGOD
Phi Woman At Large

Mrs. Betty Bucks, kind and generous benefactor of the Bucks Estate and all that neat pottery, has come down with a 102 degree fever.

Bucks' doctor Elmer "Buddy" Fudd said he expects Buck to be fine in a few days.

"It's just a fever. Don't ya'll at that university get fevers," Fudd asked. "Don't worry, she's not going anywhere just yet."

Bucks condition has caused great concern throughout the university community.

"We're quite concerned with Mrs. Bucks health," President John D. Wilson said. "She's such a fine old gal, we're going to see what we can do for her."

Brain Shaw, W&L's great communicator said every effort is being made to let Mrs. Bucks know W&L is pulling for her.

"Several students have come to me saying we should start a massive letter writing campaign, and by gosh that is just what we've done," Shaw said.

According to Shaw, the first truckload of cards should have arrived early yesterday morning. Mrs. Buck's butler Buford T. Winthrop confirmed the delivery of the get well letters and cards.

"Oh! Mrs. Bucks is so thrilled! you're nice Mr. Wilson sent her flowers," Winthrop said.

Mrs. Bucks herself telephoned this reporter because she wanted to express her extreme gratitude to the W&L community.

"I never thought that many strangers could care," she said. "I've decided that I need to do something more for the kids."

So Mrs. Bucks has decided to make yet another donation of the porcelain kind.

"I've decided to give the dining hall my everyday dinner dishes," Bucks said. "I hear they are in desperate need of clean dishes over there."

Director of food services Gerald Darrell is ecstatic about the donation.

"I hear they have a lovely light blue floral pattern on them," Darrell said. "They should match very well with our existing dinner ware."

Mrs. Bucks did assert that the Dining Hall would not have to wait to get the dishes.

"I'll just use my good china," she said.

Many students on campus are very pleased with the new donation.

"She's such a sweet woman," said student Kirsti Krunch. "I'm looking so forward to gazing at pretty dishes while I eat."

Student Joey-Rob Doogin also had an interesting perspective on the new dishes.

"It's cool, but what happens when we use them all? They'll be just as bad as the rest," Doogin said. "I guess it doesn't matter though, 'cause this Bucks chick is alright."

Student Tammy Tootin summed up the whole issue perfectly.

"Wow, I wrote her a letter, but I never dreamed she would be this generous," Tootin said. "It just goes to show how far a little human kindness will go."

However, there was at least one student who does not understand the meaning of generosity and kindness.

"What do I care? I don't eat in the damn dining hall anyway," said Bad Attitude Smith.

The rest of us love you Mrs. Bucks!!! ☺

W&L NAILED WITH VEGAS VIOLATIONS!

By RICHARD F. PERRY
Phi Las Vegas Gambler

A Nevada grand jury today indicted the Washington and Lee athletic department in connection with numerous NCAA violations at U.N.L.V.

"I said all along that we ran a clean program and that the NCAA was out to get us," said relieved and reinstated U.N.L.V. basketball coach Jerry Tarkanian. "Now maybe the NCAA will get off my back and let me get back to coaching these fine people."

W&L president John Wilson was shocked at the news of the indictment, but kept his composure about the matter.

"This is a delicate matter," he said, "and I'd rather not talk about it until I get in touch with our lawyers."

The NCAA has yet to state what action it will take against the tiny Division III school, since the normal penalty includes limiting of scholarships and W&L doesn't give scholarships.

W&L head basketball coach Verne Canfield denied that he had anything to do with sabotaging UNLV.

"Why on earth would I want to do that?" he said. "It's been years since I had my heart set on getting a Division I job."

W&L Athletic Director Mike Walsh, who is in just his third year at the helm, denied knowledge of the charges.

"I think, if all this actually happened, that my predecessor had to be behind it," he said. "I'm not saying anything happened, but I want to stress that it didn't happen before I got here."

Former W&L basketball player Mike Holton said the NCAA is behind this new charge.

"There is no way that anyone from around W&L set up any of the Vegas violations," he said. "I think that one of the Vegas players won the jackpot at Caesars or some place like that, and then paid the courts to drop the charges against them and come after us."

Canfield agreed with his former player on passing the blame.

"The NCAA has to be in on it also," he said. "They must have said, 'hey, let's go after a small, academically proud school with a tradition of honor and really screw with it!'"

Phi WHO?

For all those fanatical Duke fans that I know, and I know of only one, I have some good and bad news for you.

The good news is that your team survived to the Sweet Sixteen, how I will never know.

The bad news is that Cherokee Parks will be leaving Duke next year to attend, and play basketball, at our humble institution, Washington and Lee University.

Pretty neat, ain't it?
I know your probably pulling your hair out over this, but just think, you'll be able to see him up close(not with Roy Firestone) and personal. That's got to be some consolation to you.

The reasons Parks gave for his sudden decision was the lack of playing time he was receiving behind All-American Christian Laettner.

Parks said he felt left out by Coach K.(I'm not even going to attempt to spell it), and that he wanted to be a bigger part of a team. He also said that Laettner was the biggest ball-hog he'd ever played with.

Despite Parks'

impressive credentials, head basketball coach Verne Canfield says Parks may need a little time to adjust to the Generals system.

"I'm not sure he'll start right away," said Canfield after he heard the news.

"Parks is a great talent, but there are others in front of him that know the system better. I figure he'll have it down by the third or fourth second of tryouts."

Students virgins, new survey says

By U.B. KIDDING
Phi Staff Reporter

A very bored Dean of Student Sexuality and other Moral Dangers Mrs. Larry Lamont announced today that a new survey on student sexuality revealed that all W&L students are virgins saving themselves for their marriage night.

"My hard work all these years has finally paid off," said Mrs. Lamont. "Students have seen the light and are abstaining."

Mrs. Lamont said most students said they hardly ever think about sex, never watch or read pornography, and report living very fulfilled lives.

Lamont also said, however, that 20 percent of the students said they had kissed someone on the first date and a handful said they had seen a member of the opposite sex in the nude.

"Hopefully these few students will understand the danger of being tempted into the pit of carnal desires, a life of hellfire and sexually-transmitted diseases," Mrs. Lamont said. "I just hope these at-risk students will come in for counselling."

Similar surveys at area women's colleges show that their students are sexually frustrated, and that some have resorted to travelling to Hampden-Sydney for the one-night stands they used to enjoy at W&L.

"I don't know when the W&L guys got so frigid, but they just don't want to do the wild thing any more," said Ima Slut, who attends a Buena Vista finishing school.

When told about the survey results, Pretty Boy Brian Shaw had just one comment.

"Bullshit."

Jury errs; student right

would ruin my reputation as a normal W&L student."

The prosecution presented several hours of testimony and evidence linking the EC member to the theft, but obviously it was all lies.

Dean of All the Perfect Students David L. Howison testified on behalf of the EC member during the trial.

"I've known [this student] since he came to W&L, and he has always seemed to be a fine, upstanding citizen," said

Howison. "I just don't see why should convict him solely on physical evidence. This is a travesty of justice."

To avoid any confusion, the Phi staff would like to make it perfectly clear that we all believe the EC member and have no faith whatsoever in the United States criminal justice system. Students can all trust each other and leave their doors unlocked all day and night, because everyone knows that bad things just don't happen at W&L.

We're all on your side, EC member!! Keep on smiling! ☺

Pepsico Chairman Les Makadeal, Pres. Wilson, and Col. Sanders' grandson, Ken Crispy, pose for a picture before the signing of the mock check of $10 to Washington and Lee. Crispy said he's already mouth-watering to cut the ribbon at the Lee Chapel-KFC museum.

of KFC founder Col. Sanders, who sold the chain to Pepsico. Pepsico officials hinted that Sanders was secretly related to Robert E. Lee. Wilson said such rumors make it doubly fitting that future KFC gifts be ushered with a change in a sacred W&L structure like Lee Chapel.

"Since the Colonnade is scheduled to be bulldozed in June to make way for the Watson Mausoleum, I mean Gallery, we thought Lee Chapel was the logical choice to take it on the chin this time," Wilson said.

W&L students applauded Wilson's every word, because God knows, the president of W&L can do no wrong.

"That old chapel has needed a little 'spicing up' for a long time anyway," chortled Wilson. He's so clever.

Wilson said the chapel's interior might be redesigned as well. For example, the first 100-gallon deep fryer Sanders ever used will be displayed in Lee's office, as will a shrine detailing the evolution of KFC's "Original Recipe," and a lock of Sanders' hair.

W&L Director of Truthful and Complete Information Brian Shaw said the modification to Lee Chapel is in no way a kickback to Pepsico.

"Tying together the issue of the red-and-white roof on Lee Chapel and the Pepsico donation is bullshit," Shaw said.

But of course no students made that connection anyway, because nothing ever happens behind closed doors at W&L. We all trust each other.

Shaw said the KFC lead may have sparked a rash of Pepsico donations, sighting discussion of a Taco Bell mezzanine in the Lenfest Center.

"We're just not sure theater crowds can handle the hot taco sauce," Shaw said. "Bullshit."

Way to go President Wilson!! We all love you! ☺

Will she croak?

By DASTARDLY DAMIEN
Phi Evil Doer

Mrs. Betty Bucks, donator of fine pottery, spiked a 102 degree fever and was admitted to the hospital yesterday.

Bucks, whose life has lingered longer than university officials expected, is supposed to croak this time, according to her doctor Elmer "Buddy" Fudd.

"She's old," said Dr. Fudd. "Old folks don't fight off fevers too well. This is it."

According to Fudd it's difficult to nail down just how much longer Bucks will continue to breath.

"It could be an hour, or it could be a week, but it can't be too long 'cause we need the extra beds," Fudd said.

When told about Bucks' recent health scare, W&L's great communicator Brian Shaw said "No shit!"

"The university has been looking forward to the day we would get all the Bucks stuff with bated breath," said Shaw. "I'm so thrilled I could weep."

President John D. Wilson also expressed positive feelings towards Bucks fast approaching doom.

"As soon as I heard, I called dining services and had them put 80 cases of champagne on ice," Wilson said. "As soon as the old girl drops dead I'm popping the first cork."

Wilson asserted that the champagne would be for everyone who has supported the plans for the Bucks estate.

"You think I'm going to share the champagne with all you scum who opposed my plans for the estate? No way," Wilson said. "Buy your own damn champagne, this is my party and I'll invite who I want to."

Wilson did pause a moment in his reverie to ponder how Bucks was holding up emotionally during the final ticks of her biological clock.

"The reaper will be knocking at Bucks' door any day now, I wonder if she's scared," Wilson asked. "Aww, what does it matter, I bet she thinks her old man'll be waiting for her on the other-side anyway."

Both Shaw and Wilson agree that Bucks' donation will do good things for W&L's reputation.

"U.S. News and World Reports can't ignore us now," Shaw said.

Wilson seems to think that

Bucks' death will raise even more money for W&L than she has donated.

"After she agreed to give us all her stuff, the faculty and administrators took out a betting pool for the day she would die," he said. "No one placed bets for the next three days, so if she goes soon W&L gets the money, and it's a fair sum of dough."

One professor seems to think she has a good chance at winning the money. French Professor Kathy Jo Koberstein put money on everyday of next week.

"I just had this really strong feeling," Koberstein said. "I'm sure if Mrs. Bucks knew a woman had a chance of winning a lot of money if she would just live a few more days, she would hang on."

Koberstein, however does not know where she stands with Wilson.

"I was against this whole Bucks Estate Plan in the beginning, but the trustees made me see the light, and then again I didn't really have a choice," she said. "I just hope Pres. Wilson knows I'm all for it now, and lets me have some of that champagne I've been hearing about. I'm sure it's better than that stuff they serve at the moose lodge."

Infirmery scraps AIDS teaching

Students just don't need it

By LONG D. SILVER
Phi Staff Reporter

The Washington and Lee Infirmery has scrapped all plans to educate students about AIDS, because everyone knows that those kinds of things just don't happen here.

"I confess that, when AIDS hysteria first came about, I was a bit nervous," said Dr. Jane Horton of the Infirmery. "Now, I realize W&L is too good to allow that kind of low-class disease. Why, if the virus were to attack someone here, it would just be thrown right out of the body."

Horton attributes this incredible ability to repel the HIV-virus to a rare antibody known as amazingus arrogantus. It is believed that the antibody is passed on to freshmen when they go through matriculation in September.

"For some reason, God has blessed these wonderful students with the superhuman power to defy all the laws of nature," Horton said.

Horton said that she was continuing her research, and that it is possible that W&L students are also immune from other common problems as well.

"It's possible that this is the beginning of some sort of master race. You lucky men and women may never have to face such ailments as heart disease, male pattern baldness or the heartbreak of psoriasis," Horton said. "Wouldn't that be wonderful?"

It sure would!!! ☺

Jury lies, says EC member stole

By H.V. TRULY
Phi Staff Reporter

A member of the Executive Committee was convicted Friday of breaking and entering and grand larceny, but since all W&L students are honest, moral people, it's obvious the Rockbridge County Circuit Court jury was wrong.

The sophomore EC member was sentenced to one year in the state penitentiary, but is eligible for parole in early August. The Phi is withholding his name in case he wants to run for EC again after his release.

The sophomore denied that his conviction would affect his ability to judge honor trials in the future.

"I just don't think it's relevant," he said. "In fact, it's none of anyone's business. How dare the Phi go snooping in public records like this!"

The jury found the EC member guilty of breaking into another W&L student's room and stealing a television and stereo. The victim, a junior, refused to comment on the crime.

"I really don't want anyone to know that I am a crime victim," said the junior. "I mean, what would people think if they knew my life wasn't perfect? It

Col. Sanders joins W&L family

By ILKITLIK THAT
Phi Financial Reporter

As a result of a generous promise of a $10 donation from the conglomeration Pepsico, Washington and Lee officials say they will slightly restructure Lee Chapel to honor the gift.

A Pepsico spokesman presented a giant, mock check, along with a bucket of Hot Wings, to highly esteemed W&L President John D. Wilson, at one of the scheduled global Capital Campaign stops.

Wilson said Pepsico hinted there might be more where that came from, but they didn't specify whether they meant money or Hot Wings.

"Regardless, we've decided to move the clock on top of Lee Chapel and replace it with that jaunty red and white Kentucky Fried Chicken roof."

Wilson said the gift actually stems from a forgotten clause in the will
