An Emergency Need

Washington and Lee is suddenly faced with a need for additional class-room space, a need that must be described as critical.

Alumni may recall that there has been no enlargement of our instructional facilities in the last seventeen years. From time to time, new courses have been offered—we think we have now a full and balanced curriculum—but routine arrangements were made.

A notable development of the immediate past is the addition of an ROTC. At its full scope, it will enlist about three-fourths of our students. The other boys have made varying responses to the military obligation that seems now to be a part of every healthy boy's planning. This excellent military unit has not only sustained our enrollment; it has given us a sense of fulfilling the large mission of preparing our boys for service to our country and our ideal, as they prepare for careers of greatness.

Our ROTC includes a large volume of curricular study as separate from mere exercises upon a parade ground. When the unit is in its full scope, it will comprehend, we estimate, about twenty-four sections, requiring seventy-two class room hours each week.

Some other features of our expanded program, for example, the instruction in fine arts now widely appreciated by our students, call for a specialized type of class-room facility. Mr. Morris Cafritz, father of a recent graduate, has promised $25,000 to meet this need.

It is not less than imperative that we have another class-room building. At this moment we are literally using attics and basements, and they are not enough. A picture of the new building accompanies this article. It will stand at the north end of the mall, matching the McCormick library.

For the new structure we shall need $300,000. A bit of quiet requesting on the part of the Trustee committee for the building (Trustees Chenery, Lykes, and McDonald) has brought us, in cash or valid pledges, about $100,000.

We do not purpose any kind of intensive solicitation of the general alumni group. We recall how graciously that group responded to the Bicentennial campaign just four years ago; and we are mindful, as I have said in another part of this magazine, of the incalculable help represented by the annual Alumni Fund.

I am, however, announcing this emergency that must be met. On behalf of the University officials, I invite aid from any alumnus, or any other friend, who can help us in this essential undertaking of the University.

New Plan To Attract Southern Students

Much of what is valuable in the Washington and Lee tradition derives from the fact that two-thirds of its students come from the South. Few would question that it is desirable to preserve that tradition, and the Southern representation in the student body which makes it possible.

In recent years the state institutions, with their lower fees, have attracted many Southern boys. As population and high school attendance have increased, many Southern students know of Washington and Lee only as one of many competing institutions, not as a college which makes its unique contribution.

The spread of attendance geographically and other difficulties make it impossible to present Washington and Lee as effectively as we should like at the College Days in the high school themselves. A plan was consequently devised this fall whereby there would be direct contact with promising students in at least some of the Southern centers.

The first week in December Dean Frank J. Gilliam made visits to Charlotte, North Carolina; Greenville, South Carolina; Atlanta, Georgia; and Birmingham, Alabama; on successive nights. In each city a meeting was set up that was definitely not an alumni meeting as such. A small nucleus of alumni formed a steering committee, and this group secured a list of from ten to fifteen high school seniors who would be regarded as excellent prospects for Washington and Lee if they decided to make application. Suggestions for the guest list came from alumni and their families; high school student advisers; and boys from the area currently attending Washington and Lee. In order that the boys would receive the main focus of attention, no more alumni attended the dinner than one alumnus to each boy, in some instances a smaller proportion of alumni.

After the dinner Dean Gilliam made a thirty-minute talk on Washington and Lee, directing the talk to the boys and not to the alumni. The Bicentennial movie was then shown.

The alumni attending in the different cities were as follows:

Charlotte: Herbert Woodward, '41, Philip Howerton, '25, George Wilkinson, '26, Jack Crist, Jr., '45; Greenville: Steve Stephenson, '40, Frank Morris, '25, Bill Stephenson, '49, Brad Dunson, '42, Andy White, '39; Atlanta: Hal

Clarke, '38, Red Schneider, '24, Tommy Schneider, '49, Alex Hitz, Jr., '42, Frank Carter, '49, Rodney Cook, '46; Birmingham: John Hendon, '24, Henry Johnston, '29, Ed Aull, '23, Bestor Brown, '30, Jim Hendrix, '26, Howard Leake, '24, Raleigh Jenkins, '24, Bill Ratliff, '47, Roy Hoffman, '50, and Bill Latture, '49.

It is too early to evaluate the plan in terms of applications from the boys who attended the dinners, but the general reaction to the idea has been enthusiastic, and the plan will undoubtedly be tried out in other cities.

After the account of the visit to the four cities named above had gone to press, dinner meetings were held on successive nights from January 12 to 15, at Montgomery, Mobile, Pensacola, and Jacksonville.

At Montgomery Philip Sellers, '43, was in charge, with the following alumni sponsoring the dinner: Fred Bear, '24, Carl Bear, '33, Russell Carter, '35, Withers Davis, '47, Bert Evans, '33, Jack Hobbie, '35, Charlie Hubbard, '48, T. B. Hubbard, '06, Luther McKinnon, '27, Ed Thompson, '49, Wm. A. Williamson, '33.

At Mobile, arrangements were headed by John Ladd, '32, with the following as sponsors: Robert Ba-

Placement Service Helps Graduates

Frank McCormick (left) and John Williamson, '53, being interviewed by Mr. R. B. Pearsons of the Personnel Staff of Proctor and Gamble on December 9, 1952.

Need a job? Are you coming out of the service and in need of help in obtaining a position? Do you wish to change positions? Do you need information, help of any sort pertaining to firms and possible positions?

The Washington and Lee University Counseling and Placement Service is attempting to extend its scope to include the alumni of the University. Operating as a clearing agency between business firms which desire college trained personnel and Washington and Lee graduates, both experienced and inexperienced, the service attempts to aid both parties.

The Placement Bureau will recommend qualified graduates to business firms who send requests to the University for personnel, and also inform business firms on the availability of properly qualified graduates who desire employment.

Founded in February 1947 under the direction of Psychology Professor William M. Hinton, '29, the department has steadily increased in size and capacity to help. James D. Farrar, '49, Assistant Dean of Students, has recently replaced Dr. Hinton as department head. The service has been partially sustained by funds ear-marked for its purpose by alumni contributing to the University.

The opportunity to assist alumni desirous of obtaining positions is a result of the tremendous influx of firms to college campuses looking for trained graduates. Experts say the demand is higher now than it has been at any time since World War II. The firms are finding that most of the graduates are going directly into the service, and as a result the alumni files are being used more extensively than ever before.

To maintain its function the placement service yearly sends statements to about 300 firms concerning the number of prospective graduates of the University and their respective fields of interest. Those who reply or who otherwise signify real interest are sent University catalogues.

Such firms as Armstrong Cork, Berkshire Life Insurance Company, Brown and Williamson Tobacco Corporation, Chase National Bank of New York, Dan River

Mills, Eastman Kodak, Connecticut General Life Insurance, Gulf Oil Corporation, Industrial Rayon Corp., Kopper's Company, Inc., and many others have been interested in Washington and Lee graduates in the last few years. The service maintains a large file of business firms who are interested in college graduates. Information on chances for advancement, methods of operation, nature of products, etc., are available from the file.

Similarly, the office maintains a comprehensive filing list of graduates which includes interests, abilities, personal information, etc. Those alumni who have graduated since the inauguration of the placement service and made application to that office while in school will still have that information on file.

During the year the placement service receives requests by letter, telephone, or personal visit from employers for recommendations of graduates for specific positions. In such cases the placement director selects the graduates from the placement registration records on the basis of their qualifications and experience, recommends to the employer, and arranges for personal interviews.

However, the graduate must complete the final step in the employment procedure by convincing the prospective employer that he has the necessary qualifications and interest to be of sufficient service to the employer to warrant his being on the payroll.

The firms represented are essentially sales personnel, looking for people to be trained for particular positions. The office works side by side with the other departments in school such as journalism, law and

Have You "Seen" Our Publicity?

There's a saying around the campus that if you don't know what to do with him, just send him over to the News Bureau.

That's the principal reason why so many visiting newspaper and radio people, calendar and novelty agents, Yankees looking for Confederate flags, and lovely old ladies hoping for a conducted tour of the grounds usually end up at our pristine quarters in old Reid Hall.

Despite this constant flow of interruptions, the News Bureau manages to grind out an amazing quantity of news releases from its favorite antique mimeograph machine. (It works, doesn't it?) After all, our sole purpose in life is to get a "good press" for Washington and Lee.

Sometimes this "good press" fixation means working past 4 p.m. when most of the administrative personnel checks out for home and old Southern comfort. Most of the faculty has disappeared, too, and the students, if not drilling with the ROTC, have joined the 4 o'clock show team.

Sometimes it means working all night.

Take for instance a blustery Spring dawn. The time is 5 a.m. Thursday. A television camera stands in the grassy circle outside Doremus Gymnasium. Huddled around the big box with legs are a CBS cameraman, a producer, and the director of the University News Bureau in his thin, ragged coat. Everyone had run out of cigarettes long ago.

On Monday before, two dozen newspaper and radio reporters had descended on the campus to cover the two-day Mock Republican Convention. Up in New York, Ed Murrow dispatched a camera crew to film the event for his Sunday afternoon "See It Now" television show. For two days, "Little Chicago" bustled with make-believe politicians, campaign parades, and a maze of telephone and radio lines. A haze of cigar smoke hung over the valley floor like a swirling fog.

By the NEWS BUREAU

Wednesday came—a half million words and a hundred pictures later. With Eisenhower nominated and the reporters gone, eleven hundred weary Minks began drifting away for a "long weekend." In New York, Ed Murrow was viewing rushes of the film, just in by plane from Roanoke.

We can't quote Murrow exactly. But it must have gone something like this: "Zounds, men, terrific! Gotta make it the feature of my Sunday production! Send the crew back for background shots!"

At 6 p.m. Wednesday, Murrow alerted the News Bureau by telephone. "Call back the Convention chairman, the roll clerk, the lad who had nominated Eisenhower, and other important figures! Hold the decorations in the gym! Gotta get closeups and background for atmosphere!"

The Bureau went to work. The Convention chairman was found after 34 telephone calls in Buena Vista at the home of a man he had met casually for the first time only an hour before. The roll clerk was in Maryland, driving to Connecticut to see his girl. Located at the home of an uncle, he promised to drive back to Lexington after CBS proposed flying him to Connecticut and return after the closeups were filmed.

Shortly after midnight, the camera crew arrived. Thousand watt lights blazed against the famous colonnade while outside shots of "smoke-filled" caucus rooms were taken. Behind drawn shades in a classroom, the News Bureau staff puffed furiously on cigarettes and cigars, casting shadows on the window shades for "atmosphere."

At dawn, the group moved over to the gym to catch an outside "night" view of Convention Hall. A janitor was aroused to turn on the lights. As soon as the first rays of the sun were strong enough to outline the structure, the film was exposed.

At 8:30, closeups of Convention officials were filmed inside the gym. Take after take was made as the sound man tried to recapture the acoustics of the original roll-call. All the while, 300 goggle-eyed ladies gathered for a District Home Demonstration meeting graciously postponed the opening of their session.

At 10 a.m. the film was rushed to Roanoke and put on a plane for New York.

At 11 a.m. the vanguard of 700 high school youngsters from 13 Southern States arrived for the 23rd annual Southern Interscholastic Press Association convention.

At noon, the News Bureau staff retired for lunch.

Fortunately, every week isn't as nerve-wracking. Normally, the work of the News Bureau falls into two broad groups. The first concerns outsiders asking for information about the University. These include newspaper and magazine writers, agencies making regional or nation-wide surveys, and high school youngsters requesting biographies of Washington or Lee for English themes.

The second category is routine publicity work—the dissemination of news about the University, the faculty, and the students to newspapers and magazines. Taking a closer look we find:

1. News of University affairs—such as registration, convocations, public speakers, faculty promotions and achievement, gifts, and new courses.

2. News of Student Affairs—such as dances, elections, and sports (handled separately by the Director of Sports Publicity).

3. Hometown News—This is the least known but probably the most important phase of the News Bureau's work. While stories about honor rolls, dean's lists, initiations, and so on, are sent out as general releases to regional newspapers, individual stories are mailed to Hometown newspapers. If Joe Blow, as we like to call him, is elected Vice-President of his class, his Hometown newspaper gets a story and, if possible, a picture.

The News Bureau operates on the principle that all "news is local news"; that mothers and fathers and their friends are more interested in Joe than in general university news. In the course of a single year, close to one thousand Hometown stories are mailed to weekly and daily newspapers. This kind of publicity wears out a lot of typewriter ribbon. It's the kind of job that is never done.

One difficulty, however, is that the Bureau seldom sees these hometowners in print. Although editors always beg for them, they usually forget to send us a clipping. Alumni could perform a real morale-boosting service if they'd clip and mail to us any Washington and Lee item they come across.

Placement Service

history, but doesn't do as much of the actual placement. That is left up to the individual departments. However, those students or alumni interested in those fields may contact the placement service which will then work with the particular department concerned in placing the interested individual.

Starting salaries for those aided by the service average $300 a month. They are essentially training salaries with a good chance for advancement. One exceptionally capable graduate received $450 per month as a starting salary. Every man who truly wanted to be helped has been placed by the office.

Any alumnus wishing information on job possibilities, or interested in changing positions, or wishing to be put on record should future possibilities present themselves, is invited to contact the placement office by mail or person. Dr. Hinton and Farrar repeat that they are swamped with requests from firms throughout the country for information on Washington and Lee alumni who would fit into their various needs.

"It is our wish to fill all these positions with our men," Dr. Hinton says, "but we need to know what alumni are interested."

Graduates may be certain that a complete record of their qualifications may be given their employer. Where aptitude tests and interest inventories are desired a complete battery is available for administering. Interviews for students and alumni are often arranged on the campus, and can be arranged in the proper office of the interested firm.

Alumni writing the office are urged to give information on the type of job they are seeking, the particular organization with which they wish to affiliate, the location they desire, and the individual qualifications. The placement office reminds all that they cannot be responsible for obtaining the job, they merely act as a liaison. They will, if desired, do the actual contact work with the organization, but the final work is up to the alumnus.

Alumni are also urged to help future graduates and fellow classmates by informing the office of possible firm openings and organizations which might be interested in Washington and Lee men.

(The office is located in Newcomb Hall 22. Office hours are from 8:30 to 4:00 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 8:30 to 1:00 p.m. on Saturday.)

The first annual meeting of the Washington and Lee Law Alumni Association will be held Tuesday, April 28 at 4:00 p.m. in Tucker Hall.

ALUMNI FUND
for 1952

A Message from President Gaines

Once more I have the happy privilege of thanking thousands of alumni in a general way—I wish I could make it more personal—for a generous and an inspiring support.

The statistics of this statement will suggest to you that alumni have given to us what is the rough equivalent of income for one year upon a million dollars. It could not have been the same successful, happy institution without this support.

In my own heart there is something written that is even more important. It was recorded adequately by the author of the epistle to the Hebrews: "Seeing that we are encompassed with so great a cloud of witnesses. . . . we run with patience the race that is set before us."

From Florida to California, from Maine to Louisiana, these witnesses, far removed by geography but close to us in dedicated purpose, have sacrificed, have shared with us their earnings in life, that the ancient, honorable endeavor may continue.

They have joined themselves with George Washington and Robert E. Lee in making the focus of their allegiance this college in the Valley, this prophecy of tomorrow. Sitting in General Lee's home to write these brief lines, I can only pray that we sustain here an institution worthy of the great heritage of long centuries, worthy of the sympathetic support of 1952.

Gratefully yours,

Francis Preston Jones
President

To the Members of the Washington and Lee University Alumni, Incorporated

It is a distinct honor to serve as your President, and my appreciation of the honor is sincere.

This is a democratic organization. Each graduate of the University and each former student who attended one full term or semester and who honorably left the University is an active member. No dues are required to qualify for or to maintain membership.

Its chief purpose in the language of its charter is "to keep the bond between Washington and Lee University and her alumni close and continuous." The governing body is a board of seven trustees which has rather complete authority. Two or three trustees are elected each year for three-year terms at the annual meeting of the members during Finals week. You will note in this issue information about the Nominating Committee which will report at the next meeting of the members on June 4, 1953. I urge you to come to this meeting if you conveniently can.

Cy Young and his staff and the class agents produced excellent results for the Alumni Fund in 1952. Both the number of contributors and the total amount received in any prior year were exceeded in 1952. Our active interest in Washington and Lee can easily be shown by replying to our class agent's letter each spring and by sending a contribution to the Alumni Fund each year. I hope that more of you will do this in 1953 than ever before. The University needs your active interest and your support. After the budgeted expenses of this organization are met, the net amount of the contributions is turned over to the University Board of Trustees to use for such purposes as they determine best for the University.

May each one of you resolve to keep the bond between you and the University close and continuous. Take an active interest in this organization and in your local alumni association where one is near you. Visit the campus whenever you can, and contribute what you conveniently can give each year to the Alumni Fund.

Yours sincerely,

Report of the 1952 Alumni Fund

By CY YOUNG
Alumni Secretary

Our annual Alumni Fund is one of the most significant elements in Washington and Lee's financial operations. Each year the proceeds of this Annual Giving program become part of an expendable fund used to meet the most urgent needs in the discretion of the University Trustees—and the Alumni Fund has assumed the vital role of making it possible for Washington and Lee to maintain and improve her standards of education.

For the 20th consecutive year the Alumni Fund has topped the previous year's record and broke into "new high ground." And, for the first time (in 1952), we have gone beyond the 2,000-mark in the number of contributors. This is encouraging but represents only 20% of our list of approximately 11,000 alumni. Our percentage of alumni participation is recognizably inadequate, especially when we consider comparable schools (Princeton, Bowdoin, Amherst, Williams) average 50%-and-better participation in Annual Giving. And, further, when we consider that in the past 20 years, 5,585 alumni have contributed to our Fund at one time or another.

The Class Agent is the backbone of the Alumni Fund, and its success will always be in direct ratio to his loyalty, ingenuity, and perseverance. In an undertaking so vast and participated in by so many it is indeed difficult to single out individual accomplishments but I would like to pay special tribute to some of our Agents who established new records.

Under the leadership of Donald K. Crawford, '33-L, 88% of the Class responded. This is a new percentage high and has eclipsed all other records. (Dare we imagine what would happen if 80% of the entire alumni list responded? When 20% in '52 contributed almost $45,000?)

Headed by Class Agent Paul Murphy, 1914-A was again the "Dollars" leader ($2,662.00), as well as percentage leader among the Academic classes. Charlie Gilmore, '39-A Agent, placed his Class on top in contribution "Numbers," 69.

Other special mention should go to Earl Rose, '16-L—68% of his Class responded; and Lawton Calhoun, '31-A, runner-up for "Dollars" leader, ($2,549.00).

Without listing them all here, there were 44 classes which broke all previous records for money received in a single year; and 21 classes had their best year in the number of contributors.

We want to express our heartfelt thanks to each of last year's 86 Class Agents—as well as to all who have served in this capacity in the years before—for the unstinted support given in our Alumni Fund effort.

* * *

Thinking ahead now to the 1953 Fund, to begin in April, here are some questions every alumnus should ask himself:

1. Is my name on the roster of contributors for 1952?

2. Will it surely be there this year?

3. Was my contribution what it should have been? Will my 1953 gift be thoughtfully made and proportionate to my ability to give?

* * *

The Alumni Fund is filling a crucial area in the University financial picture. It must continue to do so if we want to preserve for our sons, and their sons, all that is good in Washington and Lee. Let us remember that it has been said that we never stop paying for our education—and that we never stop using it, either!

* * *

During the month of April you will be receiving your Class Agent's annual letter. His job is not an easy one. I hope you will answer him promptly.

Chapter Meetings

NEW YORK

The New York alumni held their annual dinner meeting at the University Club on November 21, 1952, with Rayford W. Alley, '10, president of the chapter, presiding. Dr. Lewis A. Adams, Dean of the School of Commerce, represented the University and was the principal speaker of the evening.

The following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year: Stuard Wurzbarger, '28, President; and Vice-Presidents, Richard Sandstrom, '41, New York City; William F. Saunders, '40, New Jersey; Clark B. Winter, '37, Long Island; Leonard T. Brown, '19, Connecticut; W. L. Webster, '28, Upstate New York.

LYNCHBURG

The Lynchburg alumni held their mid-winter meeting at the Boonsboro Country Club on January 28, with a social hour preceding dinner, and Ed Schaefer, '42, presiding. R. A. Smith, Athletic Director, Cy Young, Alumni Secretary, and Tom Lothery, of the faculty, represented the University.

The only business scheduled for the meeting was the reports of committees and election of the following officers for the coming year: J. C. Holloran, Jr., '46, President; Elliot Schewel, '45, Vice-President, and C. Lynch Christian, Jr., '44, Secretary-Treasurer.

A football film of the Washington and Lee-VPI game was shown by Mr. Lothery and enjoyed by all present.

NEW ORLEANS

The New Orleans alumni chapter held its annual dinner meeting on January 19, with twenty-five alumni and their guests present. Preceding the dinner a social hour was held. Among the out-of-town guests was Mrs. Kaplan, from Louisville, Kentucky, mother of five Washington and Lee alumni. One son, Dr. Murrell Kaplan, '30, lives in New Orleans. The film of the Washington and Lee-VPI football game, which was shown during the evening, was greatly enjoyed by everyone present.

Charles L. (Pie) Dufour was the principal speaker. He is a columnist for the States newspaper and is a local historian and editorial writer. His father, Albert John Dufour, was a graduate (LL.B. '81) of Washington and Lee.

A New Plan

con, '29, Jack Campbell, '41, J. R. Mighell, Jr., '13, J. H. Mighell, III, '40, Guy Oswalt, '40, Ogden Shropshire, '24, Banky Taylor, '32.

Frontis Sherrill, '28, was in charge at Pensacola, with the dinner sponsored by the following alumni: Duncan McDavid, '35, Churchill Mellen, '28, Bill Noonan, '43, Bill Rosasco, '51, John Sherrill, '39, Ted Shoemaker, '55, Dick Turner, '42, Guy Yaste, '45, and Henry Yonge, '42.

At Jacksonville Dick Foerster was chairman, with the following alumni attending the dinner: Jack Ball, '35, Bob Cleveland, '35, Jimmy Cranford, '22, Robert L. Hutchinson, '12, Rhydon Latham, '28, Lee Powell, '50, Charlie Smith, '35, Damon Yerkes, '50, and Russell Frink, '10.

Tom Sugrue, '29, Passes On

THOMAS SUGRUE, B.A. '29, M.A. '30, honorary degree, Litt.D. '49, Phi Beta Kappa, honorary fraternity, and Phi Kappa Psi, social fraternity, died January 6, 1953, in a New York Hospital, of complications following an operation. He lived at 56 E. 80th Street, New York, New York.

After leaving school Mr. Sugrue returned to his home in Naugatuck, Conn., worked a year on the staff of the The Naugatuck Daily News, and then became a member of the city staff of The New York Herald Tribune. In the next three years he also wrote magazine articles, including a profile for The New Yorker on Cardinal Hayes. His work caught the eye of Sumner Blossom, editor of The American magazine and from 1934 to 1936 Mr. Sugrue was on the staff of that magazine, contributing articles from various parts of the United States and from Europe, the Near East, Cuba, Mexico and Hawaii.

In 1937 Mr. Sugrue was stricken with a crippling disease, the nature of which remained obscure. He never walked again but got about in a wheel chair. At this time he became interested in the phenomenal Edgar Cayce who, it was said, could diagnose while in a trance the ailments of persons at great distances from him and advise them as to the proper procedure. Mr. Cayce was instrumental in helping Mr. Sugrue to live with his ailment. In 1943 he wrote There Is a River: The Story of Edgar Cayce. Mr. Cayce, the mystical diagnostician, and Mr. Sugrue had been neighbors at Virginia Beach from 1939 to 1941. Mr. Cayce died in 1945.

Limited to an hour a day at the typewriter, Mr. Sugrue could compose and edit in his mind 1,000 words of copy and then write it within the time allotted. In quick succession he wrote and published Starling of the White House, in collaboration with Edmund William Starling, Secret Service Agent, who was for thirty years a member of the permanent staff of the White House, a book which told of the vigil kept over five presidents. Following this he published We Call it Music, in collaboration with Eddie Condon, a book on the development and significance of jazz; an autobiography, Stranger in the Earth: the Story of a Search, covering his long period of hospitalization. He went to Israel in his wheel chair in 1949 to study the Jews and the development of their homeland, where he stayed for five months and then wrote Watch for the Morning, published in 1950. In 1952 he published A Catholic Speaks His Mind, a controversial book which has received much publicity. Mr. Sugrue, while saying he was eager to have his church take the lead in a unified religious movement in the United States, was of the opinion that it had been somewhat limited in its views as had also the Protestants and Jews.

Quoting from an editorial in the New York Times, January 8, of which he had been a staff member—"Tom Sugrue leaves behind him many books and many memories, but perhaps none so everlasting as the story of a man to whom tragedy and even disaster were only a spur to greater achievement."

Mr. Sugrue married Miss Mary Margaret Ganey in 1935. Also surviving are a daughter, Patricia, and a brother Francis Sugrue, '40, and a sister, Mrs. Margaret Hall.

The Tucker Lectures, 1949-1952, Published

The John Randolph Tucker Lectures, 1949-1952, $3.00 a copy. Order from: School of Law, Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia.

The first volume of The John Randolph Tucker Lectures, including the four annual series delivered before the School of Law in the period 1949 to 1952, has been published by the University. This volume may be ordered directly from the Law School at $3.00 a copy, and contains the following series:

1949—"John Randolph Tucker: The Man and His Work," by John W. Davis, of the New York Bar; 1950—"Forensic Persuasion," by Arthur T. Vanderbilt, Chief Justice, Supreme Court of Appeals of New Jersey; 1951—"The Significance of the Nurnberg Trials in Establishing a World Order Based on Law," by John J. Parker, Chief Judge, United States Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit; 1952—"Changing Aspects of Freedom," by John Lord O'Brian, of the Washington, D. C., Bar.

The John Randolph Tucker Lectures were established by the Board of Trustees of the University, and were inaugurated by the Honorable John W. Davis, who delivered the initial series in 1949 as a part of the Bicentennial Celebration of the of the University, and the Centennial Celebration of the School of Law.

The 1953 Lectures will be delivered by the Honorable Joseph C. Hutcheson, Jr., of Houston, Texas, Chief of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Judicial Circuit, on April 28 and 29. The subject of Judge Hutcheson's series of three lectures will be: "Law and Liberty Reconciled, the Principle and Paradox of a Free Society—the Spirit of Its Laws."

While the Lectures are primarily for the Law School, they are attended by interested students and faculty from the College, and all of the Lectures have been on topics of general interest to alumni and friends of the school. It is hoped that alumni will consider this a worthwhile occasion on which to visit the campus.

Revised Chemistry Text Written by Dr. Desha

The Chemistry of the Compounds of Carbon. LUCIUS JUNIUS DESHA, Professor of Chemistry, Washington and Lee University. New Second Edition. McGraw-Hill Book Company, New York, 1952. 595 pages. Price $6.50.

The field of organic chemistry, as its name indicates, had its origin in the study of substances supposedly derived from life processes. When this artificial distinction was broken down about a century ago, the demonstration that many of the products and constituents of living organisms could be duplicated in the chemical laboratory led the organic chemist to a field day in the art of organic synthesis of the compounds of carbon. Today the volumes of Beilstein that merely list these compounds with the minimum of properties necessary for their identification number more than 65, occupy many feet of library shelves, and describe briefly more than half a million compounds.

To make a logical selection from this vast array of material that would be suitable to introduce the subject to the student in a one-year course of organic chemistry is no mean task. The skill with which this has been accomplished by Prof. Desha will bear some closer analysis from the didactic point of view. The principles which guided Prof. Desha were several, adequately comprehensive. He sought an order of presentation that would not only be logical in developing the subject at hand, but would at the same time lead the student to an insight into the basic principles of science and of general chemistry. The clarity with which the author has accomplished this is aided in no small degree by the excellence of the figures and drawings in which the text abounds.

Interspersed with the development of the structure and character of organic compounds are chapters on their application in technology and therapy. For example, the chapters on the chemistry of the hydrocarbons are followed by one on the products of petroleum and coal giving their properties, abundance and numerous applications. A chapter on color, dyes and dyeing is introduced in appropriate sequence with explanation of the physical and chemical concepts involved.

A chapter entitled "Organic Chemistry and Life" suitably treats such subjects of perennial interest as food, enzymes, fermentation, vitamins, and introduces the modern newcomers, hormones and antibiotics.

In this thoroughly and soundly revised Second Edition, the author has amply demonstrated that in the intervening sixteen years since the appearance of the First Edition, he has kept abreast of the remarkable developments in theory, technique and application of organic chemistry. His years of experience have enabled him to develop and apply a stimulating philosophy in his teaching, reflected in the present text which crowns his efforts in the field to which he has devoted himself. He is not content to present bare facts, but relates them to the underlying causes and reasons in an interlocking framework of theory and observation. This method not only enlists the student's desire but gives him a mnemonic system into which new facts and relationships can be readily introduced and retained.

Of course the use of this text book will be extended far beyond the lecture halls of Washington and Lee. The students of many other institutions will supplement their first lectures in organic chemistry through perusal of its pages and will profit from the excellence of its style and the clarity of its logical presentation. As an alumnus of Washington and Lee and former student of that master of inorganic chemistry, James Lewis Howe, I hope it is not inappropriate for me to congratulate the students of Washington and Lee on their association with Prof. Desha and the opportunity to sit under his inspiring tutelage.

From this review I should not omit an apology. It has been a pleasure to read Prof. Desha's text, to review my inadequate knowledge of organic chemistry and to learn some of the newer facts unknown to me as a physical chemist. Doubtless appreciation of Prof. Desha's accomplishment could and will be better expressed in other publications by more informed colleagues. To me, an outsider, organic chemistry appears as a great tidal wave of science which extends its powerful influence to many fields of human interest and endeavor. Its vastness is stupendous, its new creations have no limits. For the organic chemist is also an architect and builder. If a compound in its existing form does not fit a given need, medical or technological, he adds or removes components until the right structure is found. Merely the volume of his productivity at times threatens to flood the chemical literature. To bridle this force, to keep it within bounds of human comprehension and of useful application is primarily the responsibility of its teachers and their texts. Prof. Desha's Organic Chemistry will be a stalwart pillar of that undertaking.

Jim Lowry, '29

Jim Lowry, B.S. '29 With Bell Telephone

JIM LOWRY, B.S. '29, in Civil Engineering has had nineteen years of experience in the Engineering Department of the Bell Telephone Company in the Western Area. He started as an engineering assistant in the Buildings Section, working on planning and designing of Telephone Company buildings. His service with the Company was interrupted by World War II, from 1942 to 1945. He served his country with great distinction in the United States Naval Civil Engineering Corps, generally known as the "Sea Bees." While in the service, he was given command of a company in a Construction Battalion, during which period he led a reconnaissance in force on an enemy held island in the Pacific. The completion of this mission, in the face of an attack by a Japanese patrol and return to their ship through heavy seas, won for Jim the Silver Star Medal and the Navy's commendation. He spent approximately twenty months in the South Pacific Area and later attained the rank of Lieutenant Commander.

Jim returned to the Bell Telephone Company late in 1945 and in 1947 was promoted to Senior Staff Engineer handling building inspection matters for the Company. In this connection he has had many contacts with architects and contractors who have a high opinion of his knowledge and integrity.

In 1952, he was promoted to a higher level of management with the title of Buildings Engineer.

While at Washington and Lee Jim was a member of Sigma Nu, played Varsity basketball, '26, '27 and '28—Captain in '28. Address: 779 Shady Drive East, Pittsburgh 16, Pennsylvania.

History of Rockbridge County Published

The late Dr. Edmund Pendleton Tompkins, '88, is the author of Rockbridge County Virginia: An Informal History, now being sold under the auspices of the Rockbridge Historical Society.

The book, which was authorized before Dr. Tompkins' death in the spring, and completed this fall, tells the story of Rockbridge County from the time when it was a part of Borden's Grant to the twentieth century. In addition to political and military history, the volume contains accounts of society, personalities, and legends of one of the most famous of all American counties.

The work was edited and compiled by Dr. Marshall W. Fishwick, Assistant Professor of American Studies at Washington and Lee University.

Ed Moyler, Jr., received his commission in the U. S. Coast Guard last November, and since then has been stationed on a ship in Norfolk, Virginia. He spent a good part of last winter up and around Greenland and Labrador, and reports that the winds that swept off House Mountain seem like tropical zephyrs compared to the cold up there. Ed expects to return to Washington and Lee and finish in the Law School. Home address: 307 Clay Street, Franklin, Virginia.

Dr. Reid White, '19, Succumbs

DR. REID WHITE, JR., '19, died in Memorial Hospital in New York on Thursday afternoon, November 29, 1952, after an illness of six months. He was born in Lexington, Virginia, October 8, 1900, in the home of his great grandfather, Col. Samuel McDowell Reid, which continued to be his home until his death. His grandfather was James Jones White, professor of Greek at Washington and Lee, 1852-1894, and his father, Dr. Reid White, Sr., '87, was university physician for many years. Dr. White's roots went deep into the history and tradition of Rockbridge County and Washington and Lee University, leaving Lexington only for his medical training and war service.

After attending the Lexington public schools, Dr. White entered Washington and Lee University in the fall of 1916, and completed the academic course in three years, graduating in 1919. After working for several years, he matriculated at the University of Pennsylvania, from which he graduated with the degree of Medicine in 1926. He continued his internship in Philadelphia at the Pennsylvania Hospital, and in 1928 returned to Lexington to engage in the practice of medicine with his father. After his father's death on November 29, 1931, he practiced alone.

Dr. White became Washington and Lee University physician in 1932, and continued as such until ill health forced his retirement last summer. Although he devoted more and more time to his medical work at college, he continued to do a general practice among his many patients in Lexington and Rockbridge County.

His work at the University was interrupted for the duration of World War II. Almost immediately after Pearl Harbor he volunteered for service and was commissioned a Captain in the Medical Corps and went overseas to the South Pacific with the 52nd Evacuation Hospital Unit, participating in the New Guinea Campaign, where he served from January 1942 to December 1944. From that time until he was separated from the service with rank of lieutenant-colonel in 1946, he was at Camp Lee. He was a member of the Washington and Lee Alumni Association board of trustees for several years and for a time its treasurer. He took great interest in the manifold activities of both students and faculty at the university. In addition to his busy practice he took time to give his attention and support to many institutions in Lexington.

Dr. White was married August 28, 1930, to Miss Alice Martin Miller of Montclair, New Jersey, who survives him with two children, Miss Edith Canning White, a student at Smith College, and Reid White, II, now attending Episcopal High School, Alexandria, Virginia.
