On the Cover: They came in a bus, these Boy Scouts, to visit Lee Chapel and its museum. Many had cameras and photographed their comrades as they trooped into the famous shrine. This is a scene repeated many times throughout the year, but particularly in the summer when thousands of tourists visit the campus. The pictures on the first four pages of this issue of W&L are a sampler of the tourist atmosphere during the summer months. Photographs by Robert Lockhart.
When summer comes to W&L, so do tourists—and welcome!

Summertime is visiting time, and Washington and Lee gets its full share of tourists. They come in pairs; they come in families of three, four, five, six or more; they often come by the busful. They come by the thousands over a period of months, attracted by a historic campus of sylvan beauty and peace. Lee Chapel, the burial place of Robert E. Lee—his shrine, really—is the principal tourist mecca. But visitors are likely to stroll elsewhere, sampling the charm of the Colonnade, reading a plaque here and there, pausing for a look around the foyer of Washington Hall, circling around the back campus, or just sitting for a few moments on a bench in the shade of an ancient campus tree. Nearly all have cameras, and Washington and Lee is surely one of the most photographed campuses in the country. Visitors to Washington and Lee are ever welcome. And they may be expected in greater numbers since the campus has been designated a National Historic Landmark. The photographs on these pages attempt to capture a bit of the tourist scene at Washington and Lee.

National Historic Landmark Ceremony

The ceremony designating Washington and Lee’s campus a National Historic Landmark will be held at 4:30 p.m., Friday, October 12, 1973, on the Front Campus. The ceremony is, of course, open to all alumni and friends.

The statue of Cyrus McCormick on the Front Campus is often believed to be one of Robert E. Lee until close inspection reveals otherwise. These three visitors by moving in close learn the facts.
The famous Recumbent Statue of Lee by the sculptor, Edward Valentine, is a prime attraction in Lee Chapel. The boy with the camera will have a picture of the statue for the family album.

A stroll down the sun-spangled Colonnade offers tourists an opportunity to experience the daily pleasure of W&L students.

Standing under the ivy-clad tree in front of Lee Chapel, a visitor aims his camera at the buildings on the Hill—an irresistible scene for photographers.
Anyone familiar with the campus is likely to become a guide. Here Mrs. William J. Watt, wife of the dean of the College, gives helpful directions to a group of visitors.

Across the grass and under the spreading trees a trio of visitors make their way toward Lee Chapel, creating a scene that has the quality of pastoral peace.

Buses are often parked on Letcher Avenue near Lee Chapel while the passengers—school children or members of organized tours—make the rounds of the Washington and Lee campus.
The Lee Chapel visitor's book records several generations of those who have come to pay their respects to the great military and educational leader. And here is one of the newest generation to come.

Old George, the statue atop Washington Hall, is a photographer's delight as this cameraman like thousands before him demonstrates.

It happens that some tourists arrive when Lee Chapel is closed to the public. But a peek through the windows is better than nothing.

With their visit to Lee Chapel and tour of the campus behind them, these four ladies make their way back to the parking lot beneath a leafy bower.
The racing silks of The Meadow: color them W&L blue and white

When you watched the Derby and the Belmont and the Preakness this year—and then the big Secretariat/Riva Ridge invitational Sept. 15—did something seem vaguely familiar about the star performers?

It should have. Their racing silks are Washington and Lee blue and white.

The late Christopher T. Chenery designated the colors of his alma mater to symbolize his stable—The Meadow, which he founded in 1936. Chenery, who died last Jan. 3, was a 1909 engineering graduate of the University and served as a Trustee from 1950 until his retirement in 1970. His dedication to W&L has long standing: he was largely responsible for the success of the 1949 University Bicentennial, and he was chairman of the 1958-60 fund-raising program for new science facilities and the renovation of Reid Hall.

He was a utilities magnate by profession—founder and president of Federal Water & Gas Corp., board chairman of Southern Natural Gas, president or chairman of seven smaller utilities, and a director of seven others—but his passion was for horse-racing. The Meadow bred Riva Ridge, last year's Kentucky Derby winner, and Secretariat, the first Triple Crown winner in a quarter-century. And, like Hildene and Cicada and First Landing and Hill Prince and all the other Meadow standouts before them, they raced in the colors of the Generals—for Washington and Lee was another of Chenery's loves.

Alumni Fund sets new highs; Thomas assumes chairmanship

The 1972-73 Alumni Fund was the best in history, setting new highs for most dollars contributed, largest number of contributors, and highest percentage of participation.

At the close of the fund year on June 30, these achievements were recorded:

- $411,074 in net contributions. This was a 10.46% increase over last year's record-setting net total of $372,133. It exceeded the 1972-73 fund goal of $400,000 by $11,074.

- 4,531 contributors. This was 245 more contributors than the previous high of 4,286 donors recorded in 1969-70.

- 36.5% participation. This compares with the previous high of 36.3% set in 1966-67. It was a healthy jump over last year's 32.7%.

The success of the 1972-73 fund may be attributed to the plain hard work of the many Class Agents who set their own goals, wrote and reproduced their own letters to classmates, and conducted extensive telephone follow-ups. Much credit is due also to the vigorous leadership of James H. Bierer, '40, chairman of the Alumni Fund, and his vice chairmen, Herbert G. Jahncke, '30; Calvert Thomas, '38; Oliver M. Mendell, '50; and John S. Stump, III, '57L.

Bierer was chairman for two years, and in each of those years, the fund set records for dollars contributed and showed improvements in the number of donors and percentage of participation. In the two years before his chairmanship, 1969-70 and 1970-71, the fund failed to meet its dollar goals, and in 1970-71, the percentage of participation fell to its lowest point in 10 years. The overall dollar increase under Bierer's leadership was 36%-411,074 in 1972-73 compared to $392,074 in 1970-71. One of Bierer's most-emphasized objectives was to raise the percentage of participation, and during his chairmanship participation rose from 32.4% in 1970-71 to an all-time high of 36.5% in 1972-73.

Increased giving through the Alumni Fund was stimulated in 1971-72 by the $100,000 challenge gift of an anonymous alumnus and the establishment of the Colonnade Club to recognize donors of $100-$999. The 1972-73 fund was helped by keen competition for the Richmond Trophy which is awarded annually to the academic class, graduated within the past 50 years, which achieves the highest participation in the Alumni Fund.

The 1972-73 winner of the Richmond Trophy was the Class of 1958 with a participation of 49.6%. The 1958 Class of 1928 with a participation of 49.6%.

Washington and Bierer Trophies Are Established

Two new trophies—the Washington Trophy and the Bierer Trophy—have been established to recognize outstanding participation in the Washington and Lee Alumni Fund. These trophies, along with the Richmond Trophy, which was established in 1972, are designed to stimulate competition in annual giving among academic classes.

The Washington Trophy is awarded annually to the academic class, graduated within the last 50 years, which makes the largest contribution in dollars to the Alumni Fund. It was given to the Alumni Association by the Washington, D.C., chapter.

The 1972-73 Washington Trophy winner was the Class of 1928 with total contributions of $15,292. Percy Cohen, the Class Agent, will be presented the trophy at Fall Reunions, Oct. 19-20.

The Bierer Trophy was donated by several members of the Class of 1940 in honor of their classmate, James H. Bierer, who was chairman of the Alumni Fund for two years, 1971-73. The donors insisted on anonymity.

The trophy is awarded annually to the academic class, graduated in the last 10 years, which achieves the highest percentage of participation in the Alumni Fund. The award is designed specifically to spur competition among younger W&L Alumni.

The 1972-73 winner of the Bierer Trophy was the Class of 1964 with participation of 46.4%. The Class Agent, W. B. (Buck) Ogilvie, will receive the trophy on behalf of his class at Fall Reunions.

The Richmond Trophy, a gift of the Richmond chapter, is awarded annually to the academic class, graduated within the past 50 years, which achieves the highest percentage of participation in the Alumni Fund. The Class of 1958, Vernon W. Holleman, Jr., Class Agent, was the 1972-73 Richmond Trophy winner, with 49.6% participation.

All trophies are engraved each year with the year of the award, the Class Agent's name, the class numerals.

Because the great difference in size between most law and academic classes makes comparison of performance difficult, only academic classes are eligible to compete for the Richmond, Washington, and Bierer Trophies. It is hoped that an alumnus, alumni chapter, a family, or a class will present trophies to encourage similar competition among law classes.
Agent, Vernon W. Holleman, Jr., of Washington, D. C., will receive the trophy for his class at Fall Reunions, Oct. 19-20. The impact of the Richmond Trophy may be seen in these figures: Last year, only one academic class achieved better than 40% participation; this year, 16 classes had 40% participation or better.

Participation in the Alumni Fund is expected to be further stimulated by the establishment of two additional trophies, the Washington Trophy and the Bierer Trophy, for outstanding support of the fund. These trophies and the 1972-73 winners are reported in an accompanying article.

The 1972 Report of Gifts to be published in October will contain a full report on the 1972-73 Alumni Fund as well as reports on the University's other annual giving programs and the Development Program for the 1970's.

New Fund Officers

Calvert Thomas, '38, of New York, secretary and assistant general counsel of General Motors Corp., is the new chairman of the Washington and Lee Alumni Fund. On July 1, he succeeded James H. Bierer, '40, of Pittsburgh, who headed the fund effort for two years.

Thomas, as fund chairman, will represent the fund in all of its general contacts with alumni and in the formulation of alumni giving plans in close cooperation with W&L's alumni and development offices.

Thomas' goal will be to continue the rise that the fund achieved under the leadership of Bierer, the University's first fund chairman. The fund increased 36% during the two years Bierer held the post.

Thomas' appointment was announced by William H. Hillier, '38, of Chicago, president of the Alumni Association. Hil­lier, Thomas, and Bierer met in Lexing­ton in late June to prepare for the change in the chairmanship.

Thomas served last year as fund vice chairman for the Academic Classes 1935-
48. This year, he will have the assistance of seven vice chairmen, three of them new to the fund organization.

The new vice chairmen are L. Gordon Miller, Jr., ’45, of Richmond, executive vice president and director of Wheat,
First Securities, Inc.; J. Carter Fox, ’61, of West Point, Va., controller and assistant treasurer of The Chesapeake Corp. of Virginia; and James M. Ballengee, ’48L, of Philadelphia, president and chairman of the Philadelphia Suburban Corp.

Miller is vice chairman for the Academic Classes 1935-48; Fox for the Academic Classes 1961-73; and Ballengee for the Law Classes 1924-51.

Continuing as vice chairmen this year are Alumni Secretary William C. Washburn for the Old Guard (classes that were at W&L more than 50 years ago); Herbert
G. Jahncke, ’30, of New Orleans for the Academic Classes 1924-34; Oliver M. Mendell, ’50, of New York for the Academic Classes 1949-60; and John S. Stump, III,
’57L, of Alexandria, Va., for the Law
Classes 1952-73.

In announcing Thomas’ appointment,
Hillier said annual contributions through the Alumni Fund are a major factor in enabling the University to operate with a balanced budget. Annual Alumni Fund support, he said, represents more than half of the $7.85-million goal for support of current operating expenses in W&L’s
$56-million Development Program.

Thomas joined the General Motors legal staff in 1946, became assistant general counsel in 1972, and secretary of the Deferred Giving

Below are several examples of ways in which alumni and friends are helping Washington and Lee through estate planning. Information concerning Washington and Lee's Estate Planning Program may be obtained by writing Edward O. Henneman, Office of University Development, Washington and Lee University, Lexington, Virginia 24450.

MASON FUND
S. Blount Mason, Jr., '05, a resident of Baltimore and a retired executive of U. S. Fidelity and Guaranty, died on May 9, 1969. Pursuant to trusts created by Mason and his late wife, Mary Wylie Mason, Washington and Lee has received almost $400,000. This gift is to establish the "S. Blount Mason, Jr., Fund" and is to be used to increase faculty salaries. The specific uses to which the fund will be put is being considered by the Board of Trustees and will be announced after the Board's fall meeting.

PEALE TRUST
The late Clifford McChesney Peale, '19, created a trust which will eventually provide for the establishment of a student aid loan fund at Washington and Lee. Income from the fund, to be designated "The Clifford McChesney Peale Student Aid Loan Fund," will be used to make loans to students attending W&L.

Peale, a retired account executive with Reynolds Securities, Inc., died April 6, 1973, in Clearwater, Fla. For many years, he was a representative for Wellington Fund, traveling out of Chicago. He was also a registered representative with A. M. Kidder, Inc., members of the N. Y. Stock Exchange.

The Peale trust, presently valued at $70,000, provides that income shall be paid to his wife and sister during their lives. Upon their deaths, the trustee shall pay all remaining assets of the trust to Washington and Lee to establish the student aid loan fund.

McGHEE SCHOLARSHIP
The will of Mrs. Alethea C. Bland, a resident of Albemarle County, Va., has established a trust the corpus of which will eventually come to Washington and Lee to establish a scholarship in memory of her father, William Tucker McGhee, an 1878 graduate of the University. The fund will be known as "The William Tucker McGhee Scholarship."

Mrs. Bland died on Feb. 13, 1970, having no family survivors. The income of the trust, which has a market value of nearly $145,000, will go to a life-long friend for the remainder of her life. Upon her friend's death, the assets of the trust will pass to Washington and Lee.

BOEVERS-DEAN BOOK FUND
The University recently received $16,718.95 from the estate of Miss Alice M. Dean to be used as a special fund for the acquisition of library materials. The fund is to be known as the "Lola V. Boevers and Alice M. Dean Book Fund."

Miss Dean, a resident of Federalsburg, Md., died in the summer of 1970. Her sister, Mrs. Boevers, who also lived in Federalsburg, died two weeks before Miss Dean. Neither lady attended college. Their only connection with Washington and Lee, was through their attorney, Jerome Frampton of Federalsburg, who is a 1933 graduate of the W&L School of Law.
Special Report

Drug cases pose complex problem for the University community

The indictment in November, 1972, of several students on charges of drug distribution posed a complex and difficult problem for the University during the 1972-73 academic year. The University's treatment of these students was considered by many individual University officials, various University committees, the faculty as a whole insofar as the cases related to general policy questions, the Alumni Board of Directors, and the University Board of Trustees. The following report on these considerations was prepared for University President Robert E. R. Huntley by Dean of Students Lewis G. John:

On Nov. 14, 1972, a special grand jury convened in the Circuit Court of Rockbridge County handed down 54 indictments, each charging the offense of felonious distribution of controlled narcotic substances under the Code of Virginia, against 19 persons. The convening of the grand jury followed an investigation of more than one year into the distribution of drugs in Lexington and Rockbridge County. The investigation was carried out by two members of the Virginia State Police Department assigned to this area as undercover agents. Of the 19 persons indicted, 13 were current or former Washington and Lee students. Nine were seniors; one was a junior; and three had either graduated or withdrawn from the University.

The number of counts against these young men ranged from one to seven. Of the 36 counts against the 10 current students, 25 were for the distribution of marijuana, eight for the distribution of hashish, and three for the distribution of LSD. All were for distribution directly to the undercover agents. None of the offenses involved the distribution of amphetamines, barbiturates, heroin, opium, derivatives, or other drugs.

On Nov. 17, the Dean of Students wrote to each of the indicted students to clarify University policy and to enclose a copy of the University Policy Statement on Drugs. They were told in the letter: "Your case will . . . be considered by the Student Control Committee for possible University disciplinary action. Assuming your trial will take place during the academic year, the Student Control Committee will in all likelihood not proceed to consider the matter until after the evidence has been heard in court. The outcome of the trial court proceedings will not be determinative of any action the University might take, but it could be a factor considered by the appropriate University committees. In the meantime, there is no change in your status as a student at Washington and Lee."

The parents of each student were written a similar letter later that month.

At a pre-trial hearing on Dec. 6, the dates for the trials of three of the students—those with the greatest number of counts against them—were set for mid-February. However, motions were granted for the filing of discovery depositions, and the actual trials were postponed until mid- and late April. The trials of the remaining seven students were eventually set for June, past the Washington and Lee graduation date of May 31.

Because of the trial delays, the Student Control Committee and the Student Affairs Committee considered whether the cases could be heard in the normal University disciplinary channels before the trial dates. The Student Control Committee, the all-student group which has initial jurisdiction in individual disciplinary cases, decided it could not act before the trials. This position was endorsed by the Student Affairs Committee, the review and appeal body which exercises final authority in disciplinary cases involving individual students. The latter group is composed of five students, three faculty members, two administrators, with the Dean of Students as chairman.

The decision that the cases could be heard in University disciplinary channels only following the court cases was made on two grounds: First, the committees did not wish to pre-judge the students' guilt or innocence, and prior to the trial date on which the pleas would be entered, guilt would not be determined. Second, and more important, the evidence was not available. The University committees simply could not get the information necessary to hear the cases until the evidence had become a matter of public record. The undercover agents quite obviously would not testify before a student administrative hearing prior to the court cases, and the persons under indictment in all likelihood would exercise their right to remain silent lest they prejudice their court proceedings as well as endanger their status as members of the Washington and Lee student body.

The question of whether the indicted seniors should be allowed to receive their degrees in May was discussed among faculty members. In response to these discussions, the Faculty Executive Committee proceeded in March, 1973, to consider the matter of general University policy. Three professors submitted a petition to the effect that, if adopted, any student indicted for a felony would be automatically ineligible to receive a degree until the indictment has been satisfied by the courts; recommendations for the granting or denying of degrees would then be made by the Faculty Executive Committee to the faculty and by the faculty to the Board of Trustees.

The Executive Committee, after lengthy discussion, recommended to the faculty that the following statement be included in the University catalogue:

"If, for any reason, an investigation into the conduct of a student by the Student Executive Committee on a matter of honor, or by the University committees concerned with matters of discipline, cannot be completed before a student would normally graduate, he cannot be recommended for a degree until these investigations are concluded."

The recommendation was thus to establish a mechanism in such cases through which the University could retain jurisdiction over a student. That is, the degree would be withheld until investigations and hearings into matters of honor or discipline could be completed.

The further recommendation of the Executive Committee was that this policy not become effective until the 1973-74 session. Although some faculty members argued that the faculty did not have the power to withhold degrees for other than the academic reasons specifically stated in the catalogue, the majority of the Executive Committee felt that the faculty did have implicit power to withhold degrees (or more correctly, to recommend to the Board of Trustees the withholding of degrees) for any reason, but that it should not exercise that power during the 1972-73 year. The rationale was that its immediate use against the indicted students would smack of ex post facto application of a policy which was nowhere stated explicitly. Members believed that students should be specifically apprised of such a policy in advance—that to do otherwise would constitute action that could be considered unfair treatment of students who did not know the policy and who thus had no reason to suspect its implementation.

The faculty considered the Executive Committee's recommendation on April 2, 1973. A substitute motion by the terms of which no recommendation for a degree would be forthcoming for any student who was under indictment for a felony at the conclusion of the Spring Term of the 1972-73 year was defeated by a voice vote.

During extended discussion on the floor of the faculty, a wide variety of opinions and proposals were presented by individual members. Then, by written vote, the faculty approved a second substitute motion to create a representative ad hoc committee of the faculty, which was charged with the "responsibility for a general investigation and evaluation of the faculty's policies, responsibilities, and authorities in the areas of student conduct and discipline."

The faculty created a committee to study disciplinary authority.

The committee will convene at the opening of the Fall Term in September, 1973, and is expected to make its final report to the faculty not later than January, 1974.

The trials of three of the indicted students, all seniors, were held on April 17 and 26. In each of these cases, guilty pleas were entered to all charges, jury trials were waived, and the judge heard evidence pertaining to the circumstances of the offenses. According to the judge, there was "no evidence to indicate that any of the students were engaged as off-campus 'pushers' or that they distributed large quantities of drugs."

Defense lawyers attempted to show accommodation distribution without profit, for which lower penalties are prescribed by Virginia law. (The penalty for felonious distribution is five to 40 years in the penitentiary and a fine of up to $25,000 on each count; the penalty under the accommodation exception is one to 10 years. The accommodation distribution of marijuana has been reduced by the General Assembly to a misdemeanor, with a prescribed jail term of up to 12 months and a maximum fine of $1,000.) A presentence report was requested in each of the three cases, with sentencing delayed until mid-June.

After the trials, the Student Control Committee voted to hear the three cases, although sentence had not yet been imposed. Defense lawyers, meanwhile, requested a temporary injunction to prevent the Student Control Committee from proceeding with the cases at that time. Among the reasons proffered were lack of jurisdiction, possible prejudicial effect upon the presentence report and subsequent sentencing, and lack of adequate notice.
The trial judge disqualified himself, and the hearing on the injunction request was held in chambers before the Circuit Court judge in Staunton. After hearing arguments from both sides, the judge in Staunton refused to issue an injunction. He said that he did not believe the court should interfere with the internal administrative proceedings of the University.

On April 30 and May 1, the Student Control Committee considered individually the cases of the three seniors. After long deliberation, a divided committee voted to recommend to the Student Affairs Committee in each case that no action be taken by University disciplinary committees against these individuals. To prevent misunderstanding of its decision, the committee also voted to issue a public statement in clarification of its recommendations.

The Student Affairs Committee at a meeting on May 2 approved by a vote of 8-2 the recommendations of the Student Control Committee. The committee also urged that additional steps be taken in the fall to acquaint members of the student body with the University Policy Statement on Drugs and with the penalties prescribed by law for drug possession and distribution. The SCC and SAC decisions were reported to the University Council on May 3 and to the faculty on May 7.

The Student Control Committee issued its public statement on May 8. It was printed in the Ring-tum Phi of that week and circulated widely among the student body and the faculty.

The essence of the statement was that although the committee considered illegal drug distribution a very serious matter for which "suspension might very well be in order," extenuating circumstances in these three cases led to their being handled as the exception rather than the rule. The committee declared that its recommendation was not to be construed as an apathetic stance and was not to be considered as precedent for future cases.

Among the "extenuating circumstances" listed by the committee were the following: 1. Since the trials of six seniors would not be held until after graduation in June and all nine cases involving seniors were closely related, inequities would result if severe action were taken against only three of the nine; 2. it should be recognized that there are "degrees of criminality" and the "accommodating nature of the sales to friends in these cases must be considered as opposed to an active, profitable ‘pushing’ of drugs to non-students and minors”; 3. heavy penalties and severe pressures had already accrued to the students as a result of their indictments and their status as convicted felons; 4. severe penalties by the University could have adverse effects on sentencing; 5. there was "no widespread understanding among the student body that the University would feel the need to take action were such cases as these brought to light."

President Huntley and Dean John met with the Alumni Board of Directors at its meeting on May 11 to discuss the matter of University drug policy and actions in regard to the indicted students.

After considerable discussion, the Alumni Board adopted the following resolution addressed to the President:

"Be it resolved that the Board of Directors of the Washington and Lee University Alumni Association go on record as being very seriously concerned about the recent incident of 10 Washington and Lee students being indicted on drug charges. While the Board supports the University’s action in this particular matter, the Board, nevertheless, goes on record as being very seriously concerned about the whole University policy as it relates to the disciplining of students convicted of felonies. Further, this Board requests that it be furnished a copy of the report of the ad hoc faculty committee recently established to examine the subject of University policy in this area.”

The University Board of Trustees considered the subject at length at its meeting on May 26. No specific action was taken at that meeting, except that the Board did approve the entire list of candidates presented for graduation (including the indicted students), pending final recommendation by the faculty at its May 30 meeting.

General concern was expressed, however, with individual Trustees commenting that policy should be clarified for the future, with the right of the faculty to withhold a degree for specific, other-than-academic reasons stated explicitly in the University catalogue. The suggestion was also made that the University Policy Statement on Drugs should be printed in the catalogue as well as in the Student Handbook as it now is.

Included in the list of candidates recommended by the faculty for degrees at its May 30 meeting were eight of the nine seniors indicted for drug distribution; one failed to meet the academic requirements and is expected to return for the Fall Term. The eight were among those receiving degrees from Washington and Lee on May 31.

All of the 10 students who were indicted entered pleas of guilty to all counts. Seven of the 10 as of mid-July were serving jail sentences, ranging from 60 days to two years. Fines in the cases ranged from $500 to $7,000. In addition, all received varying terms of probation. The three who were not in jail, including the junior, received suspended terms in addition to paying fines.

In sum, this matter of great complexity and difficulty was considered by various individuals, committees, and bodies in the University community during the past year. There was no precedent to their actions, and there was no "right" or "good" way to deal with the various aspects of the problem.

For the reasons outlined, no disciplinary or other punitive action was taken by the University against those individuals indicted and convicted on drug distribution charges. Hopefully, as one result of this year's experience, policy and procedures can be clarified as a guide for future action.

University Policy Statement on Drugs

Washington and Lee University wants to help the individual achieve a realistic understanding of the consequences of drug use and the ability to make informed, responsible decisions. The University's prime responsibilities concerning drugs are education and counseling. Consistent with these responsibilities, the University wishes to create an environment in which students may discuss drug problems openly and without fear of reprisal. The University, to foster this environment, will sponsor regular seminars on drugs and drug use as well as offer counseling assistance at all times. In addition, McCormick Library and the University Center will maintain special collections of literature on drugs.

Students sincerely interested in resolving personal drug problems may seek guidance from University physicians, the Dean of Students, and his staff; in seeking such aid, students may rest assured they do not risk disciplinary action. Although conversations with these persons do not enjoy immunity from court inquiry, they are under no obligation to initiate reporting of drug offenses and would do so only in clearly dangerous and extraordinary situations.

Although the enforcement of law is not within the educational function of the University, no one should delude himself that the campus is a sanctuary from law-enforcement agents. Society regulates by the law; the use of drugs; it forbids even the possession of certain drugs. Law-enforcement agents have jurisdiction on campus and, when possessing proper documents, may legally make arrests or search any room or building without prior notice to University officials. Moreover, the University cannot intervene to protect an accused person from the consequences of his arrest or conviction. Whether he is on or off campus, a student is subject to the law.

Washington and Lee University does not wish to set student against student, or faculty against student, to ferret out offenders; to do so would undermine the educational enterprise. Nevertheless, the University cannot ignore violations which come to its attention; that would deny society its legitimate claim that we abide by the law and would invite others to undertake the enforcement we, ourselves, would not provide. Allegations of drug misuse will be considered by the Student Control Committee.

As in other matters of student conduct, the Student Control Committee's jurisdiction and concern extend over the Washington and Lee student whether he is on this campus, in the local community, or visiting other colleges and universities. In arriving at its decisions, the Student Control Committee will examine the particular circumstances of each case and consider the interests of the individual and the University. One principle, however, does seem clear: An individual who uses drugs is responsible for his actions; an individual who makes illegal drugs available to others is responsible not only for his own actions, but for the actions and welfare of others as well. Accordingly, the severity of the penalty may depend upon the degree to which an individual's action affects the interests of others.
10 teachers are appointed to the University faculty

Appointments of eight teachers to the undergraduate faculty at Washington and Lee and two in the School of Law have been announced.

Returning to Washington and Lee as associate professor of journalism is John K. Jennings, now assistant professor of communications at the University of Texas at Austin. Jennings, a 1956 W&L graduate, taught journalism previously at W&L from 1959 to 1969, when he joined the faculty at Texas.

Named visiting associate professor of accounting was Dr. Raymond Heatwole; new assistant professors will be Sandra Keith in mathematics and Douglas R. Groot and Herman Kaufman in law.

Instructors will be Gordon P. Spice in music, Stephen D. Southall in psychology, W. Howard Eanes in journalism, Pamela Simpson in art, and John R. Handelman in politics.

Mrs. Keith, Southall and Handelman will hold one-year appointments, replacing W&L faculty members who will be on leaves of absence for all or part of the academic year. Dr. Heatwole holds a one-year appointment as well. The others are additions to the teaching staff or replacements for teachers who have retired or left W&L.

Mrs. Keith, wife of Dr. Philip Keith, assistant professor of English at W&L, holds the B.A. degree from Brown and her master's and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Pennsylvania.

Groot is now assistant law professor at the University of Georgia. He holds the B.A. degree from Vanderbilt and the J.D. degree from the University of North Carolina.

Kaufman is currently assistant district attorney in the Borough of Manhattan, N.Y. He is a B.A. graduate of Pennsylvania and holds his law degree from Michigan. He is a member of both the Michigan and New York state bars.

Spice holds two bachelor’s degrees, one in industrial relations from the University of Toledo and one in music history from Ohio State, and the M.A. degree in music, also from Ohio State. He is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of North Carolina.

Southall is a B.A. and M.A. graduate of the University of Richmond and expects his Ph.D. this year from Virginia. He has taught at both universities and has been published in scholarly journals.

Eanes will become manager of the Journalism Laboratory Press as well as journalism instructor. He was manager of the press in 1969-70, and has been a part-time journalism instructor at W&L since 1967. Eanes was assistant managing editor of the Roanoke Times before joining the W&L staff, and prior to that was city editor on the Lynchburg News and the Petersburg Progress Index.

Simpson is a B.A. graduate of Gettysburg College and holds the M.A. degree from Missouri. She is a Ph.D. candidate at the University of Delaware. Currently she is teaching at Penn State (Philadelphia).

Handelman is a B.A. graduate of Hamilton College and an M.A. graduate of Syracuse University. He is a Ph.D. candidate at Syracuse in the field of international relations.

Dr. Heatwole holds the B.A., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Virginia. For three decades he taught at Furman University, and during the past academic year taught at Madison College.

In addition to the 10 full-time teachers, Dr. Bernard A. Morin, associate commerce professor at the University of Virginia, will be a part-time visiting associate professor of administration at W&L for the 1973-74 academic year.

Library Appointments

Two appointments and one retirement in the Washington and Lee University library system have been announced.

Mrs. Janet MacDonald Moore, catalogue librarian at the University of Guelph in Ontario, Canada, became head catalogue librarian at Washington and Lee Aug. 1.

Mrs. Annette John, currently W&L's acting catalogue librarian, became acquisitions librarian, also Aug. 1.

Mrs. Hortense Tyler Gemmell, assistant catalogue librarian, will retire Sept. 1.

Mrs. Moore, the new cataloguer, has been catalogue librarian at McMaster College, also in Ontario, and was librarian at University of Guelph.

for the classics department at the University of Cincinnati.

She is an honors graduate of Lawrence University and holds two master's degrees, one in library science from Simmons College and one in classics from Cincinnati.

Mrs. John, the new acquisitions librarian, has been acting catalogue librarian since September, 1968. She is a graduate of Oberlin College and Syracuse University, where she earned her master's degree in library science.

7 Teachers On Leave

Seven teachers at the University have been granted University-sponsored leaves of absence for all or part of the 1973-74 academic year.

On leave for the full academic year will be Dr. Milton Colvin of the politics department, Dr. David G. Elmes of the psychology department, and Thomas O. Vinson Jr. of the mathematics department.

On leave for the Fall Term will be Dr. Gerard M. Doyon, art professor; Dr. H. Marshall Jarrett, professor of European history, and Mario Pellicciano, assistant professor of classics. On leave for the Winter Term will be W. Dabney Stuart, associate professor of English.

Colvin will conduct research in Austria on the impact of an armed force in a neutral nation. Elmes will carry out research on the human memory at the Human Performance Center of the University of Michigan. Vinson will continue preparation of a textbook for Greek and a translation of Plato's Laws, and Stuart will conduct research and prepare a study of selected fiction by Vladimir Nabokov.

GOP Club is Tops

The Republican Club at Washington and Lee has been designated Best College Republican Organization in the nation—the second time it has earned the distinction in four years.

The award was announced at the recent national convention of the collegiate GOP clubs. Harvard University's group was named runner up.

The Washington and Lee Republicans were named Best Club in Virginia earlier this year and subsequently Best Club in a five-state mid-South region.

The W&L group had previously been named Best Club in the nation in 1969. Two years prior to that it had been designated national runner up.

The W&L Club award was accepted by Theodore H. Amshoff, Jr., of Louis ville, Ky., outgoing president of the campus organization.

Law Association Officers

Jack E. Greer, '51, of Norfolk, a member of the firm of Williams, Worrell, Kelly, and Worthington, is the new president of the W&L Law School Association. He succeeded Dick Haynes, '58, of Dallas, who remains on the Council as immediate vice president. Retiring as immediate vice president was Gil Bocetti, '54, of Greensboro.

William Bath, '60, of Atlanta was elected vice president, and Andrew W. McThenia, '63, of the Law School faculty remains as secretary-treasurer.

Elected to the Council for three-year terms were John Alford, '59, of Lynchburg, T. Hal Clarke, '38, of Atlanta, Paul R. Speckman, Jr., '60, of Los Altos, Calif., and Stanley Walton, III, '65, of Chicago.

Retiring from the Council were Rudolph (Duke) Bumgardner, III, '66, of Staunton, Va., John Huss, '65, of St. Paul, Minn., and John Scheily, '48, of Los Angeles, and Bath, who moved up to vice president.

Other members of the Council are Stanley Atwood, '65, of Westport, Conn., Noel P. Copen, '57, of Huntington, W.Va., William B. Poff, '55, of Roanoke, Sherwood Wise, '63, of Jackson, Miss., Edmund Campbell, '22, of Washington, D.C., Stanley Sacks, '48, of Norfolk, Joseph B. Yanity, Jr., '52, of Athens, Ohio, and Thomas B. Bryant, III, '61, of Orangeburg, S.C.

Haynes, the immediate past president, is also a member of the Alumni Board of Directors, and Clarke is vice president of the Alumni Board.

The new Association members and new Council members were elected at a May 10 meeting on campus.

Agnor is Honored

For 15 years, Herb Agnor coached the Pres Brown Major Little League baseball team in Lexington—longer than anyone in the history of the league here. In August, he retired as coach and received a handsome trophy in recognition of his long service. His 9-to-13-year-olds won five championships and four second places.

Agnor, 65, has been a member of the W&L buildings and ground staff since 1928 and is one of the University's oldest employees in length of service. But he is energetic in his work as a scheduler and what he calls an all-purpose utility man.
Dear Fellow Alumnus:

After a discreet amount of arm twisting, our distinguished Alumni Secretary, Bill Washburn, promised some space in the Alumni Magazine for a short message from the Alumni Board of Directors.

The Alumni Board and the Secretary's office serve as channels through which alumni viewpoints are made known to the University. The Board members represent a broad range of class years and geographical locations so that many viewpoints are presented. At the same time, the Board should be a channel through which activities and problems of the University are transmitted to the alumni. Hence this letter.

One of the many pleasures of serving on the Board is the opportunity to meet and talk with faculty, students, members of the administration. These talks are open and frank, covering such subjects as the Honor System, student government, admissions procedures, and many other matters. One leaves these sessions with a healthy respect for the impressive young men who are student leaders. Equally impressive is the caliber of the men who serve on faculty and in the administration.

Starting in 1973, the President of the Alumni Association has been invited to attend and participate, but not vote, at meetings of the University Trustees. I had my first experience at the May 25-26 meetings. The formal Trustees' meeting took place Saturday morning, but it was preceded by two evenings and a full day of busy committee meetings. I attended the Finance Committee's session, under Chairman Joe Birnie, where I heard an interesting analysis of the national economy and its possible effect on the investment return from the University's endowment fund, a presentation of the proposed University budget for 1973-74 (in balance, too) and a discussion of loans to fraternities and faculty for housing needs.

In the afternoon, I attended the meeting of the University Development Committee, under Chairman John Stemmons. This committee has a wide range of activities. The session started with a discussion and decision to move the maintenance building from the ravine behind Howe Hall to a location just north of the baseball field. The new spot is well screened and has plenty of room for expansion of facilities. Moving the present operation is a necessity to free space for other building developments.

Having disposed of the maintenance facilities, the committee turned to the proposed undergraduate library. The model and plan had already undergone a number of modifications to better fit in with the campus. The plan reflected ideas from a faculty committee, a student committee, and an outside consultant. Maurice Leach, Librarian, was most happy with the final result, characterizing it as a "composite picture of ideas for functional use." Both student and faculty interest and participation had been intense and continuing. The committee decided to recommend to the Board that the architect be authorized to proceed with preliminary drawings for the project.

Friday evening brought a reception and dinner at which it was proved that the Trustees are not only a hard working group, but are delightful company as well.

Saturday morning was the formal Trustees' meeting, chaired in warm but efficient fashion by Dr. Thomas, the University Rector. One of the first items of business was a direction to Jim Whithread, the Board Secretary and University Treasurer, to prepare a schedule for Washington and Lee's participation in the National Bicentennial Year of 1976. University President Bob Huntley pointed out that the president of the student body had attended Trustees' meetings during the past year and had found the experience very helpful. Arrangements had also been made for Trustees to meet informally with small groups of students and faculty when the Trustees met on campus. Several of the Trustees mentioned that these sessions had been enjoyable and informative.

There were reports on: the gradual increase in applications for admissions

since 1969, contrary to the trend in most private schools; admission of black students (13 this fall compared with three last year, due mainly to hard work by Student Executive Committee and current black students); fine arts (drama facilities are the greatest problem); law school applications and admissions (1,463 applicants, with applications cut off in February; about 80 will enroll), and financial aid (increases in tuition cause a serious pinch here).

Two most interesting reports were given by the retiring and the new student body presidents. Bob Brennan, who graduated this year, told of his work on the Honor System and the need he felt for thoroughly orienting new students on the subject. He had organized such an orientation program last fall. Doug Schwartz, incoming president, gave an account of his current efforts to build more student involvement. His administration has established a new Student Activities Board, which will coordinate scheduling of all student activities and provide recreational and entertainment activities spread out over the whole school year. Doug pointed out that with more students living off campus, there was a greater need for a student activities program to interest and involve all students encouraging them to feel a part of the University.

The Trustees' meeting ended with a groundbreaking ceremony at the site of Lewis Hall, where Trustee Sydney Lewis and his wife, Frances, braved rain and mud to turn over enthusiastically the first symbolic spadefuls of Virginia red clay.

On June 23, I attended a meeting of the Alumni Fund officers. Jim Bierer, '40, who has headed this group with efficiency and effectiveness for the last two years, turned his gavel over to Calvert Thomas, '38. The record for the 1972-73 fund was reviewed (it looked like a possible new record in both dollars and percentage of contributors) and plans were made for the 1973-74 fund operation. You will be hearing more from Cal on this in due course.

It is my pleasure to share with you some of the experiences and personal viewpoints gathered during recent months at Lexington in connection with Alumni Board activities. I hope you may have some thoughts, opinions or insights to share with me and the Board. If so, drop me a line in care of the Alumni Office.

Sincerely,
Bill Hillier, '38

Wishbone may bring luck to the football Generals

Bill McHenry in his first year as head football coach is hopeful that the 1973 Generals will improve last year's record of three wins and six losses.

"I am enthusiastic over our prospects," Coach McHenry said in discussing the season's prospects in W&L's 1973 football brochure. "Though we lost 13 seniors, we have, I feel, a good nucleus (22 lettermen) coming back. We will be looking for a great deal of help from incoming freshmen."

McHenry has made considerable changes. He has reorganized the staff and altered both the offense and defense. He has inaugurated a junior varsity program, with five games lined up. "This should strengthen our overall program," he said.

"I feel we have the potential to run the wishbone offense with personnel such as senior Lewis Powell and sophomore Jack Berry at quarterback and senior Jim Farrar and junior Mercer West at fullback," McHenry said.

But he must find some running backs from among relative newcomers. The top prospects are sophomore Rob Lindsey, senior Jimmy Nolan (a former linebacker), converted quarterback Ferdie Richards, and diminutive but tough Rob Konwinski.

Several good veterans return in the interior offensive line, including Ed Kowal, Co-Captain Bob Brand, Doug Long, Jeff Kandle, and Lanny Rainey. But at the offensive end positions there is not much experience among the candidates: Dave Campbell, Mark George, Perry Sowell, John Norris, and Lewis Hixon.

The defensive line will be anchored by sophomore Rick Kulp and seniors Bill Downing and Jay Fulcher. Linebacking positions are in question, with the leading candidates being Steve Van Amburgh and Dave Turk. The defensive secondary is solid with veterans Mike Brittin, Co-Captain Bill Wallace, Jeff Opp, Mark Diverio, and Jack Davidson.

W&L's kicking game is up for grabs. "We must develop a punter from either Lewis Powell, top candidate for starting quarterback, hides ball as he rolls out on a naked reverse. He is a scrambler and an accurate passer.

Doug Chase (a veteran place-kicker) or newcomer Malcolm Hastings," McHenry said. Place-kicking could be in the toes of Chase or another newcomer, Fred Havasy.

"I was most encouraged by the response and turnout for spring practice," Coach McHenry said. However, he added, several positions are still question marks, "and we will be counting on our incoming freshmen (approximately 30 are expected) for help."

McHenry will be assisted by offensive coach Graham (Buck) Leslie, defensive coaches Boyd Williams and Norris Aldridge, offensive line coach Chuck O'Connell and defensive linebacker coach Jack Emmer. O'Connell, the newest member of the staff, was an outstanding athlete at Denison and coached at St. Paul's School near Baltimore before joining the W&L staff this year.

ATLANTA. The Atlanta chapter held a luncheon at the Piedmont Driving Club on June 7. During the business session the following officers for 1973-74 were elected: J. D. Humphries, III, '66, president; Nathan V. Hendricks, III, '66, secretary; and David C. Black, III, '64, treasurer. The following were named to the board of directors of the chapter: Peter Kintz, '66; Michael Masinter, '58; Landon V. Butler, Jr., '63; Sidney Isenberg, '42; Brett Thackston, '64; John H. Cheatham, '46; Charles Hurt, Jr., '59; Fleming Keefe, '61; Phil Thompson, '71; Frank Love, Jr., '50; Bill Tyler, '69. The outgoing president, Alex Hitz, Jr., '42, received the praises and congratulations of the chapter members for his outstanding leadership during the past year.

PHILADELPHIA. Alumni gathered at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Daniel Blain, Sr., '21, on June 21 to honor the incoming freshmen from the Philadelphia area and their parents. All but two of the freshmen were present along with some 60 alumni. They enjoyed a delicious picnic dinner and other refreshments, all supplied by their hosts, the Blains. Among the guests were E. Marshall Nuckols, Jr., '33, a University Trustee, and two members of the Old Guard, William Miller, '12, and George Bowers, '23. The freshmen had the opportunity to meet many of their future fellows students, including several current W&L students who were able to discuss with them many aspects of life at W&L. Ted Rich, Jr., '58, chapter president, and Frank D'Lauro, '62, helped with the arrangements. The guests gave Dr. and Mrs. Blain a rousing round of applause in expressing thanks for their hospitality.

NEW YORK. Alumni of the New York area gathered at the "Sunlit Farm" of Emmett Poindexter, '20, in Putnam Valley on June 30 for the chapter's annual Summer Picnic and Festival. The refreshments were delicious and abundant, and the fellowship was warm. More than 40 alumni, members of their families, and friends were present for the full day of fun. Poindexter's wife, Wing, who died in April, had originated the annual picnics many years ago and was their guiding spirit. Emmett, knowing that Wing would have wanted the occasion to continue, was especially pleased that so many alumni attended the event.
