An Invitation

(The President's Page)

COME back to see us, Mr. Alumnus, at commencement, if possible, but come whenever you can.

One of the valid boasts of this University is the national distribution of its student body. We feel that this factor, in addition to other valuable implications, makes a real contribution to the education of all boys in our group.

But when this factor is transmuted into the world of alumni it has in it the elements of a problem. These boys who once brought the wholesome viewpoint of remote sections, go back into manifold activity to those remote sections. Lexington is at great distance from the majority of them. It is probable that not many of their fellow alumni live in the immediate community. Lexington, moreover, is not on one of the main lines of crowded traffic. There are compensations in this fact, but it does make it more difficult for the alumnus who might "drop in" if he could just pause between trains.

But we urge you to come back to see us. This invitation is not merely based on the sincerity of our hearts' desire, but also on the sincerity of a conviction that you will enjoy a visit. We believe that there are many developments here that will impress you and encourage you. We should like for you to see with your own eyes something of the fitness of your school to do its work. We believe, also, that you will find many of the unchanging charms and values. We should like for you to reassure yourself at this point.

Most of all, if I do not repeat tediously, we are anxious for you always to be mindful of the abiding fellowship of cultured and devoted minds that really make up the University.

This fellowship includes many members who stand in different relationships. The trustees have one point of view, the faculty represent one of the sustaining forces, the students are the members in most active participation; but the alumni have lifetime rights in this fellowship of the Washington and Lee spirit.

Come back to see us. We shall be glad, and we think you will be glad.

A New Washington and Lee Song

ALTHOUGH we doubt that any Washington and Lee song—or any college song as far as that goes—can ever quite come up to the “Swing,” we believe that at last the “Swing” has a companion in its lonely grandeur—and the companion is by the same composer.

Thornton W. Allen, 1913, the well-known writer and publisher of the “Swing” came forth this year with a new Washington and Lee song, dedicated to the Generals of Washington and Lee, which cannot fail to make more musical history for the college. It is called “Salute to the Generals.”

It was first introduced this winter in New York at the big meeting of their Alumni Association, in the Rainbow Room at the top of Radio City, where 104 alumni and their wives, along with a great many others not directly connected with the University, rose simultaneously, cheering what they knew was going to be a song loved by future generations of Washington and Lee men, if not by the rest of the country as well.

Already “Salute to the Generals” has been praised by those who know. Ben Cutler, leader of the Rainbow Room orchestra, who had the honor of playing it for the first time on short notice and with an incomplete orchestration, was enthusiastic in his plaudits; while Harold Bauer, world-famous pianist and composer, who heard it when recorded by NBC, called it “a great college song.”

Many alumni have heard it already. Part of the New York group, meeting at the Midston House on April 18th, listened over and over to the recording, and then lifted their voices in a rendition of the new “Swing,” enjoying every moment. At the Senior Banquet this spring—the annual party at which you entertain the men who will be newest Washington and Lee alumni—it was sung often.

Next fall, at one of the football games—probably at the Homecoming Game—we expect to hear it played by the college band—trumpeters introducing the “Salute” like a bugle call—marching down the field—everyone joining in on the “trio” which is the chorus. Soon we shall all know it and be glad that we can call it one of our songs.

At the present moment “Salute to the Generals” is not in a finished stage: it is complete in both words and music, but the orchestrations, which are about to be sent to important band-leaders all over the country, have still to be brought to perfection. We cannot, therefore, include all you would like to know and will know. But imagine martial music — trumpets blaring out:

“Give a salute to the Generals
Give a salute to Washington and Lee
On Generals, onward
Never give in!—
Keep marching on, Generals onward
March 'til you win!”

Thornton W. Allen, 1913

It's another fighting song for another fighting team. (The song is of course copyrighted).

One plan regarding the new music should interest all. Soon, a sixteen page booklet of Washington and Lee songs will be published by the Thornton W. Allen company in cooperation with Cy Young and Professor John Varner, director of the band and Glee Club, containing a Dedication, “Salute to the Generals,” the “Washington and Lee Swing” (published now entire for the first time), “Fight, Fight, Blue and White,” by Professor John Gra-

At the Senior Banquet, presented by the Alumni Association to the graduating class: Left to right, the speakers' table and three groups of guests

The Senior Banquet of 1941

MEMBERS of the class of '41 were guests of the Alumni Association at the annual senior banquet on April 29, held this year in the new Pine Room of the Mayflower Hotel.

Designed to acquaint the seniors with the purpose and activities of the Alumni Association, the banquet was attended by 175 candidates for degrees. Dr. Richard W. Fowlkes, '15, of Richmond, president of the association, presided.

Highlight of the evening was President Gaines' address, in which he coupled a personal message to the graduates with a picture of the relationship between the University and its alumni.

"Don't let the vicissitudes of the next two or three years divert you from your life purpose," he told the seniors. "Aside from those boys who laid down their lives for their country, the greatest toll of the last war was taken from those who were diverted from their great purpose of life and never came back to it. Keep your head cool and the purpose of your heart clear."

Then speaking to the seniors as future members of the Alumni Association, Dr. Gaines described the close personal bond that exists between the University and the alumni.

"We've come into a new conception of the relation between the institution and its alumni in recent years," he explained. "It is a kind of continuing relationship to see what the University can do for the alumni."

"This institution has some abiding obligation to those men who paid it the transcendent compliment of coming to its campus. The school owes you something for it."

To permit the University better to serve the alumni, he pointed out, the alumni secretary is now an administrative official—a dean of alumni, corresponding to the dean of students who serves the undergraduates.

"Alumni can help the University," he added, "in three ways:

"First, keep us informed of your activities.

"Second, you can help us discover the kind of boys

A Resumé of Spring Sports

Baseball

By BAYARD BERGHAUS

Showing more power and promise than at any time in the past five years, Washington and Lee's baseball forces this spring led the state "Big Six" race until late in the season before being shoved into second place by their arch-rivals from the University of Virginia.

Then, on the fateful afternoon in the first week of May, the Cavaliers invaded Lexington, humbling the Generals with a 19 to 3 lacing, knocking them unceremoniously from their high seat at the head of the state standings. Earlier, the Generals marched on Charlottesville and squelched the highly-touted Wahoos 4-2 behind the steady pitching of Sophomore Johnny Ligon, and added wins over Richmond and VPI to set the Big Six pace.

The baseball squad was not lucky enough to escape the "injured captain" jinx which has dogged W. & L.'s major sport teams this school year. Diamond Captain Bobby Gray, slated for the biggest of his four big years as a stellar infielder, was put out of action for the early season games with an injured shoulder and got off to a bad start.

If anyone has counted the Generals out for the season of 1941, he can look forward to the teams of '42 and '43, particularly the latter, for seven of the 11 players who are seeing the most action this year are sophomores. They are Ligon, pitcher; Jim Wheeler, catcher; Jeff Hudson, first base; Danny Owens, second base; Teddy Ciesla, third base; Bal Mattox, left field, and George Eshelman, center field.

The battery of Ligon and Wheeler might well make glad the heart of any coach. Ligon has shared the mound with Veteran Bob Gregerson in big league style, and

Wheeler, besides being a capable receiver, has become the Babe Ruth of the outfit along with Bob Keim. It was Jim's timely homer in the eighth inning of the Richmond game here that sparked the Generals' winning rally in that contest. At this writing the Generals are still on the short end of their won - lost standings for all games played. The season's two trips seemed to prove especially disastrous. The opening game with Lynchburg College ended after 10 innings in the sole deadlock, 3-3. The spring vacation trip followed, during which W. & L. was rained out with William and Mary and Richmond, lost to the U. S. Naval

Dr. Gaines Greets Fred Perry and Sammy Snead

Base 9-1, Wake Forest 10-2, North Carolina 15-6, Duke 5-3, and won from N. C. State 5-4.

Back in Lexington, the Generals bowed to UNC again, 9-5, and to Michigan 10-8. Then came the pleasant victory over Virginia, 4-2, followed by the Washington trip on which the team started off right by trimming the University of Maryland 7-4 and wound up by losing to George Washington 9-7 and Georgetown 10-8.

Victories over Richmond, 7-4, and VPI, 8-6, with a loss to W. & M. sandwiched between gave the Generals their top berth in the Big Six. Then followed a routine 14-3 licking, administered to Morris Harvey of West Virginia just before the downfall to the Cavaliers.

Three more games remain on the schedule at this time—Davidson, Maryland and VPI.

Track

By KEN VAN DE WATER

Coach Jack Hennemier's pre-season prediction that his track squad would be one of the largest in recent years with several outstanding men to capture most of the team's points was just about right.

But they didn't capture enough of those points. The record shows the Generals defeated William and Mary and lost to Richmond and VPI in dual meets. The "Big Six" State track meet was held on Wilson field on May 10, but the best that the Generals could do was to take fifth place.

But to get back to Coach Hennemier's prediction of several outstanding men. Heading the list of luminaries is W. & L.'s ace miler, Cliff Muller. Muller didn't run until his sophomore year and since then has made quite a name for himself. He tried just about all the distance events and finally settled on the mile. Running his first time in that event against William and Mary this year he set a new school record of 4:25.6.

In the shot put, Lillard Ailor, the big tackle of football fame, set another school record when he tossed the shot 45 feet one-half inch, replacing the mark set by Bill Stephens.

Almand Coleman, now professor of accounting, who coaches the javelin throwers, saw his own record fall when Herb Friedman tossed the javelin 180 feet 8 inches in a meet with Richmond. In the state meet, Friedman threw the javelin 188 feet to break his own record.

Another consistent winner this year has been Bill Murray who captured the 440-yard dash in every meet and won the state 440 race in 51.2. Bill Jennings, a junior, won the 880 in two meets and took a close second against VPI to be a heavy point gainer. In the dual meets Bud Yeomans, who runs the hurdles and broad jumps, has been one of the best point getters.

Among the freshmen, who have not been too fortunate this year, Chuck Wooters has been the standout. He captured the freshman 60-yard dash at the Southern Conference indoor games and won all of his 100-yard dashes this spring until he pulled a muscle to keep him from competing in the state meet.

Tennis

By DICK SNYDER

Stars literally fell on Washington and Lee this year in the form of a dozen top-ranking world famous tennis players, who were brought to Lexington through the efforts of student-promoter Hugh Strange.

While the tennis team was winning nine and losing six matches during the season, professional and amateur champions came to Lexington to perform for the benefit of the team and the public in general. Perhaps the best known of these was Fred Perry, long, lithe Britisher, who has held almost as many amateur and professional titles as it is possible for one man to gather. During the last three weeks of the season Perry acted as W. & L. coach, temporarily succeeding Ollinger Crenshaw in that capacity. Under his tutelage the team won three and lost only one—to Virginia.

John Faunce, Hollywood pro-star and coach of Welby Van Horn, was brought to town to act as Perry's assistant. On Perry's first day in his official capacity, he and Faunce played with Joe Whalen and Dick Skeen in an exhibition match. Whalen is former National Open champion, while Skeen has been runner-up to Perry in their last three professional tournaments.

Also here on that "opening day" were Herman Peterson, one of the greatest of all European stars, Lloyd Budge, older brother and coach of Don, and Florida's Johnny Hendricks, at 23, one of the youngest stars in the country.

Earlier in the season Strange promoted the importation of Elwood Cooke and his wife, the former Sarah Palfrey Fabyan. Cooke has played on the United States Davis Cup team, and Mrs. Cooke was seven times a member of the winning team in the National Amateur Doubles. In an exhibition Mr. and Mrs. Cooke pitted their skill against that of Dick Pinck and Jack Mallory, numbers one and two on the Generals' court squad.

Bobby Riggs and Bobby Harmon played on the courts near the end of the collegiate season, giving the varsity another taste of tops in tennis.

Five lettermen: Pinck, Mallory, Barrie, Spindle and Douglas, supplemented by Kerr, Trice, Bromm, Harrelson, Peeples, and Morris composed this year's varsity squad.

The season's record follows:

March	26	W. & L.	2	Hobart	0
	27	W. & L.	3	Lehigh	8
	28	W. & L.	0	Colgate	9
April	9	W. & L.	4	Muhlenburg	5
	12	W. & L.	1	Michigan	8
	15	W. & L.	5	Manhattan	4
	17	W. & L.	7	George Washington	2
	21	W. & L.	2	Maryland	7
	22	W. & L.	6	George Washington	3
	25	W. & L.	4	Davidson	0
	26	W. & L.	8	Wake Forest	1
May	1	W. & L.	5	Guilford	2
	2	W. & L.	4	Virginia	5
	5	W. & L.	8	Wake Forest	1
	6	W. & L.	6	Davidson	3

Golf

By LATHAM THIGPEN

Not to be outdone by the introduction into the Lexington tennis world of a galaxy of top-flight net artists, the Washington and Lee golfers this spring brought Slammin' Sam Snead, colorful golf professional to the campus.

After his Southern Conference championship Blue Devils had taken a close match from W. & L. (11½-6½) on the Cascades course at Hot Springs, May 9, Duke Coach Dumpy Hagler said that with the exception of LSU, Washington and Lee's team of four sophomores was the strongest his men had met in dual competition all year.

The following day the Blue quartet placed third out of a field of eight in the Southern Conference tournament over the same course. The powerful Blue Devils finished first for the seventh straight year, and NCU barely edged Coach Cy Twombly's foursome by four strokes for second place.

Coach Twombly's foursome of sophomores, Paul Williams, Bill Noonan, S. L. Kopald and Bud Bowie opened the 1941 season with a 17½-½ flattening of Boston college. In their next match they tied the Apprentice school 9-9.

In a six-man match with the University of Virginia, Bill Noonan defeated the Wahoos' Dixon Brooke, national intercollegiate champion. Virginia won 5-4.

The Blue golfers hit their stride again with a 15-3 win over Hampden-Sydney and followed with a well-played 6½-11½ loss to Duke. Dual matches remain with the University of Richmond and George Washington.

Lacrosse Plagued with a serious lack of reserve strength, Washington and Lee's lacrosse team was unsuccessful this year in its defense of the Dixie league championship as the gloomiest season in the four-year history of the old Indian sport here goes on record.

The original 16 man squad was shot through with injuries, with Captain Skippy Henderson's broken finger keeping him out of three games.

In six contests so far, the Generals have managed to salvage only one victory, trouncing the University of Virginia, 7 to 2, before a spring dance crowd. Duke, North Carolina, Swarthmore, Loyola, and the Washington Athletic club have defeated the W. and L. team.

The Generals opened the season with a defeat at the hands of the Washington Athletic club. Henderson broke his finger as the Blue team went down by a 5 to 1 score.

The crippled squad then dropped two successive games to Carolina and Duke after leading both teams until the final quarter. The Tar Heels won a 6 to 5 decision with a last minute goal, and the Blue Devils capitalized on the lack of reserves to score four goals in the final period and defeat the Generals 7 to 4.

Swarthmore turned on the pressure in the last half to win a 10 to 4 victory. Then, playing for the first time before a home crowd, the stickmen won their first league game with a 7 to 2 victory over Virginia. The Generals started out strong against Loyola in Baltimore, but weakened in the last half to drop a 10 to 7 decision.

Games with Carolina and Virginia remain on the schedule, but it is probable that both teams will forfeit, giving a season record of three victories and five defeats.

Henderson, Ed Boyd, and Bayard Berghaus, all-Dixie league stars, have sparked the team's play all the way. Larry Galloway's bruising play has stood out on the defense. The lack of an experienced goal-keeper has been a severe handicap, but sophomore Bob Leake, playing lacrosse for the first time, has developed nicely and promises well for next year.

who through the years ought to come here to take your place. The characteristic we are most proud of as distinguishing Washington and Lee from all other colleges is the personality of the boys.

"Third, the alumni class agent plan is an invitation each year for you to give what you are able to make the University a better place for those boys who come here to take your place. I know of no institution in America which has a more distinguished group of benefactors. When you contribute, you join that circle—a great and honorable group."

Alternating as song leader and speaker, Cy Young introduced the new "Salute to the Generals" and then initiated the boys into the intricacies of the alumni office and its system of card files for keeping in touch with W. & L. alumni everywhere.

Charles L. Hobson of Frankfort, Ky., who was elected president of the class of '41 for the five years ending in 1946, responded to Dr. Gaines' address on behalf of his classmates.

Other "permanent officers" elected by the class at the banquet were Allen T. Snyder of Glenside, Pa., as vice-president, and Dick Day of Louisville, Ky., as secretary.

Among the guests at the banquet were Stuart Moore, '14, Tennis Coach Fred Perry, and Dick Skeen and Johnny Faunce, visiting tennis stars.—L. B. W.

WHAT a newspaper writer described as a Washington and Lee Field Day occurred in the North Carolina State Senate last March when Senator J. Hampton Price, 1924, and E. T. Sanders, 1927, sponsored the confirmation motion on Governor Broughton's appointment of Fred C. Hunter, 1918, and Professor Harry Tucker, 1910, of State College as associate utilities commissioners. The appointments were unanimously confirmed.

Campus Comment

By KENNETH VAN DE WATER

AS THE University is putting the finishing touches on the program for the 192nd Finals of Washington and Lee, the students are "busy with the books," scrapping together loose ends and preparing themselves for the grand time on June 4th, 5th, and 6th.

Highlight of the Spring activities on the campus has been the arrival of tennis ace, Fred Perry, who has taken over the coaching duties of the tennis team assisted by another tennis luminary, John Faunce. Mr. Perry's speech in Lee Chapel shortly after his arrival has resulted in his being termed the "best speaker" on the campus this year. Incidentally, the students have really taken Perry to heart as he has been to every fraternity house in school at least twice so far.

The Christian Council sponsored the annual religious emphasis week in early March when Dr. Henry Crane of Detroit conducted a three day conference. Ten other men from churches through the South held class room discussions and "bull sessions" at the different houses.

For charity purposes only, the Legal Eagles A. C., made up of retired wrestling stars and a professor, challenged the Southern conference wrestling champions to a match. Funniest bout was between the General's coach, Archie Mathis, and the team's heavyweight, 215 pound Lillard Ailor. Decision was a draw after the two really went to work when Mathis lost a piece of his leg to Ailor's teeth.

ODK sponsored a drive to raise funds for the purchase of a portable surgical unit for Great Britain. The drive broke all records as the total amount was collected in less than a week from student and faculty donations.

A week before Spring vacation, the Interfraternity Council sponsored an informal dance in the gymnasium for the benefit of the Monogram Club sweater fund. A tropical setting served as the background for Don Bestor and his orchestra. And the event netted several hundred dollars for the sweater fund.

The University Glee Club's invasion of Washington and New York took place late in April when 75 singers made a concert tour of a number of girls' schools and made a well received broadcast over NBC in New York.

the Spring elections. The sign reading, this is no bull Walt Downie for vice-president, must have gone over in a big way as Downie was successfully chosen by a large majority.

The Washington society's annual award for distinguished service to the University went, this year, to Al Fleishman. Fleishman was also named valedictorian for this year's graduating class.

A row with VMI nearly resulted a couple weeks ago when several aspiring W. L.'ers decided to go over to the Institute and borrow a cannon. The act was completed, but several burly soldiers came over and quietly retrieved the machine. The students involved in the escapade apologized after the executive committees of the two schools got together.

An idea thought up by two W. & L. students became a reality when seven schools in the state formed a 150-pound football league at a meeting in Lexington in April.

Two Years of the Law Review

IN our issue of December, 1939, we had the pleasure of announcing an important new Washington and Lee enterprise—the Law Review. Now, almost two years later, we believe our readers—legal readers in particular—might be interested in a report of its progress.

Under the able faculty editorship of Professor Charles P. Light, Jr., followed, since Mr. Light's call to army service, by Mr. Theodore A. Smedley whose previous experience with the Illinois Law Review of Northwestern University makes his services particularly valuable, the Washington and Lee Law Review has increased its circulation and brought nation-wide attention. Virtually all the law schools in the country either subscribe to it or exchange with us; it has been widely quoted by the courts; law firms, interested in some of the very practical articles, keep writing for copies. Two contributions: Karl R.

Bendetson's "A Discussion of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Civil Relief Act of 1940" in the fall issue of 1940; and "Price Competition as Affected by the Robinson-Patman Act," by Edward Burling, Jr., and William du Bose Sheldon, have drawn particular notice. The Review has been very well received, and it has brought fame to Washington and Lee and her School of Law.

But these are the least important of the Law Review's accomplishments. The journal was founded to improve student work, and on this point, Dean Moreland is most enthusiastic, saying that the amount and quality of work done by our law students has increased immensely—almost startlingly. It is natural that all the boys want to make the Law Review if they can, and that each strives toward that end. Those who achieve a place get inestimable value from it in the form of training in research and legal methods.

Any alumnus who happens to know the character of the present student board: Emery Cox (editor), Fred Bartenstein, Howard Dobbins, Carter Glass, III, Robert Hobson, Robert Isrigg, Homer Jones, Lee McKenna, George McInerney, Frank Bedinger, William Martin, John Perry, Bryce Rea, Edmund Schaefer, Lynell Skarda, Murray Smith, and Forrest Wall, will be aware of the way this process results in the selection of the best of the men for the best of the training.

Furthermore, as a result of having a law review, Washington and Lee is able to place men in better positions—positions in big offices where men from schools which maintain law reviews are always preferred.

This great advance in the work of the University, however, has naturally been undertaken in spite of difficulties. Our law school is comparatively a very small one, and that means fewer alumni, hence fewer subscribers. Meanwhile, no law review is self-supporting or is even expected to be. The dollar and a half you pay for a subscription just about pays printing costs for your copies. We don't carry advertising, and we get out, through the facilities of the Journalism Laboratory Press, directed by C. Harold Lauck, a finished product far ahead of the average in appearance and legibility.

This sort of thing is expensive, but none of us, certainly, would be in favor of anything inferior to represent the dignity of this school. At the present time, subscriptions are carrying about one-third of the costs, and we are naturally running a considerable deficit. This could be made up if more alumni would subscribe, if more friends of alumni could be made acquainted with the Review and its excellence, and if individuals wished to contribute (as suggested in the recent bulletin on our most pressing needs) to the continued maintenance of this endeavor. Those who are especially interested in the growth and improvement of our law school and those who want to see the school turn out better and better lawyers should realize that the Washington and Lee Law Review is a powerful means towards these ends. Without alumni support it may become difficult for the Review to continue its splendid work.

The last issue for this year will come out about June 10th. Now would be a good time to subscribe.

DR. JOHN N. THOMAS, 1924, member of the University Board of Trustees, resigned his pastorate of Grace Covenant Church, Richmond, Virginia, last fall to become professor of theology at Union Theological Seminary, Richmond, Virginia.

RUFUS C. BOWMAN, 1911, was the winner of the Collins cup given for general agency proficiency in the Roanoke agency of New England Mutual Life Insurance Company. Mr. Bowman, at the end of 1940, ranked as 78th leading agent among the company's more than 1,500 agents.

J. FRED COOK, 1933, junior partner of Hamilton-Cook Hardware of Waynesboro, Virginia, was recently elected president of the Waynesboro Retail Merchants Association.

BEFORE a crowded courtroom, on April 16, Circuit Judge Edwin C. Caffrey, 1909, was sworn in for his third seven-year term as Judge of the Essex County Circuit Court of Newark, N. J. It marked his 20th year on the bench. Congratulatory addresses were given by State Senator Homer C. Zink and others. Judge Caffrey was appointed a common pleas judge in 1921 and re-appointed in 1936. The following year he was named a Circuit Court judge and has been reappointed twice.

JAMES A. HENDERSON, 1929, completed his medical course and is now chief surgeon of the SS Manhattan of the United States Lines. He listened to the broadcast of Fancy Dress while his ship was stranded on the sand bar off Palm Beach, and genially reported himself as one of the shipwrecked sons of this institution.

JAMES SOMERVILLE, JR., 1912, sent the Alumni office a letter from 1, Grosvenor Square, London, suggesting a note saying that, "Jim Somerville is still living in London, where he is just now Acting Commercial Attache in the American Embassy." More than that, however, Mr. Somerville gives reports of a "quiet" period in London (he wrote on February 4th) when the bombs were not dropping quite as frequently as usual. His classmates and others, we are sure, would admire his calm under the punishment London has been suffering.

ISAAC SAMUEL WAMPLER, 1906, a graduate also of Peabody Normal College in 1891, has been mentioned as "foremost among Peabody's alumni" by the Alumni News of the George Peabody College for Teachers, Nashville, Tennessee. For many years he has been superintendent of the Tennessee School for the Blind at Nashville.

ROBERT LEE TELFORD, 1922, is General Superintendent of Mason and Hanger at the Radford Ordnance Works. He was born May 8, 1899, at Lewisburg, West Virginia, spent two years at Washington and Lee, after training for a commissioned officer's rank with the Army. Then for two years he was Assistant Resident Engineer for the Louisville and Nashville Railroad.

In 1931 Mr. Telford was the Assistant General Superintendent of the first tube of the Lincoln Tunnel and in 1933 was the Engineer and Superintendent in charge of coffer dams and the Superintendent in charge of construction of the Grand Coulee Dam. In 1936 he was sent back to New York as the General Superintendent of the second tube for the Lincoln Tunnel; then to Boston as Job Manager for Silas Mason Company on a tunnel for the Metropolitan District Commission.

Mr. Telford has two hobbies: golf and horse-racing. He is married and lives in Radford.

FRANK T. PARKER, JR., 1929, has been chosen Acting Chairman of the newly formed Waynesboro, Virginia, chapter of Federal Union, Incorporated.

MRS. LILLIE JENNINGS MEAD, widow of the Reverend Mr. George Otis Mead and for many years housemother for the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity at Washington and Lee, died on March 24th at Clifton Springs, New York. Several members of the fraternity, together with numbers of undergraduates who knew Mrs. Mead affectionately as "Weesie," attended the services in Richmond. The rites were conducted by the Reverend Mr. Beverley Munford Boyd, 1919, an alumnus of Washington and Lee.

PHIL E. CHAPPELL, 1919, was recently chosen as president of the Planters Bank and Trust Company of Hopkinsville, Kentucky. He has been with this bank since 1924, when he became a member of the Trust Department. Mr. Chappell is also a director of the Louisville branch of the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis. He is regarded as one of the most popular and efficient bankers of Western Kentucky.

MARION EDWARD PORTER, 1933, recently enlisted in the Army for a three-year period and somewhat amazed the officers by explaining that he holds the degrees of M.A. and Ph.D. as well as his Bachelor's from Washington and Lee, that he knows five languages thoroughly, and that he had been teaching languages at Northwestern University in Memphis. He was immediately assigned to the Intelligence Unit of the 6th Corps Area.

SHERWOOD W. WISE, 1932, has announced a partnership with Barron C. Ricketts for the general practice of law under the firm name of Ricketts and Wise. Their offices will be in the Deposit Guaranty Bank Building, Jackson, Mississippi.

W. S. ENGBLY, 1911, was elected president of the Roanoke, Virginia, Bar Association on March 28.

JACK DANGLER, 1940, has enlisted with the Flying Cadet Corps and is stationed for preliminary training at Albany, Georgia.

Weddings and Engagements

WEDDING BELLS rung for our alumni are making a positive racket this spring, and in the midst of the din, we should like to send hearty congratulations to the couples who were recently married, as follows:

1929

ALLEN BENNER MORGAN to Elsie Hunter Wetter on March 26th at the Second Presbyterian Church of Memphis, Tennessee.

1930

WALTER PRESTON BATTLE to Mrs. Florence Boyce Britton on February 21st at the home of the bride's sister in Memphis, Tennessee.

1931

LAWTON CALHOUN to Mary Anne Train on the 25th of February in St. John's Church, Savannah, Georgia.

1932

CHARLIE LONG to Miss Gertrude Bourne of Dallas, Texas, on January 25th.

1934

JOHN ALEXANDER ("BUD") HANLEY, III, to Virginia Huckaby on March 29th in Guntersville, Alabama.

1935

JOHN BURTON NICHOLSON, JR., to Mildred May Livsey, the wedding to be held in June at Carlisle, Pennsylvania.

1936

JOHN WALLACE DAVIES to Mary Herbert Fulgham on February 15th in Washington, D. C.

RICHARD WINFIELD BOISSEAU to Barbara Lee Higgins on February 22nd in the Calvary Episcopal Church, Front Royal, Virginia.

Roanoke, Hampden-Sydney, Randolph-Macon, William and Mary, Virginia and VMI in addition to Washington and Lee will play games next fall. 150-pound ball is a flashy game with plenty of action, and Virginia fans have a treat in store for next fall.

From a student's standpoint, Finals will be a much better time if the campus is swarming with alumni. Can't we expect you?

Local Alumni Association Notes

Louisville

ABOUT 56 members of the Louisville Chapter, parents, wives, sweethearts, and prospective students, met on January 20th at the Brown Hotel. President George Burks presided, and as new officers the following were chosen: Oldham Clarke, president; Fielden Woodward, vice-president; and Ernest Walker, secretary-treasurer.

There were talks by Edward A. Dodd, Professor Milburn of the Male High School, Robert P. Hobson, and Fielden Woodward who introduced the chapter's guest-speaker, Professor F. J. Barnes, II, one of Washington and Lee's teachers of government and favorite after-dinner speakers.

North Texas

ON February 21st, the members of the North Texas Chapter gathered in Fort Worth to witness some of the moving pictures of Washington and Lee scenes which Cy Young had forwarded, and to elect officers. The latter are: John M. Stemmons, president, and Norman Crozier, secretary-treasurer. A most pleasant evening was enjoyed by some 37 attendants, among whom were:

Mr. and Mrs. Norman R. Crozier, Jr., Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. Pinkney Grissom, Dallas; Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Lancaster; Mr. and Mrs. George D. McClure; Mr. E. A. Nesbitt; Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Stemmons; Mr. and Mrs. Storey Stemmons; Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Stiff, Dennison, Texas; Mr. and Mrs. R. L. McKinney, Jr., Durant, Oklahoma; Mr. and Mrs. D. S. MacDonald, Jr., Fort Worth.

Mr. and Mrs. Rudy Copeland, Jr.; Mr. and Mrs. Gaylord J. Stone; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Thomas; Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Power; Mr. and Mrs. C. S. McCall; Mr. G. E. Miller, Jr., Mabank, Texas; Mr. P. G. Hervey, Abilene, Texas; and Mr. Banard D. Bryan.

New York

THE Tenth Annual Dinner Dance of the New York Chapter was held on March 21st in the Rainbow Room of the R. C. A. Building. The attendance numbered 104, including alumni and their wives and friends, who enjoyed a brilliant evening, the feature of which was the introduction of Thornton W. Allen's new Washington and Lee Song, "Salute to the Generals." For a fuller account of the new song and its effect on the gathering, see the article elsewhere in this issue.

Gulf Stream

AT A MEETING in the Seven Seas Restaurant in Miami, the alumni of South Florida gathered on April 1st for a meeting to which Cy Young and Raymon Johnson, Washington and Lee professor of Law, brought news of the University. The chapter elected Paul D. Barnes president, Paul R. Scott vice-president, and Luther L. Copley secretary. The speech of Professor Johnson, who had previously addressed the Florida State Bar Association, was especially well received.

Among those in attendance were the following:

Frank G. Almon, Jr., '34; Paul D. Barnes, '17; W. F. Blanton, '11; George T. Clark, '25; Luther L. Copley, '25; William Harrison Daniel, '38; R. B. Gautier, Jr., '31; R. L. Hall, '32; Charles J. Holland, '28; F. M. Hudson, '90-'92; Hugh S. Larrick, '03; William H. Malone, '02; Alfred Lee McCarthy, '23; John A. Moore, '05; W. F. Parker, '20; Wallace Ruff, '14; Oliver P. Searing, '12; J. Bernard Spector, '32; J. S. Twyman, '16; B. J. Wagner, '28; J. Emmet Wolfe, Jr., '29; Bernard R. Kennedy, '23, of Washington, D. C.

Cumberland Valley

THE Cumberland Valley Chapter, which includes members from cities in Maryland, Virginia, and West Virginia, met on March 14th for a banquet at the Hotel Alexander in Hagerstown, Maryland. Dr. Gaines spoke about the present state of the university with special reference to the effect of the war on student needs. Secretary Young also spoke. Omer T. Kaylor, president of the chapter, presided.

Among the almost seventy present were:

Waynesboro: James W. McKown, W. Gordon Weagly. Martinsburg: J. B. Hoke; Herbert E. Hannis; Gilbert C. McKown; Charles L. Beall; J. Nevin Kilmer; William White; Leo R. Hack; H. Marshall Homer; Dr. James K. Guthrie; William C. Morton; Norman J. Barwick. Brunswick: Alfred R. Jones; Harry George, Jr.

Frederick: Judge Edward T. Delaplaine; William T. Delaplaine; Robert C. McCardell; George T. Myers; J. Malcolm McCardell; Richard M. Radcliffe; Manuel M. Weinberg; Dr. John S. Derr. Hagerstown: Samuel C. Strite; Dr. Isaac H. Shupp; C. Wells Little; D. Raymond Snively; Merle G. Kaetzel; Omer T. Kaylor; Edwin H. Miller; John D. Zentmyer; Donald G. Kaylor;

George M. Bohman, Jr.; E. Weldon Heatwole; M. B. Ridenour; Neil Meredith.

Charles Town: Frank J. Beckwith; the Reverend Mr. C. Irving Lewis. Chambersburg: Robert B. Shively. Lewisburg, Pennsylvania: Grover C. Gabriel.

Jacksonville

SOME thirty alumni were present for the annual meeting of the Jacksonville chapter on April 3, held at the George Washington Hotel.

The meeting was addressed by Dr. Raymon T. Johnson of the law faculty and Cy Young, alumni secretary.

The following officers were elected for another year: Rhydon Latham, '28, and Jack Ball, '32, president and secretary respectively.

Cincinnati

WALTER McDONALD, 1910, was host to the Cincinnati alumni at his home in Indian Hills on March 10, with Dr. Francis P. Gaines, president of the University as guest of honor. There were thirty alumni present.

It was a delightful occasion, and the guests enjoyed the hospitality of Walter's beautiful and commodious home.

Danville

THE Old Belt Alumni Chapter met on March 7 at the Country Club Inn, Danville, Virginia. Cy Young, alumni secretary, and Lea Booth, publicity director for athletics, represented the University and made a report on University affairs.

Forty-five alumni were present. The following officers were elected: Jack L. Neal, '24, Danville, president; Bill Stone, '33, Martinsville, vice-president; and Bill Taylor, '27, Danville, secretary.

Tampa

ON THE OCCASION of the Florida State Bar Association meeting the annual breakfast gathering of Washington and Lee lawyers was held at the Tampa Terrace Hotel on March 9. Washington and Lee lawyers from all parts of the state, who were present for the Bar meeting attended the breakfast and were addressed by Dr. Raymon T. Johnson of the law faculty. There were forty alumni present.

Washington and Lee may well be proud of its legal representatives in the State of Florida.

Arrangements were in charge of Henry Tilman, '06; and Kenneth I. McKay presided.

Philadelphia

SIXTY ALUMNI, their wives and friends, held an enthusiastic meeting in the Red Room of the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel on George Washington's birthday, February 22nd, honoring President Francis P. Gaines, as well as our great benefactor.

Dr. Gaines made an inspiring address on Washington, and moving pictures of campus scenes were shown and enjoyed by all present.

Lynwood R. Holmes, 1900, president of the chapter, presided.

Atlanta

WASHINGTON AND LEE alumni of Atlanta met for their annual meeting on April 21 at the Piedmont Driving Club. Twenty-five local alumni and their wives were present to hear an address by President Gaines.

Officers elected for the coming year were as follows: Alex M. Hitz, president, Henry Peebles, vice-president, John Kell Martin, secretary, and T. Hal Clarke, treasurer.

Richmond

ON March 19 alumni of Richmond gathered in the Blue Room of Ewart's Cafeteria for their semi-annual meeting. Dean Gilliam represented the University, and George Haw, 1904, president of the chapter, presided.

Roanoke

WITH an attendance of about 101 alumni the Roanoke Chapter met on February 26th at the Hotel Roanoke.

President Gaines and Cy Young were the principal speakers of the evening, featured also by the presentation of Commemorative Plates to Louis N. Hock, James C. Long, and Mayor Walter W. Wood—as attendance prizes; and the reading of a poem by Leigh Hanes in answer to Germany's war song, "We're marching against England."

Earl Fitzpatrick presided at the meeting which elected Edward H. Ould president, John Strickler vice-president, Martin P. Burks secretary-treasurer, and Courtney King representative on the Alumni Council.

Among those present were the following:

R. B. Adams, '13; Linwood Atkinson, '30; Bill Bagby, '38; Phillip L. Baird, '14; Lea Booth, '40; Rufus C. Bowman, '11; E. V. Boyer, '18; L. J. Boxley, '09; Tom R. Bryant, '39; Paul C. Wood, '25.

St. Louis

THE St. Louis Washington and Lee Alumni Association held a banquet and meeting at the Bellerive Country Club on the evening of May 6, 1941. The principal speaker was Dean of Men, Frank J. Gilliam, who, after meeting with the Louisville alumni on the previous evening spent the day visiting a number of St. Louis County high schools, and met with us in the evening. The retiring president of our local association, Joseph R. Long, acted as toastmaster. The guests included the local alumni and some of their parents, and also the parents of some of the St. Louis students now at Washington and Lee.

Dean Gilliam made an inspiring talk covering the improvements in the buildings and equipment, the changes, both actual and contemplated, in the athletic activities, the part Washington and Lee is taking in the preparation for national defense, and many other matters of interest.

At the close of the meeting, an election of officers was held, and the following were elected to serve during the ensuing year:

William C. Edwards, president; Tom C. Atwood, vice-president; Landon Y. Jones, secretary-treasurer.

The guest list included the following: Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Robinson; Andrew H. Baur, Jr., and his mother, Mrs. Andrew Baur; Samuel P. McChesney, Jr., and his mother, Mrs. Samuel P. McChesney; Andrew H. Moore, Dr. Sherwood Moore, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Patterson, Richard B. Bradley, Mrs. John Barrie, mother of Jack Barrie, '42; Mr. and Mrs. J. Crossen, F. M. Robinson, Jr., Tom C. Atwood, William C. Edwards, Joseph McL. Stewart, Calvin East, Richard J. Payne, Jr., Landon Y. Jones, Joe Edwards, all of St. Louis. Belleville, Illinois, was represented by Mr. and Mrs. Albert M. Fowler, Walter E. Weidmann and Homer W. Weidmann. We were pleased to have as guests Mr. and Mrs. J. Soule Smith, and their son Chad Smith, who is entering Washington and Lee next fall.

Announcement was made of a joint picnic to be held on June 1 by the St. Louis Alumni Associations of Dartmouth and Washington and Lee.

A New W. and L. Song

ham, '14, "College Friendships," "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny," "Swanee River," and "Dixie."

Members of the Washington and Lee Glee Club, anxious to advance their own and the college's interests, will sell this collection and reap the profit from it. Furthermore, Mr. Allen has offered to give half his own royalties from the sale of the new song to the Glee Club, a generous act which should help to give this already successful society further advantages.

No college can boast such a song as we all know the "Swing" to be, but with the addition of "Salute to the Generals," our musical fame cannot be questioned. The "Salute," in Mr. Allen's words is "to Washington and Lee men everywhere." And from everywhere will come the reply—"A Salute to a grand new song."

In Memoriam

HENRY STRATTON, retired wholesale grocer and cotton factor of Memphis, Tennessee, died on February 7, after a long illness. For many years he had been head of the firm of Stratton and Gover, formerly owned by his father.

Mr. Stratton, a bachelor, leaves two sisters.

On March 19 in Charles Town, West Virginia, CAPTAIN HENRY CLAY GETZENDANNER died at his home, aged 80 years.

Captain Getzendanner attended Shepherd College before taking his law degree here. During his long career in Charles Town he was state senator, member of the local draft board during the first World War, and postmaster.

His wife survives him as well as a son and two sisters.

RUBY LAFFOON, former governor of Kentucky, died on March 1 at his home in Madisonville. He was 72 years old.

Governor Laffoon began his education in Law at Columbia College (now George Washington) in Washington, D. C., but completed his work and took his degree at Washington and Lee.

He went early into politics and served as County Attorney of Hopkins County and Circuit Judge of the same. His gubernatorial term (1931 through 1935) was marked by bitter factional fights, centering chiefly around a proposed sales-tax which Governor Laffoon favored as a depression measure. During his term he created more "Kentucky Colonels" and granted more pardons than any previous governor had done.

In the words of Senator Alben Barkley, "His death is . . . a serious loss to the public life of the state . . . He was a noble character."

He is survived by his wife, three daughters, and two sisters.

1911

WALTON ROBERT LAWSON TAYLOR, former mayor of Norfolk, Virginia, died on March 22nd from the effects of infantile paralysis which had afflicted him early in life and had been always a serious physical handicap to him.

He worked several years for the old New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk railway before saving enough money to enter the Washington and Lee School of Law. After graduation he built up an extensive law practice. He did not enter politics until 1930 when he was selected to run for the city council on a "Businessman's Ticket." His term as mayor covered the worst years of the depression, but Mr. Taylor struggled mightily to give his city a courageous and efficient administration which produced many improvements now appreciated by his fellow townsmen.

Surviving him are Mrs. Taylor, a son and daughter, and a grandson.

PAUL HAMILTON JONES died on February 27 at the United States Veterans Hospital in New Orleans. Until stricken with illness a year ago, he had been an executive in several department stores and was superintendent of the Maison Blanche store in New Orleans at the time of his death. At one time, in 1917, he was the youngest commissioned officer in the United States Army. After the war, he was discharged with the rank of captain.

His wife, a son, and four brothers survive him.

New Arrivals

HOWARD M. ELDER, 1922, and Mrs. Elder announced the birth of a son, Howard M., Jr., born last January.

THOMAS C. SMITH, class agent for the Law Class of 1935, announces that the most important event of his life occurred on the 28th of April, the advent of a son.

JOHN CHARLES SMITH, 1931, is second vice-president of the Northern Trust Company, Chicago.

KENNETH GORDON DUSTIN, 1937, has been commissioned an Ensign in the Naval Reserve and awarded the gold wings of a Naval Aviator.

KI WILLIAMS, 1915, now superintendent of the Du Pont Rayon Plant in Waynesboro, Virginia, recently received the company's 25-year award, and was elected to the city school-board.

T. RUSSELL CATHER, 1908, a prominent attorney in Winchester, Virginia, and former Virginia state senator, has been named president of the eighteenth annual Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival.
