THE COVER—What goes on here? Little did the founding fathers of ODK ever suspect that the new memorial bench they erected beside McCormick Library last spring would become a campus casino. Here the Rockbridge County Marching and Chowder Club engages in a "little game of chance." If you drop your penny in the "D" (the "O" and the "K" don't count), you win the pot.—An un-posed photo by Philip Flourny, Virginia State Chamber of Commerce.
Education, Bacon, and Eggs

The task and the thrill of education are in this high privilege, to bring youth of promise, youth of excellence, into a knowledge of life's supreme cultural and spiritual values. It is an ennobling conception and it is exalting work. Too bad, you may say, that educators so often change their tone, descend to the constant discussion of material things, to the sordid and sometimes morbid chatter of dollars and cents.

* * * * *

But I never knew of any church so closely identified with the delectable heights, or of any home so divinely blessed in its interplay of purest affection, that did not sooner or later take account of expenditures, that did not face the problem of lucre. And the question is a constant one for educational institutions. Timidly but under a mandate of stewardship, I present a few "phases of lucre."

* * * * *

It was my happiness, my somewhat surprised happiness, to report to our governing Board that we closed last year with a tiny surplus. Actually our situation for the year was practically perfect; institutions of learning are supposed not to make money or to lose money, but to spend currently their income—and no more—on the present expression of their enterprise. The story I was fortunate enough to tell is not, however, the story of many of the strongest and the best of American colleges; large numbers showed a crippling deficit.

* * * * *

The situation has filled college leaders with apprehension. An outward and visible sign of this anxiety is the fact that tuition rates have risen sharply. The New York Times (October 2, 1949) reports that in 630 institutions studied, tuition rates are "now an average of 52% higher than they were in 1941-42." Our tuition rate, by the way, is 50% higher, and thus we are just about the average.

* * * * *

I should be tedious (more tedious even than normal) if I were to list here the rising cost of various items of our necessary expense. For the students, I chose coal, perhaps most dramatic; for approximately the same amount of coal that we used in the session of 1941-42, we shall pay this year almost exactly three times the amount of money. Other factors have not risen so vividly but the increase is tremendous, particularly in building and repair material and in wages for the non-professional staff. The same forces that push up our costs operate in all domestic circles, and our faculty members have felt an almost desperate economic pressure.

* * * * *

For the current session, there was nothing for us to do but raise tuition, and raise it by a rather large jump. About that tuition raise, I wish to emphasize, even repeat, two facts.

* * * * *

The first fact is that the raise would not have been possible, certainly in terms of our ideals, if our alumni and other friends had not built for us a gratifying scholarship fund. We have now almost a million dollars in capital funds, the income from which is to be used exclusively to help worthy boys who lack adequate funds of their own. The other fact is that, with a few exceptions for unescapable increased costs of operation, the principal increase in revenue is used for salaries, to ease the burden of those personalities who carry the essential work of the University.

* * * * *

If we could assume that conditions would remain static, we should be fairly comfortable. It is, we must regretfully admit, a future of uncertainty that we face. Business depression, further increase of costs, even international uncertainties could disturb us. The enormous outlay of public money to our competing institutions under public control could out-mode us. Nobody can contemplate the future with serenity of mind.

* * * * *

We have no hope except the continuing loyalty and support of our alumni, our patrons, and other friends who believe in this type of institution and believe in Washington and Lee particularly. Aid from the Federal government is a poor policy and even if adopted generally would not be accepted by this University. We have no other resources than the sustained loyalty and generosity of our friends, but we have a happy confidence that these friends will not fail us.

Beginning the Third Century

With the beginning of its third century, Washington and Lee marks also the beginning of a new transition back to its pre-war status. Since September, 1946, the school has had a veteran-studded campus, but with the beginning of this year W. and L. is going back into the hands of the younger high school graduates.

Enrollment in the school is still high, as a total of 1238 men are registered in the combined academic and law schools. This does show a decided trend toward a smaller student body, however, having dropped 55 men below last year's enrollment, and almost a hundred below the number registered in 1946.

For the last year, the veteran influence has been clinging on, although the trend here is apparent. In this year's freshman class there are only nine vets, as compared with 30 last year, and much greater numbers the two previous sessions. Total enrollment is an even greater evidence of the transition.

"Do all freshmen have to take mathematics?" ... "Well, you can substitute some crimp course like Greek or Latin."

"Hurry up and wait" is the by-word in the registration line.

Out of the total registered in September, 359 are veterans, as compared with 624 last year, and over a thousand in 1946. Furthermore, a large majority of these 359 are entered in the law school.

Dean Frank Gilliam cites the statistics as a mirror of not only what the University is doing about crowded conditions, but also what the future holds. For the last three years, W. and L. has taken in approximately 300 freshmen, because of the vast number of applicants, but Dean Gilliam says that the trend is now, and will continue to be, toward cutting down total enrollment to about 950. This, however, is expected to take care of itself, largely through the greatly enlarged graduating classes, filled with veterans, and through the normal number of men who leave school before graduating.

The Law School is a different story. Here, the policy is to take in as many qualified men as the staff can teach, mainly because of the fact that enrollment is sure to drop as the veterans graduate. This will be a few more years than in the academic school.

One other trend, still in the embryonic process, is evident from the beginning of this session. Of the new men taken, 15 were transfers, a larger number than at any time since the war. The policy of the school is still to restrict the number of transfers except in special cases, but nevertheless, the swing is still back to taking more than the one or two which have been allowed to enter since the war.

The big disappointment of the opening of the 300th session was the absence of President Gaines for the opening day assembly. This was the first time in 19 years that Dr. Gaines had not been present to officially begin the school year. His absence was forced by serious illness, although he is greatly improved now and is back in his office in Washington Hall.

Fraternity pledging on the campus this year reached an all time high of 258 men—taken in by the seventeen houses. This number of new men has bolstered the size of the fraternities to greater heights than ever before, and has also increased the number of fraternity men on the campus to an all-time high. Some houses now have as many as 70 men, with the average number around 55.

Another new addition to the campus in the social line is the recently formed Campus Club. This organization is made up of men not in fraternities, and replaces the old Non-Fraternity Union with a set-up along the lines of the fraternities themselves. It is closely knit, with a meeting place in the Student Union building, and organized participation in all social and political activities.

*A sad note was struck with the opening of the session when it was learned that the old freshman camp site, which has been used for the past 17 years, will no longer be available. Camp Powhatan has been abandoned by its owners, the Roanoke Boy Scouts, and as a result the school is now in the process of locating a new site.

Dean Gilliam says that he now has a new spot in mind, with the hope that it will be large enough to accommodate the entire freshman class, and not just the restricted number made necessary in the past by the small-sized Powhatan.

 Another policy is in the making as the third century starts rolling. For the past three years, the freshman dorm has been crowded beyond its capacity of 270 men, and plans are now being made to remedy the situation as part of the transition. One of two plans is to be followed: either the size of the freshman class will be cut to a maximum of 270 men, or new dormitory facilities must be built.

When the third century began at Washington and Lee this year on September 23, there were 13 new faces present in the classrooms besides the students. Eight of these new faculty members are past graduates of W. and L., and one the past Dean of Roanoke College.

The new appointments are:
Rex Crimnale, ’45, Instructor in Spanish;
John E. Davis, Instructor in Biology;

Dr. Marshall Fishwick, Head of the new division of American Studies;
Richard W. Gray, Instructor in Spanish;
Charles L. Green, ’40, Registrar;
Charles L. Guthrie, Jr., ’39, Director of Religious Work;
William B. Guthrie, ’44, Instructor in English;
Marion Junkin, ’27, Professor of Fine Arts;
Daniel C. Lewis, Jr., ’42, Assistant Professor of Commerce;
Dr. Edward D. Myers, Philosophy (past Dean of Roanoke College);
Buford S. Stephenson, ’42, Assistant Professor of German;
Henry L. Ravenhorst, ’35, Instructor in Engineering;
Dr. Joseph H. Wolfe, Assistant Professor of Law.

 Student Sons of Alumni **

Every year in the fall issue of the Alumni Magazine we list the names of sons of Alumni graduated at Washington and Lee. In compiling this list there has always been at least one omission and sometimes more. We hope that no omission has occurred in the following list, but if so that you will notify us.

From available records there are 143 sons of alumni enrolled; 12 less than the all-time record of 155 during the 1948-49 session.

The classes represented by alumni fathers cover a long period beginning with 1903 and ending with 1931.

DR. HOWE HONORED ON HIS 90th BIRTHDAY

Dr. James Lewis Howe, professor of chemistry, emeritus, at Washington and Lee, received congratulations on August 4th from his many friends and admirers on the occasion of his 90th birthday. While Dr. Howe retired some years ago as head of the Chemistry department he continues to lecture to senior classes.

Dr. Howe was born in 1859 at Newburyport, Massachusetts, and graduated with an A.B. degree from Amherst College. He also holds degrees from Gottingen, the University of Berlin and the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and is a member of many scientific societies both in this country and abroad. Besides his bibliographies on platinum metals, Dr. Howe's writings include several text books and contributions to scientific journals.

W. and L. STUDENTS STAND WELL IN BAR EXAMS

Thirty-four out of 49 students from the Washington and Lee law school were successful in passing the Virginia state bar examinations in June. This successful percentage of 69.4 compares favorably with the figure of 56 per cent for the entire number taking the examinations. Out of a total of 294 who stood the test, only 164 passed.

"NEWS OF 50 YEARS AGO"

(Rockbridge County News, August 14, 1949)

"The alumni of Washington and Lee residing in Lexington met Saturday morning in the office of D. E. Moore, Esq., and organized a local alumni association. D. E. Moore was chosen president and Frank Moore, secretary. Robert White McCrum, son of Mrs. R. Barton McCrum, was selected for the Washington and Lee scholarship next year."

Pajamas, torchlights, 13 Club shenanigans...the Homecoming pep rally hasn't changed.

By John French, '50

With the opening of Washington and Lee's third century, a total of 27 endowed scholarships were awarded to members of the freshman class. Many of these awards were made possible by Bicentennial contributions. However, even with this strong advance in our scholarship situation, a great deal remains to be accomplished in the light of the University's ultimate scholarship goal.

The main problem which presents itself is the $100 raise in tuition, effective this term, bringing the year's fee to $450.00. Although this figure is no higher than that charged by comparable schools in the North, it is one of the highest figures in the South today. As a result, without direct scholarship assistance many highly desirable candidates find themselves unable to enter Washington and Lee. With this in mind, the Bicentennial campaign stressed gifts to the scholarship fund, and was, to some extent, successful. Contributions to this very immediate need and cause almost completely overshadowed donations to other phases of the campaign.

Of the scholarships inaugurated this year a good many were War Memorial awards—those set up in memory of alumni who lost their lives in the Second World War. Each has an interesting story behind it, and the benefit derived from these gifts is immeasurable. They have gone a long way in helping to develop the talent and capability of many deserving boys who, without that assistance, would not have had the privilege of coming to Washington and Lee.

This year, and in years to come, the need for these scholarships is greater than ever before in the history of the University. One cause is the raise in tuition; another is brought about by the approaching termination of the G.I. Bill of Rights which has assisted so many students in the past. Next year the number of men on this plan will be practically nil.

Therefore, a great new field of needy men will arise, and with scholarships, and scholarships alone, may this field be cultivated. The means of providing this cultivation is one of the main problems facing Washington and Lee today.

The scholarships which were awarded at the beginning of the fall session this year and the recipients are:

Mary Magruder Laughlin Scholarship to Charlie Fuller McNutt, Jr., Charleston, West Virginia.

Thomas Greene Terry Scholarship to Brantley Francis Barr, Jr., Danville, Virginia.

Arthur B. Koontz, Jr., Scholarship to J. Wilmert Benjamin, Lewisburg, West Virginia.

Alfred I. du Pont Scholarships to Leo Barrington, Washington, D.C.; and Marvin Hauser Anderson, Cambridge, Maryland.

Cary T. Grayson Scholarships to Harrison Steele Dey, Jr., Staunton, Virginia; Robert Batson Hall, Winchester, Virginia; Bentz Buell Howard, Jr., Schoolfield, Virginia; and James Lee Sheets, Hopewell, Virginia.

Julian LeRoy Dart, Jr., Scholarship to Opie Weems Hollowell, Birmingham, Alabama.

Elizabeth Cave Drye Scholarship to William Durwood Bruce, Meherrin, Virginia.

Charles Poeultnitz Johnston Scholarship to Charles Ashley Stainback, Jr., Somerville, Tennessee.

Edward von Harten Ladd Scholarship to Houston Evins Hamm, Huntsville, Alabama.

Phillip W. Murray, Jr., Scholarship to George Treat Holbrook, Jr., Wethersfield, Connecticut.

The Post-War University Co-op

By John French, '50

Coffee at the co-op, a mid-morning breather.

In September, 1946, as Washington and Lee returned to its pre-war size, the building which before the war was known as the old "Beanery" took on a new air. It became the new University Co-op, with new environment, new credentials, and a new service for students of the University.

At this time, the school took over the reins of management of the Co-op, and appointed as its manager, Ralph Davi, a student. Inside the new home, Manager Davis set up a semi-complete supply of books and supplies, a coke machine, and a limited line of novelties and odds and ends. This was only the beginning, however, of what the Co-op was to become.

During that first year, the total amount of sales at the store amounted to around $50,000, but increased to a little over $100,000 the following year, and to a new high of over $140,000 worth of business during the past school year. The reason for this was the steady development of the "Supply Store" into a complete shopping center and gathering place for students.

The first move on the part of the University was to have the store unincorporated from its pre-war status. All personnel were put on standard salaries, and in this way it was possible to improve the quality of goods at low prices which are today offered to student-purchasers. Also, quantity of selection has been increased to such an extent that it has become necessary to utilize almost three-times the space which was used in 1946.

During that first year, a complete soda fountain was added, along with a kitchen to back it up, so that anything from cokes to complete meals may now be obtained from the same place. The line of novelty and drug goods was considerably increased, now offering anything from a bar of soap to glassware with the University emblem engraved upon it.

In 1948, it became so over-crowded in the upstairs room, that all of the books and other school supplies were moved downstairs into the basement. A staff of two is employed at all times to take care of this room, and its volume of business has brought it up to a parallel with any book store in Lexington.

This year, the officials of the Co-op have gone a step further—a barber shop has been installed in the back room of the building, complete with two chairs. Prices are the same as in town, and two barbers are in full-time employment to keep the Mink-hair in line.

In February of this year, while the store was in the middle of its great transition, Ralph Davis, who had managed the Co-op since its grand re-opening in 1946, resigned. The University, in an effort to make the organization even stronger, appointed Fred Carmichael, who at that time was an instructor in the School of Commerce, to take over Davis' job.

The new manager immediately put the entire building through a complete renovation in an effort to modernize it to the extent of which it was then operating. New lights were installed throughout, the kitchen was completely done over and added to, and a more enticing paint job added color to the surroundings.

In an effort to serve the students something more than a complete line of drug goods and food, the Co-op has also adopted a policy of service complete in every way. Five students are employed at the store during their free hours throughout the day, and in this way quick, efficient service can be offered with the least effort and the most good-will. Students' wives are used to help with the books and in the supply part of the store, and a few carefully picked town people round out the staff whose key-note is "service."

In this manner the Co-op has grown up with its new home to become one of the most important parts of student-life. It performs not only a service to the men, but a gathering place for them, the likes of which had never been had on the W. and L. campus before the war. Between classes, in the middle of examinations, and for that late morning "after an 8:25" breakfast, it has become the place to go, and it has grown with the student body to meet the growing demand.
A Resumé of Fall Sports

Washington and Lee has already swung into its fall semester with a crowded schedule of fall sport events of all types and varieties. Although the General teams have not always ended up in the win column, interest in the many contests has proved itself high.

Freshman Football

Under the direction of Con Davis, new freshman football and varsity basketball coach, the Brigadiers of 1949 compose a football team with many promising prospects for next year’s varsity. The 30 members of the freshman team hail from seven different states, extending from Michigan to Massachusetts, and from Alabama to New York. Of these 30, Davis sees 15 players as very likely material to take over key varsity spots in the next three years.

The team is sparked by the performance of Randy Broyles, the most publicized player to come out of West Virginia in many years. Broyles, who takes one of the halfback slots, was sought by at least a dozen different schools before deciding to come to W. and L., and his prospects for the future are unlimited. The other halfback on the team is Jack Garst, Boones Mill, Virginia, boy with lots of spark. Leading scorer for the Brigadiers so far this year is their fullback, Wes Abrams, who hails from Cumberland, Maryland. It is expected that he will probably be switched to halfback when he joins the varsity.

In the line, outstanding play on the part of the two tackles, Jack Delahunty and Dan Popovich, has helped in the success enjoyed by the team so far. Both boys are rugged, and have played almost every minute of every game. An All-Texas end from Fort Worth, Bob Thomas, has also been an invaluable aid to the team, while the heaviest man on the squad, 220-pound Bill Stanley, has shown himself as quite capable at the center slot. He is especially adapt at line-backing.

In their three games played thus far, the Baby Generals have a record of two wins against one loss. The only loss was to the West Virginia freshmen in a heartbreaker. W. and L. lead up to the last three minutes of play when West Virginia rolled over a touchdown at the last moment to take the game by a slim margin of 19-14. Only fifteen men were used by W. and L. during the entire course of the game.

In winning the opener, they out-matched the Richmond frosh throughout the entire game and emerged with the 14-7 win. Against Staunton Military Academy, the Brigadiers were given trouble in the first half, but came through with a valiant rally in the last section to down the SMA boys, 28-14.

Soccer

With an off-again-on-again record for the year, Coach Norm Lord’s Soccer team is an example this year of seasoned players with a love for the game. For the third straight season, the team is captained by Jim Trundle, who has held the honor since re-organization of the booters in 1947. Against Virginia in the opener, the boys showed the spirit, but were out-matched for a 3-1 loss. The next week they bounced back, downing Roanoke College to the tune of 4-2. The splurge was short-lived, however, as they dropped the next game to a strong North Carolina University team, again by a 3-1 score; and then fell before Roanoke College in a return engagement, 3-1.

* * * * *

Cross Country

The 1949 Cross Country runners have shown themselves more individually than collectively. Their season record thus far shows two wins against the same number of losses. On October 8, they took the opening meet from Hampden-Sydney with a 26-29 score. The following week they squeaked past Randolph Macon in Ashland, 27-28. In their last two meets they have been out-run, though; first by the University of Virginia, 49-21, and Homecoming week-end by the Davidson Wildcats at half-time by a 42-20 score.

* * * * *

Varsity Football

With a team led by brilliant sophomore quarterback Gil Bocetti, the 1949 General football squad has made a showing much more impressive than the statistics show. The record through Homecoming showed a total of only two wins against four defeats, but the stories behind these games show a great deal more about the team.

Coach Barclay, in his first year as head football coach, has worked the team entirely off the split "T" formation. The emphasis has been neither on passing nor running plays, but the two manners of attack have been intermingled in order to bring the best possible results.

Bocetti, an 18-year-old sophomore from McKeensport, Pennsylvania, has run the squad on the field during almost every minute of playing time. An expert passer, who inspires confidence from the ten men playing with him, he is claimed by Barclay as the greatest football player he has ever coached. Gil's activities have gained recognition throughout the East, and with two years yet to play, W. and L. is looking toward a possible All-American berth before very long.

* * * * *

A short resume of the first six games of the year:

Furman: In the season's opener, the Generals surprised everyone by rolling to a 27-7 victory over the team from South Carolina. Bocetti's performance was outstanding, as W. and L. came back after trailing 7-0 in the early minutes of the game. From that time on, Furman never was in the game. By half time, Furman's lead had been cut to one point, and the last two quarters saw the Generals roll over for three more touchdowns. The attack was carried on mostly on the ground, only six passes being attempted; and a total of 225 yards was gained by rushing.

West Virginia: The following week-end the Generals traveled to Charleston to meet their ancient rivals from West Virginia. A brilliant fight was put up before the final gun blasted, leaving W. and L. on the short end of a 28-20 score. It was a game of freak incidents: 190 yards being lost on penalties, and 12 times the ball was lost as a result of fumbles. The fighting Blue was behind throughout the game, but never stopped fighting. Highlight of the game was an 84-yard run for a touchdown by fleet-footed Jim Gallivan.

Georgia Tech: The worst beating the Big Blue has taken all year was at the hands of the Yellow Jackets who simply out-classed the squad after a slow first quarter. The Generals held their opponents scoreless throughout the first quarter, but after that Georgia Tech went on to win by a 36-0 count. One highlight of the game came when a double lateral play resulted in a TD by Bocetti, although it was then called back on a penalty.

Virginia: Despite some superb playing at various points of the game, W. and L. fell before the traditional rivals in Charlottesville by a score of 27-7. It all boiled down to a case of too many mistakes and too many fumbles on the part of the jittery boys in Blue. In the second period, the Generals climaxed an 84-yard drive to score and tie up the game for the moment. At the end of the third period the team trailed by only seven points, 14-7, but in the last quarter the Wahoos ran wild. A special feature of the game came after the final whistle while Ed Bessel was running for pay dirt with a pass he had caught in the final moments. Tackle Bob Smith, who was watching the game from the side-lines, ran onto the field and tackled the touchdown-bound Bessel on the three yard line, causing him to fumble. Then the Wahoos recovered the ball over the goal, and still got the TD. Not until two days later was it discovered that Smith had been the twelfth man on the field for Washington and Lee.

George Washington: The week-end before Homecoming the Generals traveled up to Washington to take on a slightly favored team from George Washington in their second night game of the year. In one of the closest battles of the season, they lost to the home team, because of two-extra-point failures by a score of 21-19, as GW made each one of its conversions. Both teams had three touchdowns. Quarterback Bocetti set-up two of the touchdowns, and passed to Trammell for the third. In the last quarter, the inspired W. and L. team drove a total of 99 yards from its own one-yard line to score for the final TD, and were again going when the game ended. In first downs and yards gained rushing, George Washington was out-played as shown by the final statistics of 13 first downs for the Generals to 7 for GW, and 246 yards gained rushing, while the home squad gained only 176.

Davidson: The Big Blue let themselves completely loose on Homecoming week-end to give the alumni the finest Homecoming show seen on Wilson field in many decades when they smothered the Davidson Wildcats by a count of 33-0. Forty-five hundred students and alumni saw the game which was played on a muddy field, although this in no way stopped the attack. Davidson was never in the ball game, and the closest they came to scoring was in the first quarter when they drove to the W. and L. 22, only to lose the ball. The ball started rolling after five minutes of play when Bobetti took the ball for 60-yards to mark up the first TD. After that, everything went fast and furiously, as Bobetti picked up a net yardage of 340 yards, and personally ran and passed for four of the touchdowns. Every man was an individual Tiger to the meek-looking Wildcats, and the climax came when the Generals went over for the last touchdown in the last minute of play, while people were filing out of their seats.

Virginia Tech: The Generals were favored to win over VPI but past records have meant little to the two teams in this annual game and this was showed once again on the field in Lynchburg. Tech, which according to Coach Barclay "has a much better team than its record indicates," battled the Generals on even terms throughout the first half. In the third period, starting on their own 28-yard line the Hokies went all the way to score. Most of the yardage was gained by passes.

Washington and Lee showed again the spirit which has characterized the team all season by coming back late in the fourth period to deadlock the score at 6-6. The Generals' march covered over 60 yards, brought out Bobetti's gambling instinct by running or passing three times on fourth down, and ended 45 seconds before the end of the game with Bobetti plunging over for the final yard.

Delaware: One of the East's finest independent teams, the Blue Hens managed to score their first win over a Washington and Lee eleven here on November 12. The visitors scored twice within the first 10 minutes of play—taking full advantage of their tricky reverses—and then staved off the Generals. Three times during the afternoon the W. and L. offense clicked for sustained drives and carried the Generals deep into the enemy territory. After drives of 87 and 64 yards, which did not yield scores, Washington and Lee scored in the fourth quarter when Vic Marler, Edystone, Pennsylvania, took a pitch-out from Gil Bobetti and scored on an eighty-yard sprint.

Richmond (as we go to press): The Generals ended their season Thanksgiving Day with a convincing 35-14 victory over the University of Richmond. And with the victory the W. and L. squad cinched third place in the Southern Conference.

Richmond scored early in the first quarter but the Generals showed the spirit which has marked their play all season by coming from behind and winning easily. Concluding their careers were six seniors: Ends Jim Faehey and Jack Crawford; Backs Vic Marler, Henry Mastrianni, Gene Bennett and Frank Davidson.

With the Local Chapters

APPALACHIAN

Deans Frank J. Gilliam and James Leyburn represented the university at the meeting of the Appalachian chapter of alumni in Marion, Virginia, on September 10. The business meeting and social hour were held at the home of Judge W. V. Birchfield, '18, past president of the organization. Officers elected for the ensuing year are Marion Sanders, '17, President; J. Aubrey Matthews, '21, Vice-President; Lt. Gov. L. Preston Collins, '20; alumni representative; and Francis R. Russell, '43, Secretary-Treasurer. Following the business meeting an excellent banquet was served at Hemlock Haven, in the appropriately decorated dining room to fifty-six alumni, their wives and guests, Judge Birchfield, presiding. The sound-color Washington and Lee film was shown. The evening was concluded at Holston Hills Country Club with the alumni and their guests enjoying the facilities of the club.

CHARLESTON, WEST VIRGINIA

One hundred or more alumni from all parts of West Virginia met at the Kanawha Country Club for the annual smoker and dinner of the local association on September 30, the eve of the West Virginia-Washington and Lee football game. Frank Bell, Jr., '43, President, presided. Principal speakers were R. A. "Capt. Dick" Smith and George Barclay, head football coach. Similar meetings have been held on a corresponding date for many years and everyone present agreed this was one of the best.

The meeting was preceded in the afternoon by a golf match between West Virginia and Washington and Lee alumni. The "Old Generals" came out victors in this one, 17-11. Kelley Reed, '37, had the low medal score.

CLEVELAND AND NORTHERN OHIO

Alumni of Cleveland and Northern Ohio held their annual fall meeting at the University Club, Cleveland, on Monday evening, November 7.

Election of officers brought forth Samuel P. McChesney, Jr., '38, as president for the coming year, and Thomas L. Stillwell, '44, as secretary-treasurer. McChesney succeeds Thomas M. Harman, '25, and Stillwell succeeds McChesney.

About twenty-five members and their wives gathered for cocktails and dinner at the University Club to hear Lea Booth, '40, director of public relations at Washington and Lee, discuss the impact of the bicentennial program upon the University.

A luncheon meeting during the Christmas holiday season is being planned as the next get-together for Cleveland "Minks."

NEW YORK, NEW YORK

The Emmett W. Poindexters, B.A. '20, LL.B. '23, were hosts at a Washington and Lee alumni picnic, including wives, children, etc., at their summer home "Sunlit Farm," in Putnam County, New York, on Saturday, July 23. Badminton, ping-pong, horseshoes, softball, swimming, eating and drinking were thoroughly enjoyed by all. The singing could be heard all over the Hudson Valley by old timers like Rip Van Winkle and the Headless Horseman. The rendition of "The Swing," "Alma Mater" and "Drunk Last Night" were superb. The party broke up about 11:30 p.m. The hosts still say they would like to make it an annual affair.

The twenty-fifth annual dinner of the Washington and Lee Alumni in New York was held at The Columbia University Club, New York, New York, on Friday, November 4, 1949 at 7:30 p.m. The dinner was preceded by an informal reception which started at 6:30 p.m.

W. J. L. Patton, '22, President of the local association, presided at the dinner with Dean James G. Leyburn representing the University as guest speaker, and Mr. Henry Irey, representing the V.M.I. alumni. There were fifty Washington and Lee alumni present.

At a short business meeting immediately following the

dinner, the following officers were unanimously elected to serve for the ensuing year:

RICHMOND, VIRGINIA

The summer meeting of the Richmond chapter was held on August 6th at Hanover Wayside, about five miles north of the Richmond city limits on Route 2. Freshmen expecting to enter the University in September, and their parents were among those invited. The gathering was an informal get-together and the only business transacted was the election of officers for the ensuing year, as follows: William B. Jacobs, '29, President; Frank Jones, Jr., '38, Vice-President, Adrian Bendheim, Jr., '42; Treasurer; and V. Cassell Adamson, '37, Secretary.

Tentative plans were made for the following schedule of meetings: November 23—Smoker, which will probably be held at the Hermitage Club; November 24—Reception and Tea Dance at the Jefferson Hotel immediately following the football game; February 22, 1950—Washington and Lee-Richmond Basketball Dinner, Ewart's Cafeteria; May, 1950—Spring meeting and election of officers.

As tentatively planned, two excellent meetings were held in connection with the Thanksgiving football game with the University of Richmond. On Wednesday night at the William Byrd Hotel approximately 100 alumni and their wives met in the Louis Seize Room of the Shoreham Hotel for cocktails and a delightfully informal gathering. The only business transacted was the election of the following officers of the local chapter for the coming year: Harry B. Breithaupt, '36, President; A. Dawson Trundle, '04, Vice-President; and Richard T. Wright, '46, Secretary.

WASHINGTON, D.C.

On October 20th, the night preceding the George Washington-Washington and Lee football game over 100 alumni and their wives met in the Louis Seize Room of the Shoreham Hotel for cocktails and a delightfully informal gathering. The only business transacted was the election of the following officers of the local chapter for the coming year: Harry B. Breithaupt, '36, President; A. Dawson Trundle, '04, Vice-President; and Richard T. Wright, '46, Secretary.

Harry St. G. T. Carmichael, '99

Died on September 29

Harry St. George Tucker Carmichael, member of the University Board of Trustees since 1938, died at Bowling Green, Kentucky, Thursday, September 29 following an illness of several months. Funeral services were held at Christ's Episcopal Church in Bowling Green Friday morning and at 4:00 p.m. Saturday in Lee Memorial Episcopal Church, Lexington, Virginia. Burial was in Stonewall Jackson cemetery, Lexington, Virginia.

Mr. Carmichael was born in Lexington, September 23, 1881, the only child of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Carmichael.

His mother was before marriage Miss Virginia Tucker, a daughter of John Randolph Tucker, Dean of the Washington and Lee School of Law, 1873-1897.

After graduating from Washington and Lee in 1899, Mr. Carmichael was associated as civil engineer for a number of years with Mason and Hanger in railroad and other construction work. In 1920 he became connected with the Kentucky Rock Asphalt Company at Kyrock, Kentucky, of which he was vice-President at the time of his death.

In addition to his service as a member of the University Board of Trustees since 1938, Mr. Carmichael served as a member of the Alumni Board of Trustees from 1934 to 1937, and as class agent from 1933 to 1938.

He was twice married. His first wife was Miss Anna Heitzel of Martinsburg, West Virginia. After her death he married Miss Lala Stanrod of Kentucky who survives him. He leaves also three sons, St. George Tucker Carmichael of Lexington, Kentucky, Stanrod Carmichael, B.A., '47, and John Carmichael, '50.

In the passing of Harry Carmichael the University has lost an alumnus whose devotion and faithful service and interest in its affairs cannot be over-estimated. His genius for friendship is evidenced by the host of those who knew and loved him and feel that his loss is irreplaceable.

Class Notes

Edward Wohlwender was honored by the Columbus, Georgia, Lawyers Club on the occasion of the celebration of his fifty years of continuous service in the practice of law in that city. Throughout his career as a lawyer, he has had a large, lucrative and general practice in the field of both criminal and civil law. Mr. Wohlwender has not confined his activities exclusively to the practice of law. Beginning in 1900 he served for fourteen years as a member of the General Assembly of Georgia, both as Representative from Muscogee County and as Senator from his District. He served for three years on the Board of Commissioners of Roads and Revenue of Muscogee County, and again, in 1941, represented Muscogee County in the General Assembly.

Quoting from the lengthy commendation of the Lawyers Club: “One of the most striking characteristics of Mr. Wohlwender is his personal integrity. He is absolutely honest, frank and fair. Each member of the Bar has felt the strength of his character, the influence of his personality, the fullness of his heart and the warmth of his soul, We, the members of the Columbus Lawyers Club, are privileged to pay tribute on this occasion to Ed Wohlwender, Sr., because we all love, admire and respect him.”
